ORIGIN OF NATIONAL EMBLEMS OF THE OLD WORLD.

Joan of Arc and the White Banner of France—The Tricolor of Holland. St. Augustine, the Missionary, Introduced Flags Into England.

The first western sovereign to adopt a flag was Clovis, king of the Franks. After his conversion to Christianity in the fifth century he took the "chape de St. Martin" as his standard. This, according to some writers, was actually part of the cloak which the saintly bishop of Tours cut in two in order to share it with a beggar at Amiens. More credible authorities, however, assert that it was the blue flag of St. Martin's abbey.

After Clovis, the Merovingian kings seem to have returned to the ancient emblems. They were content to fight under eagles, flowers, crosses or the images of saints until the time of Charlemagne, who, if an old mosaic in the Church of St. John Lateran at Rome is to be believed, reintroduced the blue flag embellished with six red roses.

The color of the French flag was changed in 1124, when Louis the Fat carried the red oriflamb of St. Denis in his struggles against the German emperor Henry V. This continued to be the official French flag down to the battle of Agincourt in 1415. In the meantime the blue flag had again made its appearance, now decorated with the fleur-de-lis instead of the roses of Charlemagne. In this form it was carried at Acre and Crecy and Poitiers, until in the fifteenth century it became the banner of France.

The first white flag in French history was the banner of the Virgin Mary borne by Joan of Arc in her heroic campaigns for the defense of the dauphin. A pure white flag was occasionally used by Francis I. in his struggles against the Emperor Charles V., but it did not become the permanent royal banner until Henry IV., the first Bourbon, ascended the throne in 1589.

The tricolor of the French revolution was a compromise. The cockades of the revolutionists were composed of two colors, the red of the Paris commune and the blue of the ancient monarchy. In the troubled times just preceding the deposition and execution of Louis XVI., Lafayette, to signify the desire of the people for a reconciliation with their king, added the Bourbon white to the cockade. The tricolor as a national emblem was adopted by the convention in 1794.

Long before this, however, the tricolor had been the national flag of Holland. The Dutch were in fact the first to use it. When the United Provinces gained their independence from Spain in the sixteenth century, according to a favorite old story which cannot be authenticated, they invited Henry of Navarre to choose their colors, and he suggested orange, blue and white. Whether he selected this combination or not, such were the colors of Holland until some time in the seventeenth century, when the orange was replaced by red. When William of Orange became king of England in 1608 he crossed the channel under the red, white and blue.

The early inhabitants of England, like those of other countries, used emblematic devices of one kind or another, that of the Saxons being a white horse. The introduction of flags into England is ascribed to the missionary St. Augustine and his followers, who after the conversion of King Ethelbert, according to the Venerable Bede, entered Canterbury in procession, chanting and bearing small banners.

Since the fourteenth century the cross of St. George has been the emblem of the British nation. Before that time it was worn on the armor by the crusaders, among whom it came to be known as the "jack." During the bloody civil wars of the fifteenth century it was practically superseded by the roses, white and red, and in 1606 by proclamation of James I. it was finally replaced by a red flag with the jack in the upper inside corner. The red standard of Great Britain did not attain its present form, however, until after the union with Ireland in 1801. By parliamentary enactment in 1801 the present union jack was brought into being by the addition of the cross of St. Patrick.

Waving flags are said to have been first brought to Spain by the Saracens. The present Spanish colors, red and yellow, came from the old shields of Castile and Aragon.

The Austrian black and yellow were the colors of the Holy Roman Empire. They were adopted, so the story goes, by Frederick Barbarossa, whose fancy was captured at a ceremony in Mainz by the black and gold flooring of the hall.

The crescent was originally the special mark of Constantinople, where for centuries it was used as a Christian symbol. There it was that the Turks first found it when they captured the city in 1453. Even today it may be found side by side with the cross on the churches in Moscow and other Russian cities, where it is used to indicate the Byzantine origin of the Russian faith.—New York Tribune.

The Audience Worse Than the Orator

He pointed out that verbatim reporting was unknown in those days, and he suggested that the other members of the House, on whose opinion [illegible] largely depended, [illegible] drunk three bottles.

MAKE YOUR WILL.

Judge Winchester Gives a Practical Talk On How to Make a Will and Why to Do It Now.

For over an hour on a recent Friday night His Honor Judge Winchester held the close attention of a large audience of men at the Toronto Y.M.C.A. whilst he spoke to them on the subject of "Wills and Descent."

He said that most men put off their will-making till the approach of death, from the time of Hezekiah, whom Isaiah exhorted to "put his house in order," because he was about to die, right down to to-day. He showed the differences between the English and Canadian laws, and said that under our laws a will can be written by anyone, it can be written in any language, either with pen or pencil; it can be printed or lithographed, so long as it clearly expressed the desire of the testator. Therefore it was important that the language should be clear and concise.

A will can only provide for the disposal of properties after death, and should therefore always provide for an executor or executors. Sometimes in the excitement a person might forget this, and such an eminent lawyer as the late Charles Durand forgot to provide for an executor in drawing up his own will.

A will must also have two witnesses and the testator and the two witnesses must all be together when each signs. This is absolutely necessary, and any deviation destroys the will. It was vital that the testator should be in a position to see the witnesses sign, and even a blind men must be placed in such a position as would enable him to see if he had his sight, and there have the will read over to him. Thus a blind man could make a good will; a blind and mute man could make a good will; but a blind, deaf and mute man couldn't. If a man makes a will before his marriage, he had better make another after, for the marriage destroys it. A married woman can make a will and dispose of her own property.

A person under age can neither make a will nor act as an executor. An insane person cannot make a will, unless in a lucid interval between his insane periods. Soldiers on active service and sailors on the high seas were two privileged classes. They could make out a verbal will and the two witnesses who had heard the deceased's instructions could file affidavits, which would constitute a good will.

Sometimes a man forgot some of his property in making out his will, so that it was always wise to add, "and the rest and residue of my estate I bestow, etc."

It was not wise to leave a will in a drawer or about the house. The safest method was to deposit it with the surrogate registrar of the county.

Wills were often attacked, but rarely successfully, except in cases of fraud. The courts were always anxious to carry out the evident wish of the testator. Sometimes people left conditional wills. These were difficult to deal with and should be avoided if possible. His honor narrated a case which came before him of a man who was so charmed with his little niece that he sent for witnesses and drew up a will reading, "If I die to-night I want my little niece to inherit all my estate."

"That was clear enough," said the judge, "but the trouble arose because the man didn't die that night and fulfill the conditions of his will."

A woman had a dower interest in her husband's real estate holdings, and the husband might give her the option in his will of a certain sum in lieu. A husband could have, by electing within six months, a "tenacy by courtesy" of his late wife's real estate holdings on two conditions—first, that he had had a child by her; and, second, that the child was born alive. Otherwise he could claim no share in the estate. Without a will an illegitimate child cannot inherit anything, nor without a will could his children inherit from him, for the law does not recognize illegitimates and the crown can escheat their property if they die intestate.

The law in Canada looks after the interests of girls better than the English law. In Canada if a man dies without leaving a will the girls and boys share alike. In England the eldest son frequently takes all.

His honor said: "If you are called upon to draw up a will, use common English in your own usual way, see that the person understands it, ascertain from the doctor that he is in sound mind, read it over to the testator, and in the presence of the two witnesses all three must sign the will.

"And for yourself, young man, see that you make a will without delay. It is a proper thing to do. No matter how little you have to leave, make a will. It will ensure that what you leave will go to those whom you wish it to go to without unnecessary bother and expense.

"And don't forget the dear ones. Leave something to your mother and your sisters. Remember the tender ones," urged Judge Winchester, proving once again that he has a good heart as well as a good head and a well-balanced judgment.

Cheap Telephones.

Nothing convinces people so quickly and thoroughly of the benefits of municipal ownership as the record of what has been done in places which have courageously grappled some problem and solved it. This is shown by the following appreciative paragraph in The Arnprior Chronicle:—"Three thousand three hundred dollars of clear profit is what the town of Fort William has to show for one year's operation of its telephone system. In fact it has much more to show than a substantial margin of receipts over disbursements. There [illegible] cheap and efficient service, pro[illegible] a sinking fund, interest, and [illegible] of plant, and vindication of the good principle of public ownership. The town which looks out upon Thunder Bay has set an example in this connection which other communities could make no mistake in following."

The striking miners of the Springhill, N.S., mines, have returned to work.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S POSITION.

Sir Robert Bond's Views on Secession and Confederation.

Montreal, April 11—Sir Robert Bond, Premier of Newfoundland, left yesterday for New York, en route to the conference of Premiers in London.

"It is reported that you mean to secede unless you can carry your point, Sir Robert; is that true?" was asked.

"Secede! From what?" was the reply.

"From the Empire."

Sir Robert laughed. "You seem to want to make history rather rapidly."

Confederation with Canada was suggested.

"I have to learn," replied Sir Robert, "that Canada's rights have always been respected, as I have heard of an Alaska boundary dispute, for instance. What about the territory that was given up?"

ROYAL MEETING ENDED.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra Leave Spain.

Cartagena, April 11.—The royal meeting terminated yesterday. The British squadron escorting the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board, departed early yesterday morning, and King Alfonso and the Dowager Queen Christina later left Cartagena for Madrid.

The Kings conferred absolutely alone for over an hour previous to separating, and it is assumed they went over the question for the discussion of which the meeting was arranged.

Admits Bigamy.

Stratford, April 11.—Leslie Harris, a young Grand Trunk fireman, appeared yesterday on a charge of bigamy, and pleaded guilty. It is alleged he had a wife and son in Portage la Prairie when he married Jessie Harwood of West Zorra last February.

Scratched Furniture.

Where there are fine pin-like scratches on new furniture they may be easily remedied by using pulverized rotten stone that can be bought ready for use. This put on a soft flannel rag and rubbed into the surface of the seat, back or arms of a chair or on to the top of a table will not only take off the defects, but bring a polish to the wood. To remove the rotten stone with a damp piece of chamois carefully wipe the wood, and when all trace of this is gone a bright luster can be brought to the surface of the wood by rubbing it lightly with a soft piece of cheesecloth moistened with alcohol. The latter must be used sparingly on furniture, for it burns the varnish and will ruin the appearance of the rocker or table if enough is put on to scorch the surface.

Balancing Expenses.

Young housekeepers so often utter the plaint, "I can buy the ordinary food for three meals a day on my table allowance, but there are so many extras." A woman of many years' experience, accustomed to working domestic miracles with an infinitesimal income, once said: "I would never have kept out of the poorhouse if I had not had a system. I make a list of the sundries without which no house is complete—soap, starch, flour, salt, etc.—and keep it under my eye. Each week I apportion so much money for my sundries and buy something. Thus I never find myself face to face with an empty salt box or vinegar jug at a time when there is no money to fill the lack."

Resting a Mantle.

When some people wish to clean the fittings of an incandescent burner they are often puzzled about a place for the mantle. The mere contact with a hard substance will sometimes shatter such a fragile thing, therefore resting it on a table is a risky proceeding. But when this method is applied the mantle can be safely removed. Insert a hatpin or knitting needle in the loop at the top and then balance the pin across an empty tumbler. The mantle then rests inside, where it is safe.

The Eliminating Process.

The up to date housewife is giving an interpretation of the word eliminate. All unnecessary hangings, pictures, bric-a-brac and trifles that serve but as dust catchers are conspicuous by their absence in the well conducted household. Comfort, simplicity and beauty are combined in an arrangement that is satisfying from the standpoint of both art and hygiene.

OBITUARY

MRS WILLIAM BRECKENRIDGE

The hand of death has again fallen heavily upon the home circle of Mr John Duff, postmaster at Indian River by the demise of his second daughter, Annie, who was married to Mr. Wm. Breckenridge just a year ago. A little daughter came to the happy parents on March 26, but on the following Sunday evening all hearts gathered sadness by the unexpected death of the joyful mother. Following only eighteen months after the death of her brother, Mr. James Duff, this affliction comes all the more heavily upon the whole circle of friends. Mrs. Breckenridge was beloved by all being of a particularly bright and cheerful disposition. She lived a sunny life, and died calm, peaceful and resigned. She was a much valued member of the Baptist church, in which for several years she was organist. Her services were heartily and freely rendered and much appreciated.

The funeral took place to Westwood cemetery on Wednesday, April 3, and was largely attended, the services at home and at the grave being conducted by her pastor, Rev. L. S. Steadman, of Warsaw.

Fifteen Lives Lost in Wreck

Bad Smash-up on C. P. R. Near Chapleau Yesterday—Broken Rail the Cause

Special to the Review.

Montreal, April 11.—According to an official statement issued by the C. P. R., fifteen lives were lost in the disaster to the C. P. R. westbound express yesterday near Chapleau, nine adults and six children.

Most of the dead were from England and are believed to have been occupants of the tourist car. The train, it is stated, was running at the usual rate of speed, when about twenty-two miles west of Chapleau, it was partly derailed by a broken rail. Five cars ran down an embankment and caught fire, it is said from the cooking range, and the dead were all either killed outright or cremated.

Women and children were the principal victims, only three men being mentioned in the list of victims.

Chapleau is in the district of Algoma, situated on the C.P.R., between Sudbury and Port Arthur, and about one hundred and twenty-five miles directly north of the Canadian Soo.

The city engineer's report has been presented to the city council and was read at the Board of Works meeting last night. It is a lengthy document, but a more important report is never presented to the council during the year. It is of the greatest interest to every ratepayer in the city, as everyone of them is concerned.

The report is given below, although details are not in full. It will speak for itself and is well worth careful perusal;

Gentlemen;

I have the honor to submit herewith my annual report for the year 1906;

The appropriation for expenditure on streets and bridges account for the year was as follows;

Original appropriation	$17000.00

SEWERS

Sewers were constructed on 49 streets or sections of streets, some of the contracts having been let and work commenced in 1905, of which 2.40 miles were laid in 1905 and 4.95 miles in 1906.

The total length of sewer now in use is as follows;

	Feet
Brick sewer, 2 ftx3 ft.	9150
18 in. pipe	1370
15 in. pipe	12484
12 in. pipe	38545
10 in. pipe	580
9 in. pipe	38730
8 in. pipe	3549
	104408

19 3-4 miles.

91 private connections with the sewer system were made in addition to 451 in contracts, making a total of 542 during 1906.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

A 24-inch cement pipe was laid to carry the water from Mason's creek, from the corner of Aylmer and along the north side of McDonnell, and east side of Bethune to the creek at Murray street, with catch basins at 4 places. This work was done by day labor and cost $1242.79.

RIVER FRONT

Dredging of new channel in the river below Hunter street commenced in October 1905 by the Dominion Government, was continued through the season of 1906. By an arrangement with the department part of the dredged material was deposited on the basin between the C.P.R spur line and the west shore. A contract was entered into with Mr. F. J. Conroy to deposit it at the rate of 13 cents per cubic yard. At the end of the season 13,000 cubic yards were in place. This contract will be continued during the coming season; $1348.97 has been paid the contractor and a drawback of 20 per cent. retained until completion.

CONCRETE WALKS

Six and four-tenths miles of concrete walks were constructed during 1906 by Mr. H. Evans, street commissioner, as follows;

	Feet
Inside tree line	23309
Outside tree line	8283
Crossings	2303
Total	33895

or 6.4 miles, or 173,854 square feet.

The total cost of this work was $19989.81;

The cost for inside work was 10.9 cents per square foot.

Cost for outside work 12 1-2 cents per square foot.

Cost of crossings 14 cents per square foot.

The cost exceeds that of last season's work by half a cent per square foot on account of higher cost of cement and wages, as well as of several expensive sections that were built.

Cement walks were built on forty-six streets or sections of streets.

The gravel, sand and stone used in concrete walks cost for loading and hauling, an average of 54 cents per cubic yard, of which the following was the quantity;

	Cubic Yards
From the Hilliard pit	5860
Obtained elsewhere	1213
Total	7073

The cement used was Monarch brand made by the Lakefield Cement Co., and supplied by the Peterborough Hardware Co. at $1.90 per barrel, tested, stored and delivered, or an advance of 20c. per barrel or the price of 1905. Total quantity used was 3888 3-4 barrels and cost was $7388.62.

Total length of concrete walks now in use:—

4 foot—16,657 feet.
5 foot—96,894 feet.
6 foot—12,071 feet.
8 foot—3,545 feet.
10 foot—11,203 feet.
Total—140,370 lineal feet.

Or 26 1-3 miles.

There yet remains to be renewed in permanent material 21 3-4 miles of wooden walk.

SPECIAL CONCRETE CROSSINGS

There were 16 concrete crossings laid during 1906 in addition to the 19 laid in the course of constructing concrete walks at an average cost of $56.25 or a total cost of $896.

There are 17,470 feet of wooden walks to be renewed in concrete, and parts of streets on which there are no walks, to be laid in 1907, in addition to those provided for, but not constructed during 1906 or an equivalent to 3.31 miles.

BRIDGES.

The redecking in reinforced concrete of bridges over the creek on Hunter and George streets was completed, the cost of which was:—Hunter street, $1,039.70; George street, $396.66; or a total of $1,436.36, or 36.3 cents per square foot.

Of the other bridges over the creek that on Charlotte street, authorized in 1905 was delayed but is now ready to erect as soon as the weather permits.

Provision has been made to redeck in reinforced concrete, the bridges on Dalhousie and Reid streets, and to rebuild those on King and Aylmer streets.

The Smith street bridge was repaired in the summer of 1906 at a cost of $572.91. To rebuild the bridge would cost (estimated) $37,200. This is for an 18 foot roadway with two sidewalks of 6 1-2 feet each. It was decided to repair the bridge during the winter of 1906-07 at a cost of $550 making the bridge good for another year.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The engineer reported that building operations have been very active during 1906, principally outside the fire limits.

Many complaints are made about the absence of street name plates, and great inconvenience is caused thereby. Where new walks are laid the name is inscribed in the concrete, but these are difficult to read at night and in winter.

The various electric, power, telephone and telegraph companies have made extensions to their systems during the past season, and the increase in the number of poles is becoming a serious problem, there being so many companies, and each company having a separate line of poles, although the number of wires carried on each is small. I have for a long time endeavored to have each company file a plan of its lines, showing the number of poles, position, etc., but so far none have done so.

Mr. P. Thompson, Plumbing Inspector granted 296 permits to licensed plumbers for plumbing and drainage during 1906.

PRESENTATION TO POPULAR LADY

Miss Curtis Honored by Sunnyside Branch, St. Luke's W. A.

An interesting event took place at the residence of Mr. Mark Curtis, Warsaw Road, yesterday afternoon, when Miss Ada Curtis was presented with an appropriate address and half a dozen silver knives and forks from the Sunnyside branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Luke's church, of which she has been the energetic secretary for a number of years. Mrs. John Michels, the president, presided, and made the presentation, while the address was read by Mrs. George Curtis. Reference was made to the efficient and faithful work done by Miss Curtis. She was warmly congratulated on her approaching marriage.

Miss Curtis made a neat and a grateful reply.

Afterwards the members sat down to a bountiful tea, and a very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent by all.

Skull and Bones Were Unearthed At Collegiate Institute Site

Evidently the Remains of a Young Girl Interred Many Years Ago in the Former Burying Ground, Now Central Park—Something of the Early History of the Cemetery.

While excavating at the new Collegiate Institute site in Central Park yesterday afternoon, the ploughshare brought to the surface a skull and other bones of a body, evidently that of a young girl. The skull was upturned at a depth of only eighteen inches below the ground, showing that the remains of the departed had been interred in shallow earth. The skull was small, the teeth being remarkably well preserved and regular in formation. Portions of the vertebra were also discovered and one or two other bones. The contractors, Messrs. Langford and Sheehy, expect before the work of excavation for the basement of the new building is completed, that they will exhume portions of the skeletons of other persons who are sleeping their last long sleep in the ancient burying ground of Peterborough, now known as Central Park.

The contractors will have all the bones placed in a neat wooden box and finally deposited in Little Lake cemetery.

For many years the present Central Park property was used for the interment of the dead of Peterborough and surrounding country.

Little Lake cemetery was laid out in 1851, and the first interment in that beautiful necropolis was on May 1st, 1851, when Samuel Athro was laid to rest. He was an Oddfellow, and a member of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13. A large number of the bodies in Central Park were removed to Little Lake cemetery, while others were disinterred and taken to the Roman Catholic cemetery. It seems, however, that all the remains of those sleeping in what is now known as Central Park could not have been taken away as the ploughshare would not have dug up bones as was the case yesterday afternoon.

The present drill hall was erected on Central Park in 1867, the year of Confederation. The Central Park grounds, after being given up for burial purposes, were used for many years in connection with the annual fair held in Peterborough.

Dr. Thomas W. Poole, in his sketch of the early settlement and subsequent progress of the town of Peterborough, published in 1867, has the following reference to the burying ground; "Towards the close of the year 1851 a bylaw of the county council was passed instructing the warden to execute and transfer a deed, in trust, of the general Protestant burying ground in Peterborough, to the town council, the said ground consisting of lots 1, 2 and 3 on the south side of McDonnell street and west of George-st., and lots 1, 2 and 3 north of Murray-street and west of George-st.; and also to transfer for school purposes to the town council, lot No. 5 on the south side of London-st., and lot No. 10 on the north side of King street, both being west of George street, but such official transfer appears never to have been actually made, or if made, not registered.

G.T.R. Conductor in Police Court

Henry Dabois Charged With Obstructing Charlotte St. Crossing—Case Dismissed

At the police court this morning Henry Dabois, a G. T. R. freight train conductor was charged with obstructing the G.T.R. crossing at Charlotte street for a period of more than five minutes on Thursday evening, April 4th. Mr. Dabois pleaded not guilty and the case was proceeded with.

Mr. Harry Fowler was the first witness called. He said that he was a street car conductor on the Jackson Park line. On Thursday last he was going west on Charlotte street. He was at the east side of the G.T.R. track at 7.29 p.m. They stopped there ten and a half minutes, blocked by a freight train. Witness said he spoke to the conductor and told him that he would have to report him. When they turned the corner at George street, the train was on the track. Mr. Fowler said that the train was shunting, but the crossing was blocked all the time. The Jackson Park car connects with George street, every fourteen minutes. This time they missed connections on account of the crossing being blocked.

John Ritchie, the motorman on the same car, was next called. He said that he was on the Jackson Park car last Thursday. He did not time the train. They lost one connection owing to the delay. Witness said that he saw no reason why the road should be blocked.

Mr. Frank Sandy, G.T.R. Station Agent, was then called. He said that Mr. H. Dabois was a freight conductor. Dabois was in charge of the freight train in question.

Mr. R. L. Sarginson, another conductor on the George Street line was called. He was on the Jackson Park car on Thursday night. He was west of the G.T.R. He thought that the car coming west must be off the track it was so long in coming. He walked to the corner of Park and Charlotte streets and saw that a train was stopping the car.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. H. Dabois then gave evidence in his defence. He said that he was the defendant. He was coupling a train when the street car came. He said that the time the train was first on the crossing was at 7.25 p.m. The train was a double header with 41 cars. There were nineteen cars north of Charlotte street. At 7.30 the train pulled out of Peterborough.

Mr. P. Nugent, witness for the offence said that he was a brakeman. He made a coupling just north of Charlotte street. When he made the coupling, there was no street car in sight.

Mr. Frederick Marshall, another brakeman also gave evidence.

Mr. Henry said that he was on the east side of the crossing. He saw the car come up and stay there. He did not time it.

Mr. Wilton Smith, the night operator, said that Mr. Dabois' train left here at 7.30. He made the entry just as the caboose passed the window, and by the standard clock, it was 7.30.

His Worship said it was unconsciously a delay on the part of the freight conductor. As there was such a clash in evidence, he did not feel that he could make a conviction. He dismissed the case.

BRANTFORD BUILDING BOOM

Many Permits Issued—G. T. R. Will Extend Freight Sheds.

Brantford, April 9.—Already there are many evidences that Brantford will enjoy a building boom this summer. Thus far this year the permits issued by City Engineer Jones represent a value of $70,000 as compared with $56,000 during the corresponding period of last year. This year, too, the permits indicate that many desirable houses will be erected at a cost of from $1,000 to $2,500 and renting from $9 to $16 per month. At the present time there is a great scarcity of houses of this class that are available for renting, workingmen, for instance, experiencing the greatest difficulty in procuring houses that rent for $10 to $12. A real estate man says that it is next to impossible to get this class of house for the simple reason that none are vacant. Scores of applications, many of them from outside points, are received daily for dwellings of this character. Under these circumstances, there is no doubt but that investments in new buildings of the right sort in this city will prove profitable.

The Grand Trunk is preparing for an extension of the freight sheds at Brantford and imposing new offices will be erected at the same time.

Brantford has outgrown its freight shed accommodation, and an extension 100x30 feet will be erected of similar construction to the Front street sheds in Toronto. The office will be 40x30, two storeys in height, brick, with spacious arched windows and architecturally quite attractive.

CHIEF WAS CANED.

On Thursday evening a representative body of the Children's Aid Society took advantage of the coming departure of Chief of Police S. Nevison, from Lindsay, to show in some way, their appreciation of his efficiency as executive officer of the Children's Aid Society, and their regret at his departure from town, by making him the recipient of an extremely handsome gold-mounted walking stick.

WILL CANE HIM.

At the regular meeting of Branch No. 30, C.M.B.A., on Tuesday evening there was a large attendance. Mr. J. P. Hickey, the president, presided. Mr. W. A. G. Hardy of Belleville, the provincial organizer, will be remembered in token of his splendid work on behalf of the local branch, whereby the membership was greatly increased. He will be presented with a gold headed ebony cane, as a mark of esteem. Mr. Hardy is expected in the city soon, when the presentation will take place.

UNPAID TAXES.

The Council should take steps at once to have all unpaid taxes collected, says the Port Hope Guide. Here we are in the fourth month of 1907, and there is still outstanding about $4,000 of the taxes for 1906. There is something seriously wrong, and it is the duty of the City Fathers to remedy this. Just a few weeks ago the Council passed a bylaw to borrow $5,000. On this amount they are paying 5 per cent. interest and still they allow $4,000 of taxes for 1906, to remain uncollected. In the City of Kingston last year, on the 31st of December, only $250 of taxes remained uncollected, and why we ask, should not the same state of affairs exist here.

Drug Business Changes Hands

Mr. A. J. Johnston Buys Out Mr. John Nugent Who Will Retire

Mr. John Nugent, the well known druggist on George street, who is about to remove his drug store to the premises known as the Jas. Long confectionery store, 386 George street, nearly opposite his old stand, has decided to ease up on the strenuous business life which he has been so long and so successfully engaged in. He has therefore disposed of his stock and good will, including all his well known preparations, to Mr. A. J. Johnston, who has been associated with him for 17 years and is known throughout the city and surrounding district as one of the old-timers, being a native of the city.

Mr. Johnston served his apprenticeship in the old Ontario drug store, known as Dr. Kincaid's, in the store now being fitted up for the Dominion Bank. He then went to Manitoba, where he resided for 10 years, coming back to Detroit he opened out a drug business for himself. He remained there until the death of his uncle, Mr. Geo. Johnston, late Chief Constable of Peterborough. Shortly after his return he entered into the employment of Mr. Nugent with whom he has remained up to the present time. Mr. Johnston is well known by all of Mr. Nugent's customers, as well as a host of personal friends.

Mr. Nugent while severing his connection with the business will remain in the city, and will no doubt be frequently seen in the store by his many friends.

The store will be known in the future as the "Nugent Drug Co." A. J. Johnston, proprietor.

Mr. A. A. Fowler's Optical parlors will, as in the past, be a successful adjunct to the drug store. Mr. Fowler, who has been in Mr. Nugent's employ for over ten years, and is a graduate in pharmacy, has built up a fine optical business and will, with Mr. Johnston, be glad to see all their old friends and many new ones when they become installed in their new store.

Mr. Nugent's business career began in Lindsay. He was for some years in business in Fenelon Falls. He came to this city in 1885 and now retires to a well earned rest after 22 years active life, wishing his successor as prosperous a career as he has had in Peterborough.

No Verdict Yet In Thaw Case

Jury Still Out Deliberating on the Evidence

A rumor on the stock exchanges of certain cities across the border says that the jury which has heard the Harry K. Thaw trial, has returned a verdict acquitting the prisoner, and the verdict was received with great rejoicing. Messrs. J. R. Heintz & Co., of this city, received word to this effect at noon today, but the news could not be confirmed.

THE LATEST.

New York, April 11th.—The jury in the Thaw case, returned to the court room at 10.30 this a.m., and asked for six exhibits, including Thaw's will, and had testimony from several witnesses read to them regarding the shooting. Up until 1 p.m., when they went to lunch, no verdict had been reached. All kinds of wild rumors were afloat, and several papers printed extras, announcing an acquittal, but this was later denied. At 3.45 the jury is still out.

NO VERDICT YET.

A special wire to J. R. Heintz & Co., this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, states that the Thaw jury has not returned a verdict as yet, and that at the hour mentioned the jurors were at lunch.

Trades and Labor Council Score Board of Education

Principal of Secret Committee Meetings Strongly Denounced--Attitude of the Review Demanding That All Sessions be Open to the Press Commended--Ald Morgan's Plan to Tax Italian Laborers Criticized—Alderman Who Voted for Day Labor Thanked—Street Mail Delivery Discussed.

At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council held last night the members of the Legislative committee presented the following report which was unanimously adopted:—

"That we are highly pleased with the action of the Mayor in giving his casting vote in favor of day labor, a principle which we have striven to see set in motion for a long time. We regret that we have not the knowledge of who the aldermen are that did not vote for the measure and those who did not vote at all. We will find it out and will see to it that those who supported that motion will be remembered by our support in future. This secret voting is not to be tolerated by any lover of responsible government, whether in Houses of Parliament or City Council chamber, either in committee or otherwise. We are unanimous in giving credit to the Review in standing out for those principles which we endorse, and hereby move the following resolution:—That this Trades and Labor Council disapproves of the action of the School Board in not admitting the press to all their meetings, that being the only channel by which the public can be intelligently informed how to use their franchise to the best interests of all.

A meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening in the labor hall, George street. President John Alexander occupied the chair and there was a good attendance of delegates from the different organizations in the city. The meeting was an interesting one. Several splendid addresses were given on the different questions dealt with.

ACTION DEFERRED.

On motion it was decided to defer the election of officers until the next regular meeting of the Council.

President Alexander, who was a delegate from the local Council to the Labor Convention in Toronto on Good Friday, presented his report, and Mr. Joseph Crowe who represented the Moulder's Union at the convention, also spoke in reference to the great gathering.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE.

The report of the Legislative committee was an interesting and important one and in speaking on the report a delegate stated all must commend the action of the Review newspaper for the fearlessness displayed by that journal in condemning the Board of Education on its star chamber methods in connection with the awarding of the tenders for construction purposes. He contended that a paper that would expose wrong doing and condemned any corporation or organization for resorting to questionable methods, was worthy of every support.

DAY LABOR SYSTEM.

In referring to the clause in the report re day labor on corporation undertakings a delegate paid a warm tribute to the Mayor and the members of the City Council who supported the day labor principle and regretted the local press did not publish the vote in order that workingmen would be able to ascertain what aldermen were supporting their principles. The question, it was reported, would be opened up again and if such was the case, the principle they advocated would again be defended by the representatives of labor.

The report was unanimously adopted as appearing at the head of this column.

ALD. MORGAN'S SCHEME.

Alderman Morgan and his Italian tax scheme was handled without gloves during the evening. The question was characterized as a blow at personal liberty. One speaker warmly defended the Italians. They were, he said, industrious and hardworking and fully earned the wages they received. They had proven themselves first class men on sewer construction and if they lived in colonies and in overcrowded houses, it was their privilege to do so. Other nationalities were doing the same. He further contended that there were more undesirable foreigners being imported into the country than were the Italians, many of them being brought here under false pretenses. The Trades and Labor Council believed in defending the toilers without regard creed or nationality. Another speaker characterized Alderman Morgan's move as a bid for popularity, but in his opinion he was making himself ridiculous.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the meeting that the scheme would be smothered in its infancy, and that there were plenty of other matters of importance to keep the aldermen busy.

POSTAL DELIVERY.

The question of postal delivery was also introduced during the evening and the secretary was instructed to communicate with Mr. R. R. Hall, M. P., in order to ascertain if any action had been taken on the largely signed requisition which had been forwarded to Ottawa.

LABEL CAMPAIGN.

Before the meeting closed Mr. T. J. Begley, President of Typographical Union, was given permission to address the meeting in regard to the label campaign inaugurated by the I.T.U. in the United States and Canada. He asked the assistance of the different labor organizations in the city in order to make the campaign more effective as far as this district was concerned.

Will Extend George St. at Once; Halpin Estate Claim Settled

Board of Works Agrees to Pay $1700 Without Buildings—Foreman Selected for the Local Improvement to be Done by Day Labor.

As was noted in last night's issue the most important matter before the Board of Works last night, was the City Engineer's report. This long document was read and will be found in another column of this issue.

The Board of Works also took up several other matters of much importance. The extension of George street will be made as soon as the weather permits, as the Halpin Estate property has been secured.

Those present were,—Chairman Ald. Duncan; Ald. Johnston, Wilson and McIntyre, City Engineer T. A. S. Hay and Street Commissioner Evans, Mayor McWilliams.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Johnston, John Quartermaine was given permission to cut down a tree in front of his place. There are three trees together and they are too close, and are damaging each other.

Mr. McDonald of Gilmour street put in an application for a wooden walk to help them out for the time being. The City Engineer reported on the application, and the wooden walk will be built.

Mr. Dale on George street, asked for a crossing over the street in front of his place. He wanted a board crossing, but the Engineer said that to put a plank crossing was no good and would be no better than the road.

Ald. Johnston moved that a concrete crossing be built across George street from the northern limit of Mr Dale's property, and that a small piece of walk be laid from Mr. Dale's gate to the crossing. Ald. McIntyre seconded it, and it carried.

The agreement between the City and the Dickson Company, re a new forty-five foot street on some property the Dickson Company propose to open up for building purposes. The company agreed to grade and water table the street before the city took it over. The city in return gives permission to file the plan. The city will do the work and the company will pay the whole cost.

BOGUE ACCOUNT.

Mayor McWilliams brought up the Bogue award and said that the city had better pay the amount and get a receipt from Mr. Bogue for full amount due under contract.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Ald. Johnston the City Treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque in favor of Mr. Bogue for $1818.

GEORGE ST. EXTENSION.

His Worship, the Mayor, introduced the old familiar question of George street extension. The greatest difficulty he said, in getting this thing through, was getting the right of way through the Halpin Estate property. The city originally offered the estate $1,500 without the buildings or $1,700 with the buildings. The estate wanted something over $2,000 and an agreement could not be arrived at. Recently, however, the chairman, Ald. Duncan, and Mrs. Halpin met and arrived at a compromise, by which the city pays the Halpin Estate $1,700 without the buildings.

Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, solicitors for the estate wrote the council to the effect that the $1,700 was satisfactory and they were prepared to make out the deed to the city.

The committee considered the offer and it seemed very satisfactory to everyone, and on motion of Ald. Johnston and Ald. Wilson, the council was recommended to authorize the Treasurer to issue a cheque for the amount, on condition that the buildings be removed by June 1st.—Carried.

On motion by Mayor McWilliams, the City Engineer was authorized to open George street to Lansdowne as soon as weather permitted, and that the property owners affected be notified. Ald. Wilson seconded the motion and it carried.

RIVER DREDGINGS.

Moved by Ald Johnston, seconded by Ald. Wilson that the matter of securing the dredgings from the river again this year, be left with a committee of the City Engineer, the Chairman and the Mayor. Carried.

It was rumored that the Quaker Oats Co. was trying to secure this dredging to fill in the old raceway, from the McAllister Mill on their property, but it is evident that what the Cereal people want is what comes out of the turning basin.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The season is now at hand for the commencement of the local improvements for this year. The intention of the Board is to break all past records in the way of sewer and sidewalk construction, and in order to do this, it must be started very soon.

Moved by Ald. Wilson, seconded by Mayor McWilliams, that the local improvements this year be constructed under the following foremen,—

Sidewalks, two gangs, one for long sections and one for shorter sections, five hundred feet or under, and concrete bridges, under direction of Street Commissioner, assisted by John Thimbeck.

Sewers, Two gangs, under Wm White and Martin Leary.

Crossings, under E. Johnston.

Ashburnham drain, under R. Tivey.

Moved by Ald. Wilson and Mayor McWilliams, that the City Engineer and Chairman be authorized to start a gang of men under Mr. White, to work on the Sherbrooke street sewer, and that Mr. Leary be started on the Parnell and Park street section, as soon as he gets through on Cedar street.

Moved by Ald Wilson and Ald McIntyre that the City Engineer be requested to report on all the places between their tracks that the Street Railway Company has failed to keep in proper condition.

The Board then adjourned.

A CHIC LITTLE GOWN

THIRD LECTURE OF THE COURSE

Delivered Last Night by Rev. Dr. Symonds

The third lecture of Rev. Dr. Symonds on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" was delivered in the Y.M.C.A. hall last evening. There was a record attendance. Mr. D. Hughes-Charles ably presided. This evening Rev. Dr. Crothers will be the chairman, and Miss Lillian Mooer will sing a solo.

With the third lecture in the course on "In Memoriam," Dr. Symonds came to close quarters with the poem. The first twenty-seven sections form the "Introductory Stage," leading up to the three cycles of the past, the present and the future, each of which is marked by recurring Christmas poems.—Sections 28, 78, 104.

In the "Introductory Stage" five points were noticed.

1. No thought of the immortality of the dead friend as yet emerges

2. The prevalent mood revealed in these sections is a morbid, almost sullen sense of loss, only doubtfully relieved in its closing lines;

"'Tis better to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved at all."

3 His depression provokes the dreadful thought that the whole world is but the result of a blind Fate, and that there is no purpose or plan displayed in the universe.

4. Tennyson himself criticised the verses of this part of the poem. He calls them "wild and wandering cries" and "as echoes out of weaker times." In the famous 106th section the poet cries;

"Ring out, ring out, my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in."

5 But still, although the consolations of Faith and Hope are as yet denied him, he will keep his love for his friend intact. For true love (not to be confounded with sentiment or passion) is "an essential endowment of the holiest manhood, and is to be cherished and valued, even though its object be forever removed."

The subject of the lecture tonight will be the "First Cycle."—Sections 28—77.

AN ADDITION TO POLICE FORCE

Police Commissioners are Advertising for Applications

On account of the illness of Police Constable Chas. McGinty, the Board of Police Commissioners met yesterday afternoon and decided to advertise for applications for the position of policeman. This does not mean that Mr. McGinty will be out of a position, but merely to have his place filled, while he is unable to be on duty. He is one of the oldest officials in the city, and when he is able to return to duty his place will be ready for him. But the police force is very weak, just now, and when a man is off sick there is no one to take his place. Policeman Mcharry has also been confined to his bed for a day or two, but will be on duty again shortly.

Colonial Weaving Co. Will Also Buy Ten New Looms

The Canadian Journal of Fabrics says;

The Colonial Weaving Company, Peterborough, at its annual meeting a few days ago, decided to build an important addition to their factory, and enlarge their plant for narrow fabrics. A. E. Coulthard, the general manager, informs us that they contemplate putting up a two-storey main building, 100 feet by 60 feet, to accommodate 20 double or 40 single Jacquard looms, on the second floor, and 10 or 12 shaft looms with kindred machinery, on the first floor. They contemplate building either of brick or cement, after the style of the latest silk mills in the States, and expect to buy about 10 new looms in addition to the ones they have at present.

THE FATAL GIFT

If Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had not been pretty, charming and attractive, she would not have been the cause of a great tragedy and one of the most sensational murder trials in the history of the world. She had the "fatal gift" of beauty.

The Chicago Sunday Tribune has been conducting a beauty contest by publishing the pictures of the most attractive and fascinating ladies in the Windy City. The competition aroused intense interest and the city is wild with delight to think that Miss Della Carson, — a modest little working girl —a stenographer, who earned only $12 a week—won the prize, being considweek—won the prize ,being declared the most beautiful woman in a city of 2,000,000 inhabitants. The country has been challenged to produce her equal and now the Toronto Sunday World has taken up the challenge and will endeavor to find a Canadian beauty who will surpass the loveliness of Miss Della Carson, of Chicago, who but yesterday was unknown and today all the worshipful Americans are prepared to do her homage, do make oblation at her shrine. Yet the features, expression and mould of Miss Carson's countenance, are not any more regular, distinctive or pretty than that of hundreds of healthy, happy Canadian lassies.

But the Americans are great hero worshippers and at the shrine of any modern Venus they are ready to bow.

But here is where the "fatal gift" comes in. Since Miss Carson was declared the winner, she has received numerous offers of marriage. Showing their good intentions, many of the writers send references, not only social, but financial. They tell their church connections, the lodges they belong to, and give the names of their bankers. "Show this to your mother, and ask her if you can write to me," is an expression frequently used.

She has received offers of positions from all over the country. Lawyers write and offer work as a stenographer, typewriter manufacturers seek to engage her services, she is asked to lecture to sing, to go on the stage. She is offered $50 a week, $100, $500—any sum she will name. There is almost no position she might not have, no salary she might not name, so greatly are men attracted by her beautiful face and so valuable is the advertising she has received.

Miss Carson receives tickets to everything, invitations everywhere, and honors and emoluments from the most unexpected sources. Manufacturers are anxious to give her their wares, just for the sake of saying that she uses them. She might have pianos, automobiles, jewelry and all the valuable and lovely things that the heart of woman desires.

Congratulations pour in upon her from other women. Stenographers and working girls everywhere are glad that the crown of beauty rests upon the brow of a working girl. Ministers write to her, giving good advice. Actresses write asking for the secrets of beauty—not seeming to realize that it is a gift of the gods.

FOR MORAL PLAYS

In Montreal there has been a lively contest waged over the productions in a certain theatre,— the Theatre Francais. It is understood that some suggestive, immoral French plays were given. The tone was anything but elevating and the atmosphere was vicious.

Archbishop Bruchesi put the ban on a certain performance last year. The theatrical people were inclined to pay no attention to His Grace's interference. They misunderstood the Archbishop, however, who was determined that he would be obeyed, and those who did not obey him would be denied the sacraments of the church. Then there was a complete surrender on the part of the would-be antagonists.

This year another lurid and risque offering was placed on the boards. The Archbishop denounced the production and the so-called "attraction" was speedily withdrawn owing to lack of patronage. The managers of the play house apologized and made the offer of submitting future plays to a committee of the church, the members to act as censors.

The Toronto Telegram offers serious objections and says;

"Anglo-Saxon notions of liberty will not permit a spiritual authority to regulate public amusements." Has any bishop or archbishop of Ontario made use of his power to put an end to immoral plays? "If the civil power could exercise a dramatic censorship, Toronto," says the same journal, "would be rid of plays that are a pestilence."

The civil power will not act, says the Kingston Whig, replying to the foregoing observations, while the spiritual power is latent or indifferent. The church is primarily responsible for the moral tone of the community. Every clerical leader and every layman is concerned in the purity of the plays, and it cannot be secured by any representation of life which dramatically portrays its shady side.

It is for the religious leaders to take the initiative in a crusade which means the purification of our public sentiments ,and the one who follows Archbishop Bruchesi's splendid example, may be surprised with the response he will evoke, in any sincere appeal to public opinion.

RAILWAY RATES

(Weekly Sun)

The Senate of Michigan last week adopted a bill to compel all railways in that State, the earnings of which from passenger service, amount to not less than $1,200 per mile, to sell tickets at two cents a mile. It is expected that the other branch of the Legislature will also approve of the measure, and as it is the Governor's strong endorsation certain in due course to become law.

The average earnings per mile from passenger service of railways in all Canada is about $1,400 per mile. In some lines in Lower Ontario, the earnings are at least $3,000. If the proposed Michigan law were to be applied to Canada as a whole we would have a two cent rate all over the Dominion. A most extraordinary state of affairs will be presented when Michigan compels railways earning $1,200 in passenger service, to give a two-cent rate, while just across the line in Ontario, roads earning considerably more than double that sum are allowed to charge three cents. The anomaly will be all the more apparent in view of the fact that taxation in Michigan is nearly four times as much per mile as it is in Ontario.

The two-cent rate must come in this Province, and the sooner this fact is recognized by our legislators, the better it will be for all concerned.

PEN POINTS

April goes Marching along

If we have April weather in March and March weather in April, what is the difference? The law of average must be sustained.

Alienists differ over the mental state of Harry Thaw. Wouldn't they be worried over Emmerson, who threw up a fat job —Toronto News

---

"Yes it is a fact," says the Presbyterian Witness, "the Governor of P. E. Island is a Presbyterian; the Governor of Nova Scotia is a Presbyterian; the Governor of New Brunswick is a Presbyterian; the Governor of Ontario is a Presbyterian. The Lt.-Governors, Hon. F. H. McMillan, of Manitoba, and Hon. James Dunsmuir, of British Columbia are Presbyterians. The Lt.-Governors of Quebec and Saskatchewan are Roman Catholics; and Hon. G. H. Vicars Bulyea, of Alberta, is, we believe, an Anglican.

Dr. Goldwin Smith writing as "Bystander" in the Toronto Weekly Sun offers this important comment on the proposed increase of salaries of Ontario Ministers:

"It is proposed to raise the salaries of members of the Provincial Government; that of the Premier from $7,000 to $9,000, those of the other Ministers from $4,000 to $6,000. The salaries would still be far below those of managers of banks and other officers of commercial corporations, whose work is much less onerous and responsible than that of the chief and members of the Government of this Province. A lawyer asks more for a single case. The addition, after all, is rather a rectification than an increase. It will certainly not more than balance the fall in the purchasing power of the salaries caused by the rise in prices since they were fixed. Not only has the value of the salaries fallen, but the labors and responsibilities of the offices have, by the growth of Provincial business in amount and importance, been greatly increased. The cares of a Government of Ontario are now hardly less extensive and serious than those of the Government of one of the minor States in Europe. We demand of our public servants strict probity. To secure it, unless public office is to be confined to the rich, fair salaries must be paid."

New Clerk Was Chosen Last Night

Mr. W. Shiner Succeeds Mr. Albert Martin at Murray Street Church

There was an unusually large attendance at the Prayer Meeting at Murray Street Baptist Church last evening. Rev. T. B. Brown of Sherbrooke, Que., who is a guest of Rev. J. R. Webb, was present and delivered a powerful and instructive address from the words, "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the Sons of God, and such we are." Mr. Brown is an earnest, fluent speaker, and his splendid discourse was much enjoyed by the large number present.

After the prayer service, the quarterly business meeting of the church was held. The Treasurer's report was read and was very satisfactory. Mr. Wilfrid Shiner was elected clerk, an office which was vacated by the removal of Mr. Albert Martin to Toronto. Mr. P. Downham was elected assistant clerk.

Mr. George Cochrane, chairman of the Church Improvement Committee delivered a vigorous address, advocating the entire removal of the balance of the improvement debt, which will probably be accomplished before midsummer.

THE RAILROADS UNPREPARED

There are bitter complaints of the inability of the American railroads to handle the freight that is pressed upon them. Railroad men have many explanations. Some of them say the engine and the car works are unable to fill the orders for rolling stock that have been given them. Others talk of the need of more trackage and better terminal facilities.

It is interesting to observe that the conditions complained of by American shippers are found in other countries. They are found in England. A correspondent of the London Times says: "So inadequate are the resources of some of the English railway companies that many collieries are losing time, and steel works are being shut down in the Midlands, notwithstanding heavy order books, because the railway companies are unable to move the output from the pits or to supply the furnaces with fuel." Matters are not quite as bad as that in the United States. The officers of the overworked English roads say the locomotive plants cannot provide the additional engines that are needed.

Only a short time ago there was serious traffic congestion on the Italian roads. These roads are mostly operated by the Government, which helps to explain their inability to handle freight satisfactorily, but the French lines, which are operated by private companies, were also unable to meet the demands of the shippers.

In view of all the facts it must be admitted that the men who manage the American railroads are not the only sinners. They seem to have been to a certain extent the victims of conditions which obtain both in Europe and the United States. There as well as here there has been a rapid expansion of manufacturing energy, which has suddenly outrun the carrying capacity of the railroads. That there has been great expansion in this country is proved by the increased imports of materials for use in manufacturing and by the increase in the exports of the finished goods.

In a measure the American railroad men are to blame for not foreseeing the growth of manufacturing which makes freight, and not making arrangements to take care of that freight. They ought to have seen that the productive industry of the country was under a full head of steam. But the men who control the railroad systems of England, France and Italy were blind to what the manufacturers of those countries were doing, and were taken unawares like their American brethren. Perhaps there will be more foresight hereafter on both sides of the Atlantic. — (Chicago Tribune, April 1, 1907.) 2d.

THE JOYS OF CUDDLETIME.

As the evening shadows gather,
  Then 'tis cuddletime, I know,
When my baby, dressed for Dreamland,
  Comes a-romping to me so;
Comes and begs of me to hold him
  On my knees and "rock-a-bye."
As the purpling sun sinks lower
  In the gleaming western sky.

And he cuddles to me nearer,
  As the firelight softly glows,
And across the dusky portals
  Ghostly, flickering shadows throws;
And two dimpled arms about me
  Are clasped tighter for a kiss—
Ah, was ever richer necklace
  Placed about one's neck than this?

Soon the drooping, drooping lashes
  Cover up two eyes of brown,
And the tousled head so golden
  On my breast sinks lower down.
Ah, the sweetness of the pleasure,
  Making life one golden rhyme,
With a dimpled babe to fondle
  When it comes to cuddletime!

ABRAHAM'S TITLE DEED.

Sir William Ramsay Will Make New Search For It.

Sir William Ramsay will soon go to Asia Minor to undertake on a much greater scale than has hitherto been attempted investigations which are expected to throw much light on ancient history, especially Biblical history of the time of Abraham. Extended work is made possible by Lord Strathcona's gift of $2,500 a year for five years.

Sir William in speaking of his expectations says he has been convinced for a long time, and now thinks it will be practically demonstrated by the next great series of discoveries, that Aryan history had its beginnings in Asia Minor, and that the people among whom they are to be discovered were the people called the Hittites in the Bible, or the children of Heth, from whom Abraham bought a piece of land to make a grave for his family. Sir William says:—

"I shall not be satisfied until the document recording the sale of that piece of land is discovered. It would be a clay tablet, but would be practically imperishable, and there are thousands of those tablets recording sales of that kind.

"There is not the slightest doubt that the sale of that property was registered at the time and doubtless deposited in some Hittite temple for preservation. I cannot tell where it would be deposited, but those tablets constituted title deeds to property. Abraham in a strange land had to have proof of his purchase in a safe place, showing that he was the legal owner, and the only safe place at that time was a temple.

"Now these Hittites had an empire extending from the Aegean Sea to the borders of Egypt. It included the whole of Asia Minor and Syria. Their capital was in the northern part of Asia Minor, and its modern name is Boghazkeui. We know the sites of several of their great cities in Asia Minor. The duty of the future is to dig up those cities."

Burns In Geographical Terms.

To millions of people who never saw Scotland there is a greater Scotland. Greater Scotland is a state of mind, situated whereupon warm hearts and tuneful voices meet. It is bounded on the north by "Highland Mary," on the south by "The Banks o' Doon," on the east by the "Address to the De'il," on the west by "Of a' the Airts the Wind Can Blaw." Its capital is "Rantin', Roarin' Robin," its metropolis is Kilmarnock, its principal place Mauchline. Its history is found in "Auld Lang Syne." Its culminating mountain peaks are not Ben Nevis and Ben MacDhui, but "Tam o'Shanter" and "Scots, Wha' Hae."

Its national flower is the red, red rose, its chief commerce is in the treasures of smiles and dreams and heartbeats, and is carried not by the waters of the Clyde and Tay, but on the enchanted stream of "Sweet Afton" and "Adown the Winding Nith." Its climate is variable. After the season, "When Rosy May Comes wi' the Flowers," "Simmer's a Pleasant Time." How different is "The Mirk Night o' December Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast."

In area Great Scotland covers the whole world, wherever the ploughboy of Ayr holds sway over the hearts and minds of men, for the other name of Greater Scotland is Robert Burns!—J. Herbert Quick, before the Caledonian Society of Sioux City.

Sunday In England.

One of the most remarkable documents in modern times has just been issued in England in the form of a message to the nation signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster and the President of the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches. The message urges upon all people the importance of adequate and reasonable Sunday observances. The Times in a long editorial reviews the subject, and points out that by the efforts of Lord Avebury and others the blessings of one day's rest in seven will be extended in England much further than at present. It also refers to the great advance made in regard to Sunday rest in France under the new law, and thus concludes: "To call it a problem has become, indeed, misleading. It is no longer a problem, but a received opinion that work—above all our modern work under high pressure—is impossible for man unless he is allowed at least one day in seven to rest his mind and body."

Paddle On.

A story from the new Life of Sir Leslie Stephen, K.C.B., by F. W. Maitland, relates to the days when Stephen was both coach of the Trinity College crew and lecturer on Greek Testament. The scene is the lecture room; the speaker the aquatic don, Stephen, who exclaims: "Easy, all! Hard work there! Smith, do you know what it means? No more do I. Paddle on all!"

LATE SIR WILLIAM HINGSTON.

"Canada's First Great Physician" Title Often Applied Him—How He Deserved the Honor.

"Canada's first great physician" was a description often applied to Sir William Hingston, who has died in Montreal. On the principle that great men lived before Agamemnon, the popular idea of Sir William may have been unjust, but it is undoubted that he was the most famous medical man Canada had produced up to the time Prof. Osler became so widely known. His career has been no longer than it has been distinguished, both in public life and in his profession. In the latter he stood quite abreast of the most successful American doctors for a quarter of a century, and hardly a week went by without bringing to him some patient from the United States who believed that in his own country there was no physician quite as capable as the doctor at Montreal. Although 78 years old at the time of his death, Sir William's standing among the medical men of the country remained what it had been for a generation.

Won Honors Abroad.

He was born in Montreal in 1829. His father had come to Canada as adjutant of the famous Hundredth Regiment and fought through the War of 1812. After the disbanding of the regiment, in 1819, Col. Hingston took up his residence on the Chateauguay River. He died when his son was only 18 months old. William received his early education in Beauharnois, and then, at the age of 15, entered the Montreal College. His first year there gave a promise of a brilliant future, for he captured three first and two second prizes out of a possible five. His first intention, after leaving school, was to become a chemist, and he spent two years in preparation. At the end of this time he had concluded to become a doctor, and entered McGill, graduating in 1851. Afterward he proceeded to take a post-graduate course at Edinburgh, and continued his studies in several European countries. Of honors he won in Europe one was membership in the Imperial Leopold Academy, and he was the first Canadian to so distinguish himself. Then he returned to Montreal and began the serious business of his profession. For surgery he had a peculiar aptitude, and it is recorded that in 1867, on a visit to Edinburgh, he performed a most difficult operation at the request of Sir James Simpson, one of the greatest surgeons living, and a keen admirer of the Montreal doctor.

The First In Canada.

As surgeon of the Hotel Dieu Hospital, he was able to practice his art over a wide field, and soon his skill was known far and wide. It was when filling this post that Dr. Hingston had the honor of performing for the first time in Canada a number of difficult operations, removal of the kidney, excision of the knee, and excision of the tongue and lower jaw being among them. He was one of the organizers of the McGill University Society, and a resuscitator of the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Montreal, the first secretary of the Dominion Medical Society, and afterwards its president. When Bishop's College Medical School was organized he was appointed professor of surgery, but soon resigned. In 1876 he was chosen by the International Council to represent Canada at the Philadelphia Medical Congress, and in 1887, when the congress met at Washington, he was again offered this honor. So one might continue the list of professional honors, concluding with knighthood in 1895. There is hardly any distinction open to a Canadian medical man that he had not received.

Mayor of Montreal.

As a public man Dr. Hingston first came before the people of Montreal as a candidate for the Mayoralty in 1875. He received about ten votes to his opponent's one, and, as he stated at the time, "without having spent one moment of time or one shilling of money to obtain a position which no one should seek, but which, coming as it did, no one was at liberty to decline." He was re-elected by acclamation, but declined a third term. The period of his Chief Magistracy was one of unusual importance, especially at the time of the Guibord affair. For the wise and moderate manner in which he discharged his duties Mayor Hingston received the thanks of the Governor-General, Lord Dufferin.

He has been a frequent contributor to the medical journals, and not infrequently his papers interested a far wider field of readers than the medical profession. For example, a well-considered essay on the climate of Canada and its relation to human life was a step in removing an ignorant prejudice that is now fast disappearing.

Hit Back.

Walking along a road in the remote west of Ireland, two tourists were passing one of the cottages, or, as they are better known in the country, cabins, of the peasantry. This particular cabin was even a more than usually dilapidated specimen of its class, and the chimney, consisting mainly of the remains of an old top hat, presented a comical, if pathetic, appearance.

Tipping his friend a wink, one of the tourists accosted a youth who was sitting contentedly on a fence.

"I say, my boy," he said, "does that chimney draw well?"

"Shure, thin, it does," was the prompt reply. "It draws the notice o' ivery fool that passes by!"—London Journal.

A Collector's Bequest.

"My wish is that my drawings, my prints, my curiosities, my books—in a word, those things of art which have been the joy of my life — shall not be consigned to the cold tomb of a museum and subjected to the stupid glance of the careless passerby. But I require that they shall all be dispersed under the hammer of the auctioneer, so that the pleasure which the acquiring of each one of them has given me shall be given again in each case to some inheritor of my own tastes."—From the Will of Edmond de Goncourt.

Retail Merchants' Association Hold Annual Meeting To-night

Many Important Questions of Local and Provincial Interest to Come Up—Election of Officers and Routine Business.

The annual meeting of the Retail Merchants, will be held this evening at eight o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. This meeting is a most important one, and it is desirable that every retail merchant in the city be present. Besides the election of officers there are several important matters to be taken up. Matters of local interest, are the Sign bylaw, recently amended by the City Council, and the bylaw regulating the placing of boxes and merchandise on the streets in the city. The latter has caused the merchants considerable inconvenience, and a number of them who have no convenient entrance to their stores from the rear have been forced to pay fines for receiving goods from the front. The general feeling is that this bylaw, enforced, as it is now, is very unfair, and that it should be amended so that the police will not be able to bring the merchants to the police court on such trivial offenses. The main object of the bylaw, the merchants are in accord with, but no discretion is exercised in its enforcement.

Another matter of, or should be of, great importance, is the agitation throughout the province for a separate association of retail grocers. This movement is led by the Canadian Grocer, a publication issued in Toronto. It has many friends in this city, who are very anxious to have the trade so regulated here, that unfair competition can be readily and effectively met. The president of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, Mr. H. C. Ellis, of Ottawa, believes that his association is all that is necessary for the grocers, and he opposes another organization. He has in several letters to the Canadian Grocer, brought out several strong points. But the Retail Merchants Association in this city has been very inactive for a long time and if that body wishes to retain its present position, now is the time to begin an active campaign.

It is urgently requested that a full attendance of retail merchants in every line of trade, attend the meeting tonight.

English Emigrant Told False Story to County Magistrate

Mr. Wm. King of South Monaghan Flatly Denies That He Owed an English Farm Laborer $18—The Fellow is in His Debt.

A few days ago an Englishman recited a very pathetic story to Magistrate Edmison as to how he had been treated by Wm. King, a South Monaghan farmer.

According to the emigrant's story Mr. King got a month's work out of him and would not pay him for it. The price was to have been $18, a free house for himself and family, his board and fuel.

Today Mr. King called at this office and desired to have his side of the story published. Mr. King is a well known and very highly respected farmer of South Monaghan and he has met with considerable success.

The story he tells is that last summer, about July, this Englishman applied to him for work. It was in the busy season and Mr. King made a bargain with him. The laborer was to work for $10 per month, not $18, and on condition he could earn that much. He was also to get a free house and his board, but he was to find his own fuel. This was satisfactory and the fellow agreed to go to work. His family was moved down to the farm and a great deal was done by Mr. King to make them as comfortable as possible, as they had nothing with which to keep house. Neighbors also loaned him household goods.

The new man was put in the field to work, but he stood around day after day and did practically no work. After he had been there two weeks Mr. King notified him that he would have to do better, as he was not earning his board. The fellow continued on the job until he had worked a month all but one day, and then quit.

All this time he had his board, got fuel off the farm, and received milk and many other things from Mr. King, which amounted to over $30. He paid his employer $10 and his wages of $10 were allowed on the account and still he owes about $10 to Mr. King. In addition, the man's family lived in the house for three months and paid nothing for it.

The fellow moved into the city and got a job in a factory, and as he evidently intended to work, and as his wife was trying to work also, Mr. King did not push his claim against the man, but let it drop. But when the fellow started such stories as the one he told the county magistrate, Mr. King thought it time to put himself right before the public.

Will Retire From Business After a Very Long Career

Mr. W. H. Wrighton Has Conducted Grocery on George Street for Half a Century and Will Take Well Earned Rest—His Active Busy Life.

Mr. W. H. Wrighton, grocer, 421 George street, who has been in business half a century on Peterborough's main thoroughfare, will retire in July next.

Last month, Mr. Wrighton celebrated his golden jubilee in business life and he holds the unique record of being in one line, longer than any other man in the city.

He first embarked in the grocery trade in March, 1857, in the old American Hotel block, which stood at the corner of Brock and George streets in those days.

About thirty years ago, Mr. Wrighton removed to his present stand. He is now in his 75th year and feels that he has earned a well-deserved rest. Mr. Wrighton has for many years bought and sold furs and has been a prominent figure on the Peterborough Cheese Board. He bought for Ayers & Co. of Montreal, and other firms, retiring a few years ago. His premises which belong to Mrs. Edgcumbe Pearse of Rubidge street, will after he vacates them in July next, be leased by a new tenant. The store front will also be improved.

Mr. Wrighton can recall with interest many incidents of business life, in the early history of Peterborough and there are none who are in the same business today, as they were when he first started out in 1857.

Mr. Wrighton's many friends trust that he may have a quiet sunset to his active busy life, and that he may live many years to enjoy a well-earned rest.

NOTES OF THE DAY

When a prominent Russian is allowed to die a natural death at the age of 80, isn't it about time the bomb throwers tried to take more careful aim?

Recently at Winnipeg judgment was given awarding $1,000 damages in a suit arising out of a "ghost" item copied from the police books and appearing in the Free Press. The owner of the house in which the ghost was said to have appeared entered suit, which was dismissed by the King's Bench but reversed the other day, with the above stated damages.

Mr. G. N. Babcock Makes Statement

Regarding His Offer to the Board of Education

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In the Review of Friday, 5th inst. you have an article headed, "Opticians have a grievance against the Board of Education," in which you say, some weeks ago, Mr. G. N. Babcock, of the Tate Optical Company, wrote the Board asking for the privilege of visiting the local schools to examine the eyes of the pupils free of charge, etc. and at last night's meeting a letter was read protesting against the Board granting to any one individual this privilege. The letter was signed by Wm. Madill, W. A. Sanderson and two others; also a letter along the same lines from Dr. T. P. McCullough. Now, in order to show that the Board's action was right, and at the same time explain our position to the public, also to soothe the nerves of these gentlemen, who have worked themselves up to such a state of excitement as to publicly protest against what they call "favoritism, not in the public interest, etc. In the first place we did not ask for the privilege of visiting the schools. In fact, we have not time for such visits. But if any of the protesting gentlemen have the time, by all means let the Board divide the schools between them reserving those requiring medical treatment for the oculist protesting and we can assure them we will enter no protest against giving them this special privilege.

What we did ask for and the proposition we made to the Board of Education will be found in our letter of May 12, 1906, and it was published in full in the Review and Examiner of May 16, 1906. Our proposition was; "We will furnish free of charge for the different departments or rooms of all the Public schools in the city, two test cords, with instructions to the teacher for a preliminary examination of pupils who show symptoms of eye strain. Accompanying the test cords will be blank forms on which the name of the pupil may be written, together with the suspected trouble. These cards can either be sent to the parents or returned to us and we will set aside one hour a day, two days a week, for the free examination of such pupils. The card will then be sent to the parents and they can take whatever action they deem proper.

The Daily Review of same date, commenting on our letter and offer, says;

The Tate Optical Co. will do this free of charge.—There are no restrictions or conditions imposed, and no monetary gain to the company. The examination is free and the children or parents desiring glasses, having the card, can go where they please and have the order filled. They are not under the slightest obligation to the Tate Optical Co. The proposal, therefore, is a generous one, and worthy the Board's consideration.

Now, that was the privilege asked for and if there is anything in it that savors of special privilege or anything not in the public interest, by all means turn it down, and give these protesting gentlemen what they so much desire, the privilege of visiting the schools. Matters of public interest such as this should be above business and professional jealousy and treated in a broader spirit. The idea of giving the cards was suggested by reading a report in one of the Toronto papers of a teacher's convention at which this subject was discussed. The offer was made in good faith, and if accepted and carried out as we suggested, will place Peterborough schools to the forefront of all others in the province in this particular. Mr. Dumble, who is an active and energetic member of the Board and quick to grasp and advocate matters of public interest, recognizing the importance of the subject, urged that our offer be accepted and the Board kindly consented.

Thanking you for allowing us this explanation.

G. N. BABCOCK,
The Tate Optical Co.

Give Premium Instead of Tax

Citizen Objects Strongly to Ald. Morgan's Proposition

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I have read with surprise Alderman Morgan's proposition to levy a tax of ten dollars on the sons of Sunny Italy, and for what. Because they are willing and able to dig our sewers and do other laborious work, required to be done. He thinks we should tax them for the privilege. I gave Mr. Morgan credit for being a man of better judgment. I would like to remind Mr. Morgan, that the Italian is not a wage cutter, and if he had any large amount of this kind of work to be done he would feel more like offering a premium of ten dollars, than placing on a tax. I think this is rather a cheap way to play to the grand stand, and hope the first appearance of any kind of a motion to this effect will be consigned to the waste basket.

Yours, etc.
CITIZEN.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kyle of Peterborough, assisted by local talent, gave a first-class entertainment and concert in the town hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Church of Mount Carmel. A good full house greeted the artists and the entertainment was one of the best of the season. Mr. Kyle was particularly good as Martin Casey in the sketch "A Touch of Nature," and in the Coster song "My Little Nipper," and Mrs. Kyle ably assisted her husband in all the different numbers.—Hastings Star.

Presbytery Accepts the Resignation of Pastor

Pulpit of St. Paul's Church Will be Preached Vacant on the First Sunday in July—Presbytery Meet To-day.

At the special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery this morning the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Torrance as pastor of St. Paul's church, was accepted. The resignation will take effect on the last Sunday in June, and on the first Sunday in July the pulpit will be declared vacant by the Rev. Dr. Marsh, who was appointed interim moderator.

A large delegation from St. Paul's congregation was present in connection with the resignation and were heard at length. Addresses were given by Messrs. E. S. Clarry, D. H. Moore, Wm. Menzies, R. W. Grubbe, Dr. Carmichael, R. F. McWilliams, A. Hall, W. H. Hill, G. M. Roger and Robt. Harrison.

After the discussion was concluded it was moved and seconded that Dr. Torrance's resignation be accepted to take effect on the above mentioned date, and the motion was carried. Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's, entered his strong dissent against the action taken by the Presbytery in receiving the resignation.

A number of ministers of other churches have applied to the Presbytery asking to be accepted and received into membership. This matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the General Assembly. Some eight or nine ministers have made such applications.

The ministers present were: Rev. Messrs. McLennan, Wm. Johnston, Dr Marsh, S. S. Burns, E. A. Kemp, Havelock, moderator, who presided, J. G. Potter, A. Bright and D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, clerk of the Presbytery.

RETIRING ALLOWANCE.

The matter of St. Paul's congregation giving a retiring allowance to Rev. Dr. Torrance was left wholly in the hands of the congregation, the Presbytery being assured that St. Paul's people would deal with the doctor in a fair liberal spirit.

The congregation will meet at an early date to consider the matter, when, it is understood, that a definite sum will be fixed upon.

Enjoyable Banquet Wound Up the Basketball League

A Jolly Gathering at the Y.M.C.A. Last Night—League Championship Won by Mr. Ross Dobbin's Team

The Y.M.C.A. spring basketball league was brought to a close last night with a game to decide the championship between Dobbin's and Laing's teams and afterwards a most enjoyable banquet. The match was won by Dobbin's quintette by the score of 49-42, after one of the most exciting games ever seen in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium and the championship of the league accordingly goes to Dobbin's team. The game was witnessed by a large number of spectators who applauded heartily when good work was done by either team. At the opening it looked as if Laing's team would be the victors as they forced matters in the first half and led at the finish of the first period, 21 to 19 points. In the second half, however, Dobbin's men struck their gait and found the basket on numerous occasions. The defence which had not been too strong in the early stages of the game, took a brace and were doing fine work before the match was over. They beat out the opposing forwards and Robertson and Best were only able to score a few baskets. The game was one of the most strenuous of the season although the best of good feeling prevailed among the players and there, was not the slightest touch of what current vernacular styles "dirty work." Mr. Jack Laing made a most satisfactory referee and his decisions were not questioned by either team.

The teams lined up as follows:

Dobbin's		Laing's
Turner	Defence	Elliott
Brace	"	Dobson
Dobbin	Centre	Laing
Loomis	Forward	Robertson
Cressman	"	E. Best

THE BANQUET.

The banquet held in one of the Association rooms after the game was a fitting close to a most successful league. About 53 sat down to the excellent spread that had been prepared and amid laughter and jollity the many good things were put out of sight. The tables were nicely decorated and the serving was done by a number of young ladies who kindly volunteered their services. Credit for the excellent menu is due Mr. and Mrs. R. Baker, who did the bulk of the work in connection with its preparation.

After the inner man had been satisfied, a toast list was honored with Mr Garnet Galley, chairman of the Physical committee as chairman.

The toast to The King was proposed by the chairman and responded to with a heartily sung God Save the King. In a few introductory remarks Mr Galley referred to the success of the spring basketball league and to the excellent work that had been done in the gymnasium during the past winter. It was gratifying to note the interest that had been taken and he was sure that the young men who had taken advantage of the opportunity for physical exercise would be benefitted mentally and morally, as well as physically.

The toast to the Y.M.C.A. was proposed in an appropriate manner by Mr. J. J. Howden, and responded to by Mr. R. H. Harding and Mr. G. H. Williamson. All referred to the splendid work the physical department is doing and bespoke even better things for the future.

The toast to the physical department was proposed by Mr. J. H. Connal, who expressed his pleasure at seeing the activity that had ruled in the "gym" during the past season. In this connection he took occasion to refer to the worth and ability of Mr Dingman and asked that a toast to him also be honored. This was done with great heartiness. Mr. Dingman made brief reply. In replying to the toast to the Physical department Mr. F. H. Dobbin was in a reminiscent mood and dealt interestingly with some of the sports enjoyed in his boyhood days.

Mr. Geo. Robertson in a fitting manner proposed the toast to the winning team and Mr. Ross Dobbin made an appropriate response.

"The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. Dingman and responded to by Mr. E. M. Best in his usual happy manner.

One of the most enthusiastically honored toasts of the evening was that proposed to Mr. "Dick" Baker. Mr Harding and Mr. Galley were among those who voiced the sentiments of the assembly regarding Mr. Baker's worth. Mr. Jack Laing, who has acted as referee for the matches in the spring basketball league was also similarly honored. An appropriately response was made.

"Auld Lang Syne" brought the enjoyable affair to a conclusion.

"Dubby" Shea Will Play Ball With the Peterborough Team

"Dubby" Shea, formerly of Peterborough, but later of Brantford, has decided to return to his first love and will remain in Peterborough during the coming summer. "Dubby" has been visiting here for the past ten days and it was announced today that he had accepted a position here and would remain in Peterborough.

This news will be received with pleasure by the local baseball fans for "Dubby" will turn out with the Peterborough nine and will be a great addition to the team. He is one of the best in the business and by his good work with the Malleables in the Brantford City League last season, he became a great favorite with the fans in that city. And fast ball is played in the Brantford City League. 'Dubby' did the receiving for the Malleable, and was one of the best in the league in that position. He is a versatile fellow on the diamond, however, and can play almost any position. Short stop is his right place, however, and it is there that he does the most brilliant work.

Prospects were never brighter for baseball in Peterborough than at present. Although the team will not be in any league, local fans will see some games that will give them something to yelp over. The management is arranging to bring some of the best teams in the province to Peterborough and from the present outlook the local nine should be about able to hold their own with the best of them. There will likely be a game here every Saturday and among the teams that will be seen here are the old favorites from Lindsay. "Bill" Cinnamon's bunch were always a good drawing card in Peterborough and it is hoped that they will perform on the local sward several times before the season is over.

The construction of an electric road between Duluth and Fort Frances is in contemplation to be begun when the big power dam at Fort Frances and the Great Northern Power plant at Duluth are completed.

Season after season we have sold and recommended 20th CENTURY CLOTHING simply because we have found none better, and we recommend it this season with greater confidence than ever.

The Strathcona Atheletic Club

Enthusiastic Organization Meeting Held—Will Join City League

An enthusiastic meeting of the Strathcona baseball team was held last evening at the Windsor Hotel for the purpose of organization. A large number of the members were present and the prospects for the coming season were discussed.

Mr. H. Burridge was in the chair and the first business was the election of officers, which resulted as follows;—

Hon. President—Jas. Kendry.
President—Mr. Arthur Johnson.
1st Vice-President—Mr. T. J. Begley.
2nd Vice-President—Mr. J. Maher.
3rd Vice-President—Mr. R. Mann.
Secretary—Mr. F. Craig.
Treasurer—Mr. C. Curtis.
Manager—Mr. C. Burns.
Executive—Messrs. C. Wilson, W. Parnell, W. Metheral.

As the Strathconas play both hockey and baseball they decided to change their name to The Strathcona Athletic Club, and their colors will be red and white.

They also decided last night to enter the City Baseball league if one is formed and appointed Messrs. C. Burns and C. Wilson as representatives to the City League meeting, if one is held.

Mr W. Metheral who has acted manager for the Strathconas for the past four years, resigned, and will be succeeded by Mr. C. Burns. During his term of office Bill was untiring in his efforts towards the success of the team and the club are sorry that he has dropped out, although he will still be on the executive and retain his interest in it. The Strathconas have plenty of good men and if a City League is formed they will likely acquit themselves as well as they did in the City Hockey League.

Mr. W. Swinston, one of the Strathconas' best men, will not play with them this summer. He leaves tomorrow for Milwaukee where he has accepted a position. While the club are sorry to lose "Hudley," they join in wishing him every success in his new home.

LACROSSE

The meeting of the Lacrosse Club Committee which was to have been held last night, was postponed until this evening.

BASEBALL

HASTINGS CLUB;

There will be a meeting in the Clarendon House on Monday evening next at 8 p.m. to organize the lacrosse and baseball clubs for the season. All who are interested in either game and are willing to give their support, are requested to attend.—Hastings Star.

LINDSAY LEAGUE

For the third time the Town Baseball League has been organized, says the Lindsay Post, and never in the short history of that popular institution has a more successful annual meeting been held than that of last evening in the Y.M.C.A. parlor. Fully thirty enthusiasts were present, and every individual manifested a lively interest in the proceedings. The speeches delivered were brief and to the point, and a business-like air prevailed throughout the entire meeting. The faults and drawbacks of former seasons were considered, and considerable foresight shown in many of the measures passed and the nominations made. Judging by the complete success of the meeting, the Town League of 1907 will be the best since its formation. The League will be comprised of four teams, viz., Wideawakes, Orientals, C.L.S. and Sylvesters.

Hockeyists Will Dine Together

Everything is shaping nicely for the annual banquet of the City Hockey League, which will be held at McCallum's next Monday night. The tickets are selling well and there promises to be a large number in attendance. The committee in charge are leaving nothing undone that would ensure the success of the banquet and a splendid programme of speeches, songs and music is being prepared. The Strathconas, winners of the championship this season, will be the guests of honor.

SCOTT'S COLLOSEUM

432 GEORGE ST.

Programme for Week Commencing April 8

THE GREAT TORONTO FIRE

Only those who actually saw the great fire of Toronto, can adequately appreciate the realism of the moving pictures shown in the Colloseum by Mr. Scott and his associates. The clang of the fire bells, the rush and hurry, the terror and grandeur of the awful conflagration are marvellously brought out. The rescue work of the firemen, the rush of the crowds, fighting the flames and dynamiting the dangerous walls are depicted with a realism almost incredible.

The continuous performances take place every afternoon and evening from 2 to 5 and 7 to 10 p.m. and furnish a refined entertainment for both small and great. Ladies are especially invited to the afternoon performances. Beautiful illustrated songs

Presentation to Mr. R. H. Leighton

On His Leaving Norwood to Reside in Prescott

Mr. R. H. Leighton, late of the Norwood High School staff, and formerly principal of the Model School, left on Saturday for Prescott, having accepted an appointment on the teaching staff of their schools. Mr. Leighton has taught in the Norwood schools for the past five years, filling the position of principal of the Model school until the 1st of January last, when, at the request of the Board, he accepted an appointment on the staff of the High School, in both of which positions he gave general satisfaction. He was a splendid citizen in every respect and his departure is regretted by a host of friends.

On the last night of Mr. R. H. Leighton's stay in town, he was presented by the young ladies of his Sunday school class with an address, accompanied by a handsome pearl-inlaid fountain pen with solid gold ornaments.

Mr. Walter Jayes of Buffalo, Nephew of Mr. John Jayes of This City

The Buffalo Enquirer of Tuesday of this week contains a group cut of three prominent baseball men. One of them is "Silk" O'Loughlin, the famous umpire, and another is Walter Jayes, of Buffalo, a nephew of Mr. John Jayes, of this city. Young Jayes is one of the best second base men in Buffalo and last year played with the Hurons, one of the crack amateur teams of that city. This season he will play professional ball, and has been signed by the Syracuse State League team.

To Test Lock at Kirkfield

Arrangements are being made to make a test of the hydraulic lift lock at Kirkfield, within the next few days. The lock was completed last fall, but too late in the season to test it. Now as the water is free from ice again, a test will be made within a few days.

It is expected that the lift lock will work satisfactorily, as it has been constructed under most careful supervision.

Lady Dentist Has Won Out; Legislature Approves Bill

Miss Sadie Holmes Permitted to Practice Her Profession.

Amendments to Fish and Game Laws—Automatic Guns Are Barred—Natural Gas Plant Exempt From Taxation—Supply of Electric Power by Municipalities—County Road Systems—Bills Passed.

Toronto, April 12.—The Legislative session yesterday was a day of hard work. Morning, afternoon and night sittings were held and a large amount of work covered. Hon. Mr. Whitney has wisely demanded the fullest consideration to every measure and nothing will be permitted to be "rushed through" in the dying hours of the session.

To Hon. Mr. Cochrane's bill imposing the mining taxes a clause was added on the motion of the Prime Minister providing that the natural gas plants of municipalities shall not be subjected to taxes.

Electric Power Bill.

Hon. Mr. Beck introduced a Government measure to amend the act providing for the transmission of electric power to municipalities, which was given its first and second readings. The amendment is to give municipalities power, having obtained the consent of the commission, to supply power to consumers in adjacent municipalities. Mr. Beck cited the case of London which could not sell power or light to the London asylum because that institution is outside the municipal boundaries. Other sections make it clear that a municipality contracting with the commission may go into the business of supplying electrical energy for power purposes. Authority is also provided to enable the commission to take the product of a power company developing power outside of the province, if such power is brought into Ontario. Clauses confirming bylaws already passed authorizing municipal corporations to contract with the commission are included in the bill, in order to obviate any technical objections to the contracts. The council of a municipality so authorized to enter into such a contract, must still submit the necessary money bylaw to the ratepayers for establishing or taking over a distributing plant.

Bars Automatic Guns.

Mr. Dunlop (North Renfrew) made a protest against the ruling illegal of automatic guns in Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill on fish, game and fur-bearing animals. He moved that this clause be struck out. Mr. McGarry seconded and Mr. Hoyle spoke in support of the motion.

Hon. Mr. Whitney said the Government had an open mind on the subject, but he was under the impression that the House had fully considered and dealt with it.

Hon. Mr. Hendrie considered the gun a cruel weapon, injuring more than it killed.

After a sharp debate Mr. Dunlop's resolution was defeated by 39 to 34, but a subsequent amendment by Mr. Eilber to change the time of the deer season back to the existing dates, carried. The dates will accordingly be from the first to the 15th of November, instead of from the 6th to the 20th, as proposed.

Hon. Dr. Pyne's amendments to the Public Schools Act passed their committee stage after a brief discussion.

Hon. Dr. Reaume's measure for the improvement of the public highways was also taken up in committee and approved by Hon. Mr. Graham. It enables county councils, as now constituted to enter upon the construction of county road systems, without having to refer the necessary bylaw back to the township councils for approval. It also enables incorporated villages and towns to take advantage of the act.

Mr. Preston (Brant) was of opinion that the Government would have to make up its mind to contribute more than one-third of the cost of county roads systems. It was essential that the province should have more good roads.

County Road System.

The evening session opened with an interchange over this proposed county road system, and the Opposition scored. While providing for the county to establish the system of roads, the bill set forth that when constructed it could be handed over at once to the townships for maintenance. In discussion it was held that the counties should be responsible for maintenance, which was a vital consideration. The Prime Minister and Minister of Public Works readily admitted the strength of the contention and amended the bill to read that the county must maintain the system for at least three years before turning any of the roads over to the townships.

Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill respecting the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was given its second reading, and the House went again into committee on Hon. Mr. Foy's measure to consolidate and amend the act respecting voters' lists.

Sadie Holmes Wins.

The third readings were as follows:

To encourage the refining of metals—Mr. Cochrane.

To amend the Mines Act — Mr. Cochrane.

Respecting the form and interpretation of the statutes—Mr. Foy.

To authorize Sadie Holmes to practice dentistry—Mr. Sutherland.

To authorize Jerry Brisson to practice as a veterinary surgeon — Mr. Racine.

Respecting joint stock and other companies—Mr. Hanna.

To amend the surveys act—Mr. Foy.

Authorizing Thomas Johnston to practice as a veterinary surgeon—Mr. Ferguson.

To amend the act respecting pawnbrokers—Mr. McNaught.

Respecting the agreement between the University of Toronto and the City of Toronto—Mr. Whitney.

To incorporate the Owen Sound, Shallow Lake and Wiarton Railway Co.—Mr. Mackay.

Respecting the Nepigon Railway Co.—Mr. Gamey.

Respecting the Ottawa River Railway Co.—Mr. Preston (Lanark).

Respecting the Windsor and Tecumseh Electric Railway Co. and the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway—Mr. Bowyer.

Mr. Duff (West Simcoe) has put the following question on the order paper:

Is there any truth in the report that the judge of the County of Prescott decided a suit entered in the Division Court by a clergyman against a parishioner on the Parish or Ecclesiastical law or on laws or customs of another province?

ARSENIC IN PORTER.

Mrs. Gregg of Saintfield Dies After Taking Beverage.

Saintfield, Ont., April 12.—The coroner's jury on the death of Mrs. Homer Gregg, an aged lady, who died on March 15 shortly after drinking a cupful of porter taken out of a gem jar, found that death was the result of arsenic in the beverage. By what means it came there is unknown.

The verdict was based on the evidence of Prof. Ellis of Toronto, the analyst, who declared that he found arsenic and copper in one of the jars of porter sent him, and that his conjecture as to the poison in the stomach was that it was Paris green.

Officials of the Cosgrave Brewery, Toronto, testified that it was impossible for arsenic to have got into the porter while being bottled.

Mrs. Gregg was over 80 years of age. She lived with her daughter and son-in-law, John T. Deble, a prominent citizen, about two miles from here.

The case is causing a lot of talk, and County Constable McCully is investigating.

Freight Trains Collide.

Toronto, April 12.—A mix-up of two freight trains occurred on the Grand Trunk at the foot of Carlaw avenue shortly after six o'clock last night. One car was smashed to atoms and two others derailed.

Traffic was delayed for over an hour while the auxiliary from the Union Depot was clearing the tracks.

Duke of Marlborough Ill.

London, April 12.—Considerable alarm is felt over the condition of the Duke of Marlborough. He is under the watchful care of doctors, who are afraid that there is a recurrence of the heart trouble which so seriously affected him two or three years ago.

Cabinet Crisis Averted.

Brussels, April 12.—It is now believed that the threatened Ministerial crisis has been definitely averted. The Right party at a meeting Wednesday came to an agreement upon the question of the limitation of hours of labor in the mines.

MR. FOWLER CONTINUES.

Insurance Commission Again Severely Attacked In House of Commons.

Ottawa, April 12.—Mr. Fowler resumed his speech on the Insurance Commission in the House yesterday and denounced the attempt of the commission to besmirch the honored and respected leader of the Opposition. Then he proceeded to tell his story. He and his friends had bought lands in the open market, and nobody had been able to show anything wrong with the purchase. When he was summoned before the commission he could not imagine what he had to do with insurance.

He went before the commission and saw on the bench two men who seemed to have passed the border-land between manhood and dotage, and between them a younger man, the professional hired commissioner ready to sign anything prepared for him.

Mr. Fowler alluded to the charge that he and his friends had withheld some lands from the tract sold to the Great Northwest Land Co., and proved its falsity. Yet the insurance report made it appear that there had been deception. The report represented him as being the agent of the Union Trust Company in the Kamloops purchase and therefore not entitled to profit. He was not the agent, but the vendor. The report said that the expense of examining and reporting upon the property was paid by the Union Trust. That was false. He himself had paid every cent of it. The Kamloops property, with the Okanagan exchange thrown in, could not be had to-day for a million dollars. But the company sold out in a hurry, scared by this royal commission.

The deal had given a large profit to the I. O. F., but Mr. Aylesworth had said, what if they had lost, and forthwith the Minister proceeded to make most unworthy comparisons.

Hot Shot.

Mr. Fowler went on to say that he believed Mr. Shepley wrote the whole report himself, acting under instructions, and the commissioner merely signed it. If the bills had to be paid at least two-thirds of the sum should be paid out of the Grit corruption funds. (Cheers.)

For the Policyholders.

"For two days," said W. F. Maclean, addressing the House last night, "this committee has been largely occupied in discussing the political, personal and partisan side of this insurance report. While I do not wish for the present to discuss that, I do intend to ask the indulgence of the committee while I look at the evidence and the finding from the view of the policyholders who have a hundred million dollars of their hard-earned savings in the hands of these insurance companies."

The policyholder was an important factor in the country, and was going to judge this case from the point of view of his savings and how the members of Parliament were handling his money. There was in connection with the finding of the commission an arraignment of the Insurance Department of this country and also an arrangement of the Finance Department which has charge of administration of insurance laws. There was furthermore an imperative call to this Parliament for legislation in connection with the great subject of life insurance.

Mr. Fielding said in reply to Mr. Maclean that he had already announced there could be no insurance legislation until next session. The Finance Minister also defended the officials of the insurance commission as honest and capable men, to which Mr. Maclean answered that they certainly did not make a creditable showing before the commission.

CHRISTENING LOSES FRIENDS.

Prince Victor Napoleon Not So Popular In France.

Paris, April 12.—The Figaro yesterday morning publishes a letter written by Mgr. Montagnini to Cardinal Merry Del Val, the papal secretary of state, informing him that Prince Victor Napoleon (the hope of the French Royalists) had lost many adherents in France by attending the christening of the Crown Prince of Italy, but that he was forced to do so by the threats of the Italian royal family.

Mgr. Montagnini wrote also that he had learned that English and American Protestants were collecting large sums of money for the purpose of buying or renting churches in France as soon as the Catholics were turned out of them.

FIRE IN DRYING KILN.

$4,000 Damage Done at Toronto Piano Factory.

Toronto, April 12.—Two hundred and fifty men were put out of work yesterday morning by a fire, which did about $4,000 damage at the Gerhard Heintzman Piano Works on Sherbourne street. The cause of the fire is unknown. Insurance fully covers the loss.

The alarm was turned in at 5.20, and the fire then had great headway in the drying kiln, which is in a building to the rear of the factory proper. The smoke was very dense, and the firemen had a hard task for three hours. Valuable woods were destroyed.

Make Ministers Tremble.

Paris, April 12.—The national council of the Socialist party has issued a spirited address to the workmen of France protesting against the attitude of the Government in the matter of unions among employes of the state.

It tells them that they clearly must organize, and thus make the Ministers and deputies "tremble before the indignation of all toilers."

Douma Member Suspended.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—M. Purishkevich, monarchist, was suspended at yesterday's sitting of the Lower House of Parliament for insulting President Golovin.

The incident arose from M. Purishkevich suddenly calling on the members to hiss as a mark of respect for the persons murdered by revolutionists.

The Strathcona, the first vessel out from Port Colborne, cleared the ice and got away.

JURY STILL LOCKED UP

Men Who Are to Decide Thaw's Fate Acting Slowly.

Have Already Been Out Thirty-Six Hours—Jurymen Ask Many Questions—Sifting the Evidence — Appear to Be Shutting Out the Unwritten Law From Their Minds—Many Rumors, None Authentic.

New York, April 12.—Thirty hours of deliberation have brought the jury in the Thaw case to no conclusion, and at 11 o'clock they were locked up for the night.

Twice yesterday the twelve men who took their places in the jury box more than two months and a half ago, filed into the court-room and asked the assistance of the court in an endeavor to bring about an agreement.

They appeared wan and haggard after wrangling through all of Wednesday night in the stuffy little conference room at the criminal courts building, with only hard chairs and one long table provided for their comfort.

Went Over the Evidence.

The jurors wanted to hear again the evidence of numerous eye-witnesses to the tragedy; they wanted to hear again what Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton was allowed to testify as to Thaw's condition the night of the tragedy; they wanted to hear again what Evelyn Nesbit Thaw said as to her husband's conduct that evening; they wanted to hear again the conversations Thaw had with James Clinch Smith just before he committed the homicide; they wanted to hear against several portions of Justice Fitzgerald's charge, and finally they wanted permission to take all the writings of Thaw which were introduced into the trial as indicative of the defendant's state of mind when he heard the story of Evelyn Nesbit's alleged wrongs at the hands of White.

Judge Utters Warning.

All of these requests were gladly granted by the court; but when Foreman Doming B. Smith asked that certain portions of the summing up address by Delphin M. Delmas be read, Justice Fitzgerald called a halt. He admonished the jurors that they were to be guided only by the evidence, and were not privileged to hear again the closing speeches of the lawyers.

There were all sorts of rumors and guesses yesterday as to how the jury stood. None of the reports had any degrees of authenticity.

It seemed evident that the jury's deliberations were hinging upon the question of sanity or insanity of the defendant as shown by the defence.

From the manner in which the jurors wished to go over the evidence in all its details, it was surmised that a verdict, if reached at all, would be predicated entirely upon the evidence and not upon the unwritten law.

THE HOCKEY FATALITY.

Cornwall Jury Acquit Masson on a Charge of Manslaughter.

Cornwall, April 12.—Chas. T. Masson of Ottawa, charged with manslaughter for the killing of Bud McCourt in a hockey match here on March 6, was acquitted yesterday, the jury bringing in a verdict of "not guilty."

The evidence for the defence included some ten witnesses, most of whom testified that Chamberlain struck McCourt at the south end of the rink previous to the mix-up, which was generally believed to have resulted in McCourt's death.

The jury was out only 45 minutes.

The general feeling in Cornwall last night is rather one of regret than elation. There was no venom in the prosecution, but the people think that something should be done to purge lacrosse and hockey of the man-killing element.

WOMAN GETS TWO YEARS.

Mrs. Bates Sentenced for Attempting to Kill Her Children.

Woodstock, April 12.—At the Assize Court yesterday, Mrs. William Bates, an elderly woman employed as a laundress about the city, received her trial on the charge of assaulting, with intent to kill, her two children, Hattie, aged 25 years, and her son, under 20.

The evidence went to show that the woman rose in the night while the two children were sleeping and attacked them with a hatchet.

No defence was offered, and the woman was sentenced to two years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Lord Cromer Resigns.

London, April 12.—Foreign Secretary Grey announced in the House of Commons yesterday that Lord Cromer, the British agent and Consul-General in Egypt, has resigned his post for reasons of ill-health, and Sir Eldon Gorst had been appointed to succeed him.

In making the announcement of Lord Cromer's resignation the Foreign Secretary eulogized Lord Cromer's services, and said his policy would be continued.

Jury Disagreed.

Syracuse, N.Y., April 12.—The jury in the United States court in the case of the Government against the New York Central Railroad, charged with giving rebates to the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, reported yesterday afternoon that it could not agree and was discharged.

To Auburn For Life.

Rochester, April 12.—Fred Schultz, convicted of murder, in second degree, for the killing of Edward Pullman of Sodus, yesterday morning, was sentenced to Auburn Prison for the rest of his life.

Found Dead on Road.

Port Hope, April 12.—Sylvester Dawley, aged 65, a farmer of Hamilton Township, was found dead on the side of the road at 6 o'clock.

There is opposition to an application for a shop license in the Riverdale district of Toronto.

The C.P.R. Train Disaster at Chapleau Was Horrible Affair

Fifteen Passengers, Mostly English Immigrants, Killed.

Train Was Derailed—Cars Rolled Down Embankment — Wreckage Caught Fire and Victims Were Cremated—Chiefly Women and Children—Broken Rail the Cause —Impossible to Identify the Dead.

Port Arthur, April 12.—The most disastrous wreck the Canadian Pacific has experienced on the north shore section, so far as loss of life and injury to passengers is concerned, occurred Wednesday near Chapleau, when a broken rail caused the derailment of No. 1 express, with the loss of 15 lives and injury of 34 passengers on the train.

Within a few seconds after the accident the cars were in flames, and four were destroyed, together with 15 unfortunates, who were unable to escape.

Doctors Worked Nobly.

Noble work was done by doctors from Chapleau, aided by passengers who had escaped injury, in affording such relief as circumstances permitted.

By superhuman effort and undaunted heroism, they chopped and tore timbers apart, taking out men penned underneath timber, and others who had already felt tongues of fire on the bare flesh.

The accident occurred on a curve. Fortunately the train was running at slow speed. The locomotive and express car passed over the broken rail all right, but the baggage car and colonists following left the rails and plunged down a twenty-foot embankment to the lake below.

Plunged to Death.

One woman, who had been saved from the fiery furnace, found that her children had not been saved, and she plunged into the flames and was seen no more.

One young man, imprisoned in the wreckage, was almost rescued when a mass of burning timbers fell over him, and he thrust his rescuers away and fell back into a fiery tomb.

Women and children were burned to death in sight of strong men, powerless to prevent.

One man, journeying from England to make a home in the west, lost his wife, two children and a brother.

The mail car stuck to the engine, but the baggage car turned over and over down on to a frozen lake, pulling four other cars after it. It was just at noon, and the forward cars were packed with immigrants cooking their dinner.

The Dead.

Railway Line to Eldorado An Almost Assured Fact

G.T.R. Officials Inspect Mineral Prospects and Road Bed Highly Pleased With What They Saw.

According to previous arrangements made with the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Dewey, Divisional Freight Agent, Mr. R. Tinning, Travelling Freight Agent, Mr. McFadden, Roadmaster, and Mr. J. Irwin, Trainmaster, came up to Madoc from Belleville on Tuesday morning, and accompanied over the ground lying between Bask and Eldorado in order to get an estimate of what there was in the line of mines, and as to what shape the road bed was in. With Messrs. Dewey and Tinning went Mr. W. A. Hungerford, M.E. and Mr. B. J. McMurrader, and accompanying Messrs. McFadden and Irwin were Mr. C. M. Wallbridge and Dr. Harper. The two first mentioned gentlemen were taken over the back road between Madoc and Eldorado and visited in turn the McIntosh lithographic quarry, the McKinnon quarry, the Seymour iron mine, the Cooke Thompson mine, and the Medina copper mine on the way out. The other party traversed the road bed for a portion of the way, and were picked up along the line, and proceeded to Eldorado where dinner was served. On the way home the Wallbridge hematite mine was visited; also the slate quarry. These gentlemen were more than convinced that the estimates of minerals along their line given by Mr. Hungerford a couple of weeks ago were in no way exaggerated, and left for Belleville about 6.00, leaving behind them an assurance that with what they had seen their reports would be none other than favorable to the chief of staff. These gentlemen are what might be termed gentlemen in every sense of the word and those who had the pleasure of accompanying them were greatly enthused with the trip.

From the aforementioned facts, we are convinced that the Grand Trunk officials see in North Hastings a bonanza for their Eldorado line's traffic. There is, without any doubt, an immensity of mineral lands lying along their right-of-way which only need a means whereby to ship to have them developed, and we might add that from the favorable reports given by Mr. Hungerford and the assurances left by the officials, there is no reason why we should not have work started on that part of the road in in a short time.—Madoc Review.

Endorses Scheme of Ald. Morgan

"Fair Play" Thinks Certain Italians Should be Taxed

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I have read with interest Ald. Morgan's ideas of what he thinks should be done with the sons of Sunny Italy and for one I am in sympathy with the alderman in this matter. "Citizen" says that he gave Alderman Morgan credit for being a man with better judgment.

I think Alderman Morgan's judgment all right. There is another class that migrate to this country, and I believe they are asked to pay for the privilege of living in this country, and are they not as good a class of people as the Italians? I think they are. Playing to the grand stand, forsooth! Who is playing grand stand? What a champion we have in the person of Citizen, of a class of people who undertake to redress wrongs either real or imaginery, and do it with knives. There are a few Italians in the city who do contribute to the civic finances. They are all right, and should not come under the ten dollar heading, but those who do not contribute in the usual way, should be asked and compelled to do so in some other way if possible. Talk about pulling down the signs! Talk about the merchants unpacking their goods somewhere out in North Monaghan, and bringing them into town in a balloon, and then take them into their stores through the man-hole in the roof; they are not in it with Ald. Morgan's proposition. Give the Alderman a chance, his head is level.

Street Delivery of Local Mails

Trade and Labor Council Upheld by "One Who Suffered"

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I was quite pleased to notice by your paper of last evening, that the Trades and Labor Council had taken up the matter of a street delivery of our mail. The petitions which were circulated last fall, were surely signed by enough of our citizens to show our worthy M. P. that the people were in earnest in asking for this way of receiving their mail. I don't know how it appears to you Mr. Editor, but to me, it is a shame and a disgrace to see the large number of men, women and girls that are compelled to go to the postoffice for their mail, and there night after night, wait often half an hour or more, before their turn comes to reach the wicket. It is a common occurrence in the evenings to see twenty or thirty persons, all standing in a line and waiting their turn and these are the people who work all day in our factories, and at their various trades, and who cannot get to the post office, during the day, the same as some of our citizens can. I say all credit to the Trades and Labor Council, for taking up this most important matter. Go on, gentlemen, and press for this system, and you will receive the thanks of a long suffering community.

ONE WHO HAS SUFFERED.

AMUSEMENTS

GLAD THEY ARE OVER

There was supposed to be joy unalloyed among the "stage folk" last night at the finish of "When the Harvest Days are Over," and the feeling of happiness spread to many of those in the audience. The production that was labelled "A real New England Play" did not come up to expectations, in fact it was very much of a disappointment. As presented at the Grand Opera House last night, there is really very little good that can be said about the piece. It was of the usual type of melodrama, minus the blood and thunder, and minus a good many other things that go to make a successful show. Felix Haney as Hez Huckins, did anything good that was going, leaving a little share of the honors to Neil Twomey, as Robert Travers, the hero of the plot. They both showed considerable ability, but their lines were not meritorious. The other members of the cast were not up to the average, and nothing more need be said. The play appeared to please the "gods" and considerable applause came from that quarter.

However, the patrons of the Opera House will be treated to something really good tonight, when Allen Doone appears in a return engagement of the old Irish favorite, "Kerry Gow." This is a splendid production and made a great hit when it appeared here Good Friday. The management of the Opera House deserve credit for securing a return engagement and there should be a crowded house.

Spent $400 for Wife He Advertised for

A Hamilton despatch says:

Smith H. German, a well-to-do farmer from Souther, Sask., started today for his home, a sadder but wiser man than when he arrived in Hamilton about a week ago. German is a widower, and a few months ago he advertised in a number of eastern papers for a wife. Among the answers he received was one from a Hamilton woman. It looked good to him, and he opened up a correspondence with the woman, and was led to believe that if he would come to Hamilton she would become Mrs. German.

The Saskatchewan man arrived last week, but the woman he expected to make his wife, refused to have anything more to do with him, and claimed that the whole thing was a joke. German had spent about $400 on the trip, and he consulted the local police to see how he could get his money back, but they could do nothing for him. He left this morning for his home in the west.

BOUNDARIES IN LAKES.

Buoys Placed By Revenue Cutter to Keep Fishermen In Place.

Washington, April 12.—Reports from the revenue cutter officer, who last summer made a test of the system of marking the international boundary lines in the Great Lakes by buoys, indicate that the experiment has resulted successfully.

It will be continued during the coming season, and if it works as well in confining the fishermen of America and Canada to their own waters as it did last year much friction will be avoided.

Owing to the heavy ice formation during the winter, it was found impossible to maintain an ordinary buoy in position in the deep waters of the lakes. Methods are now being considered to relieve the authorities of the expense and trouble of taking up and replacing these buoys every season.

HE WAS TOO CURIOUS.

Minister's Visit to Tenderloin Ends in His Disposition.

New York, April 12.—Rev. W. Howard Mears, curate of St. Matthews' Episcopal Church, who was arrested by the police at a house in the tenderloin district March 12 last, where he had gone in company with a negro woman, was deposed from the ministry yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Mears asserted that he was not actuated by any wrong motive in visiting the "Tenderloin," and that his presence there was with a view of making sociological investigations.

The magistrate accepted this explanation; the ministry didn't.

CHASED HIS WIFE.

Irate Husband Follows His Eloping Spouse Across the Atlantic.

Halifax, April 12.—An eloping couple were captured on board the Allan liner Carthagenian, which arrived Wednesday afternoon from Liverpool. They are William H. Black, grocer, and Mrs. Frederick Anstey, who are now in the custody of the immigration authorities, and will be deported by the next steamer.

Frederick Anstey, the husband of the woman, was on the pier when the steamer tied up, waiting to confront her. He had come over on a faster steamer, the Virginian. She had her two little sons.

Expects to Reach Pole.

New York, April 12.—Walter Wellman bade his friends in America farewell yesterday morning when the steamer Touraine sailed, and said when he greets them again he hopes they will hail him as the discoverer of the North Pole.

He expects to leave for Tromsoe, Norway, about June 1, and before the middle of the month to be at his winter quarters in Spitzbergan.

It will not be possible, however, to begin the trials of his airship before the second week in July and it is likely to be the last of July or early in August before a start can be made for the Pole.

Banished to Siberia.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—A train bearing 340 political exiles left here Wednesday for Siberia.

This is the largest consignment of political prisoners sent to the far east for several months past, and is the result of efforts to clear the prisons in view of the expected raiding of martial law.

Ashore In a Fog.

London, April 12.—The Great Eastern Railway Co.'s steamer Brussels went ashore in a dense for off Harwich Wednesday night while outward bound for Antwerp. She remained fast all night.

Veneer Factory Burned.

Sunbridge, April 12.—The veneer factory of Mulholland & Co., was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday night. The cause is unknown. The value of the plant was $16,000; insurance $4,000.

Destroyers In Collision.

Dover, Eng., April 12.—The British torpedo boat destroyers Colne and Falcon put in here yesterday, having been badly damaged in a collision off this port.

WOMAN CREMATED IN ROOM.

Found Standing In Middle of Room With Clothing Ablaze.

Stratford, April 12.—Mrs. Harriet Dewing was burned to death early yesterday morning. In the absence of his wife, she had been keeping house the past two weeks for Leopold F. H. Koeller, 106 Romeo street. Koeller, who slept downstairs, was aroused shortly after 3 o'clock, hearing Mrs. Dewing moaning, and, proceeding upstairs, found her standing in the middle of the floor all ablaze. He extinguished the flames and called for medical assistance, but the woman died shortly after the doctor arrived. The case is somewhat mysterious, as it is understood the woman was fully dressed with an unlighted lantern in the room, though a half-burned match was found, which may account for the fire. An inquest will be held.

Trains Tied Up by Snow.

Regina, Sask., April 12.—Traffic on the north line is tied up tighter than ever by the storm now in progress according to advices received here yesterday. All the big cuts have filled in again. It is not likely a wheel will move north from here this week.

The Canadian Northern will not sell tickets eastward from Edmonton to any points beyond Battleford. No passengers have gone east from Edmonton since April 6.

School Teacher Suicides.

Chicago, April 12.—Principal J. H. Brayton of the Raymond Public School, committed suicide yesterday by shooting. Ill-health caused it. He had been connected with the Chicago schools for 30 years. He was prominent in Masonic circles and was a member of the jury which convicted the Haymarket anarchists in 1887.

Fort William's assessment rate has been fixed at 20 mills for 1907. It was 18 last year.

Two Peace Banquets.

New York, April 12.—Two large public banquets, instead of the dinner originally planned, it was announced yesterday, will conclude the national arbitration and peace congress, which is to meet in Carnegie Hall next Sunday.

Besides the president, Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada; Ambassador Bryce, President Elliott of Harvard, Samuel Connors, Edward Everett Hale, Lyman Abbott and others will address the auditors.

Gives $150,000 to McGill.

Montreal, April 12.—Through the will of the late Mrs. Peter Redpath, which was probated Wednesday at Somerset House, England, McGill University benefits to the extent of $150,000, which is to be applied to the maintenance of the library and the Peter Redpath Museum.

Another important bequest is that of $40,000 to the Montreal General Hospital.

Banker Editor Murdered.

Paris, April 12.—Emilo Bnoist, a well-known banker of this city, was shot and killed yesterday in the office of a financial newspaper, of which he was the editor.

The assassin was a discontented customer named Carroit.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 12.—A cotton compress owned by the Traders's Compress and Warehouse Co., was burned here yesterday with an estimated loss of about $650,000, covered by insurance.

Silvering Mirrors.

Mirrors are usually silvered by coating the glass with amalgam. For this purpose a large, perfectly flat stone is provided, and upon it is evenly spread a sheet of tin foil without crack or flaw. This is covered to the depth of one-eighth of an inch with clean mercury. The plate of glass, perfectly cleaned from all grease and impurity, is floated on to the mercury by sliding, so as to exclude all air bubbles. It is then pressed down by loading it with weights in order to press out all the mercury which remains fluid. This is received in a gutter around the stone. After about twenty-four hours it is gently raised upon its edge, and in a few weeks it is ready to frame.

His Perseverance.

Henry Arthur Jones, the noted English playwright, was giving the students of Yale an address on the drama. "Your American vernacular is picturesque," he said, "and it should help your playwrights to build strong, racy plays. But neither vernacular nor anything else is of moment if perseverance is lacking. No playwright can succeed who is like a man I know. I said to this man one New Year's day, 'Do you keep a diary, Philip?' 'Yes,' he answered. 'I've kept one for the first two weeks in January for the last seven years.'"

His Good News.

"I have," said a lawyer as he entered his condemned client's cell, "good news at last."

"A reprieve?" eagerly exclaimed the prisoner.

"No, not a reprieve, but your uncle has left you £500, and now you can meet your fate with the satisfying feeling that the noble efforts of your lawyer in your behalf will not go unrewarded."—London Tit Bits.

Honest.

Boarder (on leaving)—Madam, you are one of the most honest persons I have ever met. Landlady—I am glad to hear you say that, sir. Boarder—Yes; your honesty is conspicuous on the very front of your establishment. Your sign says, "Boarders taken in!"—London Telegraph.

If we fail to conquer smaller difficulties, what will become of us when assaulted by greater?—Thomas a Kempis.

Sicily's Brigands.

How strong is the influence of the brigand in Sicily is shown in recent proceedings at the Caltanisetta assizes, where four of the band of the notorious chief Failla Molone were to be tried. The jurymen and witnesses instead of appearing sent a joint petition to the court praying to be excused so long as the chieftain, who has already a dozen assassinations to answer for, remains uncaptured.

Mastered the Q.

Hundreds of people have cured themselves of impediments in speech. One of last year's mayors as a young man used to find it almost impossible to pronounce words beginning with a "q." Every day for months he used to walk across St. James' park practicing this sentence aloud, "A quantity of quicksilver quietly quartered in a quagmire," until he conquered the impediment. Today he is one of the most fluent speakers in England.—London Tit-Bits.

Why He Wanted an Autograph.

A young man once wrote to William Dean Howells for his autograph. The novelist replied in a typewritten line:

"Have you bought my last book?"

The young man answered:

"I have not. I want to sell your autograph in order to get money enough to buy it."

Reasonable Request.

"The trouble," said the dentist as he probed away at the aching molar with a long, slender instrument, "is evidently due to a dying nerve."

"Well," groaned the victim, "It's open to you to treat the dying with a little more respect."

Busy Night at Y.M.C.A. Building

There Were Several Meetings Held Last Night

The Y.M.C.A. is a public centre, as it should be—as well as a resort for men—was well illustrated last night. The Historical Society held a meeting in the parlor. In the club room the Oval Tennis Club held a business meeting, while upstairs in the hall, Dr. Symonds was lecturing, and the Retail Merchants Association were meeting in the Board room, and the Murray Street Choir held a practice in the boys' room in the basement.

In addition the game rooms and reading rooms were thronged with young men, while one of the best attended Working Boys' gymnasium classes of the season, held sway in that part of the building.

MR. ST. JOHN'S ESTATE

Value is Placed at Less Than $10,000—Too Good to Others

It is said that the late Mr. Speaker St. John's estate will be under $10,000 and consists mainly of insurance.

Mr. St. John's unfailing heartiness of manner, precluded the idea that he was ever anything but highly successful in all his ventures.

He was not the type of man to parade his misfortune, but the fact was, that the late Speaker was hard hit by fortune on more than one occasion.

His great generosity and sympathy with those in want prevented him from accumulating wealth.

In order years ago, to present the $1,500 to help the church out of its difficulties, Mr. St. John mortgaged his home for the last $500.

The tug "Hercules" owned by the Polson Iron Works, arrived in port today, says the Port Hope Guide, and is tied up near the Standard Ideal. This tug will make a thorough search for the dredge Sir Wilfrid, which sank near Newcastle.

The tug anchored near Newcastle this morning, but their buoys have all been lost, and only their shore marks are seen. The tug is drawing ten feet, eight inches of water and is in charge of Captain James Shaw, formerly of the Marie Annette. The boat is supplied with all the necessary equipments, pontoons, etc., for raising the dredge and the work will be proceeded with all haste.

Lakefield Man Shot Big Hawk

On Thursday morning of last week, Mr. Alf. Higgins of Smith, was awakened from his peaceful slumbers by a noise in the yard and on going to the window he found a hawk endeavoring to carry off one of his fine Barred Rock hens. Quickly procuring his rifle the hawk was soon lying on the ground with a bullet through its heart, while the hen ran off apparently none the worse. It proved to be a large blue hawk, measuring 53 inches from tip to tip of its wings.

TRAPPERS AFTER THE MUSKRAT

Pelts Worth From 28c to 30c

The muskrat trappers are beginning to get busy, and a number of them are at their hunting grounds, endeavoring to secure the valuable animal. The Otonabee waters are probably the best around for muskrats. It is rather early yet for many to be offered for sale, but the fur dealers are getting all they can.

It is thought muskrat skins will not be as plentiful this year as formerly. The price paid for muskrat skins is about 28c to 30c.

We have been highly complimented by scores of citizens on the flavor of our Teas—the best only 40c lb—Kennedy's.

HARRY ADAMS

Chairman of Board of Works For 1906 Was Valuable Servant

Ex-Ald. Robert Hicks Was Very Successful—Put Through More Work Than Any Other Chairman and Did it All Well—City Officials Appreciated Him.

The appearance of the city engineer's annual report in last night's papers was cause for a great deal of reflection upon the part of many. Never before did the department of public works present such a splendid record. The majority of people who pay any attention to council proceedings, or to what is going on around them realized last year that the Board of Works was doing an immense amount of good work. It was impossible to walk about the city and not see the long stretches of sidewalks being laid; the miles of sewer trenches being opened up; the large quantity of gravel and broken stone being placed on the streets and the splendid work of the big steam road roller.

MR. ROBT. HICKS
Ex-Alderman and Chairman of Last Year's Board of Works.

The ratepayers were aware all the season through of the many improvements made to the roads where there were pitch holes. Every one appreciated the cement crossings undertaken by last year's Board of Works, and it might be said that a better move never was made.

Then the redecking of the bridges on George and Hunter streets was a big job carried through very successfully. The extension work done in the way of surface drainage was a long step in the right direction, while the negotiations carried on with the Dominion Government for the dredgings from the Otonabee river to fill in the basin west of the C.P.R spur line was worthy of great credit. There is not a person in the city who does not agree that this was one of the best pieces of work undertaken for years, and the beauty of it is that the city got it for very little money.

The 6 1-2 miles of new cement walk, nearly five miles of sewers, the thousands of cubic yards of gravel and stone put on the roads, and the other items already mentioned, are only some of the big undertakings of the Board of Works. In addition, there are hundreds of smaller matters which took up the time of the Board of Works, to say nothing of the labor attached to laying out of all those big jobs. Every piece of sewer, every stretch of walk and every little piece of road repair was taken up separately, and dealt with separately.

The great majority of people have little or no idea what it means to be chairman of the Board of Works. To be a member of the committee gives a good idea of the labor, worry and care that is attached to that position but only the chairman fully realizes it.

Last year Mr. Robert Hicks was head of the Board of Works. He accepted the position knowing it was a heavy task, but he was prepared to do his duty as a loyal citizen, and he did it. He spent a large part of his days and many nights serving the city. He was at the beck and call of everyone, and he was in close touch with every detail of the department's work. He not only performed the usual duties, but he introduced many new ideas and carried them through to the benefit of the city at large.

Every alderman in last year's council, and every city official who was brought into contact with him, have nothing but good to say of him. One official said: "In all the years I have been connected with municipal councils, I never met an alderman who could grasp big propositions easier, or give an answer quicker, and be as often correct as could Robert Hicks." Another said: "He was the best chairman of the Board of Works the city ever had."

The ex-alderman and ex-chairman always gave one the impression that he was doing the best he could. He did the best he could, and a perusal of the city engineer's report will provide ample proof of it, and to him the city owes a great deal.

New Pastor of Knox Church is Inducted Into His Charge

Rev. Henry J. Keith, M.A., Assumes the Pastorate—Interesting Ceremony Last Evening—Rev. Dr. Torrance Presided.

A large congregation attended Knox church last evening when the new pastor, Rev. Henry J. Keith M.A., late of Smith's Falls, was formally inducted into his new charge.

Rev Dr. Torrance presided and conducted the induction. The service was opened with the singing of a hymn, after which Rev H. A. Peckover, of Omemee, read a portion of Scripture and offered prayer. Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church, and Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, gave helpful and inspiring addresses, containing many words of encouragement to the new pastor, who is entering upon a new field of labor.

REV. MR PECKOVER

Rev Mr. Peckover preached an able and inspiring sermon from the words found in the 1st verse of the 62nd chapter of Isaiah; "For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest." The reverend gentleman said there were in these words a ring of conviction. These words ring out with noble aspiration. In them was expressed noble thoughts. There are obstacles to face, barriers to break down, and we must be prepared to face them. The reverend gentleman said any man who has accomplished anything had a purpose. Have a purpose and success will crown your efforts. Such men as Luther and Columbus had purposes in their minds when they set out on their different enterprises. Even Our Saviour had a purpose in spite of scorn and hate He accomplished His purpose and died on the cross for His people. The prophet Isaiah, to whom the text has reference, was a man of talent. He realized the claims of God God first and everything else will fall into place. His purpose was devoted to Zion. If we had capital we devoted it to something which would pay and which would yield us the largest dividends. The prophet spent his capital in usefulness to Zion. Zion needed it. "Just so the work in Knox church claims you," said Mr. Peckover, "but one usually suits himself about giving his service to the church instead of giving it readily." Nowadays the church had to be attractive. Congregations wanted pastors who would draw people to their church. They wanted attractive music. The old-fashioned churches did just as much good and had as large congregations as they do now.

The church wanted people devoted to the cause of God and to the service of His church.

The speaker, in conclusion, said there were men to be saved and it was the duty of church-men to go after them and bring them in to the church.

After Mr. Peckover's discourse another hymn was sung, after which the induction was proceeded with, Rev Dr. Torrance asking Mr Keith the questions. The right hand of fellowship was extended by the members of the Presbytery. The question was also put to the congregation regarding Mr. Keith taking charge and was answered by the uplifting of hands.

REV MR. POTTER

Another hymn was sung and then Rev J. G. Potter delivered the address to the newly inducted pastor. He said that it gave him a great deal of pleasure to speak to Mr. Keith. The gathering was one Mr. Keith would long remember. The work to which he has been called is one which will require all his time. It is in a growing part of the city and he will find much to encourage him. Mr. Keith's past experience and college course have been a good training for him for the work here. Mr. Potter said a well disciplined mind is a necessity in a minister. "While we have our work as minister," he said, "we must devote certain time to the training of the mind by preparing carefully two sermons a week." It will be necessary for the people's sake anyway that mornings be spent in training for the Sabbath. A minister should be a man of strong personality, also, one who is ready to stimulate and win men. It is the greatest asset to the ministry. The world honors true manhood. Often ungodly men are led to Christ by a man who has a strong personality along with his well disciplined mind. Then the minister must be endowed with the sprit of God. It is a necessity that ministers of the Gospel should be endowed with the Holy Spirit. Time should be set apart by the minister for prayer, for his people, his Sabbath school, and his church. The Christian minister should always endeavor to give some message to those who are in darkness or to some sorrowing heart. The duties of preachers are to preach the truth, the Gospel of Christ. They must realize the responsibility of teaching. Preach that which is going to purify the human race, to elevate the individual person. He hoped that in all departments of Knox church they would strive to promote the cause of Christ.

REV. H. J. KEITH
The New Pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church

To Mr. Keith, Mr. Potter said, in conclusion; "Realize that as you look around and see both young and old in your church, they are given over in your charge." Mr. Potter wished him every success in his new work.

A well rendered vocal duett was then given by Mr. D. Campbell and Miss W. Anderson.

TO THE PEOPLE;

Rev Dr. Marsh, of Springville, then delivered an earnest and instructive address to the people. He said he felt honored by the Presbytery to have the privilege of addressing the people. A few months ago he was just a junior in the Presbytery, and now he was assisting in an induction service. In addressing the people, the Rev. Dr. Marsh, said, he wished to speak about some things a congregation should not to do and some things they ought to. To parents he would say, do not allow the minister to be the first to speak to their families about Christ. No greater privilege is given a parent than to speak to the boy or girl about accepting Christ. Let not the minister be the first. Then do not expect your minister to be a prophet. He thought a minister should be an educated man, but the minister cannot know everything. "Tell your minister of any sickness in his congregation. It will save him time and do you a lot of good," said the speaker. "He is only too ready to go if he knows of it. Do not expect the minister to preach good sermons and be on the street every day in the week. Also make an effort to help your pastor to find the strangers. Then about the things you ought to do. Pay him well and encourage him. He will do all he can for his people. Respect your pastor."

Dr Marsh said that Knox church had a man they ought to be proud of. Receive him kindly in your home, and speak highly of him and act in a noble way towards him. "Have patience with your minister and pray for him that he may be blessed in his work."

The meeting was then brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology and pronouncing of the Benediction by Rev. Dr. Torrance.

The congregation were introduced to Mr. Keith as they passed out of the church.

HECTOR BAKER WAS DISCHARGED

Evidence Heard this Morning on Charge of Vagrancy

Before His Worship Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning, Hector Baker, who was remanded a week ago, on a charge of vagrancy, pleaded not guilty. Mr. E. L. Goodwill appeared for the prisoner.

P. C. Newhall was the first to give evidence. He said that he had known Baker about three years. He was an idle, drunken, worthless fellow. On Friday last about 10.25 he arrested Baker on Hunter street, with a man who was under the influence of liquor. Prisoner had both hands in the man's pockets. At the time of the arrest, he asked Baker what he was looking for, and Baker replied that he was looking for tin. Witness asked McCarthy, the man who was being robbed, if prisoner had taken anything from him and he said no. On the way to the police station, prisoner told witness that he was looking for a flask. At the station, Newhall searched him, but found no money on him. He first saw the prisoner and McCarthy in the alleyway, near the C.P.R. hotel. Witness said that he quite frequently saw the prisoner hanging around drunken men in dark places.

Mr. Ed. McCarthy was then called. He only knew the prisoner to see him. He said that he never knew his name until this morning. He said that the prisoner and he were in Head's Hotel and had a drink. Prisoner knew witness had no money, as he did not pay for the drink. They walked along the street, and they stepped into a gateway. Witness asked prisoner to see if there was anything in his pocket. Prisoner was caught in the act of searching him by the officer.

Chief Roszel then gave evidence. He said that Baker had been in the police court many times and had served several short terms in Gaol.

His Worship said there was no evidence to make a conviction. McCarthy had asked Baker to search him. He discharged the case.

THEFT CASE.

Wm Angelsey pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing a chatelaine bag containing $15.10, belonging to Lillie Graham of Selwyn, yesterday, in a local hotel. He was remanded for a week. It appears that the young lady unconsciously laid down her purse and went upstairs. When she came down it was gone. Angelsey was arrested this morning by P. C. Newhall. He had $9.87 on him. When first charged he pleaded not guilty, but afterwards changed his mind and pleaded guilty.

Jolly Time at Otherdom Dance

Another successful Otherdom Club dance was held in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, last night. Splendid music was furnished by Glionna's orchestra, of Toronto, and a most enjoyable time was spent. There was a large number in attendance and great credit is due those in charge for the excellent arrangements made. The Otherdom Club dances have been among the most enjoyable events of the season.

Board on Tour of Inspection

License Commissioners Visited Hotels of the City

The Board of License Commissioners, accompanied by License Inspector Stewart, made an inspection today of the hotels of the city, in order to be in a position to deal intelligently with the granting of the licenses for 1907—08 when the meeting for this purpose is held in a few days. The party consisted of Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman of the Board; Messrs. Jas. Kendry and Harry LeBrun, and Inspector Stewart. They travelled from hotel to hotel in a cab and thoroughly inspected each one. To do this necessitated a lot of climbing of stairs, and the members of the party must have ascended over a half a mile during the afternoon.

While no official opinion could be had, it is understood that the hotels of the city were found in a satisfactory condition and that in all probability there will be no change in the number or location of the licenses for the coming year.

LIVELY RUNAWAY IN MILLBROOK

Saturday night about nine o'clock, says the Millbrook Mirror, Mr. J. L. Fair's team, driven by Mr. Delbert Sanderson, who was returning home from Mr. Fair's, became frightened at some object on the road-side, near the East Quarter Line, throwing the driver out. The horses headed for Millbrook at a break-neck pace, but by the time they reached here they had got over their fright and were easily caught. Friends fearing for Mr. Sanderson's safety, drove out and brought him home and immediately called in a physician. We are pleased to report that Mr Sanderson had no bones broken, but it is almost a miracle that he escaped with his life, as the dash board broke and he fell behind the horses' heels.

One eye is severely cut and he is bruised and cut about the face pretty bad. He is not likely to forget the occurrence as long as he lives. Under skillful medical treatment he is able to be out again, but he will carry as many scars as most soldiers who have fought in many campaigns.

Statements Made Regarding Hon. Mr. Emmerson—Suits to go Ahead

A Moncton, N.B., despatch, says;

Representatives of the three newspapers which, it is said, will be proceeded against by the ex-minister of railways, Hon. H. R. Emmerson, for libel, met in Moncton, and had a conference, at which the matter was talked over. Those present were James H. Crockett, editor of the Fredericton Gleaner; William Dennis, managing director of the Halifax Herald, and T. W. King, of the Toronto World. There will be no retraction statement made in the Gleaner, the newspaper representatives were told. If the case is proceeded with, Mr. Dennis said, it will be the most interesting in the history of Canada, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be the first witness. There will be some five hundred witnesses, Mr. Dennis said, including several from Moncton, Dorchester, Ottawa, Montreal and New York. At the conference, which was held here, it is stated that there was no talk of retraction. Mr. Crockett left for home this morning. Mr. King went last night and Mr. Dennis today. The Gleaner has not yet been served with papers in connection with the suit, but writs have been issued against the Herald and World the latter being the only one yet served. Current rumor here is that the editor of the Gleaner will be proceeded against criminally while civil action will be taken against the other two papers.

Thousands of Women

ARE MADE WELL AND STRONG

Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Rests Upon the Fact that it Really Does Make Sick Women Well.

Thousands upon thousands of Canadian women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Their letters are on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office, and prove this statement to be a fact and not a mere boast.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine, and compared with it all other medicines and treatment for women are experiments.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such widespread results for good?

Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of a century.

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has even approached its success is plainly and positively because there is no other medicine in the world so good for women's ills.

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the female system, positively curing disease and displacements and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures, and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due. If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it will effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), falling, inflammation, ulceration, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration, or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Anyway, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It's free and always helpful.

Plan of Spraying Fruit Trees

Formation of Co-operative Organizations Approved

The Minister of Agriculture for Ontario has, for the past two years, had under consideration plans for further assisting the fruit growers of the Province. Spraying has now become, in producing a superior grade of fruit, the most important operation of the year, and while widely practised in certain sections, has not yet been given the attention that it requires in the apple sections. The advent of the power sprayer is of such recent date that the advantages it gives, especially in the spraying of apple orchards, is not yet appreciated.

For many years the Department of Agriculture has been advocating more and better spraying. Demonstrations in the use of hand and power outfits, and the preparation and application of the most effective mixtures have been given throughout the Province with satisfactory results. It is now felt that such information has been sufficiently diffused and another step forward is proposed.

The Provincial Fruit Growers' Association has within the past three years assisted in organizing a large number of fruit growing associations. One of the aims of these associations has been the co-operative spraying of orchards of their members, and it is now proposed to assist these and kindred organizations in such spraying work. With this aim in view, the Minister of Agriculture has asked the Legislature for a grant of $6,000 to be devoted to the assistance of fruit growers in the purchase and operation of power spraying outfits. Many associations already own and are operating such machines and these will receive the same aid as those organizing during 1907. The conditions under which the grants are available have been made as simple as possible with the hope that a decided stimulus will be given to the proper spraying of orchards during this and coming seasons. Following are the regulations covering the payment of the grants:—

WILL GIVE GRANTS.

A grant of $50 will be made to any five or more farmers who unite to form a fruit growers' association for the purchase and operation of a power spraying outfit during the season of 1907. These associations need not be incorporated to qualify for this grant, though incorporation of co-operative associations should be obtained if the full benefits of co-operation are desired.

Co-operative fruit growing associations owning and operating two or more sprayers will be eligible to draw a grant for each machine operated.

The number of such associations receiving assistance during the present year shall not exceed 160.

At least 25 acres of fruit trees must be thoroughly sprayed during the proper season with each outfit.

A reasonable portion of such spraying must be done on the farms or orchards of each of the parties forming the association.

Such associations before receiving any portion of the grant shall satisfy an inspector of the Department of Agriculture that the above conditions have been complied with and shall make such reports as shall satisfy the Minister of Agriculture.

Associations desirous of participating in this grant must apply to the Department not later than the first day of May.

Man Conspired Against Himself

Strange Act Perpetrated by Simcoe County Farmer

Inspector Rodgers has returned from Barrie and has reported to the Attorney-General's Department, one of the strangest stories that has yet found a place on the official records.

Totten A. Hastings is a young farmer of Essa township, Simcoe county. He has always been highly respected, and is the son of highly respected parents. In January last two of his horses died and the local veterinary thought of acute indigestion. A Barrie veterinary when told of the symptoms, declared the horses had been poisoned with arsenic. Hastings afterwards said that he noticed a paper over the barn door on which was written, "I will call again."

On March 10th he locked up the barn, and the same night according to his story to the detectives, some person broke the lock off the stable and put paris green in the water pails, on three barrels of apples, and in the wheat and oat bins. Hastings claimed that the depredator had taken a canthook from near the house and had pried off the lock. He had tracked the man to the G. T. R. track and back again. On Mar. 20th, he came back again, and this time went in through an opening in the hen-coop. Paris green had again been left in the mangers.

The sequel to the story is interesting. Inspector Rodgers went up on March 23rd. The township was greatly excited over the affair, and Hastings could not name a single man in the neighborhood who might be his enemy. The detective was first made suspicious by the amount of poison scattered around. The apples were coated with it, the pails contained half a pound of it, and mangers were also liberaly supplied. Everywhere the poison seemed to invite attention and the mysterious visitor showed a striking familiarity with the intricacies of the interior of the barn and hen coop. Every clue increased the detective's suspicions that the perpetrator of the deed was close to the family circle.

Inspector Rodgers then discovered that some time previous a steer had wandered onto the Hasting's property. He had killed it, selling three-quarters to a butcher and retaining one quarter for his own use. The owner of the steer discovered where it had disappeared to, and Hastings sent $30 to him in an anonymous letter which had been received by a brother of the man entitled to it, and had not been immediately delivered. Not having heard that the letter had failed to reach its destination and still fearing the consequences, he decided to convince his father that he must sell his farm and leave. According to the confession made to the detective he poisoned his own horses and scattered about other evidences of a conspiracy against himself. Hastings' conscience had evidently given him enough trouble, and he will not be prosecuted. He has issued sale bills and has proposed to leave the vicinity for some place in the far west, when the farm is disposed of.

THE RAILROADS UNPREPARED

There are bitter complaints of the inability of the American railroads to handle the freight that is pressed upon them. Railroad men have many explanations. Some of them say the engine and the car works are unable to fill the orders for rolling stock that have been given them. Others talks of the need of more trackage and better terminal facilities.

It is interesting to observe that the conditions complained of by American shippers are found in other countries. They are found in England. A correspondent of the London Times says: "So inadequate are the resources of some of the English railway companies, that many colleries are losing time, and steel works are being shut down in the Midlands, notwithstanding heavy order books, because the railway companies are unable to move the output from the pits or to supply the furnaces with fuel." Matters are not quite as bad as that in the United States. The officers of the overworked English roads say the locomotive plants cannot provide the additional engines that are needed.

Only a short time ago there was serious traffic congestion on the Italian roads. These roads are mostly operated by the Government, which helps to explain their inability to handle freight satisfactorily, but the French lines, which are operated by private companies, were also unable to meet the demands of the shippers.

In view of all the facts it must be admitted that the men who manage the American railroads are not the only sinners. They seem to have been to a certain extent the victims of conditions which obtain both in Europe and the United States. There as well as here there has been a rapid expansion of manufacturing energy, which has suddenly outrun the carrying capacity of the railroads. That there has been great expansion in this country is proved by the increased imports of materials for use in manufacturing and by the increase in the exports of the finished goods.

In a measure the American railroad men are to blame for not foreseeing the growth of manufacturing which makes freight, and not making arrangements to take care of that freight. They ought to have seen that the productive industry of the country was under a full head of steam. But the men who control the railroad systems of England, France and Italy were blind to what the manufacturers of those countries were doing, and were taken unawares like their American brethren. Perhaps there will be more foresight hereafter on both sides of the Atlantic. — (Chicago Tribune, April 1, 1907.) 2d.

"Democracy of Art" Subject of Lecture by Rev. Dr. Symonds

At St. John's School House Yesterday Afternoon Under the Auspices of the Woman's Art Association.

Most interesting and instructive was the address given yesterday afternoon in St. John's school room by Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, before the Women's Art Association. His subject was the Democracy of Art, and a large number of the members were present and thoroughly enjoyed the rare treat. Mr. D. Hughes-Charles occupied the chair and in a few well chosen words introduced the speaker. He felt it a great pleasure to be present to hear Dr. Symonds' address and was sure all would enjoy it. He then called on Dr. Symonds.

Dr. Symonds was heartily applauded as he rose to speak. He said that he always felt it a great pleasure to address a Peterborough audience. In commencing his address on "The Democracy of Art," he said he was not an authority on the subject of art, but an humble disciple at its shrine. He also had addressed a branch of the Woman's Art Association in Montreal. He had been approached by some members of the Peterborough Association and asked to speak to them, but he felt probably he was addressing an audience who knew more about art than he did. In speaking to the Montreal branch he treated art as regards common people, that is, among the masses. "We must bear in mind," said the speaker, "that there are few people who can judge a picture, but still the love of art is a universal love. Therefore it ought to be cultivated. Among the barbarous and savage tribes there is a greater love for art than among more civilized people. The Indian tepees are artistically decorated. The Indians are also fond of bright colors which lend attractiveness. From the small, dirty dingy houses up to the better furnished ones you will find there is a desire for art. In the homes of the masses you will see an attempt to decorate the home if only with an almanac or calendar. A vast number of people have the most expensive pictures, but many of them are most excruciating in taste.

It is incumbent on the Woman's Art Association to become missionaries in this work. In comparing the present age with the latter part of the middle ages one would see there was a greater appreciation of art then than now. It was due to the fact that religion was closely allied to art. The church was the focus of the artist as it were. In the churches and buildings of Florence and Rome were exhibitions of the most beautiful works of sculpture and paintings, and the ordinary people attending the churches saw these works and were impressed by them.

The question is whether this association can accomplish the same thing or not. Contrasting our churches with those of Florence they lack in decoration. There are many who object to pictures in churches. Dr. Symonds said he thought that it was time that these prejudices were removed, and looking at it from a common sense point of view it would be an education to have pictures in churches and public buildings. The speaker cautioned the Association not to try to do great things all at once. The missionary work of cultivating art among the ordinary people was not pleasant. There would be some who were not interested. They would have to contend with ridicule. Every one has a certain taste for art of some particular kind. There is no class so well adapted to the work of the cultivation and elevation of art as the Woman's Art Association. There is a field open at once in the school buildings. Some schools are beautifully constructed, but suitable pictures for the walls are absent. Take one school said the speaker, and do some work in the line of art with it. Also have three or four instructive talks on the subject of art given in the schools. In conclusion Dr. Symonds said it would not be just a temporary satisfaction to the members, but it would be for the advancement of their own high ideals and also those of others.

Mr. Hughes-Charles conveyed the thanks of the Association to Dr. Symonds for his beautiful and edifying address. He wished the city fathers could have heard the address, as some of the public buildings in this city were the plainest and ugliest of any city he had ever seen.

Mr. Charles also added a few words of regret on behalf of the Association that Miss Bertram, one of their members, was leaving the city. Miss Bertram was the first president of the Association and did much to further its interests. Mr. Charles then presented Miss Bertram with a book on "Old English China" from the officers and a few friends of the associations. Miss Morrow also presented her with a beautiful bouqet of carnations.

The ladies then adjourned to another room where tea was served.

Peterborough Historical Society's Annual Meeting

Officers Were Elected and Committees Appointed—Mr. T. A. S. Hay is the New President—Society Has a Cash Balance of $170.

There was a good attendance at the adjourned annual meeting of the Peterborough Historical Society last night. The gathering was held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., through the kindness of Mr. Williamson, the secretary.

The newly elected secretary read the yearly reports of the secretary, the treasurer, and the auditor, and these were adopted. The treasurer's financial statement showed a balance on hand of nearly $170. This is indeed very encouraging and especially so when it is remembered that the past year has been a very active one.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The next business taken up was the election of officers, which resulted as follows;

Hon. Pres., Col. H. C. Rogers.

Pres., Mr. T. A. S. Hay.

Vice Presidents, Richard Hall, Dr Burnham and J. E. Hodgson.

Sec.-Treas., Mr. T. J. Wallace.

Executive Committee, Messrs. J. H. Burnham, D. Spence, W. J. Kelly, J. Coyle Brown, F. J. Jamieson M. McDonald and Rev. Canon Davidson.

Museum Committee, Messrs. E. Elcome, J. E. Hodgson and T. J. Wallace.

On motion unanimously carried a grant of $5 was made to the Y.M.C.A. for the use of its parlors for meeting purposes.

REPAIR MUSEUM.

During the past few years the museum building has got out of repair. The roof is not as tight as it should be, and the verandah is almost gone entirely. It was therefore decided to request the executors of the Nicholls estate, to make the necessary repairs. The verandah will be renewed with one of concrete.

It was moved, seconded and carried, that in view of the valuable services tendered to the Society, that Mrs. Birdsall who for five years was vice president, be elected an honorary member.

A committee was appointed to make a canvas of all the members for their annual subscription and to solicit new members.

The meeting then adjourned.

Canadian Grocer Contains Interesting Items From Here

Comments on Question of Butchers Going Into the Grocery Business—Cheese Factories Getting Busy—Independent Telephones.

All the cheese factories in this district are actively engaged in preparing for the opening of the cheese making season. The season is later here than it is in the west, and will not open until the last week in April. The first meeting of the cheese board will be held on the 15th of May, although it is not expected that the first lot will be very heavy as the dairy cows are all late in coming in, and the supply of milk is short. But the cheese should be very much better than last year, in fact it should be among the best produced in the province. The farmers are taking a great interest in the cow testing associations and are establishing cool curing rooms at the factories and at the dairies. The cheese makers are also up against the labor proposition, and the majority are putting in agitators for stirring the milk. Machinery is also being adopted wherever it is possible.

In several cities, London especially, the grocers are taking a very active interest in the agitation for an independent telephone service. The grocers here wish them every success. Peterborough is one of very few cities enjoying competition in telephones. For the past year and a half, the Canadian Machine Telephone Company has had its system in operation and it is proving most satisfactory. It is, however, still in its experimental stages, and as soon as the company gets its new factory erected for manufacturing its apparatus, the present system will be greatly improved. However, there are nearly 275 'phones in use in the city. The result of the competition is that the Bell Telephone Company has made a wonderful improvement in its service here. An up-to-date apparatus was put in at the central, more girls put on, and the system was improved in every respect. As a matter of fact, Peterborough has the best local and long distance telephone services in Canada, bar none. This is the direct result of competition.

The retail butchers have recently become very progressive. They are not satisfied with the keen competition which has always existed in their own trade. They are not even satisfied with the natural consumption of meat, but they are vieing with one another, to see who can establish the most up-to-date, handsome and attractive stores. Thousands of dollars have been spent by the landlords and tenants with the result that Peterborough can boast of butcher shops the equal of any in the province. This was not enough; trade was not coming fast enough to pay interest and sinking fund on the money invested. A new scheme had to be introduced, and now four of the butchers are carrying canned goods, pickles, cheese, teas and coffees. They are cutting in on the grocery business in their efforts to draw all the butcher business to themselves. One firm conducted a "pink tea" for several days before Easter, and sold teas, coffees and canned goods at cost. Another butcher advertised extensively that he would give away a pound of the best tea with every purchase of meat, amounting to a certain sum. He also sold canned goods at cost. These butchers do not handle second rate goods either. They have the very best, and they are disposing of a large quantity, so much in fact that the grocers feel the effect already. The butchers do not make anything on the grocery business and they don't expect to. They are also selling meat at very low prices and better meat cannot be purchased any place. The best steaks and roasts sell for 12 1-2 cts. and all other meats in proportion. Whether they are making anything or not is hard to say. The grocers do not care, but they do care about the inroads that are being made into their business.

This is another strong reason why the Peterborough grocers should be banded together. At the present time they are able to do absolutely nothing towards meeting this competition. All the sympathy they get is from their own individual selves. But had the grocers a good, active organization they would soon put a stop to the butchers' overzealousness. The grocers could retaliate by offering fresh meats of all kinds at cost or below cost. They could sell canned goods, teas, etc., at and below cost. They would not feel the loss nearly as much as the butchers.

There is no kick against the butchers handling groceries if they would sell them at a reasonable profit. Still this and a few more knocks may wake the grocers up and they will see the necessity and great benefits of organization in an entirely new fight.

Owes Cure to Zam-Buk

Prominent Manager's Telling Testimony

Mr. D. R. Gourlay, advertising manager for the well known piano firm of Gourlay, Winter & Leeming, Toronto and Winnipeg, is amongst the prominent men and women who testify to Zam-Buk's great curative power. He writes to the Company as follows;—

"Gentlemen: "I have pleasure in stating that upon the recommendation of a relative, I purchased a box of your remedy, Zam-Buk, and by a few applications entirely cured a severe sprain of the back. While not given to indiscriminate use of, or belief in, patent medicines I can conscientiously recommend Zam-Buk.

"Sincerely yours,
"(Signed) D. R. Gourlay."

That is just where Zam-Buk proves its superiority! It is treated by men and women who have tried it, as altogether different to ordinary preparations. Doctors, hospital nurses, trainers, matrons of convalescent homes—all give Zam-Buk a good word; and better still, they use it. Zam-Buk is as good for muscular stiffness, sprains, rheumatism and sciatica as it is for skin troubles. Baseball players and athletes in general find it invaluable. For spring eruptions, pustules, scalp sores, itch, eczema, ulcers, boils, abscesses, blood poison, cuts, burns, bruises and abrasions, it is a speedy cure. Takes the soreness out of wounds almost instantly and kills all disease germs, thus preventing festering and inflammation. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes for $2.50. Send 1 cent stamp for trial box.

Lively Scrap at Havelock

Assyrian Fined for Fighting—Old Resident Dead—Other Interesting Notes

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 11th.—Mike Salome an Assyrian, who resides at the west end of the town on Sunday afternoon, visited the C.P.R. boarding car, in the yard with the idea of settling an old grudge he had against Samuel Beatrice, and on arriving there, proceeded to settle same, while Beatrice defended himself. Although they used nothing but their fists, Beatrice was so marked up by the encounter, that he laid a complaint before Magistrate Joyce on Monday, and on Tuesday the trial came off in the town hall, when Salome was fined $1.50 for assault, and Beatrice was fined $2.00 for breaking the Sabbath.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Mrs. Jane Hardy, relict of the late Edward Hardy, an aged lady, 61 years of age, died after a lingering illness at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Jos. Harrison, Concession street, on Monday.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon, to the Maple Grove Cemetery, services having first been held at the house at two o'clock.

Messrs. Lancaster and Dineen attended the hop in Hastings on Wednesday night, given by the young people of that town.

We regret to hear of the illness of Mrs. Jos. Frost.

VESTRY MEETING.

The annual vestry meeting of St. John's church, which was postponed from Friday last, was held on Monday evening in the basement of the church. Mr. Edward Chapman, rector's warden, was re-appointed to that office. Mr C. A Ghent was elected people's warden, in place of Mr. Q. Barlow, who resigned.

The following officials were also elected,—

Vestry Clerk—T. P. Lancaster.

Auditors—Messrs. J. Bryans and Dr Crawford.

Sidesmen—Messrs. Richmond, Parrett, Black, Doiricott, Falkner, and Dr. Crawford.

Delegate to Synod—Mr. Ghent.

Finance Committee — Messrs. Lancaster, Chapman, Ghent, Webb and Doiricott.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, reeve of the village, will leave on Monday next for Vancouver, B. C., where he intends visiting for some time.

Mrs. Wm. Vance has returned from visiting relatives in town.

Mr. W. J. McBurney spent Sunday last in Peterborough.

Messrs. Smith, Bowen, Cole, Kippy and McGinnis, of Cordova, and P. McCann, of town, have left for Cobalt.

Mr. E. J. Perry of Belmont, has been placed in the County House of Refuge, at Lakefield.

Messrs. Geo. and Jas. Toms of Belmont, have obtained situations in the C.P.R. at North Bay, and left for that place this week.

Mr. W. Patterson spent Sunday in Peterborough.

LORD'S DAY ACT.

The Lord's Day Act was once more observed in Havelock C.P.R. circles on Sunday last, when all the employees, but those necessary, ceased from work. The reason given for work not being stopped every Sunday, is that the yards become filled with cars on one Sunday, and traffic is so congested that it is necessary to run trains the following Sunday so as to get the yard cleared. If the Havelock Division ceases work and the Toronto Division does not, then the cars going west are stopped in Havelock, while Toronto continues to send more in, and thus the yard becomes so stacked with cars that they are unable to get things in working order on Monday. If all divisions would cease from work on Sunday it would be much more easy to get things working on Monday.

Will try to Quash Local Option By-law

The Norwood Register says:—We understand that proceedings are being taken to have the Local Option by-law passed by the township of Asphodel quashed. The grounds upon which the application is to be made is that one of the polling places was not held in the place appointed and that the poll was held outside of the municipality. It is also claimed that there were irregularities in connection with the publication of the by-law.

NOT AN HONEST POLICY

Salesmen Who Try to Deceive Their Customers May be Caught.

It has become a common habit with the ready-made clothiers to advise customers that "this is semi-ready make—we can finish the garment to measure."

This play on words is a clear infringement of the "Semi-ready" trade mark, for no garment can be semi-ready except a Semi-ready. The fine cloth, and the physique type system are exclusive to Semi-ready, and no man can be cheated of an honest desire to get what he asks for if he looks for the silk label marked Semi-ready. It is sewn on the pocket of every genuine garment.

The Park Board adjourned to meet again on Wednesday, April 24th, when they will definitely decide what improvements they will make.

THE LABOR DISPUTES

It may be that the act for the prevention of strikes would have been more effective if machinery for enforcement by the Dominion Labor Department had been provided, but it is quite possible that in practice it may become quickly and powerfully operative as it stands. Certainly there can be no reason to complain of delay in the case of either the Nova Scotia strike or the Alberta lock-out.

In both cases the Labor Department was in communication with parties to the differences. In the Nova Scotia case the men went back to work within a few hours after they had been apprised by the department of the fact that they were subject to the penalties imposed by the act. In the meantime the company had forwarded an application for the appointment of an investigation board.

It is to be remembered that the men had removed their own objection to going back to work by bringing seven formerly objectionable workmen into the union, but in any event the act had begun to work.

In the Alberta case the men were locked out and under the impression that the terms of the act should be enforced against their employers by the Labor Department, they delayed for a few days their application for an investigation board.

It is plain that the act would be the better for a provision for direct enforcement by the Federal authority, but pending the amendment of the measure to that end, the Labor Department should be able to devise machinery by which it could be called into operation without delay and by either the parties or the local authorities.—Ottawa Journal.

THE CIGARETTE EVIL

Notwithstanding the anti-cigarette campaign, the consumption of cigarettes is rapidly increasing, and the habit, according to dealers, is spreading among women. "High society" in Washington—meaning the women of the smart set, diplomatic, native, political and visiting—is said to be surrounded by a thin blue cloud of cigarette smoke. They make nothing of it. The young woman who does not enjoy a cigarette is more likely to be the exception than the rule, 'tis said. Whether the habit has been acquired from foreigners or is a native outgrowth of the desire for novelty, and new forms of dissipation, none knows, but it is acquiring new devotees. This does not apply to the masses of women, of course.

"There is hardly any likelihood of the American women as a whole becoming a race of smokers," says the New York Commercial. "The weed is like the ballot—it doesn't 'take' with all. For women of much leisure, however, it is not unlikely that the cigarette has a piquant charm. It can hardly be regarded as seriously injurious, and by many it is not looked upon as an offence, if employed in limited measure. Certain circles here in New York are quite familiar with its use. The point is that women are smoking more publicly than formerly. But, astonishing as the spectacle appears to man at first, he soon accustoms himself to it, and the day may come when the American woman may smoke the cigarette in company with her husband, in hotels, clubs, and at public resorts with as much freedom as does her sister already in European countries. The vast majority of us, however, will not say 'speed the day.'"

PEN POINTS

A Toronto woman is suing her husband who lives in Hamilton, for alimony. She says that he has given her nothing in eight months except four two cent stamps. In other words the man was not of the right stamp.

Five thousand dollars has been set aside to supply the rural schools with Union Jacks. And the grand old flag will achieve its greatest victory if it helps teachers to storm the school board for more salary.—Toronto Star

---

Who are the men who voted for day labor in connection with work on the city sewers. The Trades and Labor Council wants to tender these gentlemen and the Mayor who stood out boldly for the system a hearty vote of thanks.

Thus do grave yards give way to the march of progress, and what was formerly the resting place of the departed is being converted into a site for one of the finest institutions of learning that any city possesses. The hand of man and the ruthless ploughshare can change the whole face of mother earth.

Miss Sadie Holmes has been created a dentist by special act of the Ontario Legislature and is permitted to practice her profession in Woodstock. The reason of this lady being created a dentist without passing the necessary examinations is said to be due to her pull—a pull so strong a great many members simply had to open their mouths and speak up in her behalf.

The Trades and Labor Council is after the Board of Education and believes that all committee meetings of the Board should be open. The Trades Council is right in its stand and the agitation should be kept up. Of course some of the trustees talk lightly and even boastfully of their closed door proceedings just now, because election day is a long way off—but the careless attitude assumed will be vastly different in a few months.

The paperhanger is now the most popular individual in the community and is being wooed by widows, spinsters and ancient and honorable dames of high and low degree, and they will want him at once. If he wasn't usually a very modest man, the paperhanger would become vain. He will get more leap year proposals than all the other fellows in town put together. But his engagements are short and he can make a breach of promise at any time.

The Penny Bank scheme will be adopted in Port Hope. On March 27th the Public School Board passed the following resolution; "That this Board approves of and sanctions the inauguration of a Penny Bank in connection with the Public schools of Port Hope, and the head master, Mr. A. A. Jordan, is hereby directed to order requisite supplies for carrying on the same and first deposits shall be received during the second week in April. Deposits shall be made in the Bank of Toronto branch in Port Hope."

That was a rousing speech delivered in the Commons on Wednesday last by Hon. George E. Foster. He denounced the report of the commission as a political document, pure and simple, which bid facts favorable to opponents of the Government and tended to create false impressions with the public. It charged him with having received bribes in connection with the transaction of the business of the Union Trust Company and had unfairly suppressed all extenuating circumstances, including his own denial under oath of the charges levelled against him. In conclusion, Mr Foster protested against such an unfair report, and appealed to the House to order the expunging of such outrageous findings from a document which otherwise would be a permanent record. If allowed to remain in its present form it might be a precedent for damaging the reputation of any member of Parliament.

Learn to be thorough—correctness is a great achievement.—One of the universal faults is a lack of thoroughness. From the boy who copies his arithmetic lesson from a schoolmate's paper to the old man who leaves ambiguities in his will for the heirs to quibble over, there is a lack of thoroughness in nearly every human transaction. The unwritten motto of the average person is, "To seem and not to be." Many people are willing to let well enough alone — and they have a modest standard of what constitutes "well enough." It is because of the wide prevalence of this fault that the really thorough man both does and does not get the credit that is due him. He usually does not get it when his work is superficially judged by those who are themselves not thorough. But he does get it when his work is put to the test or fairly compared. And, best of all, he has the satisfaction of knowing for himself that he has done his duty, and therefore has gained a point of self-discipline which he can never really lose. The man who aspires to rise above the average in any line of endeavor should ponder well this point: The average person is not thorough, and therefore, even a little thoroughness should surpass him. This should inspire the ambitious man to be thorough. And he will soon find out that thoroughness practically measures the difference between the average and the highly successful man.

Cannot Handle Influx From South

Owing to the Traffic Blockade, Intending Immigrants are Held in Check

A Minneapolis despatch says.—Twin City railroads handling the immigration movement towards Canada are up in the air to-day over a refusal on the part of the Canadian Northern to receive any further shipments of settlers effects.

Canadian Northern points out the fact that it is just now in the midst of a traffic blockade. The report, given out at St. Paul, is in effect that the blockade is so serious that the railway company is supplying food for stock which is held up, as well as providing sufficient for immigrants who insist on remaining with cars which contain their goods.

From 1200 to 1500 cars loaded with this kind of property are said to be tied up on the lines west of Emmerson and St. Vincent. So great has been the rush of settlers northwards that the Canadian Northern officials say that they find themselves completely unable to cope with the movement and admit their service is sadly demoralized.

The Minnesota Railroad Commission has been flooded with appeals for assistance.

Entertainment Much Enjoyed

English Artists Scored Great Success at St. Peter's Hall Last Night

Many concerts that brought deep pleasure to those in attendance have been held in Peterborough, but probably none in recent years has been the source of so much entertainment as the one given under the auspices of Mrs. W. J. Morrow, Peterborough's brilliant musician, in St. Peter's hall last night. There was a large audience, that included in its members many of the elite of the city and that they enjoyed the splendid programme, was evidenced in many ways.

The major portion of the programme was supplied by Mr. Gilbert Shorter, the eminent English reciter and elocutionist; Madame Lillian Adams, pianiste and elocutionist, and little Beryl Adams, the wonderful child artist. Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. (Dr.) Archer, of Port Perry, Miss Mollie Young, Miss Levina Hallihan and Mr. John King of Peterborough, also contributed to the programme.

As a reciter and dramatist, Mr. Shorter's equal has never been heard in Peterborough. His numbers included both dramatic and humorous selections and it was in the former that he excelled, although his humorous sketches were of a high order of merit. So good were all his numbers that it would be hard to particularize.

In "King Robert of Sicily," by Longfellow, although handicapped by the loss of the costume he usually wears, Mr. Shorter gave a most dramatic and powerful interpretation of those strong lines. Madame Adams accompanied him in most appropriate music.

Madame Lillian Adams, in her piano solo displayed the possession of a sympathetic touch, coupled with finished execution. She is a brilliant pianiste, and her numbers were received with great enthusiasm.

Little Beryl, Mrs. Adams' daughter, showed remarkable ability for a child of her tender years. She is a pretty youngster, with a winsome manner, and her recitations were among the best things on the programme. She inherits dramatic ability, both from her father and mother, her father being Mr. Stanley Adams, the celebrated English baritone.

Mr. Shorter, Madame Adams and little Beryl, appeared in several sketches that were presented in a most delightful manner and showed the three persons taking part therein, to be artists of great ability.

Mrs. (Dr.) Archer, was heard in two vocal numbers, "The Ship That Sailed Into the Sun," from Lehmann's Daisy Chain, and "Happy Song" by Del Riego. She has a rich contralto voice and was heard with great pleasure.

Miss Mollie Young tendered a charming vocal number in which her beautiful mezzo soprano voice was heard to excellent advantage.

Miss Levina Hallihan, always a favorite with Peterborough audiences sang "The Jewel Song" from Faust, a number in which her clear, bell-like voice was heard with deep enjoyment.

"Down in the Mine" was sung by Mr. John King, whose fine bass voice was well suited for this excellent number. An encore was insisted upon and Mr King gave that pleasing song, "Open Thy Lattice." It was one of the best numbers on the programme.

The accompaniments were played by Mrs. Morrow whose work in this connection deserves every praise. As a pianiste, Mrs. Morrow has few superiors, in fact not any in Canada.

Rev. Father McColl, before the last part of the programme was put on, addressed the audience, thanking them, in Mrs. Morrow's name, for their large attendance. He called attention to the new hall and assured those present that all entertainments held in this hall would be of equally high character. The reverend gentleman also thanked Mr. Shorter and Madame Adams for their enjoyable entertainment, and paid a high tribute to the ability of little Beryl, whom he characterized as "a little wonder."

The concert was under the patronage of the following ladies, nearly all of whom were present last night: Mesdames (Hon.) J. R. Stratton, O'Sullivan, W. J. Hopwood, R. R. Hall, R. Elliott, Alex Grant, Standly Pentland, (Rev.) J. G. Potter, R. G. Leech, T. H. G. Denne, D. O'Connell, J. Maloney, (Dr.) McNulty, Jas. Lynch, T. F. Matthews, M. LeBrun, H. Phelan, R. A. Morrow, B. Morrow, Dean, Aaron Cox, J. Crane, R. Neill, R. F. McWilliams, W. Leech, Jas. Kendry, R. S. Davidson.

Mrs. Morrow deserves the thanks of the Peterborough public for bringing Mr. Shorter, Madame Adams and Little Beryl to the city. The concert was a rare treat and it is to be hoped that others of equal merit can be arranged.

Wrestling Bout on the Street

Two Men Had Dispute in Reference to Moving

A lively wrestling bout took place on Hunter street east, yesterday afternoon. The participants were two Englishmen. As a result, one of them had a face badly cut and smeared with blood. He looked as though he had come through a threshing machine. It appears that one of the men was moving to another part of the city and he wanted some assistance. He, therefore, went to an hotel and found a man who volunteered to help him carry his stove down stairs, on condition that he be given a glass of beer. Everything went lovely, and the fellow agreed to help the mover put up the stove in the new home for another glass of beer. It seems that when the two men came down to the hotel to settle up, the man who volunteered his services, realized they were worth more than two glasses of beer, and demanded twenty-five cents. This was not given him. After a rather heated argument they got out on the street and started in with their fists. Both were under the influence of liquor, and the wrestling bout attracted quite a crowd, who seemed to enjoy the amusement provided.

Don't forget the contest at the Roller Rink this evening for ladies and gentlemen skating in couples.

CRICKET CLUB MEETS TO-NIGHT

A meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club will be held at the Y.M.C.A. tonight at eight o'clock and among the business to be transacted, is the election of a new secretary, Mr. E. H. Wood, who was appointed to that position, having resigned. There is also some other business to dispose of and it is requested that all the members be present.

The Club has excellent prospects for a most successful season. The necessary equipment has been ordered from a Toronto firm and practice will be commenced just as soon as the weather permits.

Charlie Carr, formerly with Toronto, was the only member of the Indianapolis team who was fined last season. He drew a penalty of $50 for hurdling the grand stand to take a punch at a spectator who had insulted him.

Bill Hallman, the Phillies' old second baseman, is playing the role of "Ed Utter" in "The Village Organist," and playing it well, too.

Jimmy Casey will be 35 years old next March. The midget has been playing ball for 14 years.

Some pitchers go too often to the box

They ought to change it from 'Cy' to 'Caesar'. Young, Boston's veteran pitcher, has scorned the manager's crown which Magnate Taylor endeavored to stick upon his shoulders, saying that he expects to have a fine year pitching, and doesn't want any other responsibility.

"He is willing and goes after everything," is the hackneyed spring description that covers a multitude of young blood shortcomings.

No Verdict in Thaw Case; Jury Out Over 45 Hours

New York, April 12, 2.35 p.m.—Up to half past two o'clock this afternoon there was nothing new in the Thaw trial. In New York city there was a little speculation as to how the jury would decide and there were some who made wagers on the result. But so far there has not been the slightest intimation of what is going on within the brains of the twelve men.

Shortly after eleven o'clock to-day the jury entered the court room and asked to see Judge Fitzgerald. At twelve o'clock a recess for one hour was taken.

Up to two o'clock the jury has been out for forty-five hours. There is every hope however, that a unanimous decision will be arrived at.

Retail Merchants to Hold Banquet in Near Future

Object is to Bring the Trade Closer Together—Outside Speakers to be Present—Officers to be Elected by Ballot—Good Programme Will be Provided.

A new life seems to be springing up in the Retail Merchants Association. The men at the head of the stores are getting together more and talking over business matters and there was a lot of interest displayed at the meeting last night. Several of the members of that Association have been considering the matter of holding a sort of revival. It has been proposed to have a big banquet to which every retail merchant in the city will be invited. Tickets will be sold and preparations made for 150 to 200 guests. This is the number that should be present. The eating part of the evening will not be the main feature by any means. There will be a good programme including one or two outside speakers, who will be asked to deliver an address on questions of the utmost interest to every retail merchant in the province. These speakers will be from the headquarters of the Retail Merchants Association and they will be men who have made a thorough study of such matters.

The movement appears to be an ideal one. It is time the retail trade stood together and fought for their rights, and there is no better way of getting them together than by a banquet. It is also proposed to make the election of officers for the year one of the features of the gathering. The executive committee might form itself into a nominating committee and select two or three names of men who would be good officers in the different positions and then give a vote by ballot on each one. This would be very interesting and good active officers would likely be selected.

As yet the banquet idea has not taken actual form, but it is expected that it will before long.

Improvements to City Hall Building to be Considered

Property Committee in Session This Afternoon—City Officials All on the Ground Floor—Have Started to Frame the Garbage By-law.

All the members of the Property Committee were present at the meeting this afternoon. The two chief matters to come up were the garbage system and the new fire hall. It is now time for the committee to start framing the by-law for the collecting of all garbage in the city. The committee first proposes to communicate with several other cities where such a system is in force and get all the information possible along those lines. Then a small committee of two or three members will be appointed to select the best features and adopt them to suit local conditions. In this way the work can be done more easily and the by-law will be ready to operate very much sooner.

Then the committee will have to decide very soon on the alterations to the old fire hall. Mr. Fred Darcy has made application for the use of it as an automobile station not a restaurant, as previously announced. But it is hardly likely that the committee would consider this proposition, as it is thought that it would be more valuable as municipal offices. The tax collector, city engineer, plumbing inspector, sanitary inspector and other officials will all be brought together. This would also leave a whole flat upstairs for office purposes, to rent or for lodge room.

It is also likely that the committee room will be considerably enlarged to accommodate the deputations which frequently wait upon the council. The hose tower at the back will be torn down and the whole place thoroughly fumigated. This will require a long time, but it will have to be done. Then the committee, when it is making the changes should not forget the stairway leading from the street to the Council Chamber. These stairs have been a serious drawback to the Council Chamber, and they are not at all in keeping with the dignity of the building. It would also be well to refurnish the city hall. The old benches for the accommodation of the public are relics of the early days when great pine forests stood on the hills surrounding the little village known as "Scott's Plains." a hardwood floor should also be put in, and the place made to look respectable in keeping with the city.

It will be many years before a city hall will be built here, and now that the council will have to spend considerable money in remodelling the old fire hall, a few extra thousand dollars may as well be added to fix up the entire building.

Box and Overhanging Sign By-laws Are Unreasonable

Retail Merchants Will Wait Upon Council Monday Night and Present Their Views Committee Appointed Last Night.

The most interesting meeting the Retail Merchants Association has held in a long time was the one last night. It was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors and a large number of business men were present.

The chief result of the meeting was to condemn the new sign bylaw, and the box bylaw, as they now stand. The retail merchants are in sympathy with the objects of both bylaws, and would do all in their power to have them enforced. But as they stand at the present time, they are unfair, and as they are being enforced, are unreasonable.

Several merchants expressed their opinions and many remarks were made in reference to the unbusiness-like manner the two bylaws were carried out. In the first place the old sign bylaw, did away with all overhanging signs. It was first passed seventeen or eighteen years ago, when nearly every merchant had great big signs, stretching right across the walk. These were certainly very dangerous, but were all taken down, after a hard fight. Since then no trouble has been experienced, until some one started erecting illuminated signs, extending five or more feet over the walk. Then the council got busy again and passed a new bylaw, which means that nearly every sign in the city has to come down, unless it is illuminated.

One merchant pointed out that nearly all these illuminated signs were used by hotels, cigar stores and billiard rooms. He strongly objected to all the retail merchants being forced to live up to a hard and fast rule, just to allow these places of business a little advantage. He also pointed out that the retail merchants could use bill boards, four feet by seven feet. These can be placed against the telegraph or telephone poles in front of their stores, and there is no bylaw to prevent it.

The Association decided to ask the Council to allow the old bylaw to stand.

BOX BYLAW.

The next question taken up was the consideration of the new box bylaw. This is a good act in principal but it goes too far. The merchants claim they cannot always get their goods in by twelve o'clock, and they cannot always arrange to have a full stock for Saturday.

Mr. W. Buller, manager of the Fuel & Cartage Co. was present and was asked his opinion of the bylaw. He said that his company was completely non-plussed. They had made every effort to deliver the goods, to the merchants on time, but frequently it was impossible. They cannot regulate the arrival of trains, neither can they regulate the volume of business.

The members of the Association all had their own opinions, and they unanimously decided to ask the council to extend the time from twelve o'clock to three o'clock every day, except Saturday, and until ten o'clock Saturday morning.

The following committee was appointed to wait upon the City Council on Monday night, and lay before them the views of the Retail Merchants Association.—Messrs. E. F. Mason, W. E. Conway, A. W. Cressman, Jas. Connal, R. Fair, R. M. Roy, R. A. Dutton, Jos. Maher, Walter Oke, J. O'Brien, R. G. Kingan, Minicolo Bros., W. Buller.

The meeting then adjourned.

Pill Pounders at Festive Board

Entertained to a Jolly Banquet by Mr. John Nugent

There was a jolly gathering at Hooper's Palm Gardens last night when the Pill Pounders were entertained by Mr John Nugent. As has been recently announced, Mr. Nugent is retiring from business and did not wish to step down without showing in some way his appreciation of the worth of the drug clerks of the city, and the pleasant relations that have always existed between himself and "the boys," as he referred to them last night. Last night's banquet was the means taken to give expression to these feelings, and a delightful event it proved. Covers were laid for sixteen and a splendid menu was provided by Mr. Hooper. Everything was served up to the King's taste, and everything was done full justice to. After the tables had been relieved of their load of good things, a toast list was honored Mr. R. Davidson acting as chairman, and Mr. Nugent occupying a seat of honor at the head of the table. The chairman proposed the toast to the King in fitting language, and it was responded to in the usual way, by the singing of the National Anthem.

"Our Host" was proposed by Mr A. Mann, who expressed the sentiments of the Pill Pounders when he referred to the sterling worth of Mr. Nugent and the great respect the boys had for him. Mr. Nugent made an appropriate reply in which he alluded to the large place the interests of the drug clerk had in his heart. He esteemed every one of them and had found in their ranks some of the best young men that it had been his privilege to meet. Although retiring from business he would continue to take an active interest in the welfare of the Pill Pounders, and he hoped that in their athletic pastimes, in their social gatherings, and in their business life, they would have even more success than in the past. Mr. Nugent, who is honorary president of the Pill Pounders, was given a hearty ovation, and his speech was received with cheers.

"The Joint Professions," having reference to the doctors and druggists was proposed in a neat speech by Mr. B. K. Huston, and replied to by Dr. E. V. Frederick, who referred to the many ways in which the two professions were linked, and the mutual interests that connected them.

The "Pill Pounders" was proposed by Mr. Max Yelland and responded to by Mr. Norman Lawson, who made one of the brightest speeches of the evening.

"The Ladies" were duly honored, the toast to the fair sex being proposed by Mr. R. Quinn.

Mr Gordon Fitzgerald proposed the toast to the "Press" which was responded to by the representatives present.

First Grouping of the Teams

Local Intermediates Placed With Two Toronto Teams

The preliminary grouping of the clubs in the C.L.A. was made at a meeting of the District Committee in Toronto last night. Mr. Ambrose Regah, of Peterborough, who is a member of the council being among those in attendance. The Peterborough Intermediates were placed in a group with the Young Torontos and the North End Athletic clubs of Toronto, and the Peterborough Shamrock juniors, in a group with Oshawa, Port Hope, Lindsay, Markham, Cannington and Uxbridge. The Intermediates are in district No. 12, while the district in which the Shamrocks are grouped is No. 10.

Some of the other intermediate drafts of interest here are as follows:

District No. 11.—Maitlands of Toronto, Beaverton, Newmarket, Orillia, Bradford.

District No. 13.—Lindsay, Cannington, Markham, Uxbridge, Stouffville.

District No. 14.—Port Hope, Havelock Campbellford.

This list is a preliminary draft, and for the next two weeks Secretary Hall will be open to suggestions for changes from the clubs concerned. The committee will meet again on April 26 to consider the suggestions and make the draft final.

The senior series will consist of the Iroquois of Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford and Buffalo, and the schedule was drawn up last night. St. Catharines were not represented at the meeting and were left out in drawing up the schedule.

It is likely that there will be some changes in the group in which the Peterborough Intermediates have been placed. These clubs are hardly enough in a group but still the draft made last night is considered fairly satisfactory here.

George Partlo, a respected resident of Ingersoll, is dead.

THE BISLEY TEAM

Sail on Empress of Ireland June 14 From Montreal

The Bisley team will sail from Montreal on June 14th on the C.P.R. Steamer Empress of Ireland. This was arranged at the meeting of the executive of the D.R.A. held at the office of the association last night, says the Ottawa Citizen.

Col. Tilton, Lt.-Col Sherwood, C. M. G., Lt.-Col. Ibbotson of Montreal and Lt.-Col. Macdonald of Toronto, were appointed the programme committee of the executive for this year.

Col. Tilton presided, and those present were Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., Col. D. A. Macdonald, Lt. Col. W. P. Anderson, Lt.-Col. A. P. Sherwood, Major Helmer, Major Winter, secretary, and Capt. J. E. Hutcheson.

HOCKEY

PROUD OF THE CHAMPS.

A meeting of the hockey testimonial committee was held yesterday in the City Hall, says the Stratford Herald, to forward the arrangements for the testimonials. Mayor Gordon presided. The details as to the proposed gifts were thoroughly discussed and as a result the sub-committee, consisting of Aldermen Harding and Kenner, and Mr. H. M. Patterson were empowered to proceed finally with the purchase of the articles to be presented. The date of the presentation, which had been fixed for April 19th, may require to be altered owing to the time required for securing the gifts, their suitable engraving, etc. Indeed it is very probable that the presentation will have to be deferred a few days past that date.

FOOTBALL

QUAKERS PRACTICE.

The Quakers held a short practice on Central park last evening. About fifteen players took part including new comers who have a good knowledge of the game. Notwithstanding the fact that the club will be without the services of several of last year's line up, there is sufficient material in town to form a team capable of winning the Midland championship again.

From now on the ball will be on the park every evening with a general practice on Saturday's at 2.30, and the executive hope that all members and intending members will do their utmost to attend.

Had to Unload the City Stone

Alderman Johnston Spoiled Little Game of City Teamster

A peculiar incident occurred yesterday afternoon on Aylmer street, between Antrim and Edinburgh and Edinburgh streets. A large pile of stones, remaining on the street, from a drain which was built last fall, proved to be very inviting to a teamster. Without orders from anyone, he piled his waggon box full and was about to drive off with the load, when Ald. W. J. Johnston came along.

"Who gave you those stones, and where are you going with the load?" were questions that the driver failed to answer satisfactorily. He was accordingly instructed to throw the stones off his waggon, and was not successful in "making away" with them.

Pope's Skull.

The skull of Alexander Pope, the poet and satirist, is in the private collection of a phrenologist. During some alterations in the churchyard where Pope was buried it was necessary to move his coffin, which was opened at the time to ascertain the state of his remains. By bribing the sexton of the church possession of the poet's skull was obtained for the night, and in the morning a different skull was returned instead. The cost of the skull, including the bribe, was £50.

His Stubbornness.

Dangerous Spot on the Railway

More Narrow Escapes at the Trestle Near P. P. Home

On Wednesday evening at 10.30 a well-known resident of the northwestern portion of the city had a narrow escape while crossing the trestle work on the G.T.R. near the Protestant Home. It appears he was on his way home and had just stepped on the bridge when a double-header on its way to Lindsay rounded the curve and whistled at the warning sign in front of the Protestant Home. The citizen on turning round was greeted by the bright flash of the headlight of the engine, and had just time to retrace his steps and reach the embankment as the train rolled onto the trestle work.

Thursday, two young men also had a narrow escape from being run down, one of them being forced to jump into the creek to save himself from injury.

Citizens crossing the structure do so at their own risk, as they have been warned repeatedly against the danger that exists at this point.

It appears it is somewhat difficult to hear the approach of trains from either direction, and people cannot be too careful in using the track as a short cut to their destination.

Cleared the Room in 35 Seconds

Successful Fire Drill at Central School

Another successful fire drill was held at the Central School yesterday morning, and the teachers are greatly pleased with the way the pupils conducted themselves. Thirty-five seconds after the fire bell had rung they were all out of the school, making their exit without the slightest confusion. Yesterday's drill was somewhat different from those held previously, inasmuch as part of the pupils came out at the the entrance on one side of the school, and the remainder made their exit at the door on the opposite side.

It is proposed to keep the pupils at the city schools, thoroughly trained in the fire drill. It is understood that at the drills to be held in the near future, some new features will be introduced. In order to make the children more efficient in the drill the order will be given for them to clear the room at a certain exit and then they will be ordered to change their line and make their exit by another door. The advantage of this is easily shown, as in case of a fire it might be discovered that an exit by which the pupils had been ordered to clear the room might be cut off by fire, and a change might be necessary.

LARGE NUMBER AT ROLLER RINK

Fancy Skating Contest Was Interesting Event

The roller rink was patronized by a large number of people last night special interest being taken on account of the fancy skating contest for ladies and gentlemen, skating in couples. Over twenty couples entered and so graceful were they all that the judges had a difficult task to pick the winners. However, after deliberation, the honors went to Miss Logan and Mr. Clancy, each of whom was presented with a season ticket for the rink. The judges were Messrs. R. M. Glover, W. E. Talbot, and D. B. MacRae.

There will be six special events, next Tuesday night, several new features being introduced by the new instructor, Prof. Genno. On Friday night of next week, there will be a carnival, arrangements for which are already being made. Prof. Genno is proving a great favorite with the patrons of the rink, who are daily increasing in number.

MANY HEBREWS LOCATING HERE

Fifteen are Living in the Old McClellan Building on Charlotte St.

The Hebrew population of Peterborough is steadily increasing. A year or so ago, there were only two or three sons of the land of Abraham in this city, but at the present time there are between twenty-five and thirty Hebrews here and the number is steadily increasing. During the past few days there have been several new arrivals and it is said that more are coming.

It is said that fifteen Jews are now residing in the old McClellan building at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets, and are sleeping and eating there.

Nearly all the Hebrews are engaged in the junk business and are apparently making money out of it. Those who are living in the McClellan building, have thirteen horses, and some of the equipages are not bad ones either. Some of the Jews who have located here are making very good citizens. They are industrious and thrifty.

"Scotty" McEwen to Appear Here

Will Meet Jerry Carrol of Ottawa on April 22nd

There will be some fine sport at the boxing and wrestling bouts in the old Opera House on Monday night, April 22nd. In the boxing line, the principal bout will be between "Scotty" McEwen of Toronto, the 115 pound amateur champion of Canada, and "Jerry" Carroll, the clever Ottawa boxer. Carroll is also in the 115 pound class, and he and McEwen should make a great go.

Tommy Daly of Toronto, and Cornie Burns of Peterborough, who boxed four rounds at the last tournament here, will again don the padded mitts for a four round bout. They gave a great exhibition when they appeared before, and next Monday night's mill should be even better.

The feature of the wrestling bouts will be the meeting of Harry Burridge of Peterborough, and Dunn of Toronto, the 145 pound amateur champion of Canada. Burridge showed that he knew a thing or two about the game, at the last tournament when he defeated Gauthier, and will be in much better shape when he meets Dunn. The latter is taking on all comers at a Toronto theatre this week. There will be other bouts between local men and an evening of fine sport is assured.

Mr. Capstick Owns Prolific Cow

Gave Birth to Three Calves on Thursday Last

Mr. Joseph Capstick, of North Verulam, has a prolific cow. She is about eight years of age and is a Durham with a strain of Ayrshire. Last Thursday she gave birth to three calves. One was dead, but two are alive and doing well, a steer and a heifer. She has before had twins so that it appears to run in the family, this tendency to litter. The thought occurs could not this tendency be cultivated and developed, so that twins would become regular or nearly so. If this could be done the productiveness would be doubled and cattle raising made the more profitable. It is a fact that by selection cows with six and eight teats have been developed, Why not develop a twin calf breed?

Flames Added to Horror of the Wreck at Chapleau

Tales of Horror and Heroism From the Wreck.

Agonizing Stories Told By Those Who Escaped—Passengers Caught In Their Seats—Scene Worse Than a Battlefield—Coach Turned Over Three Times—Burned In Five Minutes—Slow Speed Saved Lives.

Fort William, April 13.—According to the opinion of passengers who were in the wreck near Chapleau, if the overturned car had not caught fire probably no life would have been lost.

The breaking of the gas pipes in the train caused the fire to spread with such amazing rapidity that in 5 minutes the coach was destroyed. One survivor declares that the car was ablaze before it reached the bottom of the embankment. It rolled over three times in the descent.

Inside of half an hour the flames had died away, and the work of finding the bodies was at once begun. All the bodies were charred by the flames almost beyond recognition, and the work of identification was proceeding with the greatest of difficulty. They were all pinned beneath the seats and wreckage of cars, which accounted for the fact that they were not able to make any determined effort for themselves.

Harrowing Incidents.

The stories of some of the incidents are harrowing. One man, a veteran of the South African War, said:

"I saw hundreds of dead and dying, and the scenes have faded from my memory, but the screams of those poor, helpless children and women caught in the merciless grip of the flames will follow me to the grave. I aged in a few seconds, and then forgot everything.

"I pulled a man from the window. I knew it was a man because he struggled, but all I saw was a mass of flame after we got the fire out. They took the poor fellow away and laid him on some clothing, and he was taken to the hospital at Chapleau."

V. A. Dumfries, with a party consisting of William Hamilton, Joseph Townsend and Thomas Roan, were also in one of the cars in which there was loss of life. In the seat next to them were a woman and two children and a young man about 21 years of age. All four perished, being caught in the seats and held there until the flames reached them and roasted them alive. Another man was pinned by his feet between two cars and remained conscious until death relieved his sufferings amid the cruel flames.

Had Narrow Escape.

Other men show the evidences of their narrow escape from death, by displaying badly burned clothing. One said:

"I saw a woman and a child caught in the coach, but could not lend any assistance, as I was on fire myself. I also noticed a woman and a child pinned in the wreckage, and the fire was swiftly making towards them. The flames followed me out," he concluded, at the same time opening his overcoat and showing that the back of his under coat was totally burned from his back.

James Gibson, an ex-member of the 12th Lancers, with a wet handkerchief over his face, plunged into the burning ruins, and with the utmost difficulty, rescued one of the lady passengers. The poor woman had, however, only reached safety when she discovered that her child was back in the ruins. With one agonizing cry she plunged into the burning mass, and was never seen again.

Made Desperate Efforts.

H. M. Beach of Ottawa tells of one poor fellow who was pinned by the legs under a tourist car. Three of his friends made desperate efforts to save him. The flames swept around him and scorched the faces and hands of the men and caught their clothing.

"For God's sake, boys, don't leave me!" he cried. "One more try to save me!" but nothing could be done.

Mrs. Augusta R. Jakland and two children, who were among the victims, were going west from Worcester, Mass., to join her husband, who had just settled in Western Canada. The husbands of both Mrs. Champion and Mrs. Davidson, who were lost in the wreck, were on board, and these two men are prostrate with grief.

William Day and Winifred Horton, who were both killed, were to have been married as soon as Day had located a home for her in the great Northwest. She had intended to work as a domestic in Winnipeg until the little home was prepared.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Stratford Man Arrested In Connection With Burning Fatality.

Stratford, April 13.—Following the death by burning on Thursday of Mrs. Harriett Dewing, aged 53, Leopold Koeller, the only other occupant of the house, was last night arrested on a charge of murder.

There are several suspicious incidents connected with the case to be cleared up, and it is thought Koeller knows more about the death than he has yet revealed.

Mrs. Dewing, was an English woman, 53 years of age, who had been engaged as housekeeper by the Koellers. Mrs. Koeller and her two children had been absent in Chicago for a week, returning Thursday morning.

Found Her In Flames.

Koeller's story Thursday was that when he woke up at 3 o'clock he heard a moaning noise. He listened and thought it was the dog out in the stable. It sounded quite familiar to him, but as it continued he got up, went into the parlor and looked out the window to the stable.

He could see nothing, and he went out into the kitchen, where he could hear the noise coming from the room above where Mrs. Dewing slept. He called out: "Hattie, are you sick?" but receiving no reply, he opened the door leading upstairs.

He could then see the glow of the flames and, thinking the house was on fire, rushed upstairs and into her room to find the unfortunate woman standing in the centre of it with a look of unutterable anguish on her face. She had her hands extended as if pleading for assistance, while her clothes were a mass of flames.

He set down the lamp which he was carrying and extinguished the flames with a quilt. He then crossed the street to go to the assistance of a neighbor named Hunt and a doctor was sent for.

Alleged Discrepancies.

The arrest is due to discrepancies, between his story and what the police say are facts.

For instance, Koeller claimed that when he entered the room the woman was enveloped in fire, with flames reaching the ceiling, which is a little over 6 feet high. The ceiling is spotlessly white and shows no marks whatever, and his story in this respect is discredited.

The carpet where she stood is scarcely burned.

How did her clothes ignite when the lantern in her room had not been lit? is another puzzle.

How did Koeller extinguish flames with a quilt, which he claims he did, without scorching the quilt?

Why was she not discovered sooner?

These are some of the questions which should be brought out at a trial. The coroner's jury viewed the body yesterday, and adjourned till Tuesday next.

A post-mortem examination has been ordered.

Clothing Destroyed.

The woman's clothing was so completely destroyed that it is impossible to tell just how she was dressed. She must have been, however, in her working clothes.

Mrs. Dewing had been living in Canada about ten years and had no relatives here except one son, who is living in Winnipeg. She has been employed as a housekeeper at various places in this vicinity.

VOTES FOR INDIANS.

Deputation of Red Men Wait on Premier Whitney.

Toronto, April 13.—Chief J. H. Fisher, M. P. P. for North Brant, yesterday introduced Chief Hill and two warriors from the Mohawk Reserve, accompanied by a young Indian from the university, to Premier Whitney and Hon. J. J. Foy. They asked that the franchise be extended to Indians, and presented a petition signed very largely by members of the Dominion Government. It stated that there were 4,700 Indians in Ontario with a voting strength of 1,100. Premier Whitney promised consideration.

The Indians were disfranchised by the Dominion Government on the ground that they were wards of the Dominion. They asked to be given the privilege of voting in Ontario, and many Dominion members would like to see this.

ROBBED BY A TRICK.

How "The Squaw Man" Lost His Watch at the Station.

Kingston, April 13.—Frank Young, advance agent for "The Squaw Man," was queerly done out of a watch at the G. T. R. station.

He was about to board a train when a supposed official asked to see his ticket. It was being scrutinized when the official turned to a man and said, 'We ought to put those cars on, but I do not know if we will have time to do it." The other was heard to say, "Oh, I guess we will have time, all right."

Turning to Young the last speaker enquired of him what the time was by his watch. Young pulled the watch out of his vest pocket, and one of the men grabbed it and ran.

Outburst In Douma.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—A demand for the exclusion from Parliament of three Socialist deputies, pending their trial for political offences, submitted to the Lower House of Parliament by the Minister of Justice, M. Chtcheglesiteff, at yesterday's session, caused an outburst of indignation.

Dishonorably Discharged.

Albany, N.Y., April 13.—Capt. Louis Wendel, commanding third battery, has been dishonorably discharged from the military service of the state, upon conviction by the military court-martial recently held, of irregularities in his management of the battery armory under his control.

Found Guilty.

Woodstock, April 13.—Curry and O'Brien, who have been in jail for several months awaiting trial for rape, were yesterday found guilty. Curry turned King's evidence. O'Brien is well connected in the city. Curry's people live in East Oxford.

The Strathcona, the first vessel out from Port Colborne, cleared the ice and got away.

THAW JURY DISAGREE

Seven Were For Conviction and Five For Acquittal.

Had Stormy Time—Judge Fitzgerald Discharges Them — Thaw Taken Back to Prison—Counsel to Apply For Bail—Jerome Will Oppose—May Be Re-Tried at Once Without Change of Venue.

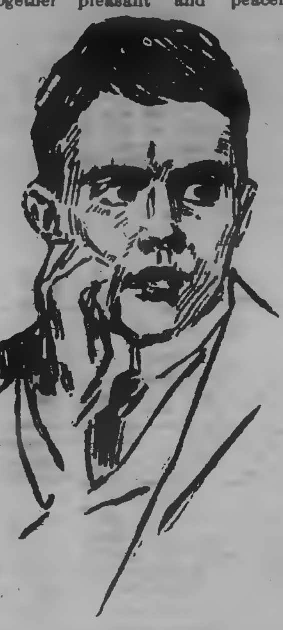
New York, April 13.—Hopelessly divided—seven for a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and five for acquittal on the ground of insanity—the jury which, since Jan. 23 last, had been trying Harry K. Thaw, reported yesterday, after 47 hours and 8 minutes of deliberation, that it could not possibly agree upon a verdict.

The twelve men were promptly discharged by Justice Fitzgerald, who declared that he, too, believed their task hopeless.

Thaw was remanded to the Tombs, without bail, to await a second trial on the charge of having murdered Stanford White, the noted architect.

Stormy Arguments.

"The sessions of the jury were not altogether pleasant and peaceful.



HARRY K. THAW.

There were many stormy arguments and at one time charges of inconsistency and breaking faith with the orders of the court were made, but at no point of the deliberations did the foreman lose control of the situation. He successfully held the twelve men in check, and was the first to suggest when it was seen that there was no possibility of a verdict being reached that they report the matter to Justice Fitzgerald, and leave the further disposition of the case to his judgment."

Prospects for New Trial.

When a new trial would take place, no one connected with the case could express an opinion last night.

District Attorney Jerome declared that there were many other persons accused of homicide awaiting trial, and that Thaw would have to take his turn with the rest.

As to a possible change of venue, both the district attorney and counsel for Thaw declared they would make no such move.

Thaw's attorneys will confer to-day with the prisoner to decide upon their next step. They may make an early application for bail.

Mr. Jerome said he would strenuously oppose any application for bail. He added the belief that, as seven of the jurors voted for "guilty," his opposition probably would be successful.

In that event, Thaw has another long summer before him in the city prison, for his case on the already crowded criminal calendar cannot possibly be reached until some time next fall.

Blow At Expert Testimony.

Albany, April 13.—A bill, aimed against the abuse of expert testimony in murder trials, where insanity is pleaded as a defence, was introduced in the Assembly yesterday by Majority Leader Moreland.

The bill would prevent hypothetical questions being asked in any criminal case where insanity is a defence.

Mr. Moreland says the idea is to do away with the experts, who, he said, usually receive large fees for professional opinions favoring the side which retains them.

Shoots Brother-In-Law.

Windsor, April 13.—Jockey Pierce was the victim of a murderous assault committed yesterday by his brother-in-law, Arthur Wrightman. The latter fired at Pierce, the bullet taking effect in the right side, but Pierce succeeded in climbing over the back fence before he fell exhausted. He lies in a precarious condition.

Jews Ordered to Leave.

Gompet, Russia, April 13.—Reactionist rowdies, armed with revolvers and knives, paraded the principal streets here yesterday, entering all the Jewish stores and ordering the merchants under pain of death to leave the town within three days.

Crushed By Elevator.

London, April 13.—James Palmer, aged 74, was probably fatally injured at the McCormick works yesterday morning. He got in the shaft and did not notice that the elevator was descending and he was frightfully crushed.

Reduction of Freight Rates.

St. Paul, Minn., April 13.—The state Senate yesterday adopted the commodity railroad rate bill recently passed by the House, providing for ten per cent. reduction in railroad freight rates.

There is opposition to an application for a shop license in the Riverdale district of Toronto.

RELIEVE MINERAL LANDS.

Amendments to Manhood Suffrage Act—Mining Tax Measure.

Toronto, April 13.—The Legislature put in a diligent Friday. The work, while technical and comparatively uninteresting, occasioned considerable time and substantial progress was made towards clearing the order paper.

With the routine accomplished the House will next week take up the contentious matters still to be dealt with. It is anticipated that the session will close about Thursday, unless the debates prove to be longer than is at present anticipated.

The municipal amendment act was put through its committee stage and got its third reading. Hon. Mr. MacKay pointed out that while the vote for elections was deemed final, the courts had held that the vote on bylaws was not final. He suggested both lists be put under the same system.

Hon. Mr. Whitney pointed out that in the case of the lists for bylaws they were compiled by the township clerk without supervision.

Taxation of Mineral Rights.

It was also decided, in view of the protest of Hon. Mr. Matheson and Hon. Mr. Graham, against general taxation of mineral rights, that the clause providing for the taxation of mineral rights entered to meet the case of the Canada Company read for "petroleum rights."

Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill to amend and consolidate the law respecting the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was also put through committee.

In committee Hon. Mr. Foy's bill to amend and consolidate the Manhood Suffrage Registration Act was productive of a short discussion on the clause providing that students, not registered and not entitled to register elsewhere, may register in the city in which they are attending college or university and be entitled to vote. Mr. Graham and Mr. MacKay contended that this might easily result in a number of students losing their votes. They might be registered at their homes, but might not, on election day, be home. The Prime Minister pointed out that the test of qualification, besides British citizenship and age, was domicile and a man could not be domiciled in two places. The clause was allowed to stand.

Mr. Cochrane's Bill.

Under the care of the Prime Minister Hon. Mr. Cochrane's mining taxation bill went through committee and got its third reading. It now only awaits the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor to become law.

The following bills were put through committee:

To amend the municipal act—Mr. Ferguson (Grenville).

To amend the Land Titles Act—Mr. Ferguson (Grenville).

To amend the Ditches and Watercourses Act—Mr. Ferguson (Grenville).

To amend the Municipal Waterworks Act—Mr. Torrance.

To amend the act respecting Joint Stock Companies for supplying cities, towns and villages with gas and water—Mr. Cameron.

To amend the act respecting investments by trustees—Mr. McNaught.

Respecting the mortgage and real estate—Mr. Eilber.

GREAT ICEBERGS SEEN.

One Three Hundred Feet High Sighted Off Newfoundland.

New York, April 13.—Four huge icebergs, one of which resembled a church in general appearance, with a lofty steeple-like pinnacle towering 300 feet above the surface of the sea, were sighted by the steamer Vaderland off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. The Vaderland arrived here yesterday from Antwerp and Dover after a rough passage. High seas and stormy weather prevailed throughout the voyage until Thursday.

SUICIDE OVER FALLS.

Unknown Man Leaped Into Rapids Above the Cataract.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 13.—At 10 o'clock last night a man, who was dressed in underwear or very light clothing, was seen to jump from the bridge between the mainland and Green Island into the rapids. He was swept over the American Falls. The locality was searched, but nothing was found. Nightwatchman Hardwood and his son witnessed the suicide. He appeared to be a man six feet tall, with dark moustache.

We are spending $5,000.00 this month to explain what the word "Constipation" means.

Constipation means NON-ACTION OF THE BOWELS.

If the liver is healthy, it pours enough bile into the intestines to make the bowels move. Then, too, the bowels discharge waste matter from the body by a peculiar snake-like movement. This requires strong muscles.

When the bowel muscles are weak—when there is not sufficient bile—the bowels do not move for two, three, sometimes four and five days.

This non-action of the bowels is Constipation. Waste matter, which should leave the body, is taken up by the blood, and carried to the kidneys and skin. These organs—in a vain endeavor to throw off the poisons—are overworked. The poisoned blood, in turn, irritates the nerves, causing Headaches—Backaches—Neuralgia.

The weakened kidneys cannot rid the system of urea, which changes into uric acid, causing Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago.

It is useless to try to cure Constipation with calomel, cascara, senna, strong purgative pills and vile-tasting mineral waters. They simply force the bowels to act by irritating the delicate membranes. Their action weakens the muscles and really does more harm than good.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ACT ON THE LIVER—stimulate the glands—and so regulate the action of the liver that it will excrete sufficient bile to move the bowels in the normal, natural way every day.

Nothing else in the world will so surely and permanently cure Constipation.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" are made of fruit juices, intensified, with the most valuable tonics and antiseptics added. Cure yourself of Constipation by taking these wonderful liver tablets. 50c. a box. Sent by mail if your druggist has none.

Awful Famine is Prevalent; 5000 Persons Are Dying Daily

Whole Families Found Starved to Death in Their Homes.

Parents Eating Their Children—Pulling the Growing Crops For Food—Ten Million People In Sore Need of Food—Roadside Strewed With Corpses—Terrible Sufferings of the Chinese—Pitiful Cry For Help.

Shanghai, April 13.—Telegrams received here from 20 points in the famine district report that the conditions are growing worse.

The Chinese Government and people up to date have contributed over $40,000,000 for famine relief, and the sums received from all foreign sources total a half million dollars.

There are 50 missionaries, with the higher class of Chinese, engaged in overseeing the relief distribution, Confucianists, Catholics and Protestants working together.

Twenty thousand famine sufferers are employed in building dams and canal, to prevent a recurrence of the floods.

The relief committee here is promptly sending supplies to the front, but the funds are nearing exhaustion. All the relief measures up to date are inadequate. Ten million persons are suffering from inadequate supplies of food, and three millions are nearing starvation.

The members of the committee at the front report that they find the bodies of the sufferers bloated, and that their faces turn green or black as the result of starvation. The people are pulling up the growing crops for food. Whole families have been found dead in their houses, and corpses are seen lying by the roadside. Probably 5,000 persons are dying daily from starvation.

A few cases of rioting for food have occurred, and cannibalism is beginning to be reported. Newly-made graves have been rifled of the bodies, and parent are exchanging their children to be eaten.

A dollar, the relief committee reports, will save one life until the harvest, June 25, and $10,000,000 is needed.

Electric Light Co. Will Have to Lower Height of Their Dam

Considerable Damage Caused to Burnt Mill Road—Havelock Company Called Upon to Compensate Belmont and Methuen Townships.

The Belmont and Methuen Council met pursuant to adjournment at the town hall, Havelock, on Saturday, March 30th. Members all present. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Fred Preston offered to purchase the timber across lots 21 and 22, between the third and fourth concession of Belmont, for the sum of $2.00, and on motion of Russell and Wilde the offer was accepted.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid.—

S. S. Joyce, town hall insurance	$ 5.40
J. Doupe, correcting list lands liable to be sold for taxes	2.00
Removing Mr. Perry to House of Refuge	3.55

Dr. Holdcroft addressed the Council in reference to his retaining fee of $5.00 as M. H. O. for 1906, and Anderson and McConnell moved that he receive the amount of the fee. Councillor J. W. Russell objected to the motion and called for yeas and nays.

Yeas—John Anderson, Thos. McConnell and Jos. Johnston, reeve.

Nays—Jas. W. Russell and A. A. Wilde. The motion was carried.

Mrs. W. Keith received an abatement of $1.63 taxes on roll of 1906, on motion of Wilde and Russell.

On motion of Russell and Anderson a grant of $25.00 was made on the eighth concession line, across lot 8, on condition that Messrs. Alex. and Andrew Mathison gave work to the amount of $5.00 each for the same purpose.

On motion of Russell and Wilde, the Clerk was instructed to write the Havelock Electric Light & Power Co. that a complaint has been made to the Council that the Company has raised their dam, so as to cause considerable damage to the road, known as the "Burnt Mill" road, and that the Company are hereby required to lower their dam and compensate the municipality of Belmont and Methuen for the damage done.

The Clerk was also instructed, on motion of Russell and Wilde, to prepare a bylaw to deduct lot 31 in the sixth concession of Belmont from S. S. No 7, and have the same added to S. S. No. 11, in the township of Methuen.

The Collector's time was extended until the next meeting of Council on motion of Russell and Wilde.

On motion of Anderson and McConnell, Geo. J. Sherry was re-appointed solicitor for 1907 at a retaining fee of $10.00.

Council then adjourned.

TRIAL OF MRS. PERKINS.

Accused Does Not Submit Resignedly to Her Imprisonment.

Cayuga, April 13.—Startling developments are expected when Mrs. Perkins comes up for trial in a few days to answer the charge of having murdered her husband. Detective Greer has been in this vicinity all week, spending several days in this town, one at Dunnville, and a couple at Canfield. It is felt by the crown that the poison can be traced from its purchase to the time when it was taken by Henry Perkins, the dead man. Mr. John Perkins, a brother of the deceased, has been working in the interests of the crown, he having come from the Northwest for the purpose of finding out what caused his brother's death. Mrs. Perkins is by no means a resigned captive. She at times bursts into paroxysms of grief and rage. She also uses bitter language against her enemies, as she terms them.

ADRIFT ON ICE FLOE.

One Sportsman Drowns and Companion Exhausted When Rescued.

Sackville, N.B., April 13.—Two young men, Frank Fillmore and Murray Siddall, belonging to Westmorland Point, left Aulac Thursday on a gunning expedition. The boat upset and the men were thrown into the water, but they managed to get upon an ice cake, whence their cries for help were heard. Attempts to reach them, however, failed, and a while before dark they were drifting in the bay toward Minudie.

Very late Thursday night Siddal was rescued after several boats had nearly met destruction in floating ice. He was nearly dead. His companion, he said, became exhausted, fell off the ice cake and was drowned.

Fillmore was married, and leaves four children. His father yesterday celebrated his 77th birthday.

BONILLA SURRENDERS.

President of Honduras Gives Up Fight With Nicaraguans.

New Orleans, April 13.—According to a cablegram received by the officials of the Fruit Despatch Co. here President Manuel Bonilla of Honduras has surrendered to the Nicaraguan forces.

The cablegram came from Managua, Nicaragua, and was signed by President Jose S. Zelaya.

No details were given other than that Bonilla surrendered Thursday. Other advices received here Thursday, however, were to the effect that Bonilla had been "bottled up" in the port of Amapala ever since he made his sensational flight from Choluteca.

Laborers Strike.

Quebec, April 13.—Laborers employed by Messrs. Davis on their big works at Cap Rouge are on strike, and as trouble was feared, four members of the provincial police force were despatched to the scene yesterday to maintain order. No serious trouble is reported so far, however.

The men want an increase of 25 cents per day.

N. S. Cabinet Salaries.

Halifax, N. S., April 13.—The salaries of the Nova Scotia Government members henceforth will be $6,000 annually, besire $500 as sessional indemnity as members of the Legislature. The Premier's increase is $1,000.

A bill backing this has been introduced.

Newfoundland Storm Swept.

Halifax, N.S., April 13.—Word from Newfoundland is to the effect that the worst storm in 50 years has raged around the island during the past week.

There is deep snow and it is feared loss of life has occurred.

WOMAN'S PERFIDY.

The Way It Was First Disclosed to George Brandes, Who Lived Almost Entirely Life of Intellect.

In his young manhood George Brandes lived almost entirely in the life of the intellect. Once he missed keeping an engagement with a girl because he was absorbed in Hegel's philosophy at the time when he ought to have been at the trysting place. He tells about it in his "Recollections:" "With a passionate desire to reach a comprehension of truth, I grappled with the system, began with the encyclopedia, read the three volumes of 'Aesthetics,' the 'Philosophy of Law,' the 'Philosophy of History,' the 'Phenomenonology of the Mind,' then the 'Philosophy of Law' again and finally the 'Logic,' the 'Natural Philosophy' and the 'Philosophy of the Mind' in a veritable intoxication of comprehension and delight. One day when a young girl toward whom I felt attracted had asked me to go and say goodby to her before her departure I forgot the time, her journey and my promise to her over my Hegel. As I walked up and down my room I chanced to pull my watch out of my pocket and realized that I had missed my appointment and that the girl must have started long ago."

Once before in earlier days had he missed another engagement with another young lady, one Henrietta. For the sake of Henrietta's beautiful eyes and under those eyes he had soundly thrashed another little boy. Then Henrietta asked him if he would meet her the same evening under the old bay tree. Dr. Brandes writes: "When we met she had two long straps with her and at once asked me somewhat mockingly and dryly whether I had the courage to let myself be bound. Of course I said I had, whereupon very carefully and thoroughly she fastened my arms together with one strap. Could I move my arms? No. Then with eager haste she swung the other strap and let it fall on my back again and again.

"My first 'smart jacket' was a well thrashed one. She thoroughly enjoyed exerting her strength. Naturally my boyish ideas of honor would not permit me to scream or complain. I merely stared at her with the profoundest astonishment. She gave me no explanation, released my hands, we each went our own way, and I avoided her for the rest of my stay." Then Henrietta went away and told people. "This," says Brandes, "was my first experience of woman's perfidy. This was my first real experience of feminine nature."

Costliness of London Streets.

From several maintenance points of view it is, in many cases, cheaper and better in the long run to pave with Caithness flags than to lay granolithic even with the first cost of Caithness flags. Similarly there might be circumstances making it desirable, says "Engineering," to discard the macadamised surface of a roadway and pave with causeway sets—even with granite rather than with whinstone—and this notwithstanding the very great difference in the respective costs. Such consideration of the price of paving lead one to moralize, and wonder if the laying of wood paving blocks in the streets of London comes within the eternal fitness of things in respect of economy in maintenance. The amount of money annually spent in the maintenance of the London streets must be "beyond the dreams of avarice."

It must be reckoned in millions, for the streets are always up. And in Glasgow, with its granite causeway, while the first cost of street paving is probably much the same as in London, the life of granite sets will at least be five times longer than that of wood blocks, and granite causeway has the additional virtue of being more sanitary than wood paving. But wood block paving is less noisy, and as this is the reason it is being used in London, who will say that much money in maintenance is not well spent if it lessens the infernal din of the tremendous traffic of all kinds in the streets of our great cities, and tends to diminish the mental agony and physical torture which the noise of the numberless street vehicles increasingly inflicts on the people.

Deserting the Land.

There is no mistaking the significance of the report on the exodus from the country into the towns just issued by the British Board of Agriculture. The figures are startling. In 1881 there were nearly a million agricultural laborers and farm servants in Great Britain; in 1901 there were less than seven hundred thousand. In the same period two million acres of arable land were laid down to grass. And simultaneously there has been a widespread introduction of labor-saving machinery, and consistent efforts on the part of landowners and farmers to reduce expenses, save, of course, in the case of rich men, whose estates are their hobbies from which they do not expect dividends and to which they do not look for maintenance. Thus there has not only been a marked diminution of the demand for agricultural laborers owing to economic causes, but there has also been an equally marked desire on the part of the rural population to get away from the fields into the cities.

M.P.'s Hearty Eaters.

The report of the kitchen committee of the British House of Commons show that from Feb. 13 to Dec. 24, 165,451 meals were served in the House. Of these 126 were breakfasts, 39,825 luncheons, 47,968 dinners, 795 suppers, 75,213 teas and 5,150 meals at bars. The cost of the meals reach a total of $96,445 or an average of 58 cents. This includes $31,445 for spirits, wines, beers and mineral waters and $5,480 for cigars.

Tar and Feathers.

Tar and feathers are not a peculiarly American punishment. Richard the Lion-Hearted first proclaimed this punishment. It was when he was setting out for the third crusade that he gave warning that "a robber who shall be convicted of theft shall have his head cropped after the fashion of a champion, and boiling pitch shall be poured thereon, and the feathers of a cushion shall be shaken out on him, so that he shall be known."

Hundreds of immigrants at Regina, for points north, are held by storms and blocked tracks.

CENSURED THE GOVERNMENT.

Sharp Passage of Arms Over the Montelbetti Case.

Ottawa, April 13.—The House spent substantially all yesterday in debating an amendment to the motion to go into supply proposed by Lake (Con., Sask.), censuring the Government for its action in the matter of the notorious Montelbetti case, where a valuable townsite at Blairmore was turned over to a favorite of the Government.

One Lyon, who considered himself aggrieved, procured a fiat from the then Minister of Justice of Canada, Hon. David Mills, and proceeded to set aside the patent. In these proceedings the evidence was taken and a report made by Justice Wetmore, who decided that the application and affidavit of Montelbetti, upon which the Government had granted the patent, was fraudulent, and that if the crown desired to do so, it could cancel the patent and the land would revert to the crown. Justice Burbridge of the Exchequer Court confirmed this finding, but ordered that further evidence should be obtained from Dominion Crown Land Commissioner Turriff.

The action which had been commenced to set aside the patent was dismissed at the instance of the crown. Although the action was dismissed without costs, the crown as recently as Nov. 12, 1906, paid the relator, Lyon's, costs of the action, amounting to $2,585.01, although prior to the commencement of the action Lyon was obliged to furnish a bond for payment of costs.

The Minister of the Interior (Mr. Oliver), in reply, denied that the Government had caused the case in the Exchequer Court to be dismissed. He said that Judge Burbridge had not found that Mackenzie obtained the land by fraud, or that Montelbetti had been guilty of fraud. He denounced the Opposition as dealing in slander, and said that they were prostituting the privileges of Parliament.

Mr. Borden pointed out that Lyon was the first settler. The whole Montelbetti claim was a fake and a fraud. The finding made by Mr. Turriff when land commisioner in his favor was based upon a report from the sub-agent, Nixon, which report was false and fraudulent.

Shipwrecked on Ice.

St. John, N. B., April 13.—Through ice holding after having shattered the steamer Olive, a calamity was narrowly escaped.

The steamer was forcing its way through the ice at Dover Run, when a plank was stove in, filling her immediately.

Passengers clambered ashore with great difficulty, and walked several miles over the ice to Dover Settlement, thence to Canso.

The owners, the Whitman Fish Co., will try to raise the wreck.

Good Attendance on the Market

Maple Syrup Was Offered To-day in Large Quantities

This morning's market was good, there being a large number of farmers on the square with produce of all kinds. There were also a great many buyers. There was a fine supply of maple syrup, and it was quickly bought up. Those who had it for sale realized a good price for it. It was disposed of at 35 and 40 cents per quart.

The price of eggs is gradually becoming lower, and this morning they sold at 15 and 16 cents. Butter was 27 cents per pound, and chickens, of which there were only a few, sold at $1.00 per pair.

Potatoes and apples went at the usual prices.

Little Fellow's Narrow Escape

Young Son of Mr. M. W. Matchett Run Over by Horse and Buggy

This five-year-old son of Mr. M. W. Matchett of East City, had a narrow escape from serious injury, by being run over by a horse and buggy on Thursday afternoon. The little fellow and another small boy were running along Mark street, near where Mr. Matchett lives, when the child fell and was run over by a horse and buggy that was passing at the time. It was impossible for the driver to stop the horse in time. The boy was knocked down and a wheel passed over one of his legs, bruising it badly. His face was also skinned and he received a few other minor injuries. Considering the circumstances, however, it was fortunate that he was not more seriously injured.

IMPROVEMENTS AT LAKEFIELD

G. T. R. Will Build New Wharf and Sidewalk From Station to the Boats

It is stated on authority that the Grand Trunk Railway is preparing to make several big improvements in connection with their property at Lakefield. These include the erection of a new wharf and a new board walk from the station to the lake shore, where the boats will receive unload their passengers.

It is said that 250 feet of new wharf will be built, which means that the present one will be practically renewed. It is in need of repair at present, and it was recognized last fall that something would have to be done before the opening of the present season. The board walk is also in bad condition, and the news that it is to be replaced by a new one will be received with delight.

One of the company's officials was at Lakefield yesterday taking the measurements for the proposed improvements and securing other necessary information. It is expected that work on the new wharf and walk will be commenced at an early date, in order that they may be completed before the big rush in lake traffic commences.

The Stony Lake Cottagers' Association have been agitating for improvements along these lines at Lakefield, and they will no doubt be pleased to hear that something is going to be done.

The Peterborough Light & Power Company wishes to remind its customers that Monday next, April 15th, is the last day discount will be allowed on March accounts.

Conservatives Will Hold Grand Rally

Annual Meeting on April 26th —Speeches in Opera House

AMUSEMENTS

KERRY GOW.

The second presentation of "Kerry Gow," at the Grand Opera House, last evening, drew one of the largest audiences that has ever been in that popular playhouse, and they were well repaid for their attendance. The play was the same as that presented to large houses here on Good Friday, and it is safe to say that if Mr. Allen Doone and his capable company ever pay this city another visit they will be greeted by a packed house. This popular Irish comedy-drama won great applause. The pretty love story of "Kerry Gow" is known to everyone and it is not necessary to tell it in these columns. The realistic scenes of the smithy and the carrier pigeons bringing the news of the race, which brings this beautiful play to a pleasing climax, were favorites with the audience. Mr. Doone's splendid voice was effectively displayed in several Irish songs. Much credit is due the management of the Grand Opera House for procuring a return engagement of this stellar attraction.

Property Committee Deals With Question of Using Old Fire Hall

Ground Floor Will be Kept for Officer for City Tax Collector, Engineer and Sanitary Inspector—Other Business Transacted.

A meeting of the property committee was held yesterday afternoon There were present Ald. McIntyre, chairman; Elliott and Stevenson, City Engineer Hay and Sanitary Inspector Ball.

The chief matter which occupied the attention of the committee was what was to be done with the old fire hall, which will soon be vacated. Several alterations to the city buildings are in contemplation and are being earnestly considered by the committee. After some lengthy discussion on the subject of the old fire hall it was decided, upon motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Stevenson, that the ground floor be kept for offices for the tax collector, city engineer, and tax collector, city engineer, sanitary inspector and other city officials.

Ald Elliott thought it would be much better to have the tax collector's office on the ground floor. For this purpose the hose tower at the rear of the building would have to be taken down and the place thoroughly fumigated. The matter of enlarging the committee room was also discussed. The opinion was expressed that the upper part of the fire hall could be easily rented for offices, or probably some lodge would want it.

The question of a garbage system was discussed and the city clerk was authorized to communicate with Toronto and Hamilton and several cities about the size of Peterborough to obtain all information possible about garbage systems in use.

The chairman of the property committee and the city clerk, upon motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Elliott, were authorized to prepare applications for building permits.

Ald. McIntyre read a communication from the city engineer asking that the grand stands in Central and Victoria Parks, be repainted.

The mayor thought that, as the stand in Central Park was never used, it was unnecessary to spend money in painting it.

On motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald Elliott, it was decided that the grand stand in Victoria Park be painted and any other necessary repairs be made.

A communication was read from Mr. G. H. Howson, inspector of weights and measures, informing the committee that the time for the annual inspection of the market scales was at hand, and suggesting several improvements. The planks in the platform of the scales were broken and a great improvement could be made by extending the roof over the platform several feet each way, as in the winter snow blows in around the scales and rusts the iron work. This matter was left over until the committee inspected the market.

Sanitary Inspector Ball asked that notices be printed too notify the public to have their yards cleaned by May 15th.

The city clerk, on motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Elliott, was authorized to have 100 notices printed and put up around the city.

The members of the committee then went out on a tour of inspection to the old fire hall and the market.

BALLOT

Should the meetings of the committees of the Board of Education be open to the public and the press?

Yes __________

No __________

Name ____________________

Street ____________________

Cut out the foregoing ballot. Put a cross after the word "no" or "yes," sign your name and address (not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith) and return to the Review office. The ballot will appear for one week, when the result of the plebiscite, or referendum, will be made known.

The Review believes that the committee meetings of the Board of Education should be open to the press representatives, the same as are all the committee meetings of the city council. Several arguments have been advanced in support of this attitude, and at the last regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, the following resolution was unanimously carried.

"That the Trades and Labor Council disapproves of the action of the Board of Education in not admitting the press to all its meetings, that being the only channel by which the public can be intelligently informed how to use their franchise to best interests of all."

The Board spends some $35,000 of the ratepayers' money each year. The sum of $9,500 on the Collegiate Institute and $25,500 on the Public schools is the demand made on the city council for 1907.

At the last regular meeting of the Board contracts for new buildings were awarded, amounting to over $70,000. This is in addition to the ordinary expenditure. The Review is of the opinion that all the committee meetings of the Board should be open. What is your view?

Cut out the foregoing ballot and return it to this office. The ballot is published solely with the idea of learning the opinion of the ratepayers on this most important question.

Cheaper Class of Houses Needed for Workingmen

Messrs. A. Brown & Co., Real Estate Dealers, Point Out the Urgency for Dwellings—Something Should be Done to Relieve the Present Condition of Affairs.

Messrs. A. Brown & Co., 336 Water street, who are the oldest real estate firm in the city, write the Review as follows:—

We take this opportunity of thanking the people of Peterborough and surrounding country for the very liberal patronage they have accorded us during the seven years that we have been in the real estate business in this city. We have honestly tried to conduct our business on fair and honorable principles, and that the people have appreciated this is shown by the fact, that our business has increased from year to year.

We wish to say, that in the coming season we intend, by our strict attention to business, to give our clients the benefit of our seven years experience. We have a large variety of all classes of property on our lists and we will be glad to give information concerning the same.

If you have a piece of property for sale we will be glad to give it our best attention and make your interests our first consideration.

We beg to say further that there seems to be a great need in this city for a cheaper class of house for the working men. We fear the working man does not get as high wages as he should, and it takes about one fourth his earnings to pay his rent, and at present other necessary expenses are very high. We mention this in the hope that something may be done to relieve this most undesirable condition of affairs, and it cannot be too soon. Soliciting a continuance of your patronage, we remain,

Faithfully yours,
A. BROWN & CO.

Garden Will be Established At the King Edward School

In Order That the Pupils May Become Interested in Nature Study—Plenty of Land for the Purpose.

A school garden will be one of the features in connection with the new King Edward school in the South ward. The Board of Education are making arrangements for establishing the garden, which will be a great assistance in instructing the pupils in nature study.

As is generally known, the Board of Education has six acres of land where the school is located, and as only a comparatively small portion of this is required for play grounds there will be three or four acres to be devoted to other purposes. A portion of this will be fenced off and made into a school garden. Vegetables and flowers will be planted therein and will be cared for by the pupils. This will enable them to acquire a good knowledge of nature study, which is rapidly coming to the front as one of the most important courses that can be taken up. Many things can be learned from the great teacher, Nature, and it will be pleasing news to the ratepayers of Peterborough to learn that means are being provided for the study of this subject.

In some counties in the province nature study has been made one of the courses in the public school curriculum. One of these counties is Carleton, where there are gardens in connection with many of the public schools. They have proved exceedingly helpful and great interest is taken in them by the pupils. No doubt the same will be the case in Peterborough once a school garden has been established.

Clever Expositions of "In Memoriam"

Rev. Dr. Symonds Continues His Interesting Lectures

Rev. Dr. Symonds continued his interesting course of lectures on "In Memoriam," last evening, speaking on the second cycle. There was a large attendance, Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers ably occupied the chair, and Miss Helen Davies sang very sweetly Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." This evening the series will be concluded when the speaker will talk on the third cycle. Miss Davies will sing, "Ring Out the Old, Ring in the New." Sheriff Hall will be the chairman.

It is in the latter part of the first cycle that Tennyson deals with some of those difficulties to faith that spring out of advancing knowledge. Our best instincts tell us of a God of love. But nature seems to tell us of a God who is indifferent to pain and sorrow. The poet thereupon cries,—

"Are God and nature then at strife,
That nature lends such evil dreams,
So careful of the type she seems,
So careless of the single life."

But no, nature does not care even for the type. Geology tells a different story:

"So careful of the type"? But no,
From scarped cliff and quarried stone
She cries 'A thousand types are gone,
'I care for nothing, all shall go'."

If this teaching of the indifference of God to suffering be the truth; if nature is indeed a blind fate, then what a horrible delusion the history of man has been. Shall man, cries the poet, nature's last work,

"Who seemed so fair;
Such splendid purpose in his eyes,
Who rolled the psalm to wintry skies,
Who built him of fruitless prayer

"Who trusted God was love indeed,
And Love Creation's final law,
Tho' nature red in tooth and claw,
With ravine, shrieked against his creed.

Who loved, who suffer'd countless ills
Who battled for the True, the Just,
Be blown about the desert dust,
Or sealed within the iron hills?"

If this be the ultimate destiny of man, what a mass of delusions is his life. Such thoughts prove almost overwhelming. Considering these things his faith wavers.

"I falter where I firmly trod,
And falling with my weight of cares,
Upon the great world's altar stairs
That slope through darkness up to God.

I stretch lame hands of faith and grope,
And gather dust and chaff and call,
To what I feel is God of all,
And faintly trust the larger hope.

Tennyson does not rest in this condition of a semi-paralyzed faith. His convictions that in spite of all appearances, love is at the centre of all things steadily grows, and at last he finds "a stronger faith his own." Dr. Symonds dealt at some length with the problem of suffering in the animal world, which he said had in the past been greatly exaggerated.

The second cycle or "The Cycle of the present," is less interesting than either the first or third cycles. It is, however, in this cycle that the poet expresses his determination to pick anew the threads of his broken life and to convert his loss into gain. He forms a new Friendship, and begins to find peace,—

"My pulses therefore, beat again,
For other friends than once I met,
Nor can it suit me to forget,
The mighty hopes that make us men.

"I was your love; I count it crime,
To mourn for any over much;
I, the divided half of such
A friendship as had master'd Time.

Which masters Time, indeed, and is Eternal, separate from fears.

THE FIRST CYCLE.

At the lecture on Thursday night Rev Dr. Symonds took up "The First Cycle" of "In Memoriam," sections 28—72. He said;

Tennyson regards immortality as at once a truth revealed and a fact implied in the constitution of human nature. Should it be said that if immortality may be proved by the reason, and therefore revelation is unnecessary, the answer is that the arguments of the philosopher cannot be grasped by the ordinary man, and so Christ revealed by His life what otherwise could not have become a living faith for all, and, therefore, we value the philosophic arguments yet.

We yield all blessing to the name of Him that made them current coin.

For wisdom dwelt with mortal powers,
Where truth, in choicest words shall fail;
When truth embodied in a tale,
Shall enter in at lowly doors.

So, for the mass of men, immortality is a revealed truth. Nevertheless, there are many intimations from the very nature of man that convince us that "we were not made to die." With some of these, as for, example, the sense of feeling of our kinship with the Infinite, Tennyson deals. In "Locksley Hall Sixty Years After," he cries;

"Since our dying race began,
Ever and for ever was the leading light of man.
Those that in barbaric burials killed the slave and slew the wife,
Felt within themselves the sacred passion of the second life."

The question has often been asked, "Was Tennyson a Christian in the ecclesiastical sense of the term?" In spite of his oft-repeated disparagement of systems and creeds, our answer must be "Yes." He uses of Christ the theological term, "The Word." We recall the words of the prologue;

Strong Son of God, Immortal Love,
Whom we that have not seen Thy face,
By faith and faith alone, embrace,
Believing where we cannot prove.

And, again,—

And so, the Word had breath, and wrought
With human hands the creed of creeds.

Many of the questions connected with the future life are discussed in this division of the poem. The poet indicates his belief that the exact nature of the spirit life cannot be known in this stage of our existence. In this agreeing with St. Paul when he writes "Eye hath not seen, nor hath ear heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of many to conceive of the things God hath prepared for us." Nevertheless, in many beautiful verses he discusses and answers these questions. Do the dead remember their earthly life and friends? He concludes that they do. He does not believe that they are unconscious until the final judgment. Nor will he for a moment believe that the individual life is, at the moment of death, absorbed into the Universal Soul.

"That each, who seems a separate whole,
Should move his wounds, and losing all
The skirts of self again, should fall
Remerging in the general soul.

Is faith as vague as all unsweet?
Eternal form shall still divide
The eternal soul from all beside,
And I shall know him when we meet."

Thus the poet, in a poet's fashion discusses the common problems of immortality that press at times upon our souls. The central argument for immortality, with Tennyson, as with Browning, springs out of what is conceived of as a conviction, not susceptible of absolute proof, that the heart of the universe is love and life. He holds that this is the revelation of the gospel record and that it may also be reached as a conviction by the study of the phenomena of human nature.

The Bishop of London will sail for Canada on August 31st.

OBITUARY

MRS. WALTER LAMB.

The remains of the late Mrs. Walter Lamb, who died in Lethbridge, Alta., on Monday last, arrived in the city last night, and were conveyed to the residence of her mother, Mrs. Roddy at 329 Sherbrooke street. On Monday morning they will be taken to Kingston where the funeral will take place. The death of Mrs. Lamb is a particularly sad one. She was only 33 years of age, and the mother of three young children who survive her. On the very day she became ill she had intended to leave Lethbridge on a visit to her old home in Peterborough, but the pleasure of this was cut short by the unrelenting hand of death. In a family of ten children, she was the first to be stricken, and her demise is therefore, the more keenly felt.

Besides her children, her husband, parents, four sisters and five brothers survive. The sisters are, Mrs. McGill and Mrs. Turnbull, Peterborough; Mrs. Westlake, Portsmouth, and Mrs Cochrane, Sydenham, and the brothers are, John, Kingston; Frank, of Cartwright; Harry, Fort William, and Edward and Frederick, city.

SOME SKATING LEFT.

To many who imagined the skating rink was perfectly clear of ice, the fact that a good skate was enjoyed by a crowd last night, will come as a surprise considering the lateness of the season, the ice was in splendid shape, and the party of youths and maidens who had the rink rented for the occasion had heaps of fun. After an hour or so of pleasant recreation, the novelty of the occasion was heightened by indulgence in ice cream at Miss Targney's confectionery. — Lindsay Post.

By-laws Should be Left Alone

"Onlooker" Favors the Present Sign and Packing Box Measures

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—A few grocers, drapers, haberdashers, peanut vendors, and others ejusdem generis, under the high sounding and inappropriate name of the Retail Merchants' Association, are seeking class legislation at the hands of our council, and propose that the council should stultify itself by repealing two bylaws which they have passed in the interest of the good government of the 15,000 inhabitants of this fair city, and others who frequent our streets. They propose to ask the council to alter the packing box bylaw, so that they may be able to unpack their goods up to 3 p.m. If that much is conceded they might as well take the whole day. Indeed, there is no excuse for their asking for one minute where they have back doors, and for those who have not, there is no necessity to have their goods spread over the sidewalk up to 3 p.m. Our streets and sidewalks are both too narrow as it is, without devoting them to the exclusive use of a few for a purpose for which they were never intended, and thus making them unsightly and blocking traffic. If a poor man in an unfrequented street were to leave his wheel-barrow out over night, he would get $2 or 10 days next morning, as his fancy might dictate. As to the sign bylaw, it does not in any way affect the shopkeepers, who have no need for overhanging signs. The case is different, however, for those whose entrances are through mere hallways and some provision ought to be made for them.

Yours, etc.,
ONLOOKER.

Birthday Party Was Enjoyable

St. John's Young People Scored a Decided Success.

The birthday party given under the auspices of the Anglican Young People's Association of St. John's Church in the Sunday school room last night, was a novel and interesting entertainment and was greatly enjoyed by the large audience present. The affair was, financially and otherwise, a great success, and must have been extremely gratifying to the young people who had the affair in charge. In its general features, the programme was a change from the ordinary concert, and its original nature was appreciated.

The twelve months of the year were strikingly represented by the young people, who were attired in costumes that suggested the month which they personated. Following are the ladies and gentlemen who took part in this portion of the programme, and who helped to receive the guests; January, Mr. Loucks; February, Miss Pratt and Mr. Geo. Chandler; March, Mr Hazlitt, April, Miss Alice Wilson and Mr. G McBrien; May, Miss Dawson and Mr. Greenhalgh; June, Miss Horsfield and Mr. Downes; July, Mrs. Devey and Mr. Neil Lee; August Miss Lily Wesley and Mr. Trude September, Miss Wesley and Mr Crossley; October, Miss Morris and Mr. Northcott; November, Miss Martin and Mr. Drysdale; December, Miss Young and Mr. Northcott The costumes were pretty and appropriate.

A reception committee, composed of Miss Layfield, Miss Shirley Wesley and Miss Mary Head, were untiring in their efforts to make everyone feel at home.

An interesting feature was the autograph collecting competition. Each one present was given a tablet and pencil, and was supposed to get as many names as possible within a stated time. The prize winners of the competition were Mrs. Devey, Miss Birdie Dawson, Miss Huffman and Mr. Greenhalgh.

The programme was heartily enjoyed and encores were frequent. Each number on the programme was well received, the "Tickling Trio" and the musical sketch being worthy of special mention. Each of the three gentlemen taking part in the trio was presented with a magnificent bouquet. Mr. Jos. Bell acted as chairman, and the programme was as follows;

Pianoforte Duet — Poet and Peasant.—Miss Mabel Gilbert and Mr. R. J Devey.
Tickling Trio. — Messrs. Devey, Chandler and Greenhalgh.
Solo.—Miss Ruth Dawson.
Sketch.—"A Country Courtship."—Mr. and Mrs. Devey.
Musical Sketch.—Mrs. R. J. Devey, Miss Greenslade and Messrs. Chandler and Greenhalgh.
Duett—Messrs Paddock and Greenslade.
Pianoforte Selection —Mrs. Greenslade.

At the conclusion of the programme, an auction sale of the candy that had been left over in the booth, which was so successfully operated during the evening by Misses Roberts, Horsfield and Whitcroft was held, Mr. Greenhalgh showing that he had all the qualifications of a good auctioneer, by disposing of all his stock at prices as lofty as the quality.

The entertainment was one of the most enjoyable of its kind given for some time, and the young people of St. John's church should feel highly gratified at the success which attended their efforts in the closing social entertainment of the season.

More Bones Dug up in the Park

Workman Also Found Gold Ear Ring Yesterday

Bones continue to be found as the work of excavation on the Collegiate Institute proceeds. Mr Harry Evans this morning, noticed the distinct outline in the earth of a coffin about six feet in length. In the same spot were a number of bones, but nothing remained of the coffin.

Dan Sheehan, another workman, yesterday afternoon, picked up a gold ear ring, out of some earth that had been excavated. It was in good state of preservation although it must have lain under the ground for many years.

TO THE PUBLIC

I find that rumors are in circulation affecting my character and questioning my honesty. As I cannot allow such a serious matter to go unchallenged, I place before the public the following affidavit, which covers the period of my life in the city while in the employ of others.

I trust that the statement made in the affidavit will be taken as conclusive.

Respectfully,
J. E. OLES.

AFFIDAVIT.

Mr. J. E. Oles informs me there are rumors in circulation in the city reflecting on his character and honesty while in our employ. In justice to him I freely make the following statement.

Mr. Oles left our employ of his own accord. There was not, nor is not the slightest reflection against his honesty and integrity during the ten years he was in our employment. Therefore, any such rumors circulating to the contrary are entirely without foundation.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true by virtue of the Act respecting extra-judicial oaths.

NEW KING EDWARD SCHOOL WILL SOON BE HANDED OVER TO BOARD OF EDUCATION

Splendid Structure in the South End is a Credit to the City, the Board of Education and the Contractors—Greatest Attention Has Been Paid to Every Detail of the Work—Some Interesting Particulars.

In the course of a few days the new King Edward school in the south ward will be handed over to the Board of Education by the contractors, Rutherford Bros. The building is almost completed, and in a short time, at the end of next week, it is expected, will be ready for the installation of the seats and other furniture fixtures. This done, the school will be ready for occupation. It has not yet been definitely decided when the formal opening will take place, but it will not be long now before the pupils will occupy the seats in the new class rooms, and the sound of their footfalls echo along the spacious halls

How many citizens know just where the new school is located and have viewed it from close range? Or, to put it in the negative, how many citizens do not know where the school is located and as yet have not seen it? Probably a large number will have to confess that they are included in the latter category. Yet the King Edward school is not situated in or out of the way of location, in fact it can be reached very easily. Before commencing the erection of the school, the Board of Education purchased a strip of land containing a little over six acres stretching from George to Park street, a short distance south of Romaine street. It is on this property that the new school is erected. It faces Aylmer street, which thoroughfare has of late been opened out from Romaine street to pass through the School Board's property The building is some distance back from the street, and is most imposing in appearance. A Review representative was shown through the building yesterday, and in view of the fact that it will shortly be formally opened, a brief description of some of the principal features will be of interest to citizens generally. Before going into details regarding the school, it will not be out of place to make mention of its cost, and by whom the work of construction was done. To go back a little further it may be stated that the erection of a new public school in the south end of the city was made necessary by the rapid growth of that section. The other public schools were crowded with pupils and it was felt that something would have to be done to relieve the congestion. A new school in the south end was decided on about a year ago, and preparations were made for carrying into execution the plans that had been formulated. An appropriation of $35,000 was made for the purpose, and unless something unforseen occurs, the cost will not be outside the appropriation The first money expended was for the purpose of the site, $6,000 being paid for the six acres. And looking at it from the present standpoint, the property secured was a big bargain. So rapid has been the rise in the value of property in that part of the city that the Board, after retaining a sufficient amount of land for a site for the school and play grounds of spacious dimensions can sell the remainder of the lot for over $6,000. So the purchase of this property was a splendid investment.

THE CONTRACTORS.

The contract for the building was awarded to Rutherford Bros., the well known contractors of this city. The price was $26,000. Separate tenders were called for the heating and plumbing, and electric wiring. The heating and plumbing was secured by Messrs. McGregor & Reid, while Alexander & Miller were the successful tenderers for the electric wiring. No one can realize how satisfactory each one has done his work until the school is visited.

MR. WM. PRINGLE,
Chairman of the Committee in charge of the new King Edward School, South End.

The King Edward school is a solid brick structure, three storeys high, with a flat roof. It is nearly 100 feet long and over 75 feet wide Lengthwise the building runs north and south with the main entrance facing Aylmer street, which passes by on the east side of the school at a short distance from the building. The exterior of the new school is somewhat plain to look at, and the thought strikes one that the architect has not tried to put on any frills on the outside, and this is so.

WELL LAID OUT.

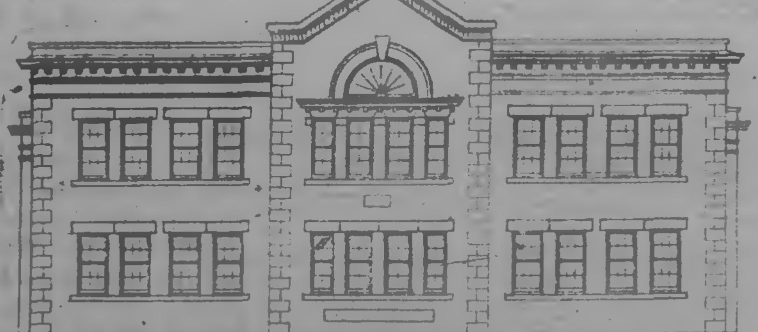
The new school is laid out in such a manner that not a foot of space is wasted. The building, however, when viewed from the outside, is not without beauty. It is an imposing looking structure and has the appearance of being substantial and spacious

The foundation up to the ground level is of cement. For about eight feet above the ground the walls are of Longford stone, and above that they are built of red brick. The first sod for the new building was turned about the first of June last year and work on the structure has has been in progress ever since. Rutherford Bros. sublet the contract for the stone, cement and brickwork to Mr. James Bogue, and the way it has been done is a credit to that well known local contractor. Skilled workmen were employed and the effects of their splendid handiwork are seen everywhere.

The new educational institution is a model in every respect. The plans were drawn by Mr. Wm. Blackwell, of this city, after members of the committee in charge of the undertaking had visited the public schools in Toronto Ottawa Hamilton and other cities and noted the good features of each of them. They incorporated these ideas in the preparation of the plans for the new school in Peterborough, and with good effect.

THREE ENTRANCES.

The school has three entrances, the main one, a handsome arched affair, faces Aylmer street on the east. There are two side entrances, one on the north side and the other on the south. The basement can also be reached by entrances from the outside, that for the boys being on the north side, and that for the girls on the south.



New King Edward School as Seen From Aylmer Street.

THE BASEMENT.

In the basement, which has a smooth cement floor, there are separate lavatories for the boys and girls a play room for each set, where the pupils may play on wet days, or where those who bring their lunch may eat it, a boiler room, fuel room, a hall, passages, etc. The basement is splendidly lighted and the different rooms are spacious and airy. The lavatories are equipped in the most modern manner, and will be perfectly sanitary.

FIRST FLOOR.

On the first floor there are three three large class rooms, 32 by 26 feet, in the south-east, north-east and north-west corners, and a kindergarten room in the south-west corner This room is somewhat larger than the ordinary class rooms, owing to their being a "bay" at the west side of the building, just off the kindergarten room; this adds to the beauty of the school, both from an interior and exterior point of view. A wide hall runs across the building from the north to the south, connecting the two side entrances. There are also a waiting and a supply room.

SECOND FLOOR.

On the second floor there are four class rooms, slightly larger than the ones downstairs. Between the two class rooms at the east side of the building is the library, and similarly situated at the west side, just across the hall is a waiting room for the lady teachers. The hall is similar to the one on the ground floor, the stairs from down below coming up at this side. The third storey is not being finished at present It has provision for four large class rooms, which can be easily furnished when they are required.

TWELVE CLASS ROOMS.

Although only eight class rooms are being finished at the present time, the school in reality is a twelve room one.

Each class room has a large cloak room in connection with it. They are well finished and have an abundance of good strong hooks on which to hang the garments. Each room is also equipped with a closet, divided into two parts, one for holding the teacher's outer garments, and the other portion for storing the teacher's books and other supplies used in connection with her or her work in the class room. The blackboards, of which each class room has a liberal supply are of slate, and are the best that can be obtained. In each room the windows are all on one side, and the seats will be arranged in such a manner that the light will fall over the left shoulder of the pupils. This is one of the features of the lighting system. Coming in this way the light is much easier on the eyes of the pupils.

Nothing has been neglected to make the class rooms perfect in every respect. Those who have seen them pronounce them models.

MAPLE FLOORS.

The floors of the building are all of hard maple, the material for which was selected with the greatest care Of such excellent quality has been the lumber used that scarcely a knot can be seen in the woodwork throughout the whole structure. The floors are as even as a surface of plate glass. The wainscoting is of blackash, the natural grain of which is really beautiful, and the steps are of oak with the rises of ash. The natural grain in these has been a matter of much admiration. The ceilings throughout are metallic and were put in by the Galt Metal Company.

The painting was done by Johnson & Edwards of this city, and it is beyond criticism. The color scheme is most pleasing to the eye. Light blue and white are the prevailing colors and they add brightness to the different rooms.

The roof was put on by Alderman Stewart, of Toronto, to whom the contract was sublet. It is a gravel one of the "hopper" variety. The heating is the steam system, there being radiators in every room. At present there is one large boiler, but provision is made for the installation of a second one if it is found necessary. The ventilation is also up to date in every respect.

MUCH CREDIT DUE.

The greatest credit is due Rutherford Bros and the other contractors for the way the work has been done. Not a flaw can be detected anywhere, and it is doubtful if there is a private house in the city where the workmanship shows such great care No detail has been too small to be overlooked and the result has called forth words of admiration from all those who have visited the school.

The work of construction has been carried on without the least dissension or difficulty. The only trouble was in having the sewer to the school put in but this has been done during the past few days, and all trouble from that source is now a thing of the past.

THE COMMITTEE.

The special committee in charge of the King Edward school consists of Messrs. Wm. Pringle, chairman; Hill. Fair, Burnham, Ackerman and Robinson. To them great credit is due for the manner in which they have done their work. School Inspector D. Walker also lent valuable assistance, and his advice has been found to be of great value on many occasions.

The Peterborough public will get a pleasant surprise when the new school is opened, and they are allowed to inspect it. It is a credit to the city, the Board of Education, and to the contractors.

"Civis" Replies to "Fair Play"

Much Amused at Argument Put Forward by Latter

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—In your paper of yesterday appeared a letter over a signature "Fair Play," which appealed strongly to my sentiment of humor.

In the first place he says "I thought." I would like to remind "Fair Play" that it requires brains to think. He speaks of a class other than Italians, who emigrate to Canada, being asked to pay for the privilege of being here. If he means Englishmen I would say that they are charged nothing and do less than the very industrious Italians. Day in and day out the Italians are on their way to work before seven in the morning, and not only this, but their pay is the minimum. The letter winds up with an appeal to our imagination and a request to give the aldermen a chance. Goodness knows they have had a chance and are having chance enough. He talks as if the people were interfering, but it is just the other way. We observe the use they make of their chance in the passing of the box and sign bylaws and suggesting taxes on bachelors and Italians.

Yours, etc.
CIVIS

Peterborough, April 13.

THE ITALIANS ARE GOOD WORKERS

Another Criticism of Alderman Morgan's Scheme

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I see Ald. Morgan's "fine Italian hand" is busy framing a proposition compelling the sons of Sunny Italy to enrich the city's coffers to the extent of $10 before they can be allowed to work on any civic undertaking. What is the history of the Italians so far as this district is concerned? Have they proved a menace or a burden to the community? Have they ever applied for charity? Have they been the cause of an outbreak of any pestilence? What about their morals? Look up the police court records.

It is said they herd themselves together and live like cattle. Has there ever been any complaints regarding their uncleanliness? Do not other nationalities "bunch up?" In the section of the city in which I reside there are 21 people in one house, and I am informed that in one house in the city 28 souls hibernate. You never see an Italian praying for work and at the same time dodging it. They have proven themselves industrious as well as honest and will never cut wages. Ask any contractor of importance regarding this matter. I believe, Mr. Editor, that they should pay the local poll tax, but the proposition to tax them $10 in order to be allowed to toil with the sweat of their brow is preposterous and not in accord with any definition of British fair play.

Yours, etc.,

Preparing for the Communion

Large Attendance at St. Paul's and St. Andrew's Churches

Services preparatory to communion were conducted in St. Andrew's and St. Paul's churches last evening.

There were good congregations present. In St. Andrew's church Rev J. G Potter, the pastor, preached an appropriate sermon. Eighteen new members were received into the church and will partake of their first communion on Sunday morning.

In St. Paul's church, Rev. A. Bright, preached the sermon, basing his remarks on "The four looks"—Look in, for self examination—look up, for prayer—look forward, to the judgment day—and look to the side, for service in the church, and to the Master. Some fifteen persons were received into membership and will partake of communion on Sunday morning.

Will Preach on Lord's Day Act

Rev. A. H. Brace to Deliver Special Sermon in Park St. Church

Rev A. H. Brace will preach tomorrow morning in Park street Baptist church on "The Trades Unions and the Lord's Day Act." This is in compliance with the Lord's Day Alliance, who have set apart this week all through the Dominion to create a more extensive interest in the Lord's Day—its defence and due observance. The response is very general and its reflex influence will be a power.

ART IN THE SCHOOLS

The citizens of Peterborough are deeply indebted to Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal, for the excellent and instructive addresses that he has delivered in the city during the past week. His lectures on Tennyson's "In Memoriam" have proved to be decided treats and reveal a thorough acquaintanceship and familiarity with the immortal masterpiece of the late poet laureate. The attendance at the lectures has been the most gratifying evidence of appreciation that the public can show toward the effort of Dr. Symonds, who holds a very high place in the confidence and esteem of all the citizens of Peterborough.

Particularly timely and edifying was the address given this week before the Woman's Art Association. The reverend gentleman strongly advocated the teaching of art in the schools and the adornment of the walls with appropriate and attractive pictures. The cultivation of the artistic and the aesthetic appeals strongly to all. It is inherent in our natures. We all love the beautiful and picturesque, but our tastes should be cultivated and educated. Not only the buildings, but the grounds, walls and general surroundings of schools should be made as inviting and pleasing as possible. The school should encourage artistic tastes in connection with its regular work. The work requires patience and perseverance, but will well repay all efforts. The results may be slow at first, but time will demonstrate the wisdom of such instruction. Herein the Woman's Art Association may find a useful, agreeable and pleasant pursuit. Dr. Symonds said that there is a field open at once in the school buildings. Some schools are beautifully constructed, but suitable pictures for the walls are absent. Take one school, he added, and do some work in the line of art with it, and also give three or four instructive talks on the subject of art.

Let school boards and teachers, drive away the suggestive, the vulgar and the base, by appealing to the higher instincts of the pupil and the love of the true, the beautiful and the elevating.

THE LABOR PROBLEM

The proposal of Ald. Morgan to tax each Italian $10, who does not own property or contribute anything to the city treasury, for the purpose of working on the street is rather far-fetched. The genial alderman has come in for a good deal of criticism as a result of his suggestion, and it is not likely in view of the opposition aroused, that he will press the proposed measure. To be sure, certain Italians may not be ideal citizens: they may live cheaply, pay little or no rent, herd themselves together in close quarters and have frequent disputes, but that is no reason why they should not be given work. It would be scarcely fair to tax each scion of the sunny peninsula $10, before giving him a job. Very often sufficient laboring men cannot be obtained in Peterborough to do all the necessary labor on the streets, sidewalks and sewers, and employment must be given to any or all who come along, if public improvements are to be rushed.

Tax-paying citizens, life-long residents of Peterborough, should be given the preference, but when all these have been taken care of, why should not the Italian or any other countryman willing to work, be employed. There is ample work for all, but in case there is not, give local residents the preference. There is no use adopting a dog-in-the-manger policy. If the finances of the Board of Works will not permit all applicants to be given work, then the Italian who is not a taxpayer may very well be left off, but, if there is something for all to do, let him assist in carrying it out, without imposing a $10 tax. The proper policy should be "live and let live," but at the same time the street authorities should remember that, in any crisis, "Charity begins at home," and our first duty lies in the interest of our own people. That is no reason, however, for imposing a burden on the foreigner, who behaves himself and is anxious to make a living—which should be the bounden right and privilege of every man.

TWO CITY BY-LAWS

It appears that for some time there has been more or less friction between the civic authorities and certain merchants regarding the overhanging sign by-law and the packing case bylaw. It seems that no boxes must be deposited on the sidewalk after 12 o'clock any time and on Saturday none at all. The retail merchants rightly believe that this is a hardship and, as many of the business men have no rear lane leading to their premises it is impossible to get in goods other than by way of the front door. The merchants are not desirous of blocking the sidewalks. It is an impossibility owing to delays on the part of transportation companies to have deliveries just when wanted. It would take a masterly system to have such regularity and punctuality. The merchants desire that they may be allowed to unpack goods any day, except Saturday up to three o'clock in the afternoon and on Saturday until 10 o'clock in the forenoon. To say that no boxes shall be received on Saturday is an obstacle especially with respect to grocers, who deal in perishable commodities.

As it is now, no goods can be unpacked on the walk on Saturday. The concession asked by the merchants regarding the change of hours is just and reasonable, and they have shown a disposition to meet the City Council more than half way in this matter.

With respect to the sign by-law there can be no objection if the signs are not disfiguring, dangerous or do not block the view of the street. So long as they do not project too far and are of a proper height it is wise to leave well enough alone. Now unless a sign is illuminated it must come down. There are many merchants who cannot afford illuminated signs. They have neat projecting ones and these must perforce be torn down. The appearance of George and Hunter streets at present, so far as signs are concerned, is not disfigured and it would be a hardship to impose extreme measures. The old sign by-law is all right and there is no necessity for tyrannical restrictions. It seems unfair to make flesh of one and fish of another, or in any other words if your sign is illuminated, it can remain peacefully in its position, if not, down it must come, providing that the conditions of the amended by-law are lived up to. A committee of the retail merchants will wait on the City Council on Monday night. Business men have the interest, progress and appearance of the city at heart just as much as the aldermen and will certainly not ask that any one-sided, selfish or backward amendments be put through council. It is as much to the convenience and comfort of merchants as the public that business on the main thoroughfare should not be impeded or interfered with by the unpacking of goods or the presence of offending obstructive, dangerous signs. Surely there will be mutual concessions and the strife on these matters, which has been continued for some time, be brought to an end.

Get together gentlemen of the City Council and gentlemen of the mercantile world and agree.

SOMEWHAT INCONSISTENT.

Some Conservative newspapers are now quoting a speech made some years ago by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in which he discussed purity in public life, saying among other pertinent things; "There must be "offenders in all communities. There "was a Judas among the apostles. "No crime to anybody if any association finds that it has amongst "it a Judas; but the crime commences when the offender, being "detected, instead of being punished, is kept in office." There have been offenders in the Liberal community since the party attained power, many of them. Some of them have been detected. None of them have been punished. On the contrary, offenders have been protected, and in some instances have been rewarded by promotion to better paid offices. In Parliament—both in the House and in the sessions of the committees, the endeavor to cover up the evidence of wrong-doing has been palpable and unblushing.

But this, says the Montreal Gazette, is not a good reason for raking up an old speech of Sir Wilfrid's, made in the days when he lusted for office and found a highly moral tone a cheap and effective weapon. There is nothing to be gained by charging the Premier with inconsistency, for of all of his qualities, good, bad, and indifferent, it is the most conspicuous and most generally recognized. If these newspapers had attempted to convict the Premier of consistency they might have interested public opinion.

CONCERT WAS MUCH ENJOYED

Good Programme at Entertainment of Local Home Circle

A concert was held last evening in the Foresters' Hall, George street under the auspices of Peterborough Circle, No. 193, Order of Canadian Home Circles. Owing to the fact that the night was such a disagreeable one and that there were many counter attractions, the attendance was not as large as at the entertainments which have previously been held under similar auspices. Those present enjoyed a splendid programme and were more than repaid for braving the elements. The programme was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kyle, the well known local entertainers, and they more than excelled themselves last night. No matter in what line they appeared they were simply splendid and were greeted by rounds of applause. It is regrettable that there was not a larger number present to enjoy the excellent entertainment. During the evening refreshments, consisting of coffee, cake and sandwiches were served by the ladies, and altogether the concert was a most delightful affair.

Attractive Fittings of the Royal Bank of Canada

Local Branch Has Most Handsome and Artistic Offices—About $8,000 Expended on the Quarters of This Progressive Institution.

The work in connection with the furnishings and fittings of the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, which opened an agency in Peterborough a few weeks ago, has been completed and the quarters are among the most attractive and up-to-date in the province.

No detail has been overlooked. The expenditure in connection with the alterations to the building and the elaborate fittings and furnishings has been about $8,000.

The bank is located at 131-133 Hunter street in the stores formerly occupied by R. J. Soden, stationer, and Joseph Mitchell, barber. The two places of business were combined; the interior dimensions are 75 x 40. The front is imposing, being of brown stone with two splendid windows and heavy oak doors. On the glass of the latter appears the coat of arms of the bank. At the entrance will also shortly be placed two bronze monograms. Over the front is a gilt letter sign on a black smalted back ground "The Royal Bank of Canada." The letters are in square block and the sign, which is attracting a good deal of attention, was supplied by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

The floor of the general office is laid with cork matting, while outside the elaborate fittings is a tiled floor made by the Buffalo Mosaic Co.

The fittings are of weathered oak surmounted by antique copper. The color scheme throughout is of dark green and the metallic work harmonizes with the wood, the ensemble effect being decidedly pleasing. To the left of the entrance is the outer office of manager Mr. V. Eastwood, and adjoining is his private office, which is invitingly fitted up and furnished. Then come the various departments, the wickets and desks being those of the accountant, teller, ledger keeper and savings department. Across the end of the public corridor are the collection and discount wickets. The general office is roomy and well laid out. The vault is directly in line with the front door at the rear of the public corridor and can be easily seen from the street. To the back of the general office is a large room devoted to the books, stationery, etc., as well as desks for typewriting and copying, while behind the vault is a wardrobe of generous dimensions. Downstairs are a lavatory and all other desired conveniences.

At the top of each pillar of the weathered oak woodwork is an electric light each enclosed in a square globe. The walls, up to a height of six feet and over, are covered with dark green burlap surmounted by a chair rail of weathered oak. The beautiful and artistic fittings of the bank were supplied by the Canadian office and school Furniture Co., of Preston, Ont.

The Royal Bank of Canada has made rapid strides of late years and now has 86 branches in Canada and Cuba. Its total assets are $45,000,000. Since opening its doors in Peterborough in December last the local branch has done a most satisfactory business which is constantly increasing. The agency was opened by Mr. J. W. Fulton, who is a thorough banker and possesses an intimate knowledge of finance. He is the acting inspector of the bank and has the happy faculty of making friends with all classes of people. He has opened several new branches and if rumor is correct will soon be given a higher office in the institution which he has served so faithfully and so well. Mr. C. E. Neill, late chief inspector of the bank, was recently promoted to the post of assistant manager. The Peterborough agency is now under the able direction of Mr. Vincent Eastwood, who is a popular business man of keen insight and good judgment. He has taken hold of the office here with enthusiasm and zeal, and although somewhat unorthodox in his methods, is achieving excellent results and manages "to get there" as the saying goes. Mr. Eastwood has a capable and obliging staff, which, owing to the daily growing business the bank is doing will shortly be increased.

A Toronto despatch says,—The tour of the Fall River Association Football Team, champions of New England, through Canada, has been all but completed by Mr. J. A. McPherson of this city. Some friction has arisen through a Preston man coming in at the last moment to arrange dates for the team, after Mr. McPherson had already secured the fixtures. However, the tour has been arranged with the authority of the Fall River Club, and the dates assigned are,—

May 18—At Dundas.
May 20—At Berlin or Guelph.
May 22—At Galt.
May 24—At Seaforth.
May 25—At Toronto Thistles.
MAY 29—AT PETERBOROUGH.
June 1—At Montreal.

A game is also likely to be arranged for Quebec.

CRICKET CLUB HELD MEETING

Boys Under 15 Years of Age Will be Admitted

An enthusiastic meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club was held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. parlors. A large number of the members were present and some new members were also enrolled. The club also decided to admit junior members, that is boys under the age of fifteen years, at a fee of $1.00 per year. Mr. Ed. Wood will retain the office of Secretary, and Mr. Allan Munroe, was appointed Assistant Secretary.

The new bats and other necessary tools for the game are here, and were inspected last evening. Everything points to a most successful summer for cricket in this city. As soon as the weather permits the boys will be out on Nicholls' Oval practicing. No doubt some good exhibitions of the old game will be seen here.

The new members admitted last evening were Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Messrs. T. Rutherford, Horsfall, Col. Miller and S. Ward.

Messrs. Duggan, H. Clarke, C. Hill and R. Baker were appointed a committee to look after the grounds.

Elliott, W. H. Denham, John Crane, W. Stocker, Fred Clarke, W. McIlroy, Geo. Lynch, W. S. Davidson and Dr. Wightman.

GO AHEAD, LINDSAY.

Lindsay might as well as not had some kind of team in one of the series of the C. L. A. this season, as lots of material is drifting round town spoiling for a game. A fair intermediate twelve is available at present, and Lindsay sports may witness exhibitions with outside team, of our national game.

Among the expert players in town we notice; Ryan, formerly of Stouffville, a heavy weight and a clever player; Kelly, of last season's Checkers; Carruth, an old hand at the game; Walter Reesor, the big defence man; "Goosie" Taylor, Chapman, formerly of Sundridge, an expert goal tender; Howard Strickland, a former Port Hope player, now working in town; "Pacer" McDougal, of hockey fame, and many others, both experienced players and material. OBITUARY

WALTER PALMER.

The funeral of the late Walter Palmer, father of Mrs. James Long, 561 Reid street, city, took place on Friday, to Moscow, Addington county. The deceased was well known here having visited Peterborough many times and creating many warm friendships. The late Mr. Palmer was 84 years of age, and passed away on Tuesday last. Mrs. James L. Maude, 14 Park street, is a granddaughter of deceased. A daughter resides in Toronto and a son and daughter at home.

THE PROBLEMS OF SUITABLE DRESS

The red-haired girl will not choose the shades of baby blue, if she is wise, because the contrast will only intensify the red in the hair. The genuine blonde, however, and the fair brunette will find such shades exceedingly becoming. Again, the yellow brons will be positively fatal to both the pure blonde and the blonde brunette. These should select the rich, deep browns, while the true brunette will be a beauty in golden brown.

Dull cadet and navy blues will become either type and green is the especial color of one inclining toward the chestnut blonde. Purples and mauves she can wear also with good effect, but, of course, all shades of red and pink must be strictly avoided. The genuine and semi-blondes may choose from the pinks, blues, mauves, dark browns, greys, dark greens, pale yellows, creams, very dark reds, whites, blacks, and old rose.

The brunette may wear all the foregoing shades except mauve, with the addition of orange and every shade of red. Green, too, should be tabooed, if the wearer-to-be is at all sallow or colorless, as green has a tendency to increase this. Black, too, will have the same effect, and should not be worn unless relieved about the face.—The Delineator.

A Quaker investigating the famine conditions in south-eastern Russia, says there are twenty million people there, who, without help, will not live to see another harvest.

"INSIST UPON OUR RIGHTS."

Plan Adopted By British League of Universal Rights.

"We insist upon our rights," is the motto adopted by a "League of Universal Rights" that has just come into existence in London. Its avowed object is to enforce the fulfilment of duty by public servants, and to see that the fullest possible value is given for money that is paid for services, however trivial they may be.

Among the incidental items in the program of this extraordinary combination of eccentrics are:

To insist on omnibuses stopping when hailed.

Not to alight from any public vehicle until it is absolutely motionless.

When wet weather prevails, to demand a perfectly dry seat outside. It is pointed out that, if the conductor does his duty, waterproof sheets will be thrown over the seats.

Drivers of hackney carriages must at all times produce their book of fares, and, in the case of four-wheeled vehicles, "cabby" is expected to open and close the door when the journey begins and ends.

Railway porters are to carry passengers' luggage to and from the train without expectation of fee or rewards.

Guards will be called upon to eject passengers from overcrowded carriages.

Too Slipshod.

Non-smoking compartments are to be rigidly preserved as such. If any passenger is found to violate this bylaw, his attention is promptly to be drawn to the consequent penalties.

Punctilious attention is to be demanded from waiters at restaurants and clubs. Table napkins are to be regarded as essential to the comfort of the diner, and the service must be rapid and effective.

Letters delivered at clubs are to be carried to the members, and not thrust into compartments, or on a green baize rack, to be appropriated by the addresses.

Milkmen must ring the bells at the doors of their customers, and wait until the summons is answered, so that the milk can be handed in to the servant.

On the other hand, the members bind themselves to equal exactitude.

"We are getting too slipshod," explained Mr. Parfitt, in whose brain the league was conceived. "People seem to shirk their duties, and laws and bylaws are honored in the breach.

"We do not object to tipping, but we do insist that duty should be performed independently of such rewards. The League of Universal Rights will teach, or try to teach, the wholesome lesson of duty."

An Anglo-Saxon Cemetery.

Miss Layard, a Suffolk antiquarian, recently discovered at Ipswich some remarkable Anglo-Saxon antiquities, a description of which she gave to the Suffolk Institute of Archaeology last evening.

Last year the corporation found work for unemployed in levelling an area of town land which covers a rising slope on one side of Hadleigh road and a deep depression on the other. Soon after the operations began the men unearthed three or four skeletons.

Miss Layard's attention was drawn to the locality, and she found that the slope had formed the site of an Anglo-Saxon cemetery. She employed men to work in advance of the town laborers, and up to the present time has opened up 139 graves of men, women and children, which contained skeletons or the remains thereof and many curious relics.

Amongst the latter are numerous spear-heads and knives, the bosses of shields, necklaces of beads, clasps and buckles, double-twisted combs, glass drinking cups, tweezers, and some valuable brooches. The whole form a collection of unique antiquarian interest, and it is believed that the cemetery extended over much more of the ground than has been at present excavated.

The relics are difficult to discern after the lapse of so many centuries, and it is quite probable that the whole would have been thrown away as rubbish if Miss Layard had not detected their real value and significance.

Had a Frog's Heart.

Once again, says the Dundee Advertiser, have the scientists proved to be wrong. Until recently it was thought that a child could only live eight or ten years with what is known as "a frog's heart"—a heart with single ventricle to perform the double purpose of propelling the pure blood throughout the system and sending the impure blood to the lungs for purification. In the normal being these two operations are performed by separate ventricles. In the course of the post mortem examination of a man about thirty-five years old who had suffered from heart disease in one of the Manchester hospitals it was found that he had lived half the allotted span with a heart in all its details like that of a frog except that it was much larger. It is said that such a case is unique in the annals of medical science.

A Refreshing Incident.

The Welland Telegraph says: "A new name has been added to the list of notable women. Mrs. George Law met the Stamford Township Council at its last session, and complained that the assessment on a piece of property owned by her should be raised from $300 to $1,200. Several of the councillors on realizing the full import of the lady's request had to be fanned. In these days when it is considered good form to cheat the customs officers and short change the street car conductors the Stamford incident is particularly refreshing."

Tit For Tat.

Mr. Stubb—Maria, you shouldn't have been so harsh when you discharged the cook. You should have broken the news gently.

Mrs. Stubb—But, John, she didn't break the dishes gently.

Up to the present the ice in Montreal harbor shows no sign of breaking up. Floods are feared later.

Will Make Demand for Release of Harry K. Thaw

Special to the Review.

New York, April 13.—A demand for the release of Harry K. Thaw upon bail, pending a retrial on the charge of killing Stanford White, will be made probably on Monday. District Attorney Jerome will vigorously oppose the release of Thaw, and it believed any Justice will decline to accept bail.

The indications are that Thaw will have to stop in the Tombs until the case is finally disposed of. Jerome is determined, in view of the standing of the jury, seven for conviction to five for acquital, and will prosecute Thaw again.

That the story told on the witness stand by James Clinch Smith, brother-in-law of Stanford White, had a great deal to do with causing a majority of the jurors to vote for the conviction of Harry Thaw, was revealed by juror Brearly.

City Hotels Were Found to Be in First-Class Condition

Sanitary Arrangements Are Good and Bedrooms Are Clean and Airy—Fire Escapes Have Been Provided—Other Arrangements Will be Looked After.

The board of license commissioners made their annual tour of the hotel of the city yesterday and as a result the members have some very nice things to say about the public houses. They found them in a much better condition than a year ago.

Chairman Morrison today said that in some cases the commissioners suggested certain improvements. In two or three instances the lavatory accommodation could be improved and the proprietors were instructed to make changes.

The bedrooms in all buildings were clean and airy and in a good sanitary condition. Some bedrooms, which a year ago, were dark and poorly ventilated, have this season either been used as store rooms or properly ventilated. The kitchens and dining rooms were particularly clean and refect great credit on the good work of the wives and employees of the proprietors. In many places the women were in the midst of house cleaning and the rooms were being papered and painted. The yards of the hostelries were much cleaner than last year. In some cases increased stable accommodation was suggested, so that the farmers' horses would not have to stand out in the sheds in the winter. Sheds were also in good shape and well roofed.

The commissioners paid special attention to the matter of fire escapes in the hotels. Mr. Jos. Stewart the inspector, has given special attention of late to seeing that there were fire escapes and, with the exception of one or two, the hotels have all been provided for in this respect.

Generally speaking, the hotels are better than ever before, and the commissioners consider the local houses are superior to many in cities much larger than Peterborough.

Antidote to Poison.

It is a great thing to thoroughly understand what simple antidote to take if one is so unlucky as to swallow poison of any kind through mistake. Sweet oil is to be found in nearly every house, and half a pint of it, taken immediately, is an effectual antidote to almost all poisons. Anybody with a strong constitution should take a larger quantity of this simple remedy.

Saccharine.

Though saccharine, a product of coal tar, is 220 times sweeter than sugar, there is practically no nourishment in it.

Steel.

At a mild red heat good steel can be drawn out under the hammer to a fine point, at a bright red heat it will crumble under the hammer, and at a white heat it will fall to pieces.

The Awful Carib Fish.

A traveler in Venezuela gives an interesting description of the fish of the Orinoco country. He says the party several times came in contact with the carib fish, which are the most ferocious inhabitants of the water known. The fish are not over fourteen inches long, but they travel in schools. Their teeth are three cornered. Any living object which attracts their attention is attacked with fury. Mr. Thompson tells of an Indian woman who entered the water to fill a bucket. She was attacked by the fish and reached shore only to die in fifteen minutes. The flesh was literally torn from her body. Mr. Dart, who was with Mr. Thompson, caught one of the fish and pulled it upon the bank. He held the carib under his foot while he pointed at the peculiar teeth with his finger. With a quick movement the carib flopped out from under Mr. Dart's foot and seized him by the finger, cutting that member to the bone. The fish frequently have been known to bite ordinary fishhooks in two.

Progress of Dentistry.

Though dentistry became a science under the hand of Professor Richard Owen as late as 1839, there are evidences that it was practiced in a crude way by the ancients. Herodotus refers to treatment of the teeth by the Egyptians, and evidences of attempts to supply artificial teeth have been discovered in ancient skulls and mummies. Galen was the first physician to speak of treatment of troublesome teeth, and Ambroise Pare, in his work on surgery in 1550, makes mention of the preservation of the teeth. It is only since the middle of the last century, however, that dentistry has become a branch of surgical science. Before that time bad teeth were extracted, and mere tooth drawing constituted dentistry early in the nineteenth century. The first dental school in the United States was erected at Baltimore in 1839. In 1845 Cincinnati boasted of a similar institution, and in 1856 a dental school was erected at Philadelphia.

A Gentleman of the Old School.

Lady Dorothy Nevill in her reminiscences tells a story of her father, a gentleman of the old school, "in nankeen shorts, with white stockings and a brass buttoned blue coat, with big collar, over a beautifully embroidered waistcoat." But he swore, after the manner of the age. "He was traveling at night on the continent alone in a post chaise when the postboy, while passing through a forest, began to drive like a man anything but certain of his way. My father's wrath soon rose, and the explosion of strong language which issued from the carriage so alarmed the driver that, murmuring, 'Je ne veux pas conduire le diable' (I will not drive the devil), he pulled up

Good Price for Heavy Horses

Nineteen Sold at McCollum Bros. Sale on Saturday Afternoon

The second auction sale of horses at McCollum Bros. livery barns on Saturday was very successful, although all the horses were not sold. There was a record attendance of farmers and buyers, and for the most part the bidding was lively. The prices ranged from $70 to $200 and 19 animals were sold. These horses were all heavy ones, and there did not seem to be the same demand that there is for light horses. Mr. John Haggart was auctioneer and he proved very satisfactory. Next Saturday the sale will offer 25 light horses, good drivers, and sound in every way.

Nothing has been done with either of these kind offers and the 10,000 Club at the present time is dead.—Port Hope Guide.

Miss Lillian Martin
Mrs. Fred Seydel

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country — they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the organs or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation —but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

Mrs. Fred. Seydel, 412 N. 54th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was in a very serious condition when I wrote to you for advice. I had a serious female trouble and I could not carry a child to maturity, and was advised that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I could not bear to think of going to the hospital, so wrote you for advice. I did as you instructed me and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and I am not only a well woman to-day, but have a beautiful baby girl six months old. I advise all sick and suffering women to write you for advice, as you have done so much for me."

Miss Lilian Martin, Graduate of Training School for Nurses, Brantfo Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"While we are taught in the training schools through the country to look down upon patent medicines, and while the doctors in the hospitals speak slightingly of them to patients, I have found that they really know different. I have frequently known Physicians to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to women suffering with the most serious complications of female troubles displacement of organs, and other disorders. They would, as a rule, put it in regular medicine bottles and label it "tonic" or other names, but I knew it was your Compound and have seen them fill it in prescription bottles. Inflammation and ulceration have been relieved and cured in a few weeks by its use, and I feel it but due to you to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proper credit."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Prisoner's Brother Says He Should be Put in an Asylum

Harry Thaw's Brother Thinks That Is His Rightful Destination.

Jerome Intends to Bring Him to Trial Again For Murder In First Degree—Will Oppose His Release On Bail—Delmas Still Retained As Defending Counsel—Thaw's Mail Falling Off.

New York, April 15.—Setting at rest all rumors as to their present intentions, J. Russell Peabody, associated with Delphin M. Delmas, chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw, said late Saturday, after a 45-minute conference with the prisoner, that an application for Thaw's release on bail would be made.

As to what steps would be taken he declined to say. There were various rumors during the day that habeas corpus proceedings might be brought, and it was said that the Thaw family stands ready to furnish bail in almost any amount to secure the young man's release.

Will Oppose Bail.

District Attorney Jerome announced that he would vigorously oppose granting of bail to the prisoner, and added that he intended to prosecute him for murder in the first degree. This latter assertion was in reply to a suggestion that he had compromised with the defendant's counsel on a plea of insanity, and would agree to send Thaw to Matteawan.

The next interesting development was when Mr. Peabody left Thaw after a late visit, and said in reply to questions as to stories that Thaw had changed his counsel:

"Mr. Thaw authorizes me to say, that up to the present time he has made no change of counsel. You may say that as emphatically as you please. Of course, we don't know what will transpire next week."

"How does Mr. Thaw take the situation?" the lawyer was asked.

Very Much Distressed.

"He is very much distressed and feels very badly about it," Mr. Peabody replied.

Asked about the program for next week, he said:

"We have no fixed program. On Monday we shall get together and decide what is best to be done."

Mr. Delmas had a long conference with Thaw yesterday, and Mrs. Harry K. Thaw saw her husband during the visiting hours.

A somewhat sensational development was the publication of a letter said to have been written by Howard Nesbit, Evelyn Thaw's brother, explaining his position in the case, and asking for money from Thaw.

Altogether, Thaw spent a quiet Saturday in the Tombs, the influx of mail at all deliveries, which has kept him busy since he first went to a cell, was somewhat less. Instead of the 100 letters which he received every morning up to the day of the verdict, but twenty-nine came in the forenoon, and the other deliveries also fell off.

Mrs. Harry K. Thaw was somewhat wan and worn when she appeared at the Tombs, but seemed in good spirits. Other members of the Thaw family remained at their hotel.

Unjust to Convict.

Rome, April 15.—A. Blair Thaw, a half brother of Harry K. Thaw, who has been spending the winter in Rome with his wife and daughter, was questioned yesterday about the result of the Thaw trial in New York. He said:—

"My desire would be to say nothing. The only opinion which I have on the matter, and one which I have always had, is that Harry Thaw should have been put in an asylum long ago, for his own sake and for others' sake. I have nothing to say about the trial, only that it would have been unjust to convict him; because it is a pathological, and not a criminal, case."

ENGINE WRECKS AUTO.

Several Tourists Injured at Crossing Near Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., April 15.—A sight-seeing automobile containing eight or ten tourists, while returning from "The Hermitage," a few miles from Savannah, was struck by an engine hauling three cars at a crossing of the Central of Georgia on Saturday, and the following were injured.

Mrs. E. A. Hitchcock, Burton, Ohio, aged 80 years; Miss Annie C. Hitchcock, hurt internally; Mrs. Mary T. Rourke of Brooklyn, N. Y. Helen R. McManimy, a sister of Mrs. Rourke, was seated with the driver, who pitched her on the tender of the engine, and she escaped unhurt. Miss Hitchcock and Mrs. Rourke may be fatally injured.

Lester Lukens, the chauffeur, and Charles Anderson, the lecturer on the car; R. E. Wallace, engineer of the train; W. E. Jackson, colored, fireman, and George Hubert, the crossing watchman, are under arrest, and are held without bail. The police are searching for the flagman.

Peary's Polar Dash.

Portland, Me., April 15.—Speaking of his forthcoming attempt to find the North Pole, Commander Peary on Saturday said he expected to arrive among the ice-fields the middle of July.

His equipment, he said, would be practically the same as on his recently completed expedition. He will buy 200 dogs when he arrives in Greenland.

He anticipates that the trip might be made in about the same length of time as the 1905 trip, which required about 16 months.

He will follow the same route as on his last attempt.

New Citizens Pour In.

Winnipeg, April 15.—Fully 1,000 British immigrants arrived during Saturday night, almost rivalling the record of last week-end when 1,300 people arrived.

DEFENCE HAS SURPRISE.

Trial of Mattie Perkins For Murder Begins This Week.

Cayuga, April 15.—Great interest is manifested here in the trial of Mrs. Mattie Perkins for the murder of her husband about Christmas time by means of strychnine poison.

It is said that some surprises will develop as the case expands.

The crown's present plans are to give the case to the grand jury on Tuesday. It is expected an indictment for murder will be returned that afternoon or on Wednesday. The trial starts immediately.

Line of Defence.

Medical evidence will be a feature of the proceedings, and it is learned that the defence will not put in much testimony to combat the crown's contention that poison produced death, but will almost admit this, centreing the legal battle on quite another feature of the case, which, it is inexpedient to the interests of both to make public now.

For one thing the crown will contend that the accused purchased poison in Detroit, and it is believed the defence will try to show Mrs. Perkins never visited that city.

An Array of Experts.

An array of medical experts, Dr. Bruce Smith, Prof. Ellis, and Arthur Jukes Johnson, has been retained for the crown. The defence also will have experts.

Crown Attorney Murphy will be assisted by Frank Arnoldi, K. C.

E. F. B. Johnston and his partner, Robert Grant, will defend the accused. The Assizes open here Tuesday.

Justice Mabee will preside at the Assizes.

A Short Case.

Frank Arnoldi, K. C., said Saturday night the case might not last more than two or three days. He described it as a difficult one to handle, for both sides. Mr. Arnoldi goes to Welland to-day to look over the evidence.

WAS IT MURDER?

Blood-Stained Hatchet Found In the House of Koeller.

Stratford, April 15.—The case in which Leopold Koeller is charged with murder has taken a serious aspect. It is announced that a hatchet with blood-stains and flesh clinging to the blade has been found in an adjoining room to the apartment where the Dewing woman met her death.

The hatchet was found buried under a pile of clothing and along with other suspicious circumstances points strongly towards foul play having been committed.

The post-mortem examination was completed on Saturday afternoon, but the doctors, coroner and crown attorney refuse to divulge the result of the examination. It is alleged that an article which might have been used for an improper purpose was found on the floor of the deceased's room, but as it is in the possession of the foreman of the jury, nothing will likely be divulged in this connection until the evidence is taken at the adjourned inquest.

Koeller, who is under arrest, claims that he has nothing to fear, but the discrepancies in his story points to something more sensational than has as yet developed. The hypothesis is that the Dewing woman was dead before her body was burnt. But as the evidence thus far is merely circumstantial, the case is still shrouded in mystery.

SULTAN BECOMING WORSE.

War With Bulgaria May Break Out At Any Moment.

Paris, April 15.—The Memorial Diplomatique says it has learned that the illness of the Sultan of Turkey is rapidly becoming worse and that he is most anxious concerning the revolutionary movement in Asia Minor.

His advisers see only one hope, and that is to provide an exterior diversion in the form of a war with Bulgaria.

Trouble with this country would be already broken out, but for the Sultan's fear that the Bulgarians who are rapid mobilizers would win the first success and that this would be followed by an insurrection throughout the whole of Asia Minor.

In the meanwhile the paper asserts the Turkish reserves are being called out and troops are being hastened to the frontier.

Shot by Strikebreaker.

Boston, April 15.—Several disorders, the result of clashes between sympathizers with the teamsters' strike and strikebreakers were reported to the police yesterday.

John J. Gaffney of New York was arrested at the strikebreakers' headquarters, charged with shooting Spiros Prisnos, who was standing in a doorway across the street from the headquarters watching a crowd, some of whom were hurling sticks and other missiles at the windows. Three or four shots were fired from the building, it is said, and one hit Prisnos in the mouth.

Couple End Their Lives.

New York, April 16.—The dead bodies of John Perrault and his wife were found on Saturday in their bed in a room of an apartment at Madison avenue and 116th street. From an open jet gas was pouring into the room. Beside the bed, on a table, was a chloroform bottle, but the contents had evaporated.

There were rumors of murder, following drugging and robbery, but the police expressed the belief that the case was one of suicide.

Hurt In Runaway.

Belleville, April 15.—As the result of a runaway Saturday morning, Miss Aggie Mather, who lives near Pouchers' Mills, was thrown from a conveyance and suffered a dislocation of the shoulder.

Vote For Strike.

Fernie, B.C., April 15.—The result of the miners' referendum is as follows: Fernie, 741 for strike, 40 against; Michel, 300 for strike, 40 against; Coleman, 280 for strike, 4 against.

Two hundred persons have been drowned in floods, which have swept through the Vardar River valley, in Turkey.

SIR WILFRID ARRIVES

Premier Laurier Receives Hearty Welcome in England.

Met By Canadians—Declines to Discuss State Affairs—Voyage Not Pleasant, But Stood It Fairly Well—Three Royal Blue Carriages Awaited the Party—All In Good Spirits—May Visit Paris.

Liverpool, April 15.—(C. A. P.)—Before 9 a.m. on Saturday a number of Canadians from Liverpool and London were present at the landing stage, expecting the Empress of Britain to land her passengers, but it was two hours or more after the Lucania passengers landed that the Empress passengers disembarked. Among the Canadians at the landing stage were W. L. Griffiths, representing Lord Strathcona; Ald Jury, Clifford Sifton and Captain Kingsmill.

Mr. Barker, secretary of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, was present for the purpose of renewing an invitation to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to visit Liverpool. The Lord Mayor of Liverpool welcomed Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Declined Interviews.

Also, some score of press representatives attempted to interview Sir Wilfrid, who, while exceedingly cordial, declined to say anything only that what he had to say would be said at the conference.

The voyage, said Sir Wilfrid, speaking to the Canadian Associated Press, was not what could be called a pleasant one, but still he stood it fairly well, as did also Lady Laurier. Sir Frederick Borden enjoyed the voyage capitally. All are in good spirits, and eager for the fray.

Three royal blue carriages were supplied by the railway for the Laurier party, and Lady Grey's party.

It is said Sir Wilfrid will visit Paris, but many engagements have yet to be decided upon.

Premier Laurier and his party arrived in London Saturday evening and were met at the railroad station by the Earl of Elgin, Secretary for the Colonies; Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Canadian high commissioner, and other officials.

Canadian Products.

The Liverpool Daily Post understands Laurier and his colleagues will enquire into the effectiveness of the organization established in Britain for placing Canadian products on the British markets.

CHEER GEN. BOTHA.

Premier of Transvaal Welcomed to England by Crowds.

London, April 15.—(C. A. P.)—Gen. Botha, ex-commander-in-chief of the Boer army, and now first Premier of the Transvaal colony under British rule, arrived here Saturday to attend the conference of colonial Premiers. The reception accorded the general at Southampton and in London was remarkably hearty. Great crowds cheered him wherever he appeared. At Southampton he was officially welcomed by the mayor and corporation of that city, and in reply to the address Gen. Botha humorously referred to the previous occasion when, on the battlefield, he had been surrounded by Englishmen against his will. The general added that he was thankful now that he was in a position to allow himself to be surrounded by any number of Englishmen without fear of the consequences.

EDWARD AND EMMANUEL.

Will Meet On Thursday Next At Gaeta—Grand Naval Review.

Rome, April 15.—It was officially announced yesterday that King Edward and King Victor Emmanuel will meet on April 18 at Gaeta. As Queen Alexandra will accompany King Edward, it is expected that Queen Helena will also go to Gaeta.

A grand naval review will be held in the Gulf of Gaeta, the British and Italian sovereigns inspecting from on board their respective yachts the assembled British and Italian squadrons of warships, after which King Victor Emmanuel will entertain the visitors at luncheon on board the Italian royal yacht, Trinacria.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR JONES.

Man Who Tried to Blow Up Hamilton Steel Co. Goes to Pen.

Hamilton, April 15.—Sidney Jones, the Englishman arrested at the Polson Iron Works, Toronto, for attempting to blow up the boilers at the Queen street plant of the Hamilton Steel and Iron Company, appeared before the police magistrate on Saturday morning and was sentenced to two years and six months in Kingston penitentiary.

Killed By Car.

Hamilton, April 15.—At about 11 o'clock last night a Radial car ran over the body of an unknown man at the Beach, near station No. 4. On being picked up, it was found he had sustained shocking injuries, both legs and one arm being completely taken off. He was conveyed to the City Hospital, where he died shortly after admission, and now lies awaiting identification.

$80,000 Fire.

Dalhousie, N. B., April 15.—The Restigouche Wood-Working Co.'s factory caught fire late Saturday evening and was burned to the ground.

A very large quantity of manufactured lumber stored in the building was destroyed. The loss is about $80,000; insurance about $40,000.

Men and a fire engine were sent from Campbellton.

Train Wreck at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, April 15.—The Great Northern Express, which left here last evening at 5.20, was wrecked at a switch near the west yards of the C. N. R., inside the city limits.

Four cars and the locomotive were badly damaged, but no one was hurt.

Miss Mary Hamilton, a young actress, daughter of an Ottawa bishop, is likely to do great things in London, according to press critics.

Seven Men Arrested on a Charge of Keeping Gambling House.

Winnipeg, April 15.—The rooms of the Canadian Stock & Grain Co. were raided again yesterday afternoon, and seven men were taken into custody on a charge of keeping and frequenting a gaming-house.

The men arrested are George W. Wood, Dale A. Smith, Fred McGill, H. Schrivan, George Westaway, H. A. Westaway, H. A. Nichols, and Thos. North.

This is the second visit of the police to these rooms, and upon the occasion of the prior call the books of the firm were seized and have since been in the possession of the law department of the province, and were used in a prosecution which had been pending against illegal transactions in stocks

This time everything in the offices was taken as instruments used in gaming, and, under the law, these goods are forfeited to the crown if the charge be sustained.

Through his counsel, Mr. Bonnar, the defendant, Mr. Wood, has claimed that the moving spirit in the prosecution is malice and desire for revenge.

A DESERVED SENTENCE.

Judge Gives Ten and Seven Years to Woodstock Men.

Woodstock, Ont., April 15.—Charles O'Brien and James Curry were on Saturday sentenced by Judge Britton to ten and seven years respectively in Kingston Penitentiary on a serious charge. The crime was one of the most revolting ever brought to the attention of the presiding judge. The prisoners last November broke into the home of Mrs. J. D. Casler, a highly-respected woman living alone in the outskirts of the city, burglarized the house, and committed the offence with which they were charged. Curry made a confession, and later turned King's evidence in the case against O'Brien.

Shot by Burglar.

New York, April 15.—George Schambacher, a wealthy real estate dealer, 56 years of age, was shot and fatally wounded in the dining room of his home in East 44th street early yesterday. His family believe that a burglar surprised by Schambacher shot him.

In reply to questions the dying man said only: "I've been shot," and pointed to an open window.

Experts Debarred.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—Premier Stolypin's threat to use the palace guards to prevent outside experts from assisting the committees of the Lower House of Parliament was put into effect on Saturday, the guards being ordered to exclude everyone except deputies.

The House was forced to submit to this display of force.

Kills Himself At 83.

Toronto, April 15.—John Bailey, an army veteran, 83 years of age, committed suicide on Sunday afternoon.

Shortly after 3 o'clock he went out into a shed in rear of the house and shot himself, placing the revolver in his mouth.

He had been sick all last week and was very despondent.

Shot Himself In Theatre.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 15.—Robert M. Crow, a nephew of H. C. McEldowny, president of the Union Trust company of this city, who shot himself in the abdomen while in a box watching a performance at a local theatre last Wednesday, died in a hospital yesterday. Crow was 23 years of age.

Shingling a House.

And I looked and beheld seven carpenters shingling a house. They were hauling up bundles of shingles that had been lying in the rain for two days and nailing them on one by one. In a few days the shingling will be done. Then the painter will come along with his ladders and brushes and stains, and $300 will be spent by the owner of the cottage to have it thoroughly dabbed. And in a little while the sun will shine, and all the shingles will buckle, some up, some down, until the cottage will resemble a frizzled chicken. And there will be leaks and cursings and lamentations. Now, brethren, why not be sensible in these small matters? Painters are not needed at all in a case of this kind. Keep your shingles dry; buy a few barrels of stain; soak the shingles in the stain and throw them on the grass to dry; then nail them to the clapboards. They will never buckle, they will never leak, and you have saved $300.

Forest Air.

There is a general impression that the humidity of the air is greater in the woods than in the open fields. This is contradicted, however, by the result of observations made in Germany. It was found there that the humidity, both relative and absolute, was slightly greater in the open than in the woods, and this was true equally in the morning and in the afternoon. As to the temperature of the air among the trees, it was a trifle higher than in the open in the morning and in a more marked degree in the afternoon.

A Comparison.

Thomas Sheridan, the father of Lady Dufferin, once displeased his father, who, remonstrating with him, exclaimed, "Why, Tom, my father would never have permitted me to do such a thing!" "Sir," said his son in a tone of the greatest indignation, "do you presume to compare your father to my father?"

Sincerity.

The only conclusive evidence of a man's sincerity is that he gives himself for a principle. Words, money, all things else, are comparatively easy to give away, but when a man makes a gift of his daily life and practice it is plain that the truth, whatever it may be, has possession of him.—James Russell Lowell.

She'd Keep It.

"But can you keep house?" he asked doubtfully, for he was, above all things, a practical man.

"If you get a house and put it in my name," she replied promptly, "I'll keep it all right enough."

Matters being thus satisfactorily settled, their engagement was announced. —Judge.

"SNAPPED" THE VICTIMS.

Kodak Fiends Pointed Lenses at the Burning Wreck.

Toronto, April 15.—A commercial traveler, E. M. Kane, of this city, was a passenger for Winnipeg when the C. P. R. train was wrecked near Chapleau. Beyond the loss of his baggage, which was burnt, he does not appear to have suffered, but the gruesome sights he witnessed in the death agonies of those who perished in and under the burning cars will never be effaced from his memory.

He said: "The doors had become jammed with the shock and in any event were harder to get at than the windows, which we promptly smashed and climbed out by means of the seats. It was only about two minutes until I was out of the car, and the first thing I saw was the fire, which even then had entirely enveloped the colonist car. In fact, in less than ten minutes the whole car was practically consumed.

"The most marvelous escape was that of the baggageman on the burnt baggage car. This car rolled over twice, and the baggage with which it was filled was smashed all around him, and yet he escaped with a crushed hand.

"An action which was commented upon as being most heartless was that of a couple of kodak fiends from the Pullman car, who took photographs of the fire while it was going on, and the spectacle of these cold-blooded artists focussing their instruments on the parts of the wreck under which the poor victims were pinned were most revolting."

LORD NEVILL GOES DOWN.

Swindled Pawnbroker Out of $2,000—Gave Coal For Jewels.

London, April 15.—At the Clerkenwell sessions on Saturday Lord Wm. Nevill was found guilty of the charge of swindling a pawnbroker and was sentenced to a year's imprisonment.

Lord William Nevill is the fourth son of the Marquis of Abergavanny. He was sentenced to five years' penal servitude on Feb. 15, 1898, for fraud in connection with a promissory note, the prosecutor being Captain Spender-Clay, who in 1904 married Pauline Astor, daughter of Wm. Waldorf Astor.

The crime for which Lord William was sentenced was stealing from a pawnbroker a box containing $2,000 worth of jewelry, by exchanging it for a similar box, apparently containing the jewels, but which, when opened, was found to contain two pieces of coal wrapped in tissue paper.

Many fashionable women attended the trial. Lord Nevill, who was stylishly dressed, bore himself with composure.

The judge, in pronouncing sentence, said he should treat the case as that of any other prisoner, and would give him the same sentence as he would a workingman.

NEW CRUISER LAUNCHED.

"Invincible" One of a Trio of the Largest In the World.

Newcastle, April 15.—The British armored cruiser Invincible was launched on Saturday from the Elswick shipyard.

She is one of the trio of largest cruisers in the world, of which the first, the Indomitable, was launched March 16.

Under the admiralty order the greatest secrecy was observed, in order to prevent any details regarding the new warship leaking out.

Her dimensions are the same as those of the Indomitable, namely, she is 17,250 tons, is 530 feet long, exceeding the older armored cruisers by 50 feet; has turbine engines and is expected to attain the high speed of 25 knots an hour.

The armament of these three cruisers includes eight 12-inch guns, almost equaling the main battery of the Dreadnought.

ANOTHER WRECK ON C. P. R.

Three Passengers Injured, But No Lives Were Lost.

Ottawa, April 15.—Another wreck occurred on the C. P. R. on Saturday, five miles west of Arnprior.

It happened to the Winnipeg express, westward bound, about 4.20 a. m. Five of the passenger cars left the track.

It is said to be due to a broken or spread rail.

Three men were injured, but none of them said to be in a serious condition. They are: John McBride and Charles Burn, laborers, Montreal, and George Belanger

The accident took place near a bend in the road overlooking the Ottawa River. Had it taken place at the bend the cars would have rolled down the embankment into the river.

Attacked by Laborers.

Rochester, N. Y., April 15.—Fifteen Italian laborers employed on the New York Central Railroad refused to obey orders of Foreman Frank Adams Saturday and attacked him with picks and shovels. The men were working near Geneva. Adams escaped to the commissary house, where he secured a revolver and opened fire. Joe Lombard was shot in the breast bone and fell, his companions fleeing. He will probably die. Adams was struck over the head and severely cut.

Electrocuted at 'Phone.

Marlboro, Mass., April 15.—While sitting at a telephone in her home here Saturday night, Miss Anna Greenwood, aged 29 years, fell dead.

It is thought that as she took the telephone receiver from its hook she turned the button of an electric lamp, which was above the instrument, and that her body thus formed a connection between the light and telephone circuit.

Blizzard Stops Shipping.

Escanaba, Mich., April 15.—As a result of a steady blizzard for two days, all ore-shipping operations at the Escanaba docks are suspended. Ore in the deck pockets is frozen solid. Notwithstanding the docks are filled with boats, not a pound of ore has been run in two days. The temperature is close to zero.

An unknown man in Lodz, Poland, ran amuck with a revolver, killed two young Jews, injured three others and then disappeared

SELECTIONS

AMERICAN VIOLINISTS.

New Methods In an Art That Is Old. A Pittsburg Romance.

One of the musical instruments whose popularity never seems to diminish is the violin, alias the fiddle. There is a story to the effect that one of the pioneer settlers of western Pennsylvania gave 1,500 acres of land in exchange for a beautiful instrument made by Steiner, the successor of the renowned Stradivarius, and the land thus given is the site of Pittsburg. Then there is the story of the violin maker in New York who bought up old rafters to turn into instruments, some of his choicest productions being carved out of the wood taken from St. Matthew's, a downtown church razed about half a century ago.

In the country districts the fiddler who presides at dances in barns or town halls is as prominent a figure as ever, and in the schools of music the student of the violin is in a fair way to become the nucleus of the future American orchestra, which today is largely made up of Europeans. In Boston George W. Chadwick, the well known composer, has introduced the practice of using members of the big Symphony Orchestra to sit alongside the pupils composing the Conservatory orchestra and "speed up" the performances. All advanced pupils are required to attend the rehearsals regularly, and the performances are under the direction of Mr. Chadwick himself. There is a good deal of public spirit behind this undertaking, for as the Symphony Orchestra has the support of a banker, Major Henry L. Higginson, so the Conservatory, where this amateur orchestra is training, has a magnificent concert hall, the gift of a Boston merchant, Eben D. Jordan.

Every player in this amateur organization is provided with a fine instrument, if not his own, then one loaned to him. One of the leading manufacturers of violins is authority for the statement that the instruments made in this country are worthy of comparison with any ever made of old and that it is a mistake to assume that the art of manufacturing fine violins passed away with the school of Cremona; hence the assurance that music students in the United States have as many if not more advantages at their disposal than those who study abroad.

In some parts of the country expertness with the violin is a feature of home training, but nowadays American music schools, particularly schools in cities where there are first class professional orchestras, are devoting more attention than ever to the development of players gifted with an aptitude for the art of Paganini.

Iron Production.

The leading technical paper of Germany points out that the United States is striding forward so fast in the production of iron that now it not only leads all the other nations individually, but comes near to surpassing them all combined. In 1905 Germany produced 11,000,000 tons, England 9,500,000, the others smaller amounts down to 47,000 tons produced by India, while the total product of the world outside the United States was 31,000,000. Yet in that same year we produced 23,000,000 tons, more than half the outside world's total product. Figured by percentages, the gains of Canada and Japan are more remarkable than ours. As compared with 1904, Canada very nearly doubled and so did Japan.

Charleston's 3 o'Clock Dinner.

Most of the people in Washington dine between 5 and 7 o'clock. This is called an early dinner, but the Washington people always were a slow set. The usual hour of dining in Charleston is 3 o'clock. It is an old English custom, we believe. At any rate, we fancy it is something of that sort because we cling to it so tenaciously. It is a very inconvenient hour to most people who are engaged in business, but it is the habit and very hard to break. We have the advantage of from two to four hours over the people of Washington, at any rate, because we are just that much ahead of them on the principal feast of the day.—Charleston News and Courier.

Horsehair.

The raw horsehair used in the manufacture of haircloth for upholstering purposes is just now high priced in this country because of the situation which during and since the Russo-Japanese war has prevailed in Russia, whence most of the hair comes. The best of such cloth must have a certain width of weave, which depends upon the length of the hairs, and in this respect the Russian horses are superior, having tails which sweep the ground. Much of the weaving is done in this country. For the narrower weaves of the cloth, used by tailors in lining coats, the hair from American horses on the western plains is used.

Pompous Policemen.

Herr Muerbe, a Dresden schoolmaster, on visiting Halle lately went up to a policeman and, touching his hat, begged in a courteous tone to be directed to his destination. The policeman stared at him and told him that if he desired a reply he must speak more respectfully and take off his hat. This was too much for Herr Muerbe, who asked the policeman not to be insolent. Legal proceedings followed, and the court decided that, while Herr Muerbe was not obliged to take off his hat when addressing a policeman, he must pay a fine for using the word "insolent."

COROT'S RUSTIC HABITS.

How the Artist Came to Live the Life of a Peasant.

Corot's father was a little, dry, thin old man, whose correct appearance, precise gestures and short speech were in singular contrast to the geniality and jovial ways of Camille. He was the typical business man. He wished his son to go into business and apprenticed him to a wholesale cloth merchant. Camille, who dreamed only of painting, conceived a violent aversion to commerce and seized every opportunity to escape from the shop and go up to his room to copy drawings. His employer was very dissatisfied with him and complained to his father, who reprimanded him severely. At last one day the young man did not go to business and told his father that he must follow his vocation, even if it brought him misery. Seeing that nothing could alter this decision, "Very well," the father answered. "I will give you 1,200 francs annually—not a centime more—and you will make the best you can of it."

Camille leaped for joy. He immediately made preparations for departure, left home and installed himself in the little hamlet of Morvan, at a farrier's whose numerous family was crowded into the only room, which was the forge. Corot there contracted the habits of the peasantry, which he retained ever after. He had no needs, lived only for his art and found complete happiness in it.

For a long time Corot remained at the farrier's, satisfied with the coarse food, happy in his liberty and feeling rich with his modest allowance. Endowed with robust health and being jovial by nature, he always sang while he worked, and his gayety never deserted him.

At his father's death Corot found himself possessed of a revenue of 40,000 francs, but this opulence did not change his rustic habits. He continued his simple and laborious life. Always up before dawn, he put on the peasant's clothes that he wore all his life, ate his soup, lit his pipe and with his box in his hand and his easel on his shoulder started for his work, his sonorous voice ringing out joyously.—G. Chardin in Putnam's Monthly.

Kean's Love Drama.

There was little that was romantic in the first meeting of Kean, the great tragedian, and the woman who was to bear his name. It was on the stage of the Cheltenham theater that Charles Kean and Miss Chambers, a pretty young actress, first saw each other. "Who is that shabby little man with the brilliant eyes?" Miss Chambers asked in the hearing of the king of the stage. "And who," Kean retorted by asking aloud, "is that odd little woman?" From this singularly inauspicious opening Kean's love drama proceeded so swiftly that before a month had gone the curtain was rung down at the altar.

The Huns.

The first mention of the Huns in history is in China, B. C. 210. They conquered that country and were afterward driven out by the Celestials and marched clear across Asia, penetrating the country now known as Hungary in 376 A. D. For a time they threatened to overrun the whole of the continent, but were defeated in the heart of France and driven back to the banks of the Danube.

Costly Windsor Castle.

No royal castle has cost Great Britain more in hard cash than that of Windsor, says the London Chronicle. When George IV. announced his intention of making it a family residence parliament granted him £300,000 toward its reconstruction. For four years the work went merrily on under fresh grants, and the king then took possession of the private apartments. That did not end the expenditure however. By the time William IV. had satisfied himself that there was nothing more to be done the castle had swallowed up close to a million pounds.

EATING IN PUBLIC.

The Varied Sorrows of the Critical Man Who Dines Out.

What chance has the diner out of being completely happy? The mere actions of eating and drinking are neither pretty nor conducive to showing people at their best. It is really a most uncouth sight to see a man or a woman stoking food. The necessity of being polite at the same time makes it uncomfortable as well. No sooner have you got into conversation with a pleasant woman than the soup in your mustache stops all inspiration. She despises you for your play with your napkin, and your mustache is out of shape. And who can feel that the evening is going to be what he hoped when he realizes that his shirt front is smirched with some relic of the meal?

Indeed, dinner parties are really a struggle between eating and talking, a struggle which does not always end, as do most things, in the survival of the fittest. As one can't speak with one's mouth full and first hunger must be appeased, conversation and eating go on rather as a game, the one person whipping up some food while the other is speaking and then in his turn speaking in order to enable his partner to get some nourishment. To talk or to eat might be a sensible question at the beginning of dinner, but it is not one likely to be asked. One is seldom sure which is least worth sacrificing, the food or the conversation. How much simpler it would be if we fed apart and indulged in conversation afterward.—Macmillan's.

OBITUARY

EDWIN TAYLOR.

Edwin Taylor, one of the most popular of the G.T.R. engineers, died in Belleville on Friday last. He was well known and highly respected in Peterborough. Speaking of his death, the Belleville Intelligencer says,—

Mr. Edwin Taylor, a well-known G.T.R. engineer and an ex-alderman of the city, died Friday evening, after an illness of some two months. Deceased who was 70 years of age, was born in Cheltenham, Gloucester, England, but had spent the greater portion of his life in this city.

For upwards of 35 years Mr. Taylor was one of the most reliable engineers in the employ of the G.T.R. Company, and had at various times been at the throttle of an engine which was pulling coaches containing notable officials over the line. He was a most careful engineer, and his services were much appreciated by the company.

For some time Mr. Taylor was a representative in the City Council, from Bleecker ward, and in that capacity was ever alert to the city's interests. In politics he was an ardent member of the Liberal party. Deceased was a member of the I.O.O.F., and also belonged for years to the B of L.E. He was a man generous to a fault, ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in need.

Handsome Grant to the Society

Government Gives $200 to Local Children's Aid Society

The Ontario Government has made a special grant of $200 to the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough. A cheque for the amount was received today by Mr. E. L. Goodwill, secretary of the Society, from the Treasury Department. Accompanying the cheque was a letter stating that the Provincial Government was heartily in sympathy with the good work being done by the Children's Aid Society for the young people of Peterborough city, county and district, and expressing the hope that the $200 sent would be of some assistance to the society.

Needless to say the officers of the Children's Aid are greatly pleased with the handsome donation, as it will be of great assistance to them in the great work that is being done. Pressure has been brought to bear on the Government for some time to make a grant towards the society and it is pleasing to note that the Provincial authorities have recognized the claims that were made. To those who presented the claims of the Society to the Government, much credit is due.

BUSINESS SECTION OF HASTINGS BURNED; LOSS BY FIRE IS ESTIMATED AT $75,000

Started at Midnight at Coughlin House and Swept Down the Street to the Corner and Cleaned Out Several Buildings on the Other Side—No Fire Protection Allowed Flames to Spread—Worst Blaze Which Ever Visited the Village—Peterborough Brigade Sent For and Was Ready to Go, but Fire Died Out.

Special to the Review.

Hastings, April 15.—Without exception the worst fire, that ever visited this town, was started last night about midnight at the Coughlin House. From the time it started a favorable breeze fanned it into a roaring furnace and at times the prospect of saving anything within reach of the flames, looked hopeless. The fire raged for several hours and the loss is estimated at about $75,000.

The fire started, it is thought, from the ash barrel at the Coughlin House, and before it was discovered had made considerable headway. A general alarm was sounded and the whole town turned out and hundreds of willing hands were soon on the scene. A bucket brigade was formed to the river and work started in earnest, but the flames were too fierce and the wind too strong to accomplish much, and the hotel was soon a mass of blazing ruins. The wind carried the flames to Buck & Buck's store, and the longer the fire lasted the more rapidly it spread, until Murray's meat shop, William's implement house fell a prey. Then the fire shot across the street and cleaned out T. Howard's harness and express office, P. M. Howard's furniture store, Jas. O'Reilly's grocery, H. A Wilson's gents' furnishings, John Tracey's bake shop and P. M. Howard's general store. Here the bucket brigade got in good work and just at the corner of main street and the street crossing the river, a final stand was made. The wind got down a little, and the fire fighters had got there ahead, with their buckets.

The fire swept along until it reached the corner when it met stiff opposition. There was nothing more to consume unless it got across the street, but the wind was not blowing in the right direction. The post office was ignited, but it was saved as was also W. T. Tate's furniture store. By this time the big fire had practically burned itself out, and the people began to feel that the worst was over. During the latter part of the fire, the walls of P. M. Howard's store fell onto the bridge of the raceway, which feeds the big mills. The bridge was badly damaged, but fortunately no one was hurt.

The rapid spread of the fire was due to a lack of fire protection. The town has nothing with which to fight a big blaze. There is not even an engine with hose, and last night's fire will undoubtedly force the council to put in a modern apparatus. His Worship, the Mayor, when the fire was at its height, feared that the whole town would go, and wired to Peterborough for the fire engine. Word was received that the Peterborough brigade were all ready to entrain the minute the G.T.R. were ordered to furnish the car and engine. But the fire began to die out and the mayor sent back word that the brigade was not needed.

The fire losses will amount to $73,000, made up as follows,—

P. Elmhirst, lessee of the Coughlin House, $5,000. No insurance.

Coughlin Estate, $10,000, partly insured.

Buck & Buck, $15,000., Insured.

T. Howard, $7,000. Insured.

P. M. Howard, $15,000. Partly insured.

John Tracey, $7,000. No insurance.

H. A. Wilson, $7,000. Partly insured.

James O'Reilly, $5,000. Partly insured.

Murray Estate, $1,000. Partly insured.

H. M. Fowlds, $1,000. Insured.

BRIGADE WAS READY.

Fire threatened to destroy the town of Hastings last night. At midnight, those going home could plainly see the rise and fall of the flames as they went from one place to another. The sky was a brilliant scarlet, and a peculiar feature was one slender streak of fire shooting at least one hundred feet higher than any other and lasted for nearly an hour. It looked very much like a gas well on fire. At a quarter to two o'clock the eastern sky was very brilliant, but by a quarter past two, all the reflection had died away and it looked as if the fire had either burned itself out or had been gotten under control.

At a quarter past one, a telegraph message came over the G.T.R. wires for the Peterborough fire engine to be sent down, as it was feared the whole town would go. The message was from the mayor of the town, and the G.T.R. operator immediately communicated with the fire hall. In almost less time than it takes to write it, all the firemen sleeping in the hall were up and dressed and Chief Rutherford was on his way down town. The Chief's first move was to ascertain whether the mayor of Hastings had ordered an engine and car to convey the fire engine and brigade down. The operator replied that he had received none, and the Chief told him to get into communication again. But after half an hour's delay, word came back to get a train ready and hold it for further orders. A few minutes later another message came that the engine was not needed. This was at a quarter past two o'clock, just an hour after the first message.

In the meantime the Chief and six or eight of his men were ready and willing to entrain for Hastings to help the people of that town out. But the Chief would not sound a general alarm or take the engine out without further instructions. The wisdom of this was shown when the message came that the fire was under control. It would have taken fully an hour to load the engine and get it unloaded again at Hastings, and then there would have been no use for it.

Soon after the first word was received by the Chief, Mayor McWilliams was aroused, and he said "By all means go to Hastings with the engine and as many men as possible if they need you." The Mayor then dressed and joined the waiting men at the fire station.

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., was in Hastings yesterday. He says that the fire caused great excitement among the people. It brought many persons from their beds to do what they could to prevent the flames from clearing out the whole village

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun who recently left for Winnipeg, has been called to the bar and has associated himself with the firm of Archibald, Machray & Sharpe. The Winnipeg Free Press says:—

Mr. Dennistoun will take charge of the counsel work for the firm which will shortly be reorganized on the retirement of Mr. Archibald.

The offices of the firm are over the Bank of Ottawa near the corner of Main street and Portage avenue. They are among the finest in the city.

Hard to Provide Necessary Funds

Will Brantford Regiment be Able to Finance Trip to Peterboro'?

No word has yet been received from the 38th Regiment, Dufferin Rifles, of Brantford, regarding the invitation extended them to visit Peterborough on May 24th. However, the prospects do not appear to be very bright for the Telephone City coming here. The Brantford Expositor has the following item in connection with the first spring drill of the Dufferins;

"Colonel Ashton addressed the men, congratulating them on their showing and announcing with reference to the Peterborough trip that the regiment would take it if the funds could be provided. His remark seemed to indicate, however, that the task of raising the required amount presented many difficulties."

Price of Milk to Stay at 6cts

Peterborough householders will have to pay six cents per quart for their milk during the coming summer. This was the statement made to the Review today by one of the leading milk dealers of the city. Last year the price of the lacteal fluid was 5 cents per quart during the summer months, the same as in former years, and those who buy milk thought that the price would take the usual drop again this spring. But such will not be the case.

The milkmen claim that the advances in the price of feed and the higher wages which they have to pay for labor, do not make it possible for them to sell milk at five cents per quart The profit at six cents is also said to be very small,

Domestic Science and Manual Training to be Introduced Here

The teaching of Domestic Science and Manual Training will in all probability be added to the Public School curriculum in Peterborough at an early date. These subjects would have been introduced in the city long before this, were in not for the fact that there was lack of room in the schools. But when the new King Edward school is finished and the six rooms have been added to the North Ward school, things will be different and two or three rooms can be spared for the teaching of domestic science and manual training. Special teachers to give instruction in these subjects will be employed and everything done to make the classes as successful as possible. It is likely that they will be introduced at the beginning of the school term in September. The new school in the South Ward will be opened by that time and there will be less congestion in the other schools of the city.

Domestic Science and Manual Training, are now part of the Public School curriculum in nearly all the cities in the Province. Their introduction has proved a wise move and no doubt this will also be found the case in Peterborough.

Board of Health Discusses Isolation Hospital Again

Resolution Passed Drawing Attention of Council to Last Year's Work—City's Milk Supply Found to be Very Good by Provincial Analyst.

The Board of Health is once more agitating for the Isolation Hospital, which has been considered so necessary for the welfare of the city for so long. The question came up at the meeting this morning, in a general way, and, of course, there is always a good deal to be said about such a question, no matter how often or for how long it has been discussed.

A year ago the Board carried on a very lively campaign. It created considerable discussion throughout the city and the Board even went so far as to have plans and specifications prepared and presented them to the city council for consideration. It was fully expected at that time that the council would act immediately and that the building would be in course of construction by this time The council, however, allowed the matter to drop, but the Board of Health does not intend to have its labor and thought thrown to one side in that manner. To prove to the council that the Board is in earnest, the following resolution was passed;

"That the attention of the city council be again called to the necessity of an Isolation Hospital and to the fact that some time ago the Board sent plans for such a hospital to the council, and that the council be requested to take definite action in the matter without delay.—Carried.

MILK INSPECTION.

Peterborough's milk supply is all right It may be a little short sometimes, but the quality is up to standard and there are no signs of adulteration. Last year Dr. Bingham, medical health officer, supplied the Board with this information from tests he made himself, under instructions from the Board. This did not satisfy some of the members of the Board and the medical health officer was instructed to send samples to the provincial analyst in Toronto. The doctor did this and at the last meeting of the Board a large number of samples were reported on and found very satisfactory This morning the medical health officer reported on thirteen more samples and they were also very good. Dr. Amyot stated that there was no sign of adulteration, while the percentage of butter fat ranged from 5.50 to 3 per cent.

Asked as to what percentage would indicate watered milk the medical health officer replied that anything below three per cent would be regarded as suspicious.

On motion it was decided to publish the report of Dr. Amyot's test of the milk, after the 1st of May, together with the names of the vendors.

An Assault on Mr. Geo. Cochrane

Wm. Duncan Charged With the Offence—Other Cases in Court

Before His Worship, Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, Wm. Duncan, Sherbrooke street, was charged with assaulting Mr. Geo. Cochrane, on Saturday night, while in the discharge of his duties as agent of the Children's Aid Society.

It appears that High Constable Cochrane, was serving Duncan with a subpeona for neglecting a child when the assault took place.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for Duncan and pleaded not guilty, He declined to elect as to how his client would be tried. Mr. Cochrane said that he was not ready to go on with the case and asked for an adjournment. The case was enlarged until Wednesday. Duncan was allowed to go till then.

Constable Cochrane was certainly up against it on Saturday evening. When he went to the house he was greeted by two men, two women and two dogs, and was assaulted by Wm. Duncan. Mr. Cochrane had a warrant issued, and P. C. Meharry arrested Duncan a short time after the assault. It is alleged that Duncan struck Mr. Cochrane, in the face cutting his lip.

SHOULD SEPARATE.

Julia Kennedy charged her husband Samuel Kennedy, with assault. His Worship dismissed the case. Both parties gave evidence contradicting each other. They are continually quarrelling, and His Worship advised them to separate if they could not live peaceably.

OTHER CASES.

Ernest Lowes was up for stealing balogna sausage from Jas. Scott's butcher shop. The complainant was out of the city, so the case was enlarged until Wednesday. Lowes was allowed to go on promising to appear Wednesday morning at ten o'clock

Thos. White was fined five dollars to be paid in ten days, for being drunk in a public place, yesterday. Sunday drunks are rather expensive and the offender will not likely repeat it.

AN IMPORTANT POWER AGENT

The Growing Use of the Electric Storage Battery

The remarkable industrial development which has characterized the past ten years, and bids fair to be past ten years and bids fair to continue indefinitely into the future, has led to a number of interesting situations in the relation of supply to demand, says the Mail and Empire. Probably the most important feature is the question of power. Electric energy, by a natural process of elimination, is regarded as one of the important power agents of the present and future, and the immense strides which have been made in its application, have served to widen its uses to an almost unlimited degree.

Many branches of business experience during certain times of the day a demand for electric power, which is heavier than their machines are able to meet. To meet this condition the storage battery is called into requisition. This permits the storage of power during the long period. when the machines are running under a light load, and the application of the power thus stored whenever an extra demand is made.

In the case of street railway and electric lighting companies, the storage battery has come to be regarded as an almost essential part of their equipment. The exceptionally heavy traffic which occurs at certain hours of the day, notably the period between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m., has created a demand for power which is known as a peak load

The storage battery, which has been receiving its charge during the time when a comparatively light load is placed on the machines, is thrown in to help over the peak, and, discharges whatever power may be required for the heavy traffic, up to its capacity.

An interesting example of this may be found in the city of Toronto. The Toronto Railway Company, in order to meet the extremely heavy demand for power caused by the transference between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m., of a large population, ordered from the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, a battery of the type known as the "Chloride Accumulator." This battery is a most complete equipment, and it carries peak-loads to the extent of 1,500 horse-power for 2 hours continuously. When the traffic is light, as for instance the hours following midnight, the battery can carry the load of the entire system, and it acts as a reserve, with capacity sufficient to permit shutting down one-quarter the total machine output for short periods.

Similar conditions of operation have caused the Montreal Street Railway Company to order from the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, three storage battery units, one each to operate in the St. Henri, St. Denis, and Maisonneuve sub-stations. These batteries are at present being installed, and when in operation, will have a marked influence in improving the street railway conditions in the eastern city.

Numbers of equipments of the "Chloride Accumulator" have been installed in manufacturing plants for lighting the buildings during the dark part of the day in the Winter months and when working night shifts. The success of this type of battery in carrying the lighting loads of isolated plants, has led to its installation in many public buildings and apartment houses, as well as in out-of-town residences. The very small amount of attention that is required, and the long life of the battery, have combined to make the "Chloride Accumulator" an economical feature which goes far to solve the problem of light and power expense.

Closing Lecture on "In Memoriam"

Given by Rev. Dr. Symonds on Saturday Evening

On Saturday evening Rev. Dr. Symonds brought to a close his series of lectures on "In Memoriam"—the main object of which, he said, had not been literary or even philosophic, but practical and religious "In Memoriam" is a poem, but it contains much practical religious thought. It presents a conception of God and Christ and man, and of the spiritual order. He endeavors to show through the medium of his own spiritual and mental experiences, how the anguish of wounded love may pass into the triumph of love over sorrow, time and death. This is one of the great objects in life—is so to use our experiences that they shall become the means of building up our character, like Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior."

Who doomed to go in company with pain,
And fear and bloodshed, miserable train,
Turns his necessity to a glorious gain.
In face of these doth exercise a power,
Which is our human nature's highest dower,
Transforms, transmutes them, and bereaves
Of their bad influence and their good receives.

We have seen how the poem in its introductory stage gives expression to a mood of almost unrelieved sorrow. This is followed by the first cycle, in which the thought of immortality emerges, and is held fast. A more cheerful mood prevails and leads on to the second cycle in which the prevailing tone is that of a quiet and not unhappy retrospection, and a foretaste of a new and even joyful life is experienced.

The importance and the splendor of the third cycle are not often recognized. It is certainly the most difficult to understand; it makes large demands upon the imagination. But if we grasp firmly the poet's object we shall be struck with the grandeur of his conception. It is the cycle of the future, in which there is presented the poet's idea of the humanity which may hereafter be realized, and of which Arthur Hallam is taken as the type. By presenting a glorious ideal, he seeks to stimulate his generation to higher aspirations, and more strenuous efforts.

In studying then the cycle of the future we are to feel ourselves, as it were in a new world. Old things have passed away, all things have become new. This is the spirit of the third Christmas poem, in which the poet will observe none of the old Christmas customs;

"Tonight ungathered let us leave
This laurel, let this holly stand,
We live within the stranger's land
And strangely falls our Christmas eve."

The third line refers to the fact that Tennyson at this time moved his residence from Somersby to the Epping Forest. Now at last he declares that;

"No more shall wayward grief abuse,
The genial hour with mask of mine."

He has done with that morbid grief "which saps the mind." He will cherish the memory of his friend, but with a cheerful attitude towards all the world.

The Christmas poems are swiftly followed by a New Year's poem. This, as we should expect, gives splendid expression to the aspirations of the poet for a new life. It is indeed a noble song, one which everyone should frequently call to mind. He hears the merry bells ringing in the New Year, and thus apostrophizes them;

Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
The flying cloud, the frosty light,
The year is dying in the night,
Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new Ring happy bells across the snow,
The year is going, let him go.
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out the grief that saps the mind,
For those that here we see no more,
Ring out the feud of rich and poor
Ring in redress to all mankind.

Ring out a slowly dying cause,
And ancient forms of party strife
Ring in the nobler modes of life
With sweeter manner, purer law.

Ring out the want, the care, the sin.
The faithless coldness of the times
Ring out, ring out, my mournful rhymes,
But ring the fuller minstrel in.

Ring out false pride in place and blood,
The civic slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease;
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold,
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

The remainder of the lecture was of the nature of comment upon this song. Dr. Symonds pointed out what a tremendous material development had taken place. But had our moral and spiritual development been correspondingly great. He thought not. Here, however, is the ideal, which we can all lay up within our hearts and faithfully strive to realize with unwavering faith in God.

What now does Tennyson mean by

"Ring in the Christ that is to be."

It is quite certain he did not mean that he looked forward to a time when some new spiritual leader should come. Were this the case he would not have written these lines of Christ;

Thou seem'st both human and divine,
The highest, holiest manhood Thou
Our wills are ours we know not how,
Our wills are ours to make them Thine.

On the other hand there are many indications in Tennyson's poetry that he regarded all past interpretations of Christ and His teaching as imperfect. Tennyson's son in his memoirs of his father, writes on this point; "My father expressed his conviction that the forms of the Christian religion would alter, but that the Spirit of Christ would still grow from more to more in the roll of the ages, and he added; 'This is one of my meanings of Ring in the Christ that is to be.'"

"The Christ that is to be" then means the same Christ of whom we read that He went about doing good and that never man spoke as He spoke, but that we shall have a truer perception of what He really was and what He really taught. Some things which we now put in the first place will then be put in the second place. Orthodoxy will be less than high ideals and noble living. To be willing to sacrifice self, to hunger and thirst after righteousness, to be elevated in thought, to be strenuous but simple. The meek and lowly spirit, the love of peace, the struggle after purity—these are the prime things in Christianity.

It is ours to strive to make this vision of the humanity real. All great prophets have seen it and it has been "the master light of all their seeing." Isaiah saw it, the Psalmist saw it, St. John saw it, as the holy city coming down out of heaven. And St. Paul saw it, and most supremely of all described the conquering work of Christ as it goes down the centuries and through the world, "until we all come to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man—i. e., a perfect human race—unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

THE SLENDER MAN

He is the Man Who Cannot Get Suits to Fit Him Right.

The slender man is in a type by himself, and is quite as perplexing to the average tailor as is his opposite extreme, the corpulent man.

The typical slender form has a sloping shoulder, but there are exceptions. Few tailors can make a coat which will fit correctly without fitting too tightly and thus emphasizing the slenderness.

The "Semi-Ready" physique type system has conquered every difficulty and the slender man in Type C can find his exact proportions, just as can the corpulent man in Type F. The Semi-ready tailoring has solved the troubles of the man who has always had difficulty with his tailor.

People of the Motherland Are Looking to Sir Wilfrid

To Assert Canada's Claim Among the Younger Nations.

Morning Post Says Canada Has Rival—Australia Aspires to Leadership of the Colonies — Premier to Make Trade Arrangements With Continental Nations — Brodeur Goes to Russia—Conference Opens To-Day.

London, April 15.—(C. A. P.)—Yesterday morning Sir Wilfrid Laurier attended services at Westminster (R. C.) Cathedral, and afterwards motored around London for an hour or so, accompanied by Premiers Deakin, Ward and Lyne.

The Morning Post says that on the present occasion the Empire looks to Sir Wilfrid Laurier to reassert Canada's claim to the imperial hegemony among the younger nations in a positive, rather than a negative, directions, and adds that since 1902 a rival claimant to leadership has emerged from the southern seas.

It is stated that after the conference Sir Wilfrid goes to Paris and Rome, and expects to be away from Canada for three months.

The Premier expects, while in Europe, to make trade arrangements with several of the continental nations.

Going to Russia.

It is stated that Brodeur is going to Russia after the conference to study the Makharoff icebreakers.

Regarding imperial preference, The Standard hopes and believes a modus vivendi may be arrievd at. Premier Laurier will give away Elizabeth Maud, daughter of Governor Dunsmuir of British Columbia, who will be married on Monday to John Hope, son of the registrar of the Privy Council, at St. Mark's, North Audley street.

The Times' Views.

The Times, referring to the conspicuously important conference, says the issue lies between the severance of partnership.

"At the present rate, of colonial development, the colonies must leave us unless we reconstruct the imperial machinery," it says. The Times looks for the most fruitful progress in the present conference on the question of regularizing it as a nucleus for full imperial consultation.

The conference opens at 11.30 today, when Premier Campbell-Bannerman will give an address of welcome.

Amusing Place is the Capital; Something About the Scandals

Why Accept Emmerson's Resignation and Then Vote Bourassa Out of Order—The Specious Pleas Advanced to Cover up Shady Transactions.

Mr. E. W. Thomson writes the Halifax Herald as folows:—Ottawa is just now an extremely amusing place. This unwonted condition comes of the Fowler charges. There was an interlude of regret and sympathy when Mr. Emmerson resigned. To so many it appears certain that he performed a vicarious self-sacrifice, taking the role of Metius Curtius, that noblest Roman of them all, who in order to save his friends, leaped completely armed into the gulf which had suddenly opened in the forum. Others, since nobody seriously doubts that he can clear his character, reason that he did not plunge to political extinction, but merely to a good foundation for damages from his libel suits, loss of salary being no less obvious than laceration of feelings. Nobody seems callously insensible to Mr. Emmerson's trouble, for he is a likeable man. Believing him to feel and therefore to be innocent, all will rejoice to see him again in possession of his portfolio. But what a reflection on the ministry, if they urged his sacrifice in hope to check inquiry, designing him to serve as scrapegoat. To suppose that ministers really turned one moral hair because of the Gleaner specifications seems childishly absurd to all who remember how calmly they ignored much more distinct charges, with names and places all complete, published some two years ago concerning a "pillar of society" and the cabinet.

Ingenious gossips are undecided between several much propounded theories of the rationale of the ministry's course. One is that only men in dire terror could act so witlessly as to first accept Mr. Emmerson's resignation and then vote Mr. Bourassa "out of order." For a manifest reflection is that the others seemed more afraid after than before Mr. Emmerson departed. If they thought the gulf in the forum closed by his leap, why refuse a second hearing to Mr. Bourassa? It seems impossible to avoid the inference that that the consciously endangered did not go out, but stayed in the cabinet. This brings us to another current theory of these scandalously interesting times.

Critics who have long watched cabinet proceeding are wont to declare that the ministry deliberately act on the maxim "L'audace, et l'audace, et toujours l'audace." Consider, say the theorists the wonderful past. Remember the Crow's Nest Pass coal lands "rake-off," then an unprecedentedly bold grab of swag. Reflect on how audaciously it was defended on the ground that the exploiters actually mined the coal, instead of leaving it unexploited and so denying themselves profit from the rapacity! They employed miners to realize "the stuff" for them—thus they gave employment—that was actually the whole plea for handing over to them some six million dollars' worth of coal lands that might have employed many more men it the government had secured the public in a just share. Skip the Yukon deals, say these theorists, but don't forget the audacity of refusing that investigation which was demanded by Sir Hibbert Tupper, on very specific charges. Get to the Saskatchewan Valley lands case, that delightsome grab of 250,000 acres of homestead land at $1 an acre; the concession made directly contra to the government's avowed and boasted program of "the land for the settler," the swag being sold inside two years at about $7 per acre; the man with the breaking-plow made to whack up this price, he alleged to be quite pleased at not getting his farm as a free grant! this noble deed lauded by ministers on the ground that the tract was either arid or waste, or "at least ministers thought so," therefore they deserved applause for getting rid of it, and "anyhow $1 was such a long time ago," to wit in the preadamite times of 1902-03! Skip the instructive Robins irrigation deal, though it be a lengthy lesson in the art of grabbers, and stock-jobbing; ignore too, the curiosities of the Galway ranche turnover—not that these instances failed of being up to the ministerial standard of audacity, but merely because they were scarcely extraordinary. The perfect, the consummate audacity is declared, by the theorists, to have been that famous refusal to disclose the names of those patriots who disguised themselves as The North Atlantic Trading Co. for the purpose of becoming receivers of some half a million dollars of public money. That appeared to be the limit. But ministers rise on stepping stones of their live selves to higher things. And so we have Mr. Bourassa, the press, the pulpit, public opinion, the opposition, the choleric Star (blazing so angrily that it evidently mistakes itself for a planet), and even the vociferously virtuous Globe of Toronto, all turned down at once on a technicality so thin that the mere imagination of hiding behind it could occur to none but past masters in audacity.

New Minister at Knox Church

Rev. H. J. Keith, M. A. Preached two Able Sermons Yesterday

That Jesus Christ is anxious and willing to save human souls, to bridge the gulf that sin has placed between God and man, was the thought brought out forcibly by the new pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, M.A., late of Smith's Falls, at Knox church last evening. Mr. Keith preached his first sermons in his new charge yesterday, and large congregations listened to him both morning and evening. And the impression made by the new minister was an excellent one, and deservedly so. He is a speaker of unusual ability, and, while he does not strive for oratorical effect, the points of his discourse are brought out clearly, clothed in language that cannot fail to be understood by the auditors. And his sermons yesterday were earnest, well thought out appeals based on good foundations. Thus the new minister at Knox church begins his pastorate under auspicious circumstances and with every omen of a bright future.

THE EVENING SERMON.

At the evening service Mr. Keith's text was the 20th verse of the 3rd chapter of Revelations, "Behold I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me."

In the Bible, said Mr. Keith, there were many notable passages, employed to bring out forcibly certain good truths. A study of the Words reveals the fact that many of these striking passages were prefaced by the word Behold! The verse forming the text was one of these and was worthy of careful analysis. The speaker quoted several other passages from scripture showing that the word "behold" was used as a preface to many striking quotations. The words of the text were not hard of meaning to anyone with a knowledge of the Bible. They were uttered by Jesus Christ and brought out in a striking manner the great truth that Christ was anxious to save the souls of men and to go in unto the sinful and unsaved. They had inspired a great many to portray on canvas a picture that was famous throughout the world. It represented the person of Jesus Christ standing before a closed door overgrown with weeds, and ivy. This represents the heart of the unsaved. In His hand He carries a lantern, bringing out the fact that He is the light of the world; on His head is a golden crown, the ensignia of His kingly authority and His cloak is fastened with a clasp studded with precious stones, representing His priestly riches. On His face is a look of sadness, sorrow for the sins of the world, for though He knocks, the door is oftentimes not opened.

THE SAME MESSAGE.

Christ's message, said Mr. Keith, was ever the same. He wanted to be let into the hearts of men in order that He might save them and that they might break away from the sins of the world. Christ's life was one of sacrifice. In the history of His life in Palestine, as told in the Bible, it was shown that His thoughts were never of Himself, but of those around Him. He healed the sick, fed the hungry, and comforted those in sorrow. His earthly life sacrifice was completed on the cross when He went forth willing to die in order that mankind might be saved. By His death Christ bridged the gulf that separated God and man and made eternal salvation possible. He was as willing to-day as when on earth to go in unto those who opened the door of their heart to His knocking. He was ever seeking and trying to save the siner. Yet some hearken not unto His knock.

In closing Mr. Keith made an earnest appeal to his auditors to listen unto the call of the Master, and to forsake the paths of sin and worldliness and to turn to Jesus before it was too late. He was willing to save those who harkened unto His knock and opened the door of their hearts.

The choir rendered appropriate music at both the morning and evening services. The hymns sung were especially fitting.

CLEVER FORGER NOW IN TOILS

Attempted to Pass Cheque on Port Hope Bank

An important arrest was made at Cobourg by Chief Ruse, upon information furnished by Chief Bond, says the Port Hope Guide.

Yesterday morning a young man called at the Bank of Toronto and presented a cheque made payable to William Green for $175 with the signature of S. O. Taylor attached. Accountant Cary was near the teller's wicket when the cheque was presented and caught a glimpse of the signature. He had the signature card produced and informed the stranger that the cheque could not be cashed. The stranger gave a long story that he had been working for Mr. Taylor and this amount was wages due him. "Nothing doing" replied Mr. Cary and then telephoned for Chief Bond. Before the Chief arrived, however, the stranger made a hurried departure from the bank. A thorough search of the town was made by Chief Bond and Mr. Cary, and they visited all the outgoing trains, but their man was not to be found. In the afternoon the Chief telephoned Chief Ruse of Cobourg, giving a description of the man in question, and asking him to arrest him. In about fifteen minutes Chief Ruse found the man answering to the description, at the Balmoral, and he placed him under arrest.

Chief Bond and Mr. Cary drove to Cobourg, returning with the prisoner about nine o'clock last evening.

A search revealed seven signed cheques and a number of unsigned ones concealed on his person. Six of these cheques were made payable to William Green for $175 each, and drawn on the Standard Bank, Dominion Bank, Cobourg; United Empire Bank, Cobourg; Metropolitan Bank, Cobourg; Bank of Toronto, Cobourg; Bank of Toronto, Port Hope. Two of these cheques bore the signature of James McDougall, two others that of George Chisholm, one with James McDonald, and one with S. O. Taylor. The other cheque was for $15 drawn on the Bank of Ottawa, Cobalt, and signed by Reginald Travers.

During the afternoon he had a cheque for $15 made payable to Reginald Travers, and drawn on the Bank of Ottawa, Cobalt, cashed by the Metropolitan Bank, Cobourg. The prisoner still claims to have an account in Cobalt, and the genuineness of his last cheque is now being investigated.

He gives his name as Reginald Travers and states that he has only been out from England a short time. The prisoner has not that smooth, polished manner, that most of the forgers possess, and from the fact that all the cheque signatures were prefixed by "Mr." shows that he has not been at this work very long.

He was brought up for trial this morning and remanded until three o'clock this afternoon.

Must be Purity in National Life

Rev. J. R. Webb Preached Timely Sermon Yesterday

"There is none greater in this house than I,............... how then can I do this great wickedness and sin against God."—Genesis 39—9.

The above was the text of a forcible sermon at Murray street Baptist church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb. In the course of his sermon Mr. Webb spoke as follows; "From the greatest in our national house we have a right to look for high ideals. A king must be kingly and a prince must be princely. We know that our law makers live 'in that fierce light which beats upon a throne, and blackens every blot,' and because a man's name and character are assaulted, it does not follow that he deserves it. Every good citizen rejoices that a charge and a conviction are not always twins, but righteousness alone exalteth a nation, and the greatest in Potiphar's house ought to tremble to sin because of his very greatness. We like to feel that very jealousy for a country's name which sometimes leaves a man's chair empty until his skirts are clear, and if they cannot be cleared there ought to be no toleration of his presence in the seats of the mighty. Caesar's wife must be above suspicion."

Game Warden Needed at Rice Lake

Keene Gun Club Says There is Illegal Duck Shooting

The Keene Gun Club has protested against what they characterize as neglect on the part of the Government in its failure to appoint a game warden for Rice Lake. They point out that there is considerable illegal duck-shooting going on at that lake at the present time, and, while the members of the Gun Club are anxious to preserve the game and keep the law, they have no means at their disposal for enforcing the law.

The ice is still on the lake, but the creeks running into it are open and the ducks congregate along the shores, and while there are easily shot. The statement is made that both Indians and white men are guilty of the offence of shooting the ducks, during the close season, and it is considered an outrage that no one has been appointed to preserve the law on Rice Lake.—Port Hope Guide.

Bartender Was Too Ready With a Club

And it Cost Him $77 to Have the Affair Settled

During a disgraceful row which took place in Hamilton's hotel at Coe Hill on Good Friday, says the Bancroft Times, Fred Pinner, the bartender, used a club rathers freely, and one of his victims, a young man named Conlon, had to have his scalp sewn up. Bert Woodby also got into a mix-up with Pinner, and his head came in contact with a chair, necessitating a doctor's services. The result was that two charges of assault were laid against the bartender, and there was a big crowd in town on Thursday last to hear the affair threshed out. Mr. A. A. McDonald, of Madoc, was retained for the prosecution, but the parties got together before the case was called, and the plaintiffs withdrew the charges on Pinner agreeing to pay all costs. This latter amounted to about $77—rather an expensive afternoon's sport.

Ontario Bank is Asking for Order to This Effect

The Toronto World says:—The Ontario Bank and John Crane, of Peterborough, have filed a petition at Osgoode Hall, asking for the winding up of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company.

The Company was incorporated in June, 1889, under the name of the Ambrose Winslow Brewing and Malting Co., of Port Hope, with a capital of $100,000.

In September, 1897, the name was changed to the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co., Limited, and in March, 1904, the capital stock was increased to $150,000.

It is alleged that the liabilities are $74,042, of which $62,142 is due the Ontario Bank. The assets are estimated at $59,056. Many Peterborough capitalists hold stock in the company.

The application will be brought before the court on Friday next.

Big Car Ferry Goes to Cobourg

The Cobourg World says;

Last week our member, Mr. J. B. McColl, M.P., received a letter from the Acting Minister of Public Works, stating that the Government had decided to make the necessary repairs to the Cobourg harbor in order that it will answer the purposes of the G.T.R. Car Ferry. An appropriation will be made for that purpose in the supplementary estimates. The Government will not only do the necessary dredging but will complete the harbor as a harbor of refuge. That will involve the extension of the present piers about seven hundred feet. We think this solves the question of who gets the ferry. We must congratulate Mr McColl upon the results of his efforts, not only in succeeding in landing the ferry at Cobourg, but in getting our harbor completed.

The Salvation Army in Montreal is working to raise $100,000 to extend its rescue work.

The Ontario Government has purchased two hundred acres of land for the site of the new Central Prison, off the Kingston Road, near the Halfway House, Toronto.

WHERE THE PEOPLE LOSE

A small but typical instance of how the public are bled by political favorites of the Dominion Goverrment was given before the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa last week. In the course of the enquiry into accounts, Mr. Bennett obtained from one witness a remarkable story of dredging finance The Auditor's report (V. 249) has the following item in connection with the Matchedash Bay dredging. "Eastwood, C. S., Inspector of dredging, August, October, 65 days at $3.00; overtime 64 hrs. at 30c; boat hire, $33.33; rope, $1.50; postage 26c—$239.29.

Regarding the little item "Inspector" Eastwood himself testified. It appears that another inspector paid by the Government was on this ground and the district engineer thought he could do all the work, and this proved a correct opinion. But Mr. Eastwood's employer, a good Liberal, who supplied provisions to the dredges, asked that his bookkeeper should have the job. Mr. Gunn, who ran against Mr. Bennett in the last election and is now a judge, used his influence, and Hyman, against his engineer's advice appointed Eastwood at $3.00 per day.

Eastwood confessed on the stand that he remained in his previous employ and hired the other inspector to do his share of the work at $1.25 per day, Eastwood pocketing the other $1.75. Eastwood occasionally took his wife's canoe and went out to the dredge, where he obtained orders for his employer for provisions and not satisfied with his $1.75 a day rake-off he put in a charge for boat hire. Fearing that there would be trouble if he claimed pay for the use of the family canoe he charged boat hire paid to "L. L. Hubbard," whose name is on the voucher. Mr. Hubbard explained his voucher by stating that Hubbard was his wife's maiden name.

It will be seen that Mr. Eastwood is an apt scholar in political finance. Unfortunately he has less pull than those who have obtained much larger sums of money and therefore an investigation in his case was not forbidden by the majority.

ENEMIES OF PROTECTION

(Montreal Gazette.)

Mr. William Gibson, whose position in business and political life, gives weight to what he says, speaking in the Senate, has alleged that there is among manufacturers of building paper, a combination in restraint of trade, which duly increases the price of its members product to the consumer while depressing the price of the raw material they use. Mr. Gibson, of course, only represented what may be called the prosecution, but what he advanced would justify the finding of a true bill. If there is any defence, it should be made quickly. Such charges, when they are proven, make it hard to uphold the cause of protection. Trade combines are not confined to protectionist countries. Some of the strongest and most effective have their homes in Great Britain, where only revenue is thought of in framing the schedules of customs duties. But in protectionist countries, they have at least a seeming advantage in the tariff that tends to keep foreign competitors out of the market. The present Government, has used this fact, with the consent of Parliament to take to itself an improper power of lowering or removing by order in council the duties on classes of goods in regard to which it is made to appear agreements to unduly raise prices have been made. This and other things are leading people to regard protection as a concession by the country for the benefit of a number of specially interested individuals. Looked at in such light, there is no defence for protective duties. Regarded as the carrying out of a public policy intended to promote diversity of employment and to accelerate the development of natural resources, such duties are justifiable on the broadest grounds. Every combination, such as was lately exposed in Toronto, and is now alleged by Mr. Gibson, tends, however, to increase the number of those who are willing to sacrifice protection piecemeal and to weaken the force of what is said by those who look upon it as a means of securing a national end, not more through the helping of those who have capital to invest in industrial enterprises than by benefitting those who work with their hands and the communities which they live in.

PEN POINTS

Cheer up! Warm weather will come soon.

What will the American papers do for news now, since the Thaw proceedings are over—for a few months.

Cut out the ballot which appears in today's Review and send it marked to the Review office.

Winter had another trial in Peterborough last week, therefore, why should not Thaw have another trial in New York.

Whether you favor open committee meetings of the Board of Education, or whether you do not, mark a ballot and send it in to this office.

That Thaw jury began their session with prayer, when trying to reach a verdict, but found the evidence so conflicting that they ended up with oaths and a disagreement

A reward of $10,000 is offered for information in regard to the whereabouts of four-year-old Horace Marvin, who disappeared from his father's house at Dover, Delaware, some months ago, and though the police of the United States have been appealed to, and governmental aid invoked, no trace of him has been found. The case recalls that of 'Charley' Ross, who, in 1876, disappeared in somewhat like manner from his parents' house in Philadelphia, never to be heard of again alive or dead There are pitiful tragedies in life as curious as the novelist ventures to devise.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Frederick Borden and Mr. Brodeur are now in England at the colonial conference. As Mr. Emmerson's place has not been filled and Mr. Hyman is still away, the great spending departments are now in the hands of acting ministers who know little of the business. Mr. Fielding has the railway department in addition to finance. Mr. Fisher is minister of public works, as well as agriculture. The venerable Senator Scott is minister of war. Mr. Templeman adds the marine department to inland revenue and mines. We have, therefore the estimates of these great spending departments before parliament with no minister to explain how money has been expended or for what purposes the appropriations are required.

Here is an item which local merchants should heed. The other day a merchant in the town of Mitchell saw a farmer receiving goods at the station from a Toronto mail order house. The goods were in his line and the same as he carried in his store for years. He approached the farmer and said; "I could have sold you every article you have there, for less money than you paid the Toronto house, and saved you the freight besides." "Then why on earth didn't you say so?" answered the farmer. "I have taken the Mitchell paper for years, and have never seen a line about your selling these goods. The Toronto house sent advertising matter to me, asking for my trade, and they got it." The same thing is happening every day in other towns. If you have bargains have them put in the papers, so that the farmers can catch on

Small Sized Epidemic of Measles and Mumps in City

Measles and mumps are twin running mates in a slight epidemic of disease that prevails in the city at present. Doctors state that there are numerous cases of both these infections, but that the type of disease is not of a malignant nature and no serious results are feared. The diseases are confined principally to children, although there are a few cases, particularly of mumps among grown-ups.

Measles are prevalent to some extent throughout the whole of the city, but so far the mumps have been confined to east city. However, they are likely to make the rounds of the whole city before the epidemic is over.

It is learned that the prevalence of the measles and mumps is interfering with the attendance at the public schools. Especially is this true as regards the kindergarten classes. Many of the little tots are laid up and are not able to attend school, but they are not seriously ill.

Farewell Address By Rev. A. Bright

Departing Clergyman Refers to the Kindness of Peterboro' People.

There was a large congregation in St. Paul's church Sunday evening, when Rev. Alfred Bright, who has for the past year been assistant pastor, delivered his farewell address, previous to leaving on Thursday for Ingersoll, where he will enter upon the pastorate of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, in that thriving town.

Mr Bright has been an active, earnest and faithful worker and his discourses have been marked by originality, force and sound counsel. He carries with him to his new field in the West, the heartiest well wishes of the members of the church.

At the close of the service last evening, the choir sang very sweetly "God be with you till we meet again," and many in the congregation remained to shake hands with the departing clergyman. He preached an effective and thoughtful sermon on the topic "Christ's law of forgiveness," basing his remarks on St. Matthews, 18th chapter, and 35th verse, "So likewise shall my Heavenly Father, do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not everyone his brother their trespasses."

The preacher drew many useful and timely lessons from the parable of the unforgiving debtor, and pointed out that Christ could not forgive us unless we extended forgiveness to our fellow men.

REV. A. BRIGHT,
Who preached his farewell sermon in St. Paul's Church Sunday evening.

In a few farewell remarks, he said that he had labored in Peterborough for the past year, and his work here had been of the pleasantest character. During the first nine months his time had been spent largely in connection with the Knox church in the south end of the city. Since the separation of that church from St. Paul's at the end of 1906, he had felt it utterly impossible to visit all the four hundred families in St. Paul's church within the three months at his disposal. He said that although he felt there had been very little that was definite or tangible from his labor, he had never worked among people so friendly, agreeable and kind as those in Peterborough. He had received many attentions for which he was deeply grateful and regretted that it was impossible to accept all the hospitality extended. If any members of St. Paul's or Knox church were ever in Ingersoll or the neighborhood thereof he cordially invited them to call and see him. He would never forget the pleasant time and pleasant relations of his ministry in this city.

DISGRACE TO MINITSRY

Young Clergyman Deposed By the Bishop. For Visiting the Tenderloin

New York, April 13.—Rev. W. Howard Mears, curate of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, arrested by the police at a house in the Tenderloin district on March 12th, last, where he had gone in company with a negro woman, was deposed from the ministry yesterday, by Bishop Coadjutor Greer, following a report by a committee of enquiry, appointed to investigate the conduct of the preacher, on the occasion in question. The committee reported that the curate violated his sixth ordination vow, which required that a clergyman, "as far as in him lies, shall make himself a wholesome example and pattern to the flock of Christ."

Rev. Mr. Mears asserted that he was not actuated by any wrong motive in visiting the house in the "Tenderloin," and that his presence there was with a view of making sociological investigations, but he accepted the committee's findings, declaring in writing his withdrawal from the ministry, and forwarded his resignation to Bishop Coadjutor Greer, who then deposed him.

The magistrate before whom Mears was arraigned after his arrest, accepted his explanation of his presence in the "Tenderloin" and discharged him.

WATCHES FOR MIDGETS.

The Stratford Midgets are to be presented with gold watches in token of the appreciation in which they are held by the citizens of the Classic City. No less appreciative are Lindsay citizens, and our runners up will be made the recipients of gold chronometers also. A liberal collection was taken up around town recently, and Mr. Hughan, jeweller, was in Toronto yesterday securing suitable watches to present to the local seven.

By a coincidence at the time Mr. Hughan was purchasing the presents for the Lindsay Midgets, the Stratford man was also laying in a stock of timepieces for the more fortunate western Midgets. The watches purchased are almost identical, the only difference being that the Stratford "clocks" have hunting cases, while those intended for the Lindsay boys are open-faced. The presentation will take place next Wednesday night.—Lindsay Post.

The Lectures Were Much Appreciated

Great Interest Evinced in Rev. Dr. Symond's Course

The course of lectures delivered by Rev. Dr. Symonds of Montreal, last week in the Y.M.C.A. hall, on Tennyson's "In Memoriam," were greatly appreciated and were a decided literary treat. The attendance was very large, each succeeding night, seeing more present than on the previous night. This is the biggest compliment that could be paid the talented speaker. The interest throughout the week, was unabated, and the room adjoining the Y.M.C.A. hall had to be opened during the last few nights in order to accommodate all who desired to hear Dr. Symonds.

Sheriff Hall, the chairman on Saturday night, warmly thanked Miss Helen Davies, Miss Lillian Moore, Miss Gladys Crane and Miss Mattie Robertson for their very acceptable musical numbers, during the week. Dr. Symonds returned thanks to the local press for their admirable reports of his lectures. Votes of thanks were also extended to Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, and others who had been instrumental in bringing Dr. Symonds to the city and affording the citizens such a rare intellectual course on Tennyson's immortal poem. Mayor McWilliams was the mover of a deeply grateful resolution to the Montreal visitor for consenting to come to Peterborough and spend a week here. The resolution was received with cordial applause and suitably acknowledged by the lecturer, who expressed the pleasure it always afforded him to visit his many old friends in the city in which he always had and always would take the most lively interest.

Another Skull Was Plowed up

The contractors for the new Collegiate Institute today, plowed up another skull and some bones. This makes the sixth skull that has been unearthed in connection with the work of excavation. Before operations are ended it is expected that several more may be dug up. As this portion of the old cemetery, formerly belonged to the Roman Catholic authorities, all the bones disinterred are being placed in boxes and will be removed to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Summer schools for instruction in nature study, art, manual training, and household science for teachers and educationalists will be held during the summer vacation at the Normal Schools.

The second regiment of the Canadian Artillery celebrated its jubilee last night by a reception at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, and Lieut.-Col. Hibbard, its retiring commander, was presented with a handsome group photograph of the officers of the regiment.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

Athletic Pastimes That Prove Injurious to Women.

An eminent physician the other day expressed very decided views concerning the inadvisability of girls' teams of basket ball and hockey, saying that girls and women are in great danger of overdoing these sports and are likely to sustain permanent injury.

Let woman rather confine herself to the lighter and more graceful forms of gymnastics and athletics, he says, and make herself supreme along these lines, as she has already done in aesthetic dancing.

Among the athletic sports and games likely to prove injurious to most women if played in the form in which they are played by men Dr. Sargent mentioned football, ice hockey, basket ball, pole vaulting and heavy gymnastics.

These games prove injurious to women, he adds, because of the limitations imposed by their physical configuration, the tendency to become masculine in form and character if they try to excel in masculine pursuits and their inability to bear prolonged mental and physical strain. Nevertheless such sports could be so modified as to meet the peculiar requirements of the sex, with the result that they could be played by women with reasonable hope of physical, mental and moral development.—Boston Traveler.

HOME MANAGEMENT.

The Great Secret of Success Is Tact and Good Temper.

A managing woman is quite a term of reproach, but it ought not to be so, for every wife and mother should try to be this. The fact is that women feel this pretty generally, but a good many have not the tact and wisdom they need to help them in their work.

Management when recognized is always rather resented both by children and grownup people as an indignity, but a tactful woman never lets it be seen, and peace and happiness are assured under her reign. She studies the dispositions of her husband, children and dependents and wins rather than drives. She is gentle and courteous and requests and suggests far more than she commands.

The great secret of successful management at home is to keep your own temper and to take care not to upset any one else's. In the control of her servants the good mistress gives praise where it is deserved and gives credit for good intentions even where the performance has not been wholly satisfactory. If sometimes it is necessary to administer a reproof she chooses a time when she can do so pleasantly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A lotion of equal parts of alcohol and rosewater for bathing the nose after the bath will lessen the oily condition.

Camphor should never be used in tooth powder. It makes the teeth white for the time, but it renders the enamel brittle, so that the teeth decay more readily.

To darken the hair boil one-fourth pound of walnut bark in one quart of water. Add one-half teaspoonful powdered alum to set the color. This will make the hair a dark brown shade.

If soap has a coarsening effect upon the skin it would be well to use it but once a week, using a good cold cream to remove the dust and dirt from the face. Follow the massage with a bath in tepid water and then apply cold water to tone the skin.

The answer to "What are black heads?" is simply an aggregation of dirt, grime and foreign matter. Get your face perfectly clean by constant care with brush, soap and water, and above all keep it clean, for that is the secret of the elimination of blackheads.

Servants In Italy.

Because Italian women have the knack of making their servants practically members of their families, yet keeping them "in their place," Italy is almost the Utopia of housekeepers, says the New York Press. When a girl is employed by an Italian woman she takes up the work with the expectation of continuing it for years. The mistress by keeping a keen eye on the servant's welfare does her utmost to make the girl feel she is one of the family. She lives, travels, prospers and often suffers with the family. She blacks boots, waits on table and looks after the children, and great is the devotion her mistress commands. Higher wages seldom will induce her to leave one position for another.

Ribbons.

Ribbons will become creased in spite of the best care, and a hot flatiron removes but few of these marks of use. A better plan is: Take a smooth quart bottle and fill with boiling hot water. Then wrap a single paper smoothly around the bottle, wrap the ribbon around the paper perfectly smooth and tight and then wrap another paper around this and pin in place. Set it aside a day and night, and the ribbon will be beautifully smooth and new to appearance. Soiled ribbons may be soaked and squeezed in a weak suds and when rinsed and dried ironed in this way. It is a very satisfactory method.

Grease Spots.

Here is a new way to remove a grease spot, which answers excellently: First place a double thickness of blotting paper on an ironing board. Lay the material on this and sponge well with benzine. Now put two more thicknesses of blotting paper on top and iron with a moderately hot iron. Remember that benzine is inflammable, so don't do this near a fire or light and see that your flatiron isn't at scorching heat.

Up to the present the ice in Montreal harbor shows no sign of breaking up. Floods are feared later.

Funeral of Late Edwin Taylor

The funeral of the late Edwin Taylor, who was one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the G.T.R., took place in Belleville this afternoon, at three o'clock. Several members of the railway fraternity from Peterborough went to Belleville this morning to be present at the funeral.

The late Mr. Taylor was for the last forty years in the employ of the G.T.R. as engineer. Montreal and the main line was his first route, but during the past thirteen years his run had been between Peterborough and Belleville. His record in the service was a clean one, and not one complaint was known to have been lodged against his work. His sad death will be regretted by his many friends in the city, among whom he had long been a favorite.

TOM LONGBOAT MAY COMPETE

Indian Runner Will be Permitted to Run at Boston

Boston, April 14.—The entries for the 25 mile Marathon run of the Boston Athletic Association, to be held on Friday of this week, have closed, with 117 prospective starters. This is the largest number of entries ever received for the race, and included in the race will be an unusually large number of Canadian long-distance runners, in addition to the best men of the eastern part of the United States.

The full list of Canadian athletes entered for the race is:—Wm. Lebarre, of the National Athletic Club, of Hamilton; Thomas Longboat, West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto; H. O. Kerr, West-end Y.M.C.A., Toronto; Dennis Bennett, International Harvesters' Club, Hamilton; T. D. Shipman, Gordon Athletic Club, Montreal; and Charles E. Petch, Northend Athletic Club, Toronto.

The Canadian runner, Longboat, is the favorite for the race, and the Boston athletic Club to-day received assurance from the secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union that Longboat would be permitted to run pending an examination of his amateur status. The A.A.U. is still sore because the controlling body of Canadian athletics suspended Longboat on the eve of his race with Nebrich, in New York, and because the Canadians failed to notify the Amateur Athletic Union immediately upon his reinstatement.

It was announced to-day that before, the Amateur Athletic Union permanently reinstated the noted Indian the action of the Canadian body would be fully investigated.

Should Longboat win, as is confidently expected, the prize will be withheld until the Amateur Athletic Union announces its decision in regard to permitting Longboat to compete in meets in this country under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Labarre of the Canadians, has already arrived in Boston, and has jogged over the course two or three times. The spring is not as far advanced as usual, and the course is likely to be somewhat heavy.

Bad Smash-up on Water Street

Two Italians Beat Their Horse and an Accident Occurs

Two local Italians who started on a drive to Lakefield at noon today, met with a bad smash-up on Water street, just a little north of the intersection of Smith street. They had hired a horse and buggy from Mr. Wolstenholm, and started on their trip to the lakeside village. They had been drinking and were feeling in fine spirits, so when they were well north on Water street, they commenced to beat the horse with the lines in order to keep up the excitement. The animal plunged along at a lively clip and the driver losing control, he ran into some trees growing along the street. The buggy was badly smashed and the two occupants were thrown out into the mud. One of them had his hand crushed and the other had his face scratched, besides receiving several other bruises. The horse was also injured to some extent. Mr. Wolstenholm is demanding payment for the damage sustained.

EMIGRATE THE IRISH

W. H. Boyd Would Send Them to Canada in Shiploads.

A London, Eng., despatch says,—Giving evidence before the congested districts commission, W. H. Boyd, representing the Irish Landowners' Convention, said the Irish peasant was too lazy to work, and had become ignorant of agriculture. He would emigrate those people in shiploads and place them in districts in Canada, where land and labor would be procured for them. It might be that they would require several years tuition in agriculture, before they would be able to cultivate the land, but his opinion certainly was, that emigration was better for Ireland, than migration.

A BOY SPY.

An Ottawa despatch says: The boy informer Sullivan, who has convicted many Ottawa saloon-keepers, of selling himself, a minor, liquor, was up in the police court today. The defence succeeded in holding their own and brought out such facts as to the use by the police of the boy that the whole action of the Chief of Police is to be enquired into by the Police Commission. The boy returned home drunk and was on a fair way to criminality, and the police paid him as a spy by odd methods that do not appeal to the public.

OBSERVANCE OF THE LORD'S DAY

The Lord's Day Week, by special request of the Lord's Day Alliance, was duly observed at the Park Street Baptist Church yesterday, by a special sermon in the morning by Rev. A. H. Brace, from the text, Ish. 58.13, "Turn thy foot away from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure upon my Holy Day and call the Sabbath a delight, the Holy of the Lord." The Lord's Day Act and its bearing upon the Dominion and the individual, and the church's action in relation to it, were dealt with.

"This is the day the Lord hath made.
He calls the hours his own,
Let Heaven rejoice, let Earth be glad,
And Praise surround the throne."

A LIFE FOR A DOLLAR

Shanghai, April 15.—Famine conditions are rapidly growing worse. The Relief Committee here is promptly sending supplies to the front, but the funds are nearing the end. A dollar the committee reports, will save one life until the harvest, June 25th, and $10,000,000 is needed. The situation is desperate, and Americans are urged to give three million dollars in the next three weeks. There are fifty missionaries with the higher class of Chinese engaged in overseeing the relief distribution, Confucianists, Catholics and Protestants working together.

NO MAILS FOR FIFTEEN DAYS

Percy Jameson, of Saskatoon Sent a Telegram to His Father

Mr. F. J. Jamieson today received a telegram from his son, Percy, who is at Saskatoon, stating that he is well and everything is all right. The recent snow storms in the west have so effectively blocked traffic of all kinds, that no mail has been received or sent out from Saskatoon for fifteen days. It is three weeks since Mr. Jamieson received a letter from his son, so that the people of this city will be able to form some idea of a western snow storm in the spring.

INSURANCE INQUIRY

Ottawa, April 15.—The attention of the House of Commons has been directed to an item of $75,000 for expense of the royal commission on insurance, Hon. Mr Fielding explained that the total cost of the commission would be $105,000 of which $47,150 had been paid to date. The three commissioners each received $30 a day and moving expenses, and the secretary $15 a day and expenses. As for the legal expenses, Mr Shepley was to receive $100 per day and expenses, with such a general fee as the department of justice might consider commensurate with the responsibility of the work. The chief actuary got $50 a day and his two assistants $20 a day each and expenses. The stenographic work, the sum of $8,955, has been paid.

Another recent arrival from England has complained to County Magistrate Edmison about non-payment of his wages by his employers. WEAK MEN AND WOMEN

The Most Perfect Restorative Known and Invigorating Tonic Vitalizer —Greatest Health-Renewer

Nature's greatest cure for weak, pale men and women is Ferrozone. It is invaluable for run-down, overworked, delicate people, and will restore them to robust health more quickly, at smaller expense, than any other tonic you can select.

We quote the following cases to show what Ferrozone has done for others. In your case it will act just as efficiently:—

FOR BUSINESS MEN

The Experience of a Well-known Lawyer Proves Ferrozone an Ideal Tonic.

Mr. N. W. Burke, a well known lawyer in Meriden, says:—"When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength, and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite, and drove away the nervous, apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger, and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to such."

FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

Nothing Compares With the Nerve-Strengthening Power of Ferrozone.

Mrs. E. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, says:—"I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines I took. But Ferrozone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system, and gradually the irritability left my nerves, and I got well. Ferrozone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble, and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrozone strongly."

THOUSANDS ANNUALLY CURED BY FERROZONE

If you want to get well and keep well, by all means use Ferrozone. If you suffer from insomnia, nervousness, debility, loss of appetite, poor digestion, or any other symptom of disordered blood, nothing will tone up and vitalize your system like Ferrozone. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Land of Ontario Taken For the Petawawa Camp

Premier Whitney Makes Vigorous Protest in the House.

Cool Proposal to Appropriate 55,000 Acres of Land in the Province For Militia Purposes—No Compensation Offered—Power Bill Rules Out Conmee Act — Further Supplementary Estimates—Central Prison.

Toronto, April 16.—"I regret this occurrence. Heretofore our intercourse with the Dominion Govenment has been of a pleasant character. Personally I do not believe that the leader or the principal members of the Canadian Government accord in this arbitrary course. It appeals to me rather as the action of one man—the Minister of Militia, an individual clothed in little brief authority.

"But let me say to the people of Ontario and to the members of this House that the Provincial Government will have no stone unturned to stop this outrageous action by the Minister of Militia at Ottawa (applause). We will go to the foot of the Throne if necessary, and I mistake much the character of British justice as evidenced in the traditions, history and experience of her people, if the property of the individual of the community and of the province is not amply safe against all attempts at gross and arbitrary confiscation."

The Legislative Chamber rang with applause, repeatedly re-echoed, in which several of the Liberal members joined.

The Prime Minister, Hon. J. P. Whitney, did not mince words. The doctrine of Ontario was defined as "what we have we'll hold. He had laid on the table the correspondence from the Secretary of State and Minister of Militia at Ottawa declaring that 55,000 acres in the Petawawa district of new Ontario had been taken over by the Dominion under section 117 of the British North America act for the purpose of "fortification or for the defence of the country."

Disturb Plucky Settlers.

Mr. Whitney pointed out that on this vast territory the Province had numerous outstanding timber licenses, which would come up for renewal on April 30. The stumpage value to the Province was over $100,000 and the dues ranged from $25,000 to $30,000. In addition—and even more serious—hundreds of worthy and plucky settlers had located upon it. They were living out their settlement duties and establishing their little homes. This Sir Frederick Borden, without a word of notice, undertook to confiscate for the purpose of establishing a shooting ground, or something of that character.

"I hazard the opinion," declared Mr. Whitney, "that we have reached a strange stage of affairs in a British country when such an unnecessary, unwarranted and arbitrary action on the part of any responsible Minister will be tolerated for a moment." (Applause).

The Prime Minister roundly scored Sir Frederick Borden. With the insolent assurance that he did not intend to recompense either Ontario or the private individuals he had acted in a wanton and disgraceful manner, taking advantage of his little brief authority to confiscate the land without a thought as to the rights of the settlers, the licenses, or the Province. Mr. Whitney declared his conviction that the clause quoted in the British North America act permitted no such outrage as this. "It neither authorizes nor excuses any such action," he declared amid renewed applause.

Will Uphold Rights.

So far as Ontario was concerned the Province had promptly replied that the territory could not and would not be taken—and Ontario would stand by her rights and the rights of the people. Mr. Whitney declared the whole action was redolent of the animus that pervaded the system of the Minister of Militia, and exonerated Sir Wilfrid Laurier from any connection therewith.

Just prior to adjournment Hon. Adam Beck introduced an important Government measure "an act to provide for the transmission of electric power for municipalities," which got its first and second readings. The bill defines the power of municipalities which have contracted for power with the commission to serve outside municipalities. It enacts that the Conmee clauses cannot apply to municipalities entering contracts with the commission, provides that line loss is part of the cost of operating and will be apportioned among the municipalities and sets forth in detail the proceedings of the municipality and the commission on an application being made for power.

Smoky Chimneys.

The House went again into committee on the municipal amendment act. A modified "smoke clause" was proposed by the Provincial Secretary to take the place of that stricken out last week on the suggestion of the Prime Minister. Under the new clause the person with the offending chimney cannot be prosecuted within 90 days of notice being given him by the officials of the municipality that his chimney is a nuisance. Locomotives and steamboats are excluded from the reconstructed clause.

"Remember that the Municipal Association is formed of reeves and clerks," observed Hon Mr. Mackay. "I am arguing for the people."

Mr. MacKay's declaration succeeded Hon. Mr. Hanna's announcement that the Municipal Association were responsible for the clause providing that no person injured through a defective highway could sue the municipality responsible unless notice of the defect had been given to some municipal officer.

On Hon. Mr. Whitney's suggestion the question was allowed to stand till the third reading of the bill.

Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill to amend and consolidate the law respecting the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was also put through committee without discussion, and got its third reading.

Two bills by Mr. Downey were also put through committee, viz., to amend the municipal light and heat act and to amend the act respecting municipal sanatoria for consumptives.

Further supplementary estimates were brought down totalling $9.050.00, and including a grant of $5,000 to the widow and daughter of the late Speaker St. John.

To Fight the Floods.

Messrs. Racine and Labrosse appealed to the Government for a grant of $30,000 towards fighting the floods caused by the Nation river.

The Prime Minister said he had a personal knowledge of the district and knew the damage done by the floods. So much money had been sunk in similar efforts, however, that Mr. Whitney "hesitated to offer further monetary sacrifice to the floods of the Nation river at the present time." The matter was under consideration.

Central Prison Removal.

Proceeding with the consideration of the supplementary estimates, Hon. Mr. Hanna stated, in response to an enquiry from Mr. Smith (Sault Ste. Marie) that the Government expected at the next session to submit a carefully prepared plan for the removal of the Central Prison. The Prime Minister also intimated that next session a Government plan for further aid to the winter fair at Guelph would be submitted.

The third readings included:

Bill to incorporate the village of Hepworth—Mr. MacKay.

For the improvement of public highways—Mr. Reaume.

Respecting the mortgage of real estate—Mr. Eilber.

To amend the municipal waterworks act—Mr. Torrance.

To amend the act respecting investments by trustees—Mr. McNaught.

EARTHQUAKE IN MEXICO.

Three Cities In Ruins—Many Killed and Injured.

Chilpancingo, Mex., April 16.—This city has been completely destroyed by one of the most serious earthquakes that has ever visited this section.

Up to last night the known dead number eleven, and the badly injured twenty-seven.

A panic prevails everywhere, and people are fleeing to the open country. The earth continues to rock at half-hour intervals, and many minor shocks are completing the work of destruction of the first earthquake.

All telegraph communication with the outside world ceased shortly after 11.50 o'clock Sunday night, when the first shock was felt. The telegraph officers have installed temporary quarters in an open square.

Word has reached here that the Town of Chilapa, forty-two kilometers to the northeastward, has also been destroyed. As yet no details have been received as to the number of dead and wounded, but it is feared the number will be large.

This city is the capital of the State of Guerrero, and four years ago was visited by an earthquake which killed and wounded many of its inhabitants and destroyed a large part of the town. The population of the town is 7,496, and until the panic into which the citizens have been thrown abates it will be impossible to state accurately to what an extent this earthquake has decreased it.

The population of the City of Chilapa is 15,000.

Third City May Be Gone.

Midway between the cities of Chilpancingo and Chilapa is the City of Tixtla. This is a prosperous and progressive community, and as no word has been received from there it is feared that it also has been destroyed.

Judging from the movements of the earthquake, Tixtla would be directly in its line, and if the city has escaped it has been only a miracle.

The nearest big town, Aculpe, is 131 kilometers to the southwest of this place, and has not been heard from.

Both the volcanoes of Colima and Jerullo are in this region, and the people fear that the seismic disturbances may cause these mountains to become more active.

The inhabitants hereabouts are known as "Pintos," because of the spots on their faces. They are noted for their hardy, warlike spirit, and for their stoicism and fanaticism, but the recent catastrophe seems to have completely unnerved them.

Americans In Danger.

The city is located 97 kilometres from the nearest railroad line, and it will be impossible for the people to flee, except on foot or on horseback.

This fact caused a considerable amount of anxiety, because the state is inhabited by a large number of Americans, who are engaged in prospecting for mines.

WRECKERS DITCH TRAIN.

Five Killed, Twenty Injured—Gas Sets Debris on Fire.

St. Paul, Minn., April 16.—While running 40 miles an hour, the Great Northern, westbound oriental limited, which left here for Pacific coast points Sunday morning was derailed early yesterday at Bartlett, N. D.

Five persons were killed and a score or more injured, some of them seriously.

After the wreck, a gas tank exploded and the train took fire, seven passenger coaches being destroyed.

The sleeper and observation coaches escaped the flames.

There is said to be some evidence that the rails had been tampered with.

Officials of the road say that the track in this vicinity had been in apparently first-class condition.

They are unable to account for the wreck on any other theory than it was an attempt of miscreants to wreck the train.

The dead are: W. B. Jones, mail clerk, Grand Forks; four unidentified foreigners, believed to be Greeks.

The wreck occurred on the line dividing Nelson and Ramsey Counties. The mail car jumped clear over the engine and landed in Ramsey County, while the remainder of the wrecked train burned in Nelson County.

Many thrilling escapes and numerous acts of heroism occurred.

Though Mail Clerk Jones was killed his body was recovered by Mail Clerk Fodness, who entered the burning mail car three times to do so. Fodness was severely burned.

News Agent W. H. Green of St. Paul worked bravely in rescuing injured and helping those in the wreckage, although he himself was badly hurt.

One Dead; Ten Hurt.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 16.—Gueseppe Gaspire was killed and ten other Italian laborers were injured in a collision between construction trains on the new Philadelphia and Western Railroad last night, just outside the city limits.

BRITISH STEAMER FOUNDERS.

Three of Her Crew Are Landed at Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, April 16.—The British steamer Andalusia from Swansea, for Barcelona, foundered April 14, off the Spanish coast.

Her captain, first officer and a sailor were picked up and brought here. All the rest of the crew are believed to have been drowned.

The Andalusia was of 1,212 tons net, 287.0 feet long; had 34.3 feet beam, and was 24.6 feet deep. She was built at Newcastle in 1878, and was owned by the Iberian Steamship Co., Limited.

Fourteen miners have been smothered to death by the fumes from a fire in a Mexican coal pit.

CANADIANS BUNCOED

Germans Are Reaping Benefit of British Preferential Tariff.

Foreign-Made Goods Being Shipped to Canada Through English Ports—Mr. Bourassa Would Abolish Preference—The Laughing Stock of the Commercial World — Col. Hughes and the French-Canadians.

Ottawa, April 16.—On motion to go into supply yesterday Mr. Armstrong of Lambton read official communications to show that German and Belgium goods are being transhipped to Canada from England, thus obtaining the benefit of the British preference. Watches, bicycles, carpets and cutlery were among the items mentioned. Razors made in Germany were being shipped to England there stamped with the word "Sheffield." Mr. Armstrong favored a mutual preference.

Mr. Fielding replied that Mr. Armstrong in one breath complained of the German surtax and in the next breath complained that the surtax was not enforced, but that the German imports came in under the preferential tariff. He insisted that no frauds were being practiced, but he would call the matter to the attention of the Customs Department.

Mr. Foster thought that the Government should proceed more vigorously. The people of Canada had been buncoed in the matter of this preference. It only benefitted the British middleman and the German manufacturer.

Mr. Bourassa said a system of lower preferential tariff invited this kind of fraud. England being a free trade country, it was natural that German manufacturers should ship their goods to that country for the purpose of dumping them into Canada. Canada had become the laughing stock of the commercial world. He favored the repeal of the preference.

The Colonel and Ecclesiastics.

A lively debate ensued upon Col. Sam Hughes rising to explain that he meant no offence to his French Catholic friends when he said a few nights ago that the exiled French priests coming to Canada were a curse to the country. He thought that all people agreed that ecclesiastical tyranny was a curse. He did not confine his remarks to any one religion. He believed that the exiled French priests now in Canada were misleading the youth by teaching the French language and disloyalty.

Mr. Bourassa submitted that the remarks of Col. Hughes were inspired by ignorance and bigotry. The French priests had preserved Canada loyal to the British crown.

R. L. Borden paid a tribute to the Catholic clergy of France and quoted from the famous scene between the bishop and Jean Valjean. He criticised Col. Hughes and regretted the phrase that he had used.

Mr. Lemieux also protested.

Col. Hughes repeated that he had nothing to apologize for, but he felt that some members were distorting his remark and making a mountain out of a molehill. He said that he had brought about the sending of Canadian troops to South Africa, although Sir Wilfrid and Sir Charles Tupper had united to oppose it.

Officials In Elections.

R. L. Borden called attention to the fact that Zaccheus Hall, postmaster at Hampton, N. S., had been convicted of bribing in two elections, but he still continues to serve as a postmaster. Two fishery inspectors had acted as scrutineers and canvassers for Mr. Fielding at the last election and a number of other officials and civil servants had taken an active part. He therefore moved a vote of censure.

Mr. Fielding fell back on the old argument that the Conservatives did worse than the Liberals. It was impossible to enforce the rule too strictly against petty postmasters getting $25 a year. Zaccheus Hall had resigned as postmaster.

Mr. Borden's resolution was defeated 40 to 70.

BATTERED BY STORM.

Everything Movable Swept From Deck of Steamer.

St. John, N. B., April 16.—Battered by the terrible storm that has been sweeping the coast of the North Atlantic for the last few days, the schooner Fanny, Capt. Halfyard, from the West Indies, arrived at St. John with every movable thing swept from her decks.

The vessel was almost on her beam ends for twenty hours, and the crew had to smash in the heads of a hundred poncheons of molasses and let it run into the hold, so that it could be pumped out to allow the ship to lift enough to the head to get her under sail.

Will Be Bye-Election.

Fredericton, N. B., April 16.—Yesterday morning Hon. Clifford W. Robinson was sworn in as Provincial Secretary. This makes vacant Robinson's seat in Westmoreland County, and a writ for the bye-election has been issued. Polling will take place on May 7.

Hand Amputated By Train.

Stratford, April 16.—E. J. Blorey, painter and paper-hanger, had his left hand severed by falling from a train yesterday morning. While passing between two coaches, his hat blew off, and, in attempting to recover it, he fell, the wheels passing over his hand.

Strike at Belleville.

Belleville, April 16.—Twenty-five machinists, employes of Marshall and Henthorne's foundry went on strike yesterday for an increase of pay. The men demand 25 per cent. increase. The management offer about 12 1-2 per cent.

Another Fire at McGill.

Montreal, April 16.—The medical building of McGill University was destroyed by fire this morning.

The loss will be very heavy.

John Butler has been appointed police magistrate for Goderich in place of C. A. Humber, deceased.

DELMAS HAS RETIRED.

How Thaw Got Rid of His Leading Counsel.

New York, April 16.—Interest in the case of Harry K. Thaw now centres about the probable changes he will make in his staff of lawyers. While no official announcement has been made in this regard, intimations have come from the lawyers themselves that changes have been made, and that others will follow. Delphin M. Delmas, who led the fight at the recent trial, has, it is stated, severed his connection with the case. In this connection a story of the remarkable proceeding of Thaw, at a critical period of his trial, were published here yesterday.

The story recites that when the trial was resumed after the report of the lunacy commission, Mr. Delmas called Dr. Hamilton to the stand to have him testify as to Thaw's mental condition when the murder was committed. He was just about to question him when he received a note from Thaw, which read: "You are no longer in charge of my case."

Thaw Fired Him.

Delmas, surprised, secured the court's permission to confer with his client, the story states, and when he asked Thaw what the note meant, Thaw is said to have replied: "It means just what it says. You are not going to make those men testify that I am insane. I am sane, and you know it. You are no longer in charge of my case."

Mr. Delmas then asked Thaw for permission to withdraw, but his request was refused. Delmas, under the law, could not voluntarily retire from the case, and Thaw, having told him that he (Thaw) was the leading counsel in his own case, Mr. Delmas asked him what he wished done.

"I want you to take Dr. Hamilton off the stand and begin to sum up for the jury," was the reply.

Delmas thereupon announced that the defendant rested his case, and Dr. Hamilton was excused without testifying.

Daniel O'Reilly makes the announcement that he is now counsel of record for Thaw, and will be in active charge hereafter. He was appointed to that position a couple of weeks ago, he says, succeeding Clifford W. Hartridge. Thaw appointed O'Reilly the day Mr. Hartridge started to cross-examine Dr. Mabon, Mr. O'Reilly says, and tried to frame a hypothetical question which the judge ruled out.

Mr. O'Reilly is authority for the statement that he is the only one of the five lawyers re-engaged, but he says that Thaw is fond of Lawyer Peabody, and that he will be retained.

After a consultation with Thaw, Mr. O'Reilly said that at the second trial the defence will be practically the same as that at the first trial—insanity of the defendant at the time he shot White.

POSTAL RATES REDUCED.

Two Cents a Pound Instead of Eight For Newspapers.

London, April 16.—The postage on newspapers, magazines, and trade journals between Great Britain and Canada will be reduced to two cents per pound May 1, instead of the present charge of eight cents, thus putting Great Britain in a more favorable postal position towards Canada in respect to these classes of publications than any other country.

In making the announcement in the House of Commons yesterday, Postmaster-General Buxton said the concession must not be regarded as a precedent for a reduction in other classes. It was based on the special and peculiar position offered by Canada, geographical and otherwise, by which British newspapers, etc., were unable to obtain a footing in Canada.

The arrangement, Mr. Buxton added, was experimental, and was limited at present to four years.

Accidentally Shot.

Picton, April 16.—B. F. Blakely, a highly respected farmer, 54 years of age, living at Cherry Valley, five miles from here, accidentally killed himself by the discharge of his gun while out shooting muskrats on his farm.

Freight Off Track.

St. John, N. B., April 16.—An eastbound freight ran off the track near Harcourt yesterday, smashing four cars to atoms.

No one was hurt, but the cars sustained much damage.

The late Senator Casgrain, Windsor, Ont., left an estate valued at $10,000. Hon. Thomas Chase Casgrain, Montreal, and Chas. W. Casgrain of Detroit, are executors.

King Edward Extends Welcome To All the Visiting Premiers

Colonial Conference Was Officially Opened in London Yesterday.

Earl of Elgin Presides At Gathering of Premiers—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman Spoke For British Government—Cabinet Ministers Attended—Sessions Will Be Private—To Last a Month.

London, April 16.—At the opening of the Colonial Conference Lord Elgin read a telegram from King Edward welcoming the Premiers and expressing a wish for the success of the Conference. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman followed, welcoming officially on behalf of the Government the Premiers, and the King's telegram was answered in turn by each of them. After the official welcome the British Cabinet Ministers withdrew, and the conference proceeded to discuss the future course of business. It was decided that Ministers other than Prime Ministers and their secretaries should be admitted to the conference; it was also decided that in future meetings of the conference the press would not be admitted. The Canadian Associated Press understands that no decision has been arrived at as to how far future proceedings will be made public, when the conference adjourned.

Reporters Excluded.

London, April 16. The fourth conference between the Premiers of Great Britain's self-governing colonies and the British Colonial Secretary was opened yesterday at the Colonial Office under the presidency of the Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Reporters are not admitted to the conference, so the public will have to be contented with strictly censored official summaries of each day's proceedings until a blue book on the conference is issued, months after its final adjournment.

The Premiers present included Dr. Jameson, of Cape Colony; General Louis Botha, Premier of the Transvaal; Alfred Deakin, the Australian Premier; Sir Joseph O. Ward, Premier of New Zealand; Frederick R. Moor, Premier of Natal, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada. Premier Sir Robert Bond, of Newfoundland, will arrive in the middle of the week. The Premiers were accompanied by their advisers. A number of British Cabinet Ministers attended the morning session.

Premier Campbell-Bannerman opened the proceedings with a speech of welcome in which he outlined the subjects for discussion, such as preferential trade between the colonies and Great Britain and among the colonies themselves, a project providing for a permanent council. Imperial defence schemes and immigration, with minor questions, like penny postage, naturalization laws. The Premier earnestly expressed the hope that the deliberations would have useful results. Each of the colonial Premiers made a brief reply, after which the conferees discussed the procedure and adjourned. Meetings will be held three times a week and they are expected to last at least a month.

Laurier Opposed Publicity.

Premier Campbell-Bannerman's speech yesterday was largely composed of generalities. He only touched lightly on the subject of tariff preferences which to the colonial representatives is the most important matter to come before the conference and one on which they hope an agreement will be reached satisfactory to all parties concerned.

In regard to the decision not to admit reporters to the daily sessions, it is stated that the colonial representatives were as a rule in favor of publicity, but the Home Government was opposed to it, and it is understood that Premier Laurier supported the home officials in this matter

INTIMATE FOR SOME TIME.

Witness Who May Give Damaging Evidence In Stratford Case.

Stratford, April 16.—The cause of the death of Marriett Dewing still remains unsolved. The statement was made yesterday on good authority that Mrs. Dewing was dead before her body was burned.

It has been stated further that Koeller was intimate with Mrs. Dewing many months before the time he stated that he first met her, namely, two weeks before her death. A witness may be produced to show that he had been in her company some weeks previous to the tragedy.

The hatchet which had flesh clinging to it was used for cutting pork. There was no injury to skull or brain revealed at the post-mortem. Nevertheless, it is understood that the crown is in the possession of some important facts for the inquest tonight.

R. T. Harding, who has been retained to defend Koeller, says he would not have taken the case if he believed Koeller guilty.

Seven New Cardinals.

Rome, April 16.—Pope Pius X. held a secret consistory yesterday in the Vatican and created seven new cardinals as follows:

Mgr. Cavillari, Patriarch of Venice.

Mgr. Binaldini, Papal Nuncio to Spain.

Mgr. Lorenzelli, ex-Papal Nuncio at Paris.

Mgr. Lualdi, Archbishop of Palermo.

Mgr. Mercier, Archbishop of Malines.

Mgr. Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa.

Mgr. Aguirrey Garcia, Bishop of Burgos, Spain.

Limitation of Armaments.

Rome, April 16.—From the exchange of official communications between them, it is apparent that Germany, Austria and Russia are unanimous concerning the question of the limitation of armaments at The Hague conference, and that they will permit of a discussion of the question, but not participate in it, not considering the proposition a practical one.

CRACK NUT SUNDAY.

Queer Method of Hearing a Sermon Still In Use In England.

"One fine autumn Sunday I attended a service in a north of England country church that would have driven a New York preacher clean crazy," said the man who travels. "The congregation didn't do a thing but sit around and crack nuts. Fancy a New York minister talking to a crowd of that kind! The modern preacher likes to have things quiet when he talks. It disconcerts him to hear a baby cry or a woman cough or an old man snore. If he is put out by such trifles as these, it is interesting to conjecture what he would do if he were to take hold of a congregation where everybody brought nuts to crack during the sermon.

"Worshipers, it seems, used to do this in England and even in our own states during colonial days. This disturbance was not a weekly occurrence by any means. If it had been, the poor preacher would have undoubtedly left his flock to administer spiritual consolation to suit themselves. But as it happened only once a year he was forced to endure it. This one day which was attended by such remarkable license came the Sunday before Michaelmas day and was called 'crack nut Sunday.' Nobody, no matter how pious he might be, hesitated to avail himself of the peculiar privilege granted him, and men, women and children came to church with their pockets stuffed with nuts, which they complacently cracked and munched during the sermon.

"It was that kind of a sermon that so impressed me with its oddity. It can be easily imagined that when forty or fifty people get to cracking nuts with all their might the noise is apt to be something terrific, and many times the minister was hard put to it to 'hear himself think.' That custom, from being regarded with high favor for many years, finally came to be looked upon as a nuisance, and the habit was suppressed, except in a few remote localities, although the act of suppression was attended with considerable difficulty, so firmly had the nut cracking fever taken hold of the fancy of the people."

TURPENTINE.

Turpentine and soap will remove ink stains from linen.

Turpentine will remove wheel grease, pitch and tar stains.

Clean gilt frames with a sponge moistened in turpentine.

It will exterminate roaches if sprinkled in their haunts.

A few drops on a woolen cloth will clean tan shoes nicely.

A few drops added to water in which clothes are boiled will whiten them.

An equal mixture of turpentine and linseed oil will remove white marks from furniture caused by water.

Ivory knife handles that have become yellow can be restored to their former whiteness by rubbing with turpentine.

Carpets can be cleaned and colors restored by going over occasionally with a broom dipped in warm water in which a little turpentine is added.

Splendors of Cafes.

The cafes and hotels of New York are rivaling each other in the almost oriental splendor with which they have fitted up small rooms for dinner and after theater parties. At one cafe near Broadway the sides of one of these rooms are composed entirely of mirrors, after the French fashion, while the ceiling is covered with green leaves and grapes, bunches of pink and purple grapes of glass, within which are electric lights. The effect is that of a beautiful arbor. Another cafe has mirrors reflecting small red lights throughout the room, while the ceiling, also of mirrors, is an exquisite imitation of moonlight, the effect of which is obtained by electrics inclosed in globes of the color and sheen of moonlight seen through a delicate tracery of faint green leaves.—Exchange.

A Sad Case.

A Chicago physician was one day called to attend a sick child in a "shabby genteel" quarter of the Windy City.

"Madam," said the doctor to the mother, "you should send this child into the country for several weeks each summer."

"I am sorry to say, doctor," responded the woman, "that we are not rich enough to do that."

"Then," suggested the physician, "have her sent by the fresh air fund."

"Oh, doctor," exclaimed the woman, "we are not poor enough!"

Too Selfish.

Citiman—What's the matter with all you Swamphurst fellows? You don't seem to like my friend Bucklots. Subbubs—No; he's selfish. Citiman—Oh, come now! Subbubs—That's what he is. A barn near him caught fire the other night, and he put it out without waiting for the rest of us members of the Swamphurst Hose to reach the scene.

The Comfortable Fortune.

"What is your idea of a comfortable fortune?" asked the ambitious youth.

"One," answered the man of experience, "that is big enough to buy you everything you want and not big enough to attract the attention of the grand jury."

A Novelty.

Guest—I hear you are going to give up housekeeping. Host—Sh! Not so loud! My wife wants to have the satisfaction of discharging the cook.—Puck.

An unknown man in Lodz, Poland, ran amuck with a revolver, killed two young Jews, injured three others and then disappeared.

UMBRELLA AND SHOES.

Their Importance In the Eyes of the Indian Native.

India is so vast that different etiquettes prevail in different districts. We have no standard etiquette, no standard dress. We mostly copy European etiquette while with Europeans. Even a Bengalese shakes hands with a Bengalese, speaks in English for a few minutes and then breaks forth into the vernacular. We shake hands with a European on parting, but by mistake again touch the hand to the brow in a salaam, so we both shake hands, salaam and do the like, and no sober minded European ever cared for the anomaly.

The umbrella is the emblem of royalty, the sign of a rajah, so natives generally fold their umbrellas before a rajah and not before anybody else, however great. It is not a part of the dress, but a protection from the rain or sun, a necessary appendage, just like the watch and chain. You might as well ask a European to take off his waterproof coat. A cooly is not bound to fold his umbrella when a brigadier general rides past. But a menial generally closes down the umbrella on seeing his master, whom he considers his king. But no Indian, however humble, ought to fold up the umbrella, even before a magistrate, because he is neither the master of the humble passerby nor his superior officer, nor is he bound to salaam him. But if he does, no harm. In a word, natives generally fold the umbrella before a master or a superior officer and not any other citizen, however great, and this is no insult.

While going to see a native chief in his palace the native visitor or official takes off his shoes if the reception room has a farash and the rajah is sitting on his musnud. But if he is received in the drawing room, furnished after the European style, the shoes are allowed. In some states no natives can go to a rajah without a pugree. In others the pugree is taken off and tossed at the feet of a rajah.

It is ridiculous in a European (from the Hindoo point of view) to order a native to take off his shoes. This is what we ask our priest to do, so that we may touch the dust of his feet. A munshi when mildly rebuked by his sahib took off his shoes, but recounted the whole scene to his better half, saying, "Sala hamara gor ka gurda lenay magna!" ("The brother-in-law wants the dust of my feet.")—Indian Military Gazette.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

No man ever landed a particularly easy position by trying to dodge work.

Almost every man imagines he would do a lot of philanthropic stunts if he had the money.

Why is it that the people with nothing to do but sit around and visit are such dreadful bores?

Some people imagine that by being impudent they are showing others they are "as good as anybody."

When a father and son are in business the son can usually tell of a lot of mistakes his father makes.

Almost any married man can make his friends smile by saying he is perfectly free to do as he pleases.

"Checkmate."

"Checkmate!" represents "shah mat!"—"the shah is dead." "Shah," in fact, entered our language long ago via Arabic and old French, arriving in the form of "check." "Chess" is really "checks," kings, and the cry of "Check!" means your king is in danger, hence the verb and substantive "check" in all their English meanings—"check," which was originally the counterfoil of a bill that served to "check" fraud; "checkered," from the aspect of the chessboard, and "exchequer," from the checkered pattern of the tablecloth on which the king's accounts were kept with counters. All these we owe to the Persian sovereign's title.—London Chronicle.

The Bosnian Roasting Jack.

A curious variety of the old fashioned roasting jack is used by the peasants of Bosnia and Herzegovina when roasting sheep whole, as on the occasion of a wedding ceremony. One often sees near a running stream a long pole having one end revolving freely in a socketed peg, while the other, overhanging the water, is equipped with miniature paddles. This is the Bosnian roasting jack. The sheep to be cooked is impaled on the log, a fire is lit underneath, and while the current spins the paddles and the pole merrily round the big joint is cooked literally to a turn.—Wide World Magazine.

Why She Was Pleased.

Tess—Did Mr. Borem ever call on you? Jess—Yes; he called last evening. I was quite delighted when the girl brought up his card. Tess—Oh, come now. You weren't really delighted? Jess—Certainly. You see, if she hadn't brought up his card I might have gone down to him, thinking it was some one else.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 15.—(Special.)—Cable advices from Liverpool and London on Canadian cattle were unchanged from a week ago, at 12½c. Exports from Portland and St. John, N.B., last week were 2862 cattle.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end, Montreal, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 13 were 3365 cattle, 64 sheep and lambs, 3192 hogs and 2409 calves, and the arrivals for local consumption for to-day were 1100 cattle, 981 hogs and 229 calves. There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle, as compared with this day week. The supply was somewhat larger, but, as the average quality was generally up to the standard, prices were well maintained. A feature of the trade was the improved demand from exporters for choice steers and bulls, owing to the continued strong European advices. Cables from Liverpool on Saturday quoted a further advance in prices of ½c per lb., and reported trade firm, which induced shippers to operate more freely, and they paid $5.25 to $5.40 per 100 lbs. for a number of steers, and $4.50 to $4.75 for bulls. In addition to this, there was a large attendance of butchers, and, as they all wanted beef, the demand was good and an active trade was done, which resulted in the supply being well bought up by noon. Choice beeves sold at 5¼c to 5½c; good at 4¾c to 5c; fair at 4¼c to 4½c, and lower grades at 3c to 4c per lb.

WEIGHT OF PLANETS.

It is the Mass of the Body That Counts With the Astronomer.

If a ham weighing thirty pounds were taken up to the moon and weighed there, the "pull"—the attractive force of the moon upon the ham—would amount to only five pounds. There would be another weight of the ham for the planet Mars and yet another on the sun. A ham weighing thirty pounds at New York ought to weigh some 800 pounds on the sun's surface; hence the astronomer does not speak of the weight of a planet, because that would depend upon the place where it was weighed. But he speaks of the mass of the planet, which means how much planet there is, no matter where it might be weighed.

At the same time we might, without any inexactness, agree that the weight of a heavenly body should be fixed by the weight it would have in New York. As we could not imagine a planet in New York, because it may be larger than the earth itself, what we are to imagine is this: Suppose the planet could be divided into a million million million equal parts and one of these parts brought to New York and weighed. We could easily find its weight in pounds or tons. Then multiply this by a million million million, and we shall have a weight of the planet. This would be equivalent to what astronomers might take as the mass of the planet.

A Use For His Hat.

A funny incident of a drawing room meeting was recently noticed. A grave looking gentleman, with an unusually tall hat, entered and, seeing no rack in the hall, placed his hat on the floor just behind the door. Pretty soon another grave man entered, with a large, dripping umbrella, and, peering anxiously for the usual receptacle, saw in the gloom the hat resting on the floor. His eyesight was probably poor, for he mistook it for one of the new umbrella holders, and in it he deposited his dripping umbrella. This was an example for those who followed, and in a short time the solemn looking hat was stanchly holding a dozen umbrellas. At the end of the meeting the water in the hat was an inch in depth.—London Tit-Bits.

THEIR CONDUCT IS UNBECOMING

Complaints About Youths Who Gather at Corner Park and McDonnel Sts.

Many complaints have been heard lately regarding the conduct of a number of boys, in fact young men, who congregate around the corner of Park and McDonnel streets. Every night, from ten to fifteen of these rowdies gather at the corner and their conduct is nothing short of disgraceful. Their conversation is most unbecoming and quite unfit for respectable people to have to listen to. Ladies living in the west end feel unsafe in passing this corner

It would be well for the police to pay a visit to this section on their nightly rounds, and put a stop to the bad conduct of these fellows. If a few of them were to appear in the police court and a fine imposed on them, they would perhaps learn to act like respectable young men.

Knox Church Honors Mr. Bright

Presented Him With Complete Set of Dickens' Work

A large number of the members of Knox church of which congregation Rev. Alfred Bright, B. A., was assistant pastor, until the separation of Knox and St. Paul's churches, at the end of December last, gathered at the residence of Mr. Geo. Campbell, 159 Stewart street, last evening, to say goodbye to Mr. Bright, on the eve of his departure for Ingersoll.

A most enjoyable social evening was spent. Pleasing vocal selections were contributed by Messrs. Wm. Bennett, Duncan Campbell and Miss Winnie Anderson. During the evening Mr. Bright, was presented with a complete, handsomely bound set of the works of Charles Dickens, accompanied by an appreciative address.

Sheriff Hall presided, and read the address, while the presentation was made by Mrs. Cox.

Mr. Bright made a fitting and grateful reply, expressing his thanks for the kindness shown him, and referring to the pleasant character of his work in connection with Knox church. He would never forget the happy days spent in Peterborough and the agreeable associations of Knox church.

Mr. Bright leaves tomorrow morning for Norwood, where, after preaching at a preparatory Communion service, for Rev. G. A. MacLennan, he will go directly to his new charge in Ingersoll, followed by the best wishes of his many friends in Peterborough.

Following is a copy of the address read last evening.—

Dear Mr. Bright,—We, the members and adherents of Knox Church, knowing you are about to leave us, desire to express our regret at the circumstances which deprive this church and congregation of a pastor who has proved himself an ideal leader in every way. Yet at the same time, we rejoice with you, over your success in securing a call to the pastorate of one of the most prosperous churches in Western Ontario, and in this recognition of your ability, and we feel sure you will do yourself credit in your new field of labor.

We, therefore, on this, the eve of your departure, desire you to accept this edition of Dickens Works, as a slight token of the universal esteem in which you are held, not only by the congregation of Knox church, but by the citizens of Peterborough, as well.

We shall always pray that God's blessing shall be your rich reward, shall follow you through each perplexing path of life, and, as we read, from time to time, of your success, we will be proud to say, "He was one of our boys."

Singed on behalf of the members and adherents of Knox Presbyterian Church, Peterborough.

REPORTS ON PUPILS' WORK

Are Being Sent Out From the Collegiate Institute

In accordance with the resolution passed by the Board of Education at the beginning of the year, a report of the work of each pupil at the Collegiate Institute for the school term between the Christmas holidays and the Easter vacation, is being sent to the respective parents or guardians of the students. These are the first reports that have been sent out by Principal Fessender since the resolution passed by the Board and it is expected that they will prove of considerable benefit.

As a report of the progress of each pupil is being sent out, parents or guardians who do not receive them will know that they must have gone astray in the mails and can secure a duplicate by making the matter known at the Collegiate.

We have been highly complimented by scores of citizens on the flavor of our Teas—the best only 40c lb—Kennedy's.

High Praise for Heintzman Piano

Musical Toronto has long felt the need of a permanent orchestra, and every citizen, who was fortunate enough to be present at Massey Hall Thursday evening, at the first concert of the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra feels that we are to be congratulated upon the founding of a permanent orchestra under such favorable auspices. The enthusiasm of everyone present was reflected by the favorable press comments, and it is a subject of general remark that the one instrument usually unnoticed in criticism or orchestral work—the piano—stood out in magnificent proportions and added wonderfully to the complete ensemble of this excellent organization.

Toronto's virtuoso, Mr. J. D. A. Tripp was the pianist of the evening, and under such fingers was demonstrated what an important factor a really fine piano is in interpreting the great orchestral works. We feel that it is due to the manufacturers of such an excellent instrument to state, that the piano, which so fully met every demand was a Gerard Heintzman. Mr. W. H. Isaac of Peterborough, is the popular local representative of the Heintzman Piano.

HARRY ADAMS

Peterboro's Departmental Store To be Ready by 1st of September

Contractor W. J. Johnston Broke Ground for the Addition to Mr. A. W. Cressman's Big Store—Total Floor Space Will be 19,200 Square Feet Divided Into Four Floors—Every Department Furnished in Most Modern Style—Many New Features to be Added—Will be One of the Handsomest Stores in the Dominion.

Contractor W. J. Johnston, with a gang of men, this morning broke the first ground for a new building that will, when completed, be the largest departmental store between Toronto and Montreal, and from a point of beauty, convenience and completeness will be equal to any place of mercantile business in Canada.

Mention has already been made in this paper of the additions and alterations Mr. A. W. Cressman contemplated making. The first announcement was only part of what has been decided upon. Now this large establishment will have a floor space of 19,200 square feet, as compared with 2,600 square feet occupied when Mr. Cressman first started business eight years ago, and for the next two years. From 1901, however, this business has increased so rapidly that yearly additional space has been acquired, and still more room is needed.

ADDITIONAL SPACE.

The additional space provided for in the present plans will give two stories 60 feet by 100 feet, and two stories 60 feet by 60 feet, or a total floor space of 19,200 feet. This is obtained by securing the store now used by Mr. John Nugent for his drug business, including the three stores, the erection of a new brick, addition at the back of Mr. Nugent's 40 feet by 18 feet, two stories high, and the removal of partitions.

It is on the new addition that Contractor Johnston started this morning, and he will rush this work with all possible speed. This will give a square frontage of 60 feet, with a depth of 100 feet.

FIRST FLOOR.

The ground floor of Mr. Cressman's new store will be devoted entirely to dry goods, men's furnishings, and the Semi-ready wardrobe. The present premises occupied by those two departments will be connected into one big store. The partition will be removed and the entire space used for the display of the dry goods, giving practically double the accommodation.

An entirely new plate glass front will be put in with two entrances, and three display windows, one large one in the centre, and two smaller ones on north and south side of the entrances. The elevator now in the centre of the store will be moved to the south side, and in the centre will be a separate cashier and bookkeeper's office, and a new parcel department, where all goods will be wrapped, thus doing away with wrapping at the individual counters. At the side will also be Mr. Cressman's private office, while in the rear will be a good sized receiving room, where all goods will be taken in and unpacked, doing away entirely with unpacking on the streets

The rear of the ground floor will be fitted with prism glass, so that the very best lighting possible will be obtained, and the true color of all goods easily seen in any part of the store

The department will be furnished with new fixtures of the most modern design throughout, adding beauty to the store and allowing greater convenience, speed and accuracy in handling the public.

MEN'S DEPARTMENT.

The Semi-ready wardrobe and the men's furnishing department will occupy the store now used by Mr. Nugent. It will extend the full hundred feet, including the ground floor of the new extension. A new, front with a central entrace and two display windows will be put in, and, besides, a new and modern wardrobe the plans provide for new fixtures throughout, giving every opportunity for showing the up-to-date stock to best advantage.

SECOND FLOOR.

Extensive alterations are provided for the second floor. It will be devoted to the ladies' ready-to-wear, and millinery departments as at present, but both will be doubled in size. All the partitions are to be taken out and the entire space thrown open, except, of course, work rooms, fitting apartments, etc.

The windows across the entire front will be of large plate glass, giving practically a glass front and making the whole floor nearly as light and bright as out of doors, this being one of the strong features of the alterations.

In the centre of the floor the plans show a very pretty resting room, which is entirely new in Peterborough stores. This is furnished with small tables and chairs, and reading matter and writing materials.

Another addition, which will be greatly appreciated by the public doing business at this store, will be the large washrooms and lavatories which will be nicely fitted up with everything the ladies will require.

The dressmaking apartments will occupy the space at the rear, and will be very much larger than at present. The work rooms and fitting rooms will also be strong features.

The millinery parlors, as show in the plans, will be new, novel and very handsome. They, too, will be greatly enlarged, and fitted with the very latest furnishings, conspicuous among which will be plate glass mirrored pillars six inches square.

THIRD FLOOR.

The same attention given to the first and second floors will be paid to the third floor. The selling space in the departments there will be extended over Mr. Nugent's store, and many alterations made. Several new departments will be added, to be divided among all three floors, but just what lines will be handled in them has not yet been decided.

BARGAIN ANNEX.

The fourth floor covering the the whole space will still be devoted to the bargain annex, and this department, which has proved so advantageous to the public and the proprietor, will continue to be a great feature on Wednesdays, and the people may still look forward to the many attractions offered here every week.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Architect F. Bartlett prepared the plans for the alterations, and he has been successful in grasping all the newest ideas adopted by the most modern stores in America, and he will see that his ideas are carried out to the letter. When completed A. W. Cressman's store will be one which Peterborough can point to with pride.

One great advantage will be that the business will be completely departmentalized. To do this will mean a large increase in the staff, in addition to what the business now demands. But Mr. Cressman claims that he will be amply repaid by giving the public a thorough and satisfactory service, and the speed in handling the people will be greatly increased.

A second delivery waggon has already been put on the road in order to quickly handle the delivery of parcels to all parts of the city. This is the only dry goods store in the city which does its own delivering.

The alterations will be gone on with at once, and every possible effort put forth to complete it. It is expected that the work will be done and, the store re-arranged early in September.

Will Tap Mines of Hastings County

Grand Trunk Will Operate Line From Madoc to Eldorado

The Grand Trunk officials are now engaged in estimating the possibilities of a line to be operated between Madoc and Eldorado, in North Hastings. A party from Belleville inspected the old roadbed between these points last week and also the mines and quarries that would be reached along the right-of-way. They were highly satisfied with the prospects for profitable business, as there is an enormous quantity of mineral lines that cannot be profitably worked without railway facilities.

Willie Taylor is Unfortunate Boy

Most unfortunate indeed is Willie Taylor, the young lad who some months ago had both limbs severed a little above the knee by a passing train. Yesterday he was the victim of another accident and one which although it is not nearly as serious as the previous one, will keep him in bed a considerable time.

While he was returning from school yesterday noon the waggon on which he rides to and from school, got in a crack in the sidewalk on Rubidge street. The suddenness with which it stopped threw the occupant violently to the sidewalk fracturing his left limb near the thigh. Someone who was passing sent for the Dan Spence Ambulance and the boy was removed to his home on Albert street, but later in the day was taken to the Nicholls hospital where he is now doing as well as can be expected.

COUNTY BRIDGES WERE INSPECTED

Chemong and Pigeon Creek Bridges Found in Good Condition

Yesterday County Councillor Frank Moher, chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee made an inspection of the Chemong and Pigeon Creek bridges. He was accompanied by Commissioners Killen and Scott, and they were pleased to find everything in good order so far. The ice has not yet gone out of Chemong lake and, therefore, there is no telling what damage may be done, although it is not expected that anything serious will happen.

Sign By-law Was Not Amended All Signs Must Come Down

Except Illuminated Signs Which Pay a License—Golden Lion Will Come Down—Retail Merchants Lost on all Points—Fruit Dealers Get no Consession

The sign by-law will stand as it has for the past twenty-five years, with the exception that the illuminated signs may be hung upon the payment of $2.00 per year. The Retail Merchants put up a pretty good fight on several points, but they lost all of them. Among other signs which come down is the Golden Lion, which has been in position for probably thirty years or more, unless Mr. Fair illuminates it.

The merchants asked for an eighteen inch allowance; also that the word illuminated be struck out, and all signs extending over 18 inches be allowed to pay a license: also that fruit merchants and dealers in perishable goods, such as flowers, be allowed a small space on the street in front of their windows for displaying their goods. All three requests were disallowed.

The Retail Merchants' deputation was allowed to address the council, and Mr Fair, as president, was the first speaker.

Mr. R. Fair said the Retail Merchants' Association believed that the old by-law should protect the citizens. It allows the signs to extend 18 inches over the streets. That by-law was never transgressed until the illuminated signs were introduced.

Mayor McWilliams said that the old by-law did not allow signs to project

Mr Fair said that he may be mistaken. If he was, he believed the by-law should be amended anyway, so that a small projection be allowed. The illuminated sign was only used by business places which kept open at night. The merchants help to illuminate the street by their windows. It was necessary to have signs projecting some times, especially by those doing business upstairs. A sign was never known to fall in this city. The majority of signs were not used for advertising. Those who want to use a sign for advertising should pay for it.

Mr. R. M. Roy said he would be perfectly satisfied if the word illuminated was left out. He put a little sign up. He was ordered to take it down, which he did. Then he was allowed to put it up again and now he has been told to take it down. He would be pleased to pay for his sign if he was allowed to put it out. But he did not think he should be forced to put up an illuminated sign.

Mr McClellan, Water street; Mr. H LeBrun, Mr. Frank Mason, Mr. Jas. Connal, Mr. E. F. Mason, Mr. Minicola, Mr. Walter Oke, and Mr. J. O'Brien also spoke on the question.

Mr Frank Mason, ex-alderman, said it was a piece of imposition for any council to ask a tax for any little projecting sign. The merchants in this city have heavy enough burdens without the council adding more. He then took up the question of a little projecting of 18 or 20 inches in front of the window on which to place his flowers, or the fruit dealers their fruits. In all cities in the world this is allowed. He asked that the by-law be amended to allow his projection.

Moved by Ald. Elliott and Ald. McIntyre, that signs be allowed to extend over the walks 18 inches without any charge. Lost on a tie vote the Mayor using his privilege of voting, voted no. Only illuminated signs will be permitted.

Ald Elliott moved that merchants handling perishable goods be allowed to extend over the walks a distance of 18 inches, providing shelves or tables are used, these stands to be 18 inches above the walk.

There was no seconder and the motion was dropped.

That good cattle are raised on the farms of North Monaghan was evidenced this morning at the market scales. Two steers belonging to Mr. G. W. The animals were as much alike as could be and were the subject of favorable comment from a number of cattle buyers and farmers who were present. Mr Hatton sold them to Mr. John Merwin, butcher. The price paid was five cents per pound.

Mr. S. R. Hall Took Part in Comedy at Quill Lake

The Quill Lake News, Quill Lake, Sask., says:—On Monday, March 25th, at His Majesty's theatre, the Prairie Dramatic Society, presented Bryon's celebrated comedy, "Our Boys" to a crowded house.

Mr. S. R. Hall, our genial bank manager, formerly of Peterborough, took the part of Talbot Champneys, and filled it acceptably. A little more practice with the monocle and a more pronounced English accent would have suited the part better, but no doubt we shall hear from Mr. Hall again.

Great credit is due Mr. Cowley and Mr. Hall, the former for undertaking the production of the play.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Fishery Inspector Bradshaw visited the camps of twenty or more muskrat hunters between Distillery Creek and Goose Lake, last week, and warned the occupants against illegal catching of fish during the close season, which set in today. As the rat hunters work in the timber where the fish repair in the mating season, now at hand, the opportunities for slaughter are great—and to some, irresistible—hence the timeliness of the Inspector's warning. It is no secret that in the past, some of the rat hunters have made more money out of the fish they disposed of than they did by the sale of pelts.—Lindsay Post.

TRIP WILL BE TO BROCKVILLE

An officer of the 57th Regiment stated to-day that it was practically settled that the annual trip of the corps this year would be to Brockville. A big demonstration is being held at the Island City on July 1st and the Rangers have been asked to participate in the celebration and from the officer's remarks apparently the invitation is going to be accepted.

It is likely that the matter will be decided at a meeting of the officers to-night.

Vestry Meeting of All Saints' Church

The adjourned vestry meeting of All Saints' church was held last night when the business not disposed of at the last meeting was dealt with. The auditors' report was presented and being found satisfactory was accepted.

There was a large attendance of the church members and several matters of interest to the congregation were discussed.

HOME SAVINGS METALLIC BANKS

The Peterborough branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, Mr. V Eastwood manager, has introduced a unique method of stimulating saving. Circular metallic banks about the size of a small collar box, are given each person who deposits a dollar in the savings department. Near the top of the bank are slits or openings for quarters, half dollars, dimes, nickels, cents, etc. After coin is put through a slot it drops into a compartment. The home savings banks will each contain about $25. They cannot be opened by the holder, as the bank officials retain the key of each box, which can only be opened by the teller of the institution.

The home savings banks are issued to encourage saving and to increase the number of bank depositors.

Boxes are issued on payment of one dollar, which amount is refunded if the box is returned to the bank in good condition.

If it is desired to open a box in order to deposit the contents in the Savings Department, the holder must bring the box to the Bank, and present it to the teller, who holds the key. All amounts deposited will be entered in a regular savings bank book and interest added four times a year.

CANNOT SHOOT NEIGHBOR'S DOG

His Honor Judge Weller today gave judgment in the Milne Hamilton vs. Dr. Gray case, in favor of the plaintiff. It will be remembered that last year Mr. Hamilton's pet dog went on the property of Dr. Gray and worried and killed his chickens. The doctor caught the dog in the act and shot it. Action was brought against him by the owner of the dog and the case proved to be very interesting. Dr. Gray was represented by Mr. R. E. Wood and Mr. Hamilton by Mr. G. W. Hatton.

HELP OFFERED TO BEGINNERS

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Allow me to remind the members of the R.A.S., who have lately taken up the study of astronomy, that in the best interests of the society at large they should lose no time in making a commencement in viewing the evening sky, as the finest stars and constellations will very soon pass away for the summer months from the visible heavens. Orion, the most beautiful of all groups; the great dog with Sirius the nearest and most brilliant of the fixed stars. Procyon of the little dog, a splendid star of "highest dignity" including also the zodiacial Gemmini with Castor and Pollox, the two principal stars, always interesting and memorable by reason of the fact, that at the foot of the former the great Herschel, turning his mighty telescope in that direction discovered the plant Uranus on the 13th of March, 1781.

The Lion with his sickle, and Regelus, near to which runs the ecliptic or path of the sun, on his breast, and by the careful observations of which Hipparchus, the Herschel of antiquity discovered the procession of the equinoxes, almost two thousand years ago. Taurus, with his Hyades and and Pluades, and the fiery Aldebaran in the ascendant. All these will soon be wanting in the evening skies, leaving only the northern constellations. Within the circle of perpetual apparition to be observed and studied. With an occasional glimpse at the variable conditions, etc. However the changing seasons bring fresh opportunities for observation, especially if one has a telescope. The writer, having spent some frosty nights, exposed to "the cold, night wind of heaven," has become pretty well acquainted with the autumn and winter skies, and would be pleased to assist any member, who may desire to begin the alienation and triangulation of the heavens.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your valuable paper, I remain, yours,

AMATEUR.

Encouraging Reports Were Presented

Progress Evidenced in all Departments of St. John's Church

St. John's Church adjourned vestry meeting was held last night in the school room. A large number of the congregation attended, and most encouraging reports were read from the different organizations of the church. Rev. Canon Davidson presided.

The report of the Senior Brotherhood of St. Andrew, was read by Mr. Richard J. Devey, the director, and was highly satisfactory. Mr. Joseph Bell read the report of the Junior Brotherhood, which has done much good in bringing new boys into the Sunday school.

A report was read from the King's Daughters, by Miss Ruby Burnham, and Miss Hugel, treasurer of the King's Daughters, read a financial report, showing a small balance on hand.

The report of the Woman's Auxiliary was read by Mrs. J. O. Davidson and that of the Junior Auxiliary by Mrs. W. R. Morris.

Other reports read were the Girls' Auxiliary by Miss M. Wilson, the Girls' Guild by Miss Pratt, the Young People's Society by Miss Lily Westoy and the Chancel Guild by Mrs. J. C. Davidson.

The Girls' Guild have placed a portrait of the late Miss Alma McCollum, who was a very active church worker at St. John's in the Guild room. This act is one which is highly approved of by the congregation.

It was moved by Mr. F. R. Yokome, seconded by Mr. Harold Cluxton, and carried unanimously, that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered the choir for their excellent work during the year, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey.

The following are the officers elected at last night's meeting.—

Messrs. Dr. Boucher, F. R. Yokome and James Bell were appointed lay delegates to the Synod.

Stealing Goods From Door Fronts

Grocers Complain That They Lost Several Articles

It is a custom among the grocers of the city, to exhibit goods outside their stores. It appears that two grocers residing in east city, have of late, missed several articles, when they went to bring them in at closing time. For many weeks past one groceryman has missed articles, such as pails of lard, syrup and other things.

These merchants have their suspicions who the guilty parties are, and if the practice of snatching goods from the doors of stores, continues, those, who are in the habit of doing such things, will be surprised to find themselves in the police court some of these days.

Grocerymen cannot always be at their doors, looking out for those persons who are guilty of such offence, and it is regrettable that some people who are supposed to be honest citizens, have to be watched.

"FAIR PLAY" REPLIES

Advises "Civis" to Read up and do Some Thinking.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I see that "Civis" is beginning to sit up and take notice. He evidently took notice of the 'Fair Play' item and forthwith sails in to tear a portion of it to pieces. In the first place he accuses me of thinking. He says that it requires brains to think; so I think again and I also think that if it requires brains to think, "Civis" will not be expected to do very much good hard work. In my opinion "Civis" had better have the X-Rays turned on that part of his anatomy that was given him to think with for I don't believe that it is in thinking condition. He says if I am referring to Englishmen, he would say they are charged nothing for coming to this country. Well! There he goes again. Who ever heard of Englishmen being charged for living in any country under the sun—a bad case of Dementia Canadensis.

Go West, Civis, and then you will see the class of people I refer to. If you do not feel like going west, read up, and above all else, learn to think. I received training in an institution, and thinking was one of the fundamental principles taught, and I may also state that I am through with the Italian question for the present.

Yours, etc.,
FAIR PLAY.

Many Merchants

Deceiving Their Lady Customers.

From time to time The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, manufacturers of the popular DIAMOND DYES, receive letters from people residing in the various provinces of Canada, telling of the attempts of retail merchants to induce the ladies to buy weak, adulterated and worthless package dyes when the reliable DIAMOND DYES are asked for.

These efforts of retail merchants to substitute worthless dyes, should be resented by every woman and girl who has a desire to do successful home coloring.

The merchants who try to substitute and deceive the public, do so for the sake of the big profits they receive. Such merchants care little for the comfort and success of their customers.

Successful home dyeing can only be done by the use of DIAMOND DYES, which are all guaranteed to give perfect results in beautiful, bright and never-fading colors.

This month The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal, P.Q., will send free to any address new Diamond Dye Booklet and pretty Souvenir Card for baby. You should have them.

AMUSEMENTS

KING OF TRAMPS.

We are pleased to announce that the amusement loving people of Peterborough will have the pleasure of witnessing on Saturday, April 20th one of Peterborough's favorite actors Oscar O'Shea, who hails from our city. The play, "The King of Tramps," we are pleased to say, is meeting with much success under Mr. O'Shea's management. Oscar has many friends in Peterborough, and there will no doubt be a crowded house to witness the production. Among others who are well known here are Ester Evans and Clyde Long. The company carry their own band and orchestra, and play two performances, matinee and night.

Must Not Play Ball on Streets

Havelock Council Will Put Stop to the Practice

Havelock, April 15th.—A meeting of the council was held at the clerk's office at eight p.m. on Thursday evening. Reeve Thompson and Councillors Young, Campney and Knox being present.

On motion, the following accounts were ordered to be paid,—Electric lights for March, $63.33; A. C. Denike, formaline, $29.65; bylaw, No. 229 to borrow $1,000 for current expenses, was read, first, second and third time, signed and sealed.

A communication was read from S. S. Joyce, complaining that a number of boys are continually playing baseball and lacrosse on George st., saying that his windows are in danger of being broken and that he would hold the corporation responsible for any damage done. On motion the Clerk was directed to insert a notice in the local paper calling attention to a bylaw in force in the village, prohibiting boys from playing ball on the street, and the privilege of any resident to prosecute for any infraction of the bylaw.

GENTLE SLEEP HELD HIM FAST

Rather Strange Sight on Hunter Street at Noon To-day

As residents of East City were returning over town today at the dinner hour, they saw a man taking it rather easy, sitting in his buggy, in the middle of the road, near Canon Davidson's home. The gentleman was apparently dead to all that was going on around him. His horse was standing patiently, waiting for the signal to move on, but it was a long time in coming. The gentleman had the reins in his hand and must have stopped his horse that he might have a little sleep. A number of children were gathered around the buggy waiting to see the old fellow wake up. Other horses and rigs had to take to the side of the road, as the buggy was occupying the centre.

Three Pound Loaves of Bread Will be Made in Peterborough

By-law Will be Amended by the Council to Read Three Instead of Four Pound Loaves--Park at Corner of Park and Charlotte Sts. to be Looked After

Bread will only weigh three pounds in this city now and there will be no stamps on it. In the past the bylaw allowed only four pound loaves to be made, or a small loaf of two pounds. But a change in legislation allowed a smaller loaf to be made, providing a stamp was put on it.

This was adopted by a majority of the bakers and last night a deputation waited upon the committee of the whole council and asked that the bylaw be amended so that all bread would be uniform and stamps would not be necessary. The aldermen viewed the arguments favorably and the bylaw will be amended.

Mr. N. Lush was present on behalf of the Bakers' Association. He said that the size of bread in this city had been a great source of trouble for the past five or six years. The Toronto people at first were selling 3-pound bread in competition with the Peterborough which was 4-pound loaves. The bakers want to be allowed to make the smaller size.

At the present time he said that three-fifths of the bread now made in the city was three pounds and the rest was four-pound bread. He asked that the bylaw be amended to allow the bread to be made in three pound loaves without putting the tickets on. In other words he wanted all bread made uniform.

The bakers now are unanimous in the desire to have the bylaw changed.

Moved by Ald Phelan and Ald. Wilson, that the solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw regulating the weight of bread to comply with the bakers' petition.

PARK-ST. PARK.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. Robt. Layfield, J. L. Hughes, Ed. Manning, Stacey and Brown, were present to ask aid for the park at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets.

Mr. Robt. Layfield said that everyone knew what Mr. Hughes had done towards keeping that park and that portion of the city a good residential section. Everyone has done their share except the city. It is disgraceful the way the city has neglected its work. He asked that the city take hold of this park and appoint some one to look after it and protect it for a year or two and then it will be ready for opening up and used as a public breathing place. A lot of damage has been done to the little trees and it should be looked after. He suggested that some old man be appointed to look after the city boulevards. There are several places which could be greatly improved.

Mr. J. L. Hughes spoke strongly in support of his little park. He had worked hard for it because he loved all growing trees and especially those little trees. They are all growing now and in a very few years it will be a very pretty place.

Ald. Tovey said he could corroborate what had been said. There are twenty-five trees and a few loads of earth put on and the place re-seeded, it will soon be a very beautiful park. A fence should also be put up to keep the boys out.

Ald. Morrow thought that the city should adopt a general policy and look after all the little groves in the city. There are several spots on Park street which should be looked after.

Moved by Ald. Johnston and Ald. McIntyre, that this matter be left in the hands of Ald. Tovey, Leary and Phelan as a committee to look after the park and authorized to spend $50.—Carried.

Peterborough Cereal Company Change Date of Annual Meeting

Next Meeting Will be Held in September With Fiscal Year Ending With June—Dividend of Seven Per Cent Declared—Prospects are Very Bright.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cereal Co. was held yesterday afternoon in the offices of Messrs. Hall, Medd and Davidson. The reports for the past year proved very satisfactory and showed rapid and steady progress in every line. The company's mills have been constantly in operation night and day and the demand for the products is increasing rapidly. The prospects for the future are indeed very promising and the shareholders have every reason to believe that they have got a good thing.

Manager W. H. Meldrum told of the company's business and what additions and changes are in prospect. He stated that the new cereal that was to be put on the market, known as Korn Flakes, would be ready very soon. He expected the machinery to arrive this week although it should have been here long ago. Korn Flakes promise to meet with an excellent reception at the hands of the people, as it will fill an entirely new position on the market.

A dividend of 7 per cent. payable half yearly, was declared, and a good substantial balance in the profit and loss account was carried forward.

The shareholders next discussed the advisability of changing the date of the annual meeting. It was pointed out that the end of June was a more advantageous time for the fiscal year to end. This was satisfactory to the shareholders and it was decided to set the time for the annual meetings as September. The next annual meeting will, therefore, be held in six months.

The old Board of Directors was re-elected, and after the meeting these gentlemen met and elected the old officers, as follows;

Pres., W. G. Ferguson.

Vice Presidents, R. R. Hall, M. P., and Adam Hall.

Managing Director, W. H. Meldrum.

Secretary, W. H. Collier.

A CHIC WAIST IN SUPPLE MATERIAL

Now that everything in dress materials is of the softest and most supple, the fancy of the designer is allowed to run riot, and some very delightful models for frocks and waists are the result. The waist shown merits attention for its pretty gracefulness. The full portions are shirred on the shoulder and at the waist; while the soft fulness of the sleeves adds much to the pleasing effect of the whole. Narrow revers finish the top of the full portions and roll away from a trim little pointed yoke of different material. Bretelles to match give the shoulders a broad becoming line, but may be omitted if preferred. The sleeves may be finished at the elbow or wrist, the deep cuff matching the yoke if used. For the medium size 2 1-8 yards of 44 inch material are needed, a supple cloth, silk or veiling being suggested for the best development of the waist.

THE LANGUID GIRL.

She Is Out of Place In These Busy, Strenuous Times.

She's languid either by temperament or by design. If it is the former there's some excuse for her; if the latter, none. And it is generally the latter. She's invariably pretty, be it noted, for it would be risky for a plain girl to assume such airs.

The languid girl maintains an attitude of studied indifference upon all occasions. Everything is "such a bore." She moves dreamily from place to place, she answers most questions in monosyllables, she reclines frequently, and her poses are carefully considered. Men she makes into slaves. They must play the undignified roles of beasts of burden and carry on all the conversation as well. Do they submit? Yes, providing that she's sufficiently pretty, but even then they are apt to get a little tired. That is where the other girls get a chance—a sort of compensation of nature. The languid girl is dying out as a type. By a curious irony the times that created her have to a certain extent made her impossible. These are strenuous days, and to men the hours are precious.

They cannot afford, if they want to make money, to waste time lavishly, and the languid girl is a terrible "waster" in this respect. She expects—nay, demands—unremitting attention from her admirers. There is to be no rapid lovemaking to her. The languid girl's languor is, dispassionately judged, an uncomfortable trait. It may be graceful, and it is perhaps picturesque, but it does not somehow answer in this terribly matter of fact old world.

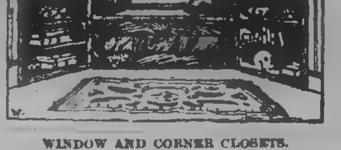
Brightness, companionship and sympathy are the great keynotes of earthly happiness, and beyond all price is woman's sympathy.

Not so much sentimental sympathy, if the term may be used, but the intelligent, brave sympathy that upholds a man in stress and trial and tinges dark clouds with unspeakable sweetness. A woman's power in life is wonderful, almost supernatural. The languid girl fails to realize her own possibilities. Languor, it must be remembered also, may frequently be the cloak of a small mind.—New York American.

ARTISTIC WINDOW EFFECT.

Fit the Corners on Either Side With Triangular Closets.

Cozy corners are fast going out, as people are realizing that they are dust traps and are therefore not sanitary. But, though they had their faults, there was certainly a charm about them, and they well deserved the name of cozy corners. If we wish to arrange an attractive little spot of almost any sort the corner is the best place to choose for it. There will always be cozy corners, but of a different sort to the old fashioned, heavily draped ones.



WINDOW AND CORNER CLOSETS.

The corners of every room should be made attractive. Often this can be done by putting pieces of furniture across the corner, for if the corner is broken in this way it gives a pleasing round effect to the room.

A pretty corner effect was made in a room having a single low and broad window at one end. On either side of it the corners were filled in with triangular closets, with leaded glass doors, and shelves beneath for books and the like. This was a clever idea, for it not only greatly improved the room by taking away the sharp corners, but the cupboards were found most useful, while the reflection of the light from the window on to the leaded glass doors lightened the room considerably. —Dorothy Tuke in Philadelphia North American.

Olive Oil For the Complexion.

"What shall I take for my complexion?" a reigning beauty asked Sir Thomas Barlow.

"Take olive oil," the great physician answered. "Live on it; live in it; eat it; drink it; dress your food with it; lubricate your system." As the result of following this advice the lady achieved her desire, a clear skin.

Olive oil, though incapable of supporting life if taken alone, nevertheless lends itself to a diminished meat diet, as it prevents waste of tissue. The warm, rosy complexion of the Italian and Sicilian women is due to the free use of olive oil as much as to the air and climate of their country.

From one to two tablespoonfuls spread over the day in different ways will achieve the result desired.

To Polish Mahogany Furniture.

Rub it with cold drawn linseed oil and polish by rubbing with a clean dry cloth after wiping the oil from the furniture. Do this once a week, and your mahogany tables will be so highly polished that hot water will not injure them. The reason is that linseed oil hardens when exposed to the air, and when it has filled all the pores of the wood the surface becomes hard and smooth like glass. If liked one-third part of vinegar may be added to the polish, as it is very cleansing.

Owing to Prof' Genno Leaving for Ottawa—Other Roller Rink Notes

Word has been received in this city that Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson, who are now at Ottawa in connection with the roller rink, being opened there, have everything in fine shape and are doing a big business. Prof. Genno, who has been in Peterborough, during the past ten days, acting as instructor at the local rink leaves for Ottawa tomorrow night to take charge of the new rink in that city. Prof. Genno was engaged by Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson to take charge of the rink at Ottawa, and only temporarily located here until the rink at the Capital was ready to be opened. On account of his leaving for Ottawa, the carnival, which was to have been held on Friday night of this week, has been postponed until Friday night, April 26th. Six special events will be put on at the rink tonight and an unusually interesting time is assured.

During his short stay in Peterborough, Mr. Genno made many friends who will regret to hear of his leaving. Messrs. Spencely and Fortune, two Peterborough boys, who have been connected with the local roller rink, also leave for Ottawa tomorrow night, to assist at the new rink there.

4154.—A FIRST SHORT SET.

There is no time in a child's life when he is so altogether lovable as when long baby clothes are shed and he appears in short dresses which mother has provided. Here is a charming little set consisting of a dress with fanciful yoke, a petticoat and sack. The dress while very simple is unique in its yoke, which may be of the plain material, a simple embroidery or tucking. Tucks at either side of the front are pleasing and give it an air of individuality. The skirt is to be made of lawn or cambric and the sack of flannel or cashmere and as simple or elaborate as desired. A small round yoke outlines the neck of the sack while a few shirrs retain the fulness of the front and back. Shirrs also retains the fulness of the sleeve at the wrist forming a frill instead of the usual cuff. In the medium size the sack requires 1 3-8 yards of 27 inch material, the dress 2 1-2 yards and the petticoat 1 1-2 yards of 36 inch material.

ANOTHER'S WAIL

The Examiner gives vent to another wail because of the attitude of the Review, on the question that all committee meetings of the Board of Education should be open to the press and public. That journal also accuses the Review of trying to "make a little capital by somewhat demagogic means."

Now that's too bad. We feel very sad, indeed.

The Review is also told that it does not represent public opinion. Perhaps not! but at the last meeting of the Trades and Labor Council this journal was publicly thanked for the stand it had taken for open committee meetings of the Board of Education and the following resolution was unanimously adopted when presented by the Legislative Committee:

"That the Trades and Labor Council disapproves of the action of the Board of Education in not admitting the press to all its meetings, that being the only channel by which the public can be intelligently informed, how to use their franchise to best interests of all."

Surely the Trades and Labor Council is a representative body of a very large element in the community. Its opinion is the voice of no small number of the ratepayers of Peterborough.

In the report of the proceedings of the last meeting, the Examiner carefully eliminated all reference to this resolution and yet that "whited sepulchre," claims to give a full, fair and impartial reports, of the business done by representative organizations.

The average man will observe how faithfully the Examiner represents public opinion. It scored so effectively, you know, in its whirlwind campaign against the Board of Education with respect to the South Ward school site,—and changed—not a single vote.

As to the Review ballots, there is no danger of any man being allowed to put in more than one ballot in the present referendum, without furnishing a fictitious name and address. The Review has more confidence in the wisdom and good sense of the citizens, the taxpayers of Peterborough—than to believe that they would deliberately adopt—as intimated by the Examiner—dishonest and unfair means. The ballots will be retained for reference. An unsigned ballot is practically useless. It might be put in by a boy or an outsider. What the Review is receiving and counting in the present plebiscite are the votes of those persons who are bona fide residents of the city, and have some stake in its welfare and development, and take an intelligent interest in the proceedings and expenditure of its representatives in the City Council and Board of Education.

MINISTER OF JUSTICE

George Fowler, the member for King's, has thrown down the gauntlet to those who caused to be inserted in the insurance Commission report a clause charging him with the misappropriation of funds. He defies anyone to lay a formal charge, but Hon. A. B. Aylesworth and the others who were so deeply interested in the instruction of that report have been stricken mute on the question. Mr. Aylesworth characterized some of these Conservative members with being in the class with bank thieves 'doing time" in the penitentiary.

Is't that creditable language for a minister of justice to use, particularly when the statements are steeped in falsehood. It is a standing disgrace to Canada that reputable public men should be slandered through the cloak of an insurance commission by a man who as minister of justice defies the principles that should constitute his duties?

Mr. Aylesworth's whole career as minister of justice has been contrary to the rules of honesty and decency, and his removal from office would be in the best interests of the judiciary of this land. He has burked all endeavors to clear up wrongdoing, and has contributed, as has just been pointed out, in slandering Conservative members maliciously and dishonestly.

Conduct such as this should not be tolerated by the House. Mr. Aylesworth's removal from public life would in no sense be a loss to Canada. His whole political career has been characterized by unfitness, and even Sir Wilfrid has been disappointed in the man of whom he expected so much.

The insurance report will cost the country in the neighborhood of $105,000, and this in itself is scandalous. Had the work of the commission been fruitful of good results, had it been productive of valued reforms to our insurance laws, then the expense would have been justified, but the whole report has been steeped in political influence, and some of its parts are in the form of darts aimed at the good names and honest purposes of some of the Government's political opponents.

Is that just? Is it in compliance with the laws of British freedom? The cost of the commission should be vigorously opposed, for it is nothing more or less than a contribution to the Liberal election funds.

THE BRITISH UMBRELLA

London tradesmen are bemoaning the fact that the habit of carrying an umbrella is no longer so general in England as in former years, says the New York World. Both manufacturers and shopkeepers feel the shrinkage in their sales. They lay their troubles to the popularity of the hardy derby, which is displacing the tender high silk hat in daily usage. Naturally no man in rainy England can don a silk hat without thoughts of what will happen to it in case of a downpour. So an umbrella goes with it as one glove goes with another.

It is sad to think of the gradual decline of the silk hat in England's capital. The correct London clerk in "topper" and long black coat has been an impressive spectacle. He was a standing announcement to the world that he had a proper sense of the dignity of his social station. In this way, too, was as much of a national institution as the British matron and her bevy of daughters, all rapped with what Ruskin called "porkpie" hats.

As for the women in London, they are said to be using fewer umbrellas because, to save their finery, they can always run into tea-shops, omnibuses and underground railways. At the same time the American traveller finds the average women in London when outdoors dressed with far more regard for bad weather and dirty streets than New York women. In spite of the tyrannical decrees of fashion climate will not be denied in prescribing the style of costume.

But British footgear will help to preserve the traditions of the race, even if the umbrella tends to take its place in literature and the museums along with the sedan chair of Queen Anne's day and the smalls men wore one hundred years ago.

BOURASSA'S QUEST

(The Canadian Courier)

Everybody is discussing what it is that Bourassa is looking for. He has broken with his leader, but yet he is not showing any signs of allying himself with the Conservatives. The breach with Laurier looks like a real one. The attitude of the two men toward each other in the House indicates this more plainly than printed words would betray. Now Laurier is the king of Quebec; and it must be from Quebec that Bourassa will get any personal strength in the future. Yet Quebec does not love people who pester its idol. Tarte looked like a big man until he broke with Laurier, and then he collapsed like a deflated balloon. If Bourassa were thinking of crossing the House, then his course would be clear; but his attacks upon Foster and his general policy do not encourage this explanation. This throws us back upon the theory that he is endeavoring to advertise himself in Quebec, as the best known representative French Canadian, and in the rest of Canada as a courageous independent, with a view to leaving Lemieux, Brodeur, Gouin, et al, at the post when the race begins for Laurier's shoes. This, however, is calculating that when Laurier's shoes are empty, people will forget that Bourassa opposed the man who used to fill them. And perhaps they will.

The last snowfall saved the day for lovers of maple syrup and sugar. At first it was thought there would be hardly any sap, but since the snow it has flowed plentifully. With the advent of spring every sportsman's thoughts turns to fishing, and the supreme delights incident thereto. In accordance with its policy of acting as guide, philosopher and friend of the sportsman, "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., comes out with a spring fishing number for April, filled to overflowing with papers on fishing, although places are found for other matters of interest to sportsmen in general. Fishing, however, rightly enough holds the pride of place, and no fisherman can do better than take with him on his ing trip a copy of this fascinating number. A perusal of its pages will repay for his trouble a thousand times over. Fishing in eastern, western and Central Canada are all told about by those experienced in the pastime, and who are thoroughly acquainted with the conditions of the places about which they write. The great wealth of fishing waters in Quebec receive special attention by the well-known sporting writer, Mr. E. T. D. Chambers, while those of Ontario, Alberta, etc., are so well described as to add to the fisherman's longing to be off and try for himself, what wonderful sport these finny denizens of Canadian lakes and streams can give him. A valuable paper—valuable to the fisherman, the naturalist, and every member of the general public—is that on "The Common White Fish," by Mr. C. H. Wilson. It is worth most careful reading and study. "Why our Deer are vanishing," by John Arthur Hope, follows up the Rev. Dr. Murdoch's article on "Our Vanishing Deer" and keeps alive interest on a topic which just now is of deep concern to every sportsman.

Box By-law Will be Altered Merchants Gained a Victory

Hours Will be Extended From 12 O'clock on Week Days to Three O'clock in the Afternoon and 10 O'clock Saturday Morning for Receiving Goods.

No longer will the box bylaw be a nuisance to the merchants. It will be amended so that goods may be delivered and boxes or parcels unpacked on the streets up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and up to ten o'clock Saturday morning. After those hours, however, the walks must be cleared of everything. Then a new regulation suggested by the merchants is that a box will only be allowed on the street two hours no matter whether it is opened or not.

The Retail Merchants' Association put such strong arguments before the committee of the whole council that it was impossible for the aldermen to turn them down, and the amendments went through although there was stiff opposition. Some of the aldermen wanted to make a compromise, but those favoring the merchants would not listen to it.

The members present were Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Bradburn, Leary, Povey, Johnston, McIntyne, Morrow, Phelan, Elliott, Duncan, Wilson and Stevenson.

The members of the Retail Merchants Association present were: President, R. Fair, Messrs. H. LeBrun, Lush, Miniccolo, E. F. Mason, Jas. Connal, R. M. Roy, Walter Oke and a number of others.

The first matter taken up was the box bylaw, which is well known especially to some of the merchants. It was passed two years ago but this council has done nothing but enforce it.

Mr. R. Fair was the first speaker and he said that all he asked was that the time for receiving freight be extended to three o'clock p.m. week days and 10 o'clock Saturday morning. There are a great many merchants who cannot enter their stores at the rear and it is necessary to take it through the front. One great difficulty is in connection with the customs. There are only certain hours in which goods can be liberated and if they are not delivered the freight becomes congested at the stations and business is demoralized. He also suggested that the council put a time limit of say two hours from the time the goods were received until the walk was cleared. There would only be a few offenders and they could be easily found out and punished. As it is the sidewalks could be blocked all morning. If the bylaw was amended as suggested the streets would never be blocked.

The merchants are the largest revenue producers in the city.

Mr. H. LeBrun agreed with Mr. Fair.

Mr. Buller said that it was impossible for the merchants to get their goods delivered by twelve o'clock. The merchants cannot get their mail and goods out of bond in time for the first delivery. The second delivery is at two o'clock and if this is not made the freight is stored up and blocked. In the past it has been the cry for a good freight service from Toronto. It is now better than ever and this bylaw delays it 24 hours. It is, therefore, a very poor bylaw.

Mr. E. F. Mason said that some times it was necessary to unpack goods on the walks. The merchants pay 65 per cent. of the taxes of the city and they were entitled to something. They have very large expenses and they have to meet them. If the council makes things so hard for the merchants they will have to get out of business. They think if the time was extended until three o'clock it would give them an opportunity to get in the noon delivery and express goods, and that was not very much to ask. Mr Mason said he had always opposed the bylaw and last year the police acted very fairly and the streets were never in better condition. Everyone had done their best to live up to the bylaw.

Mr. Walter Oke said that in their line of business, if the time was not extended, they would practically have to get out of business. They have to sort all goods and the only way to do that was to sort it on the walks, and if they cannot bring the goods in they will spoil and the loss will be great.

Moved by Ald. Elliott and Ald. McIntyre, that the box bylaw be amended, extending the time to 3 o'clock in the afternoon and ten o'clock on Saturday morning, and that a two-hour limit from the time the goods are received until they are cleared off the walk be adopted.—Carried.

The mayor opposed the three o'clock limit very strongly and he was supported by Ald. Johnston, Stevenson and Duncan.

The mayor favored the ten o'clock on Saturday morning as did also all the aldermen.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Wilson moved in amendment that the time be two o'clock. The amendment was lost by a vote of five to seven.

The banquet hall of McCallum's restaurant echoed with joyous sounds last night when the annual banquet of the City Hockey League was held. The Strathconas, champions of the league for 1907, were guests of honor and a feature of the evening was the presentation to them of the Stratton cup, emblematic of the championship of the city league. The handsome piece of silverware was handed over to the victorious team by Hon. J. R. Stratton amid great enthusiasm.

The banquet was a most successful affair in every respect. About thirty sat down to the excellent spread arranged by Mine Host McCallum and the evening was one of much pleasure to those fortunate enough to be present. The banquet commenced at 8.30 o'clock and the last toast had been honored as the clock was striking eleven. The speeches were brief yet interesting and humorous, there were good songs and numerous bright stories and recitations. The toast list, unlike that at many banquets, was not a ponderous one, and did not detain those present until long after the midnight hour as has been the case on many occasions. The keynote of last night's function was the tendering of congratulations to the victorious Strathcona team. Representatives were present from all the clubs that had constituted the league except Lakefield, and all united in giving credit to the winners of the cup and congratulating them on their success.

The catering was all that could have been desired, and there was a contented look on the face of every one when the last of the five courses had been disposed of, that look which only comes when the wants of the inner man have been fully satisfied.

Mr. F. A. Clarke, president of the city league, acted as chairman and proved an ideal toastmaster. Seated on his right was Hon. Mr. Stratton, the donator and presentor of the championship cup.

THE KING.

The first toast honored was that to the King, which was proposed in appropriate language by the chairman and responded to in the usual way, a heartily sung God Save the King.

STRATHCONA HOCKEY TEAM.

This was followed by a rousing song by Mr. W. McIlroy, after which Mr Stratton arose and proposed the toast to the Strathcona Hockey team, the pronouncement of which words evoked great applause. In proposing the toast, Mr. Stratton thanked the city league for the privilege and pleasure of being present at their annual banquet. It afforded him pleasure to be present among the hockeyists of the city and his heart filled with pride when he looked around and saw the fine young men who were gathered around the tables. He congratulated the league on the successful season that the banquet was bringing to a close and also the Strathcona Hockey team on winning the cup. It was a delight to him to be personally present to present the trophy to them. They had won the cup fairly and he was satisfied that the best team had won. His object in presenting the cup, said Mr. Stratton, was to encourage sport in Peterborough, particularly the great winter game of hockey. Athletic sports if gone into with the right spirit, did much to develop a young man, and he was proud to know that there were as many, or perhaps more robust young men in Peterborough, than in any city of its size in the Dominion. It was desirable in every city and town for some one to encourage athletic sports by placing trophies up for competition. Athletic sports developed those participating therein mentally and physically. They give that vigor of body and force of character that are essential to success in life. Mr. Stratton congratulated the Charlotte street team on the fine showing they had made. They had given the victors a close run and were only defeated by a narrow margin. The other teams in the league also deserved credit for the fine hockey they had played and the fine sportsmanship that had characterized their conduct both on and off the ice. The speaker was glad to see the interest taken in sports all along the line in Peterborough. It was an encouraging sign and was an evidence that the athletes of Peterborough as in the past would show themselves worthy of their foemen's steel when they met their rivals from other towns and cities in friendly combat. To have the young men of a city or town excel in athletic sports was a good advertisement for a place. Mr. Stratton hoped that the athletic clubs of Peterborough would always go into the contests in which they engaged prompted by a spirit of fair play. Without this their value was gone. In closing he expressed the hope that the interest in athletic movements would continue to an even greater extent than in the past and in handing over the cup to Mr. Metheral, manager of the Strathconas, he again congratulated them on their success. The toast to the Strathconas was honored with enthusiasm.

THE CUP RECEIVED.

Mr. Metheral in accepting the cup, made a neat speech, thanking Mr. Stratton on behalf of the club for having donated the trophy. The Strathconas had worked hard during the season and were fully aware of the worth of the other teams in the league. There had been many splendidly contested matches and taking everything into consideration the league had by far the best season in its history.

Mr. Geo. Lynch followed with a splendid recitation and some well told Irish stories that brought down the house, to speak figuratively.

SISTER SPORTS.

Sister Sports" were then proposed by Mr. John Nugent, who congratulated the Strathconas on winning the cup. He was of much the same opinion as Mr. Stratton regarding athletic sports. They were a fine thing for young men if they were gone into with the proper spirit.

The toast was responded to by Mr. C. G. Graham on behalf of the Peterborough Hockey team, Mr. Chas. Barber for the lacrosse interests of the city, Mr. Jas. Clarke for the rugby clubs, and Mr. N. McWilliams on behalf of the baseball men. Mr. Graham referred to the excellent work the city league was doing in bringing up and developing new men. The past season had furnished several excellent examples of the good material that was being turned out by the city league. Mr. Graham, along with Messrs. Barber Clarke and McWilliams heartily congratulated the Strathconas on their success.

THE REFEREES.

The toast to the referees was proposed by Mr. I. D. Moore and responded to by Mr. W. H. Stroud. The proposer of the toast emphasized the fact that the referee is an important factor in keeping up the standard of hockey. Mr. Stroud replied suitably.

THE LADIES.

"The Ladies" found able champions in Mr. W. Galbraith, the proposer of the toast, and Messrs. Hague, Sawers and Ed. Carr, who responded.

"The Press" was proposed by Mr. C. G. Graham and responded to by the scribes present.

THE CITY LEAGUE.

"The City League" was proposed and heartily honored, Mr. F. A. Clarke, the popular president, responding. He was pleased at the success of the League during the past season and hoped for even greater greater things in the future.

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., made a short speech in which he dealt with some features of the athletic sports in Peterborough in an interesting manner. He did not look with favor upon the proposition to have a professional hockey team in Peterborough. It would be much better to encourage the young talent in the city than to import men to form a professional team.

A vocal solo by Mr. McIlroy and a recitation, "Kelly's Dream," by Mr. Geo. Lynch, were features of the programme and were received with much enthusiasm. Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., also favored the gathering with a well rendered solo.

During the evening numerous selections on Mr. N. McWilliams gramophone added greatly to the pleasure of the guests.

The banquet hall was handsomely decorated, the work being done by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

The vice-president of the League, Mr. M. J. Maher, sent his regrets at being unable to be present owing to illness.

The gathering broke up with the National Anthem and three cheers for Mr. Stratton and the City League.

THOSE PRESENT.

Those present at the banquet were; Hon. J. R. Stratton, F. A. Clarke, W. J. Metheral, W. K. Huston, A. R. Mann, C. Curtis, H. McMillan, L. J. Dineen, J. H. White, W. E. Meagher, H. Sawers, B. A. Alfred Hammond Dropped Dead While Working at the C.G.E.

Employee In the Fitting Department—Was an Englishman Only a Short Time Out—Has no Family or Friends in Canada—Funeral on Wednesday

Without a moment's warning or without a sign to his fellow workmen, Alfred Hammond dropped dead while at work in the Canadian General Works yesterday afternoon. The deceased was an Englishman only a short time in Canada, and an employee at the C.G.E. Works for nine months. He was single and alone in this country, which makes his demise even more sad.

He was a good workman and was engaged in the fitting department. At the time of his death he was fitting a dynamo in the centre of the floor. No other machine was near him, although a number of other workmen were near by, during the afternoon Hammond complained of feeling dizzy and faint, but he did not consider it at all serious. He continued at the job he was at until he fell to the floor, and immediately life was extinct.

The men in the department did all in their power, as did also the members of the office staff, but it was of no avail. He was dead before he touched the floor. Dr. Young was called and Coroner Dr. Gray was notified. When the latter learned the circumstances he issued a death certificate and the body was removed to McFadden's undertaking establishment. The cause of the young man's sudden end was due to heart failure. He was only 36 years of age.

Alfred Hammond was a sober, industrious fellow and provided for a rainy day. He was a strong member and a good friend of the T.A.S. He was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters, and was also connected with the Mutual Benefit Society of the C.G.E. Co.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, and interment will take place at the Roman Catholic cemetery.

The Local Barnardo Home May be Moved to Toronto

Work Has Outgrown "Hazel Brae" and Unless Improvements are Made Other Quarters Will Have to be Obtained.

There is a possibility that Peterborough may lose the Barnardo Home for girls, which has been located here for the past twenty-three years. So great has been the progress of the great work inaugurated by Dr. Barnardo, that "Hazel Brae," the local home, is now too small for the purpose for which it is used, and unless improvements are made by Hon. Senator Cox, who owns the property, the home will likely be moved to Toronto. The Toronto Star last night had the following item in connection with the matter;

"Nos. 50 and 52 Peter street has been purchased by the Barnardo Home, and the present tenants must leave on May 1st. The building consists of two large semi-detached brick dwellings. They will be thoroughly renovated and adapted to a home for girls. The present girls' home is in Peterborough, and as soon as the necessary changes are made they will be moved to Toronto, and occupy this property."

Miss Pierce, superintendent of "Hazel Brae," when asked by the Review today regarding the report stated that nothing had yet been decided as regards moving to Toronto. The work in Peterborough, however, had outgrown "Hazel Brae," and unless certain improvements were made by Hon. Senator Cox, who owns the property, it would be necessary to secure other quarters. The property referred to above had been purchased in Toronto, but whether the home would be moved from Peterborough would not be known for two or three weeks.

In connection with the unsuitability of "Hazel Brae," as it is at present, for the work being carried on in Peterborough, "Ups and Downs" the official organ of the Dr. Barnardo Homes in Canada, says;

"We hope to see some great improvements at 'Hazel Brae' during the coming spring. Extensive repairs and alterations are very sorely needed in order to make the place healthy and suitable for its purpose as a home for our girls and the staff of workers. Its present condition is very unsatisfactory, but we hope that the Hon. Geo. A. Cox to whom the property belongs, and who has so generously placed it at our disposal for the past twenty-three years, will see his way to carry out the needful improvements. It will be sad to have to leave the place that has been for so long the headquarters of our Girls' work and to be obliged to seek new quarters; but, of course, health must be the first consideration, and we must not run the risk of illness and disease by continuing to occupy unsanitary and delapidated premises. Senator Cox is known all the world over, not only for his extraordinary financial genius, enterprise and success, but also for his Christian benevolence, and when the time comes, we cannot think that he will refuse our appeal."

Splendid Class of Settlers Are Now Coming to Canada

Many Immigrant Train Loads Arriving—Photo Gallery Changes Hands--A Surprise Party That Did Not Come Off--Organist Resigns,

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 15.— Immigrant trains pass through here every day carrying large numbers of immigrants. On Sunday there were three in the afternoon and several on Monday. The newcomers are mostly English settlers and seem, on the whole, to be strong, vigorous and decent people, which are the kind most sought after. Several of them drop off at Havelock and other points along the line, but most are going through to Toronto. A large number have been out before but have gone back to England and are returning to this country again.

A REMOVAL.

Mr Goddard, who has been residing above G. A. Williams' store, removed his household effects to Campbellford last week, where he has obtained an excellent position. Mr Alex. Innis has moved into the residence occupied by Mr. Goddard.

Mrs. Wm. Green, George street, entertained a number of small boys and girls in honor of the birthday of her daughter, Myrtle, on Friday night last. Supper was served at half past six, after which the young folks amused themselves at various games.

Messrs. Hawthorne and Weir, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with friends in town.

Miss C. McFarland is spending a few days at her home in Marmora.

We regret to hear of the illness of Mrs. Wm. Vance.

Miss Eva Lancaster has returned from visiting friends in Hastings.

CHANGES HANDS.

Mr Cecil Starke, of Peterborough who has purchased the studio in Havelock, from Mr. Ostrander, took possession on Monday. Mr. Starke has put in most of his time in the photograph studios of St. Louis, Mo. where he has made his art a success.

Mr C. Starke was in Norwood on Sunday.

A number of the people in town saw the reflection of the fire in Hastings last night.

COMING CONCERT

The Royal Scots Concert Company who appeared in Havelock on two successive nights in February will appear in the town hall on Friday night of this week. The Royal Scots is the best company that ever appeared in Havelock, and it is indeed a very rare treat, as they seldom appear in so small a town.

Mr A. C. Denike left last week for Warkworth, where he will visit his brother for a short time and then go west for a summer journey. This step on Mr. Denike's part has been taken on the advice of his physicians. Mr. Percy Vanalstine of Winnipeg, will manage the drug store during Mr. Denike's absence.

ORGANIST RESIGNS.

Miss Timmerman, who for some time has been organist of the Methodist church, has resigned. Miss T. Trevelin, of the Public school staff has been engaged to take her place.

Mr Deremo, of Consecon, who has lately been engaged as clerk by W. E. Young, of Cordova, is very sick with bronchitis.

Miss F. Bennett spent Saturday last with friends in Norwood.

Mrs. W. A. Deremo, of Toronto, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. W. Bryans.

NO SURPRISE PARTY

A case of a surprise party being surprised happened on Friday night last, when a party organized for the purpose of having a nice time during the evening, found to their discomfort that it would not work.

Literary Night of Epworth League

An interesting time was spent by the Epworth League workers of George street church last evening at their regular meeting. It was "Literary Night" and Kipling's work were taken up. A well prepared paper on Kipling was read by Miss Edna Armstrong. Miss Evelyn Chasty sang "The Recessional" in good voice and the evening was spent in a most instructive and enjoyable manner.

Company Will Deal in Many Lines

Last week's Ontario Gazette contains the following of local interest; Public notice is hereby given that under the Ontario Companies Act, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council has, by letters patent under the Great Seal of the Province of Ontario, bearing date the 27th day of March, 1907, been pleased to grant a charter creating and constituting Arthur James McClellan, merchant; Gerald Kennin Rackham and Cyril Currier, accountants; Lillian Florence Emma McClellan, married woman, and Hazen Ritchie, electrical engineer, all of the city of Peterborough, in the county of Peterborough, and Province of Ontario, and any others who have been subscribers to the memorandum of agreement of the Company, and their successors, respectively, a Corporation for the purposes and objects following, that is to say; "To carry on the business of wholesale and retail dealers in coal, wood, peat and all kinds of fuel, timber, lumber, lath, shingle, posts and all kinds of building material, cement, lime, ice, sewer pipe, salt, plaster and all kinds of artificial manures, and to carry on a general cartage and storage business"; the Corporate Name of the Company to be The Ontario Coal Company, Limited; the share capital of the Company to be forty thousand dollars, divided into four hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, the Head Office of the Company to be at the said City of Peterborough, and the Provisional Directors of the Company to be Arthur James McClellan, Gerald Kennin Rackham, Lillian Florence Emma McClellan, Hazen Ritchie and Cyril Currier, hereinbefore mentioned.

Judgment Given in Court of Appeal

Notes from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, contain the following item today;

Peterborough Hydraulic Company vs McAllister. —Judgment (L.) on appeal by the Ontario Bank, third parties, from order of local Master at Peterborough under rule 213, giving directions as to trial of third party issues. Appeal allowed to some extent, and order varied by striking out the first five clauses and instead thereof making provision for defendants delivering a statement of claim to the third parties, the latter to plead as they may be advised; the third parties to be bound by any judgment plaintiffs obtain against defendants at the trial; the issue between defendants and the third parties to be tried separately, and after the trial of the action, unless the trial Judge otherwise orders, issues between defendants and third parties to be set down by defendants for trial at the same sittings for which the action is set down. Third parties to have costs of the appeal against defendants in any event. No costs of appeal to plaintiffs. A. B. Morine for third parties. D. O'Connell, Peterborough, for defendants. F. D. Kerr, Peterborough, for plaintiffs.

An Application Has Been Filed

Toronto, April 15th,—A petition has been filed at Osgoode Hall, by the Ontario Bank, and John Crane of Peterborough for the winding up of the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Co. The Ontario Bank is a creditor to the extent of $62,142, and the Bank of Montreal to the amount of $5,395, but the latter sum is secured by warehouse receipts. Accounts payable come to $6,505, making a total of $74,042. The assets are given at $59,056.

The company was originally formed as the Ambrose Winslow Brewing and Malting Company, with a capital of $100,000. In September, 1907, the name was changed to the Port Hope Brewing and Malting Company, the capital stock being increased to $150,000.

The application comes up on Friday.

Prompt attention and satisfactory service are guaranteed.

Peterborough Lumber Co. Mills Started Season's Operations

Seventy-five Men at Work To-day.—Staff Will be Increased to 100 in a Few Days—John Thomson in Charge of the Mills--Will Cut Over 8,000,000 ft.

With a staff of about seventy-five men, the Peterborough Lumber Co.'s mills at Burnham Point, started the season's operations this morning. This mill is now one of the most complete and most up-to-date saw-mills in Ontario. It has recently been equipped with a lot of modern machinery and has a cutting capacity of 75,000 feet per day. In connection with it is a large planing mill, and lath and shingle mills, so that in future the building contractors in Peterborough will not have to buy material out of the city. The large cut and the good quality of lumber from the mills will be a boon to the local building trades, and should assist materially in keeping down the cost.

This is only the second season of the Peterborough Lumber Co, but last year was very successful, and the prospects for this year are very much brighter. During the past winter, the company secured a very heavy cut of logs, and the drives have been started down. Although very little progress can be made at present, as the ice has not entirely broken up. Logs are being brought from Jacks Creek, Pencil Lake, Ketcheum Lake, Bottle Lake, and Eagle Lake, and in all there will be at least 8,000,000 feet. This will keep the mills running, until Little Lake freezes up next winter.

The logs include, principally pine, hemlock and cedar, although there is also a quantity of hard wood which is reported to be of a high-class order. The mills at present are running on last year's cut, which will last until the new logs get down.

Mr. John Thompson, an old lumberman, with wide experience, is personally in charge of the mills this year. He is vice-president and manager of the company, and will keep things humming at Burnham Point during the present year. While there are only seventy-five men at work now, this staff will soon be increased to one hundred or more, and they will be kept on all season.

The Peterborough Lumber Co., while only in its infancy, gives promise of great things in the near future. It is under very capable management, and every man is a hustler. The officers are,—

President—Dickson Davidson.

Vice-President and General Manager—John Thomson.

Secretary-Treasurer — Geo. Lenton.

Five Grand Trunk Cars Off the Track Near Birdsall

Freight Train Which Left Peterborough at Noon Met With an Accident--Full Particulars Not Yet to Hand

Traffic is badly tied up on the Grand Trunk on the section east of Peterborough today, on account of a small wreck at Birdsall, a few miles out from the city. Five freight cars are off the track and the train for Belleville, which leaves Peterborough at two o'clock, had not pulled out at a late hour this afternoon.

The train which met with the mishap was a doubleheader, which left Peterborough at noon. Particulars could not be obtained as to the cause of the accident. All that could be learned was that five cars were off the track and that it would be some time before the way would be cleared. The wrecking auxiliary at Lindsay was sent for, but had not arrived at the time of going to press. The way freight which pulled out of the G.T.R. station about 12.30 is tied up somewhere between Peterborough and Birdsall, owing to the track being blocked by the derailed cars. It is expected that there will be considerable difficulty in getting the track cleared, as the snow which was falling all afternoon left everything in a very slippery condition.

Says He is a Cousin of Canada's Prime Minister

Proclaiming that he was a cousin of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and talking with volubility, about the stand to be taken by his titled kinsman at the Colonial Conference in London, a man about forty years of age, struck the city yesterday, and has been causing considerable amusement around town by his strange antics. The fellow is apparently somewhat lacking in his upper story, to use the vernacular of the street, and seems to have a hallucination, that he is somebody else to what he really is. He says he comes from Montreal, and that he is a printer by trade. He is short of funds, and is not at all bashful about asking for pecuniary assistance. But apparently he likes to hear the jingle of the coin on the polished bar, and it is likely that his love for the barley brew is the cause of his hallucination about being a cousin of Sir Wilfrid. His physiognomy bears no likeness to the profile of the premier of Canada; neither do his actions.

Street Car Got Off the Rails

Slippery Rails Caused Slight Accident This Afternoon

Car No. 11 of the Radial Railway Company, jumped the track at the corner of George and Charlotte streets about three o'clock this afternoon. The mishap was due to the slippery condition of the rails, owing to the soft snow falling. The car was travelling south and considerable difficulty was experienced in getting it right again. Traffic was tied up for some time.

Fine Programme Arranged for To-morrow Evening

Everyone —no matter of what nationality,—is cordially invited to the Young Conservative Club rooms tomorrow evening.

City's Work Not Delayed by Snow

Sewers Have Not Yet Been Started and Street Work Was Resumed at Noon

The heavy snow storm yesterday put a damper on nearly all outside work, but the delay was only temporary, as most of the contractors started again at noon today. The city's work was not materially handicapped. The street commissioner was drawing gravel from the excavation for the new Collegiate and his men laid off this morning but started again at noon. None of the sewers have yet been started, although they will in a short time. Mr. White, who will have one of the first gangs, is busy with the Romaine street sewer, and Mr. Leary is engaged on the Cedar street sewer. As soon as they have completed their present jobs, they will start the city's sewers.

Closing Exercises At Y. M. C. A Gym

An Interesting Programme Arranged for Friday Night

An interesting programme is prepared for Friday night of this week, when the Y.M.C.A. "gym" closing exercises will be put on. A large part of the evening will be taken up by the junior boys' class. Dumb bell drill, junior apparatus work, and gymnasium games, such as obstacle race and Indian Club race, will be put on. The final bout in the senior school boys fencing championship, will be put on, for a trophy donated by the fencing master, Sergt.-Major Brittain. This will be an interesting bout, as the boys have practiced faithfully in this class. A basket-ball match is arranged between the Harriers, last fall's champions, and a picked team. The Harriers have yet to be beaten, and the game will be a fast one. No admission is charged, and the public is cordially invited to see the closing exercises.

Charge Against Ernest Lowes for Stealing Sausage Dismissed

Stealing a balogano susage from the butcher shop of Jas. Scott, at the corner of George and Perry streets, on Friday, April 12th, was the charge against Ernest Lowes, at the police court this morning. The boy is under 16 years of age. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, of the Children's Aid Society, appeared for the defendant. He pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Scott was the first witness. He said that he left his shop at 12 o'clock Friday. The door was locked but the fanlight was open. When he returned on Saturday morning he noticed several balogna sausages out of their places, but none missing. The value of a sausage was about fifty cents.

Mr S. Murphy, who lives at 81 Lake street, was next called. He said that he noticed a balogna sausage lying between the store and the sidewalk. Lowes was standing outside. He said to him that it was a shame to throw the man's meat around like that. Lowes then picked the sausage up and threw it in again.

Robert Keegan, a boy eleven years of age, was called. He said that he was the lad who went into the shop. Lowes and he and a number of others had been playing ball. Lowes threw the ball in the window. He then told Keegan to go in. He helped the boy to climb in, but he wouldn't help him out.

His Worship dismissed the charge, although he said that he found the boy guilty of putting another boy up to steal. It was a cowardly act. He said that he would give Lowes another chance. Lowes promised that he would behave himself in the future and do what is right.

Bowling Tournament Will Be Most Successful Affair

Large Number of Entries is Assured—All Money Received in Entrance Fees Will Be Devoted to Prizes —Tournament Opens on Thursday of Next Week

Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the big bowling tournament, which opens at the Majestic alleys, Water street, on Thursday of next week, and concludes on Saturday night. The entries close on Saturday of this week and from present indications there will be a large number rolling. After the entries are all in on Saturday a committee will be appointed consisting of well known local bowlers, who will take charge of the prize money and decide how it shall be awarded. They will also appoint officials and make all other necessary arrangements in connection with the tournament.

There will be competitions for five men teams, two men teams, and singles. For the five men team competition two prizes will be offered while for the doubles and singles there will be first, second and third prizes. The entrance fee for five men teams will be $5.00 and for the other events $1.00 per man. All the money received for entrance fees will be devoted to prizes, the amount of which will depend, of course, on the amount taken in from entry fees.

For the open five men team event there will likely be six or seven entries. The High Lifes are entering two teams and besides these there are the C.G.E., Independents, and Merchants, with a probability of one or two others. These teams are all strong ones and there promises to be a great struggle for first place. There will also be a big list of entries for the singles and doubles and these events will also be keenly contested.

Another interesting feature will be a novice event for five men teams, to be composed of the proprietors, employees or boarders of local hotels. Six entries are already in sight for this event, and as there are some high rollers at some of the hotels, good scores will be made. The entrance fees for each event will be kept separate, and the prizes for the respective competitions arranged according to the amount on hand for each one.

A fee of 15c. will be charged for admission to the alleys during the tournament. This is to cover the cost of the alleys, as the pin boys have to be paid and there will be other incidental expenses.

The alleys are thronged with the devotees of the game of balls and pins every afternoon and evening at present. Everyone is getting into shape for the tournament and every indication points to it being a big success.

No Grants to Railways; An Important Declaration

Premier Whitney Will Keep Faith With the People.

No More Wholesale Giving Away of Ontario Lands—Only Small Grants Made—Electric Power to Be Supplied at Cost—Evasions of License Act—Child Labor in Hotels—Defective Highways.

Toronto, April 17.—"Whatever else this Government may do or fail to do it will earnestly endeavor to keep faith with the people," declared Hon. J. P. Whitney, the Prime Minister, at the Legislature yesterday in outlining the Government policy in relation to applications of railways for subsidies and land grants.

"We believe that the time has come to stop granting any of Ontario's lands to any scheme whatever. The policy upon which we asked the confidence of the people—a confidence which we are proud to have had extended—was that the time had come to call a halt on all such gifts except in very exceptional cases. What ought the people to think if we now, enjoying their confidence, turn our backs upon our professions and virtually declare ourselves dishonorable.

"The time may come when it is wise in the interests of the Province to amend our course, but ere this takes place we must have something clear and unmistakable from the public mind of the people." (Applause.)

Accordingly only one small grant of $5,000 was made.

Grants to Railways.

Mr. Whitney said it was proposed to grant $5,000 in all to the railway from Thessalon to the Algoma branch of the C. P. R.; to extend the time limit to Dec. 31, 1910, for the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway; to Dec. 1, 1909, for the Toronto, Lindsay and Pembroke; and to Dec. 31, 1907, for the Bracebridge and Trading Lake, providing that the promised $35,000 is spent.

The Canadian Northern have been granted a revival of the $2,000 per mile bonus passed by the former Government on condition that they swing their line round westward so that it does not compete with the Government-owned Temiskaming road. The application for land grant was refused.

The Algoma Central's application for the guaranteeing of $8,500,000 was refused, the Government taking the ground that the guarantee of the Soo loan was sufficient to this company. The time for earning the land grant was, however, extended two years.

Electric Power at Cost.

The popularity and non-partisan character of the power policy was evidenced in the applause on both sides of the House which greeted the announcement of Hon. Adam Beck that the Hydro-Electric Commission was in a position to more than make good the prices it had quoted to the municipalities. Further evidence of the co-operation of both parties in the power project was demonstrated by the felicitations extended to the Minister of Power by Mr. Preston and Mr. Graham and the graceful response of Hon. Adam Beck that he was indebted to the Opposition—and particularly to the member for Brant—for valuable and helpful suggestions in his campaign. He also impressed the fact that it was the intention to supply power to the people at cost, a declaration the Prime Minister hastened to emphasize.

Mr. Preston (Brant) congratulated Mr. Beck on his campaign for cheap power. The whole Province wished him success. He heartily concurred in the wisdom of the course in excluding the applicability of the Conmee clauses. He asked if the thirty years in the contract referred to the general charter or to the cost of power. He also urged that the Government quote the maximum amount which the municipality would have to pay.

Mr. Beck said the thirty years was the term of the debentures issued to pay the cost of the right of way and transmission line. If the Government proceeded at once, as Mr. Beck intimated was probable, to build a transmission line this enterprise would be paid for in thirty years by the sinking fund.

Commission Make Good.

Regarding the price Mr. Beck said that the aim of the Commission was to fulfill the promise of the Prime Minister and supply the people with power at cost. (Mr. Whitney—"Hear, hear!" Applause.) The amount would depend in its finality on the cost of power, the amount used, how it was measured and the liability of the generating company for non-fulfilment of its contract. "Let me say on behalf of the Commission and the Government," added Mr. Beck, "that we are in a position to more than make good the prices quoted to the people." (Applause.)

Mr. Preston rejoiced in the Minister's announcement. He was heartily in accord with his power policy and had not asked his questions in a carping manner. (Applause.)

Mr. Beck understood this. He also desired to make public his appreciation of valued suggestions received from the Liberal member for Brant. It was the adoption of his idea that had resulted in the abolition of the Conmee clauses. Cheap power was, he was glad to say, not a party issue. (Applause.)

Mr. Graham also took occasion to commend the policy of cheap power. The sincerity of the Minister was displayed in his readiness to receive and consider suggestions from both sides of the House.

Mr. McDougal (Ottawa) asked if the ten-year contract limited the liability of the municipality.

Mr. Beck replied that it did, so far as the taking of power was concerned, but the debentures extended over thirty years.

Liquor License Act.

The Provincial Secretary's bill to amend the Liquor License Act was presented for its second reading. It provides that in local option municipalities the bar cannot be leased and released to other parties than the proprietor to prevent the courts from getting past a first conviction, for which imprisonment is the penalty. In Owen Sound this idea found great favor. Hotel-keepers who had been fined, leased the bar to another, who being fined also, would in turn lease to another. The bill is to prevent such evasions.

Mr. Preston (Brant) asked concerning the basis of taking the vote on local option, whether it should be one man one vote, also whether 25 per cent. of the voters meant 25 per cent. of those on the list or of those entitled to vote. He asked, too, if a voter could authorize another to sign his name to a petition.

Hon. Mr. Hanna pointed out that in view of the consolidation of the statutes which would be brought down next session, it was thought well to leave the act as it was in the meantime.

Mr. Graham expressed the opinion that the selling of liquor to a habitual drunkard, after notice had been served on the hotel-keeper, should be placed among the serious offences.

Children in Hotels.

Mr. Preston advised consideration of the employment of children in hotels. The child labor committee thought children under 16 years should be prohibited from such employment. He also advocated holding the hotel-keeper liable for misdemeanors of the bar-tender.

The bill passed.

The second reading was given Mr. Foy's bill for the preservation of Butler's burying ground at Niagara-on-the-Lake, and the bill respecting stationary engineers was put through committee, marine and locomotive engineers being excluded from its general provisions.

On the third reading of the municipal amendment act, Mr. Ferguson moved an amendment striking out the clause which removed the liability for accidents from defective highways from the municipalities unless they were notified. The amendment carried and the much-talked-of clause 606 got a new lease of life.

The bill providing for increases in the salaries of the Cabinet Ministers was passed in committee.

Caught In Shafting.

Brockville, April 17.—Whirled around a shaft was the experience yesterday by a man named Goodison at Bowie & Co.'s brewery. His coat became entangled in a belt.

Besides being injured internally, his head, arms and various parts of the body were bruised. His clothing was torn to shreds.

Doctors have hopes of his recovery.

Foul Play Disproved.

Stratford, April 17.—The coroner's jury, enquiring into the death of Mrs. Dewing, last night decided that she had died from shock on account of burning. Koeller, who had been arrested on suspicion that foul play had been done, was thereupon discharged from custody. The verdict was in accordance with the medical testimony.

District Attorney Jerome is to visit Montreal, and address the Canadian Club.

EVELYN THAW'S MOTHER.

Says She Would Have Killed White Had She Known.

Pittsburg, April 17.—The Pittsburg Leader yesterday afternoon prints a six-column statement from Mrs. Chas. J. Holman, mother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, in which she defends herself against the accusations expressed and implied against her during the Thaw trial.

The statement opens by saying that two nights after the night upon which Harry Thaw shot Stanford White she received this telegram from her daughter: "It is most important for you to say absolutely nothing."

Until now she has remained silent and has been forced to take the defensive because of the attack made upon her by Mr. Delmas in his closing address to the jury. She denies that she aided the district attorney in any way.

In Love With Stage.

"Florence," she says, "was in love with the stage." She did everything to discourage her, but it was useless. The story of Florence's first meeting with Stanford White, she says, is substantially as told by the former on the witness stand. When Florence returned she told her mother she had met the grandest man. White, she says, warned her specifically against several young men with whom Florence had been acquainted, but did not refer to Thaw. His manner, words and actions were the personification of wholehearted, disinterested generosity, Mrs. Holman says, and if ever a woman reposed implicit confidence in a man she says she did.

Mrs. Holman then asserts that if Florence underwent the experience that is said to have befallen her, she did not take her into her confidence.

Continuing, she says: "Had she told me what she told the Thaw jury it would not have been necessary for Harry Thaw to kill Stanford White. I would have done it myself."

"My love for my daughter is as deep and intense as it was when I first held her in my arms a helpless baby."

Rupture Between Counsel.

New York, April 17.—The first open indication of the oft-repeated trouble between the array of attorneys who represented Harry K. Thaw in his recent trial came yesterday, when Henry C. McPike, associate of D. M. Delmas, called on Clerk Penny of the Supreme Court and demanded the immediate surrender of some of the exhibits introduced by the defence during the trial.

Acting on instructions from Daniel O'Reilly, who claims to be the only lawyer retained for the defence, the application was refused.

"BOBS" AND GEN. BOTHA.

Former Adversaries Joke Now About Their Experiences.

London, April 17.—The colonial Premiers were presented with the freedom of the Guild Hall yesterday and subsequently were entertained at luncheon by the Lord Mayor, Sir William Treloar, and the corporation. Each of the visitors received letters-patent as a freeman, enclosed in a gold casket. The Premiers drove in procession to the Guild Hall, Gen. Botha, the Transvaal Premier, as "the Benjamin of the Brotherhood," riding with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Prime Minister, and bringing up the rear. The decorations of the streets through which the procession passed were not pretentious, but the visitors received a hearty welcome from large crowds of people.

The luncheon at the Guild Hall was a brilliant function. It was attended by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Premier Campbell-Bannerman, and other Cabinet Ministers; Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who cracked jokes with Gen. Botha about their experiences on the veldt; many peers and members of the House of Commons, and military and naval men in uniforms sparkling with decorations, while the women present were dressed in the most elaborate costume.

The Boer flag captured by the City Imperial Volunteer at Jacobsdal, which usually ornaments the banqueting hall, was removed on this occasion, so as not to offend Gen. Botha and his party.

EMPIRE STILL AN ENTITY.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Says the Conference Will Prove It.

London, April 17.—Replying to the Lord Mayor's toast to the Premiers at the Guildhall luncheon, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was seated on the Lord Mayor's right, predicted that the results of the conference just opened would demonstrate to the world that the British Empire was a living entity and that its success was assured. The presence of General Botha and Dr. Jameson at the same conference board, the speaker added, showed that the meeting could not be a failure.

34 Years For Burglary.

New York, April 17.—Clifford M. Smith, a 22-year-old youth, who was detected in the act of extracting pennies from a child's bank in a house which he had entered by force in the night, was sentenced yesterday to serve 34 years and 4 months in Sing Sing Prison.

Thirty years of the term was imposed on the burglary charge, and the four years and four months for having assaulted Mr. and Mrs. John Oestreicher with a loaded screw driver when they interrupted him.

Fatal Duel Over Girl.

New York, April 17.—After a quarrel over a girl to whom both were paying attention, two Italians fought a duel with revolvers in Ozone Park, L.I., yesterday, as a result of which one of them, Buca Piandiane, was instantly killed.

Vincenzo Cica, the other duellist, was found hiding in a closet in the home of his victim. As the police burst in the closet door Cica shot and killed himself.

The two men had been close friends.

Prince May Come.

London, April 17.—It is rumored that the Prince and Princess of Wales will pay another visit to Canada in the near future.

Fourteen miners have been smothered to death by the fumes from a fire in a Mexican coal pit.

GREAT DAMAGE IS DONE

Many Deaths Reported as Result of Mexican Earthquake.

Towns of Ayutla and Ometepre Practically Destroyed — Severe Shocks Continued Through Night—Traffic Entirely Suspended—Acapulco Partially Submerged — People Fleeing to Country and Living In Tents.

Mexico City, April 17.—The extent of the damage wrought by the earthquake are greater than hitherto has been reported.

The first belated press telegrams to reach this city for 24 hours past were received by the Associated Press at one o'clock yesterday afternoon. From them it is learned that the Town of Ayutla, to the east of Acapulco, and not far from the Pacific Coast, and the Town of Ometepre, about 70 miles to the east of Ayutla, have been practically destroyed.

The shocks continued at Chilpancingo, 125 miles south of here, all Monday night, and were quite severe. Many of the buildings that were left half standing by the previous tremblings were levelled to the ground.

The last shock at Chilpancingo occurred at four o'clock yesterday morning. The general in command of the troops were severely injured. The jail, the hospitals and the school buildings at this town were destroyed. The people have deserted the town and are living in improvised structures in the open air.

The Federal Government is extending aid to the Town of Chilpancingo, but it will be impossible to restore calm until the shocks cease.

The number of deaths reported to date is 37. Fourteen persons were killed in one house. The number of injured is placed at 39.

These figures, however, are not exact, and it is believed that the casualty list eventually will be found to be much larger.

Traffic between Mexico City and Vera Cruz has been completely suspended, as large sections of the track of both the International and Mexican Railroads are sinking.

The port of Acapulco is reported to be partially submerged.

The entire Pacific Coast between Acapulco and Salina Cruz, a distance of some 50 miles, is said to have suffered more or less severely.

CAYUGA MURDER CASE.

Grand Jury Charged By Judge Mabee Yesterday.

Cayuga, April 17.—"Gentlemen, you will bear in mind you do not try the guilt or innocence of this woman. Your duties end when you come to an agreement as whether or not you have heard satisfactory evidence from the crown to warrant you in bringing in either a true bill or no bill to have Mattie Perkins tried before a petty jury in the charge of poisoning Henry Perkins."

In these terms the grand jury, sitting at the opening of the spring assize court of the County of Haldimand, were admonished by Justice Mabee to consider the bill of indictment charging Mattie Perkins of Canfield with poisoning her husband, who died last Christmas, by administering strychnine.

With no report from the grand jury at 5 o'clock Justice Mabee adjourned the court until to-day.

The names of 49 witnesses are endorsed on the bill of indictment. If a true bill is found it is unlikely that the trial will close before Saturday evening. There appears to be a strong feeling in favor of the prisoner.

Druggist Sold Liquor.

Belleville, April 17.—Dr. Towle, a druggist at Springbrook, Rawdon Township, where local option is in force, was charged before three justices of the peace with two offences of selling liquor illegally. Both offences were proven, and a fine of $50 in each case was imposed.

The defendant intimated that he would appeal the case.

Carnegie Gift Dedicated.

New York, April 17.—The beautiful new engineering societies building, presented to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the American Institute of Mining Engineers, by Andrew Carnegie, was dedicated yesterday. The building is located at 29 West 39th street.

A Terrible Death.

Port Arthur, April 17.—A Hungarian was killed at the Canadian Northern elevator while feeding the conveyor belt, while attempting to step over the rapidly revolving shaft. A set-screw caught in the leg of his overalls. His left leg was torn completely off, and neck and back and skull broken.

Big Steamer Ashore.

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—The new steel steamer Ogdensburg, of the Rutland Line, stranded on Pointe Aux Barques Monday night. The steamer is leaking some forward, and the cargo is being thrown overboard. The cargo included 50,000 bushels of corn, a big consignment of flour and general merchandise.

Spain's Naval Outlay.

Madrid, April 17.—The Minister of Marine yesterday declared that the naval program to be presented at the opening of the Cortes comprised fresh expenditures, amounting to $16,000,000 annually and lasting for several years. It is understood that the total of appropriations demanded amounts to $64,000,000.

Calls Leftists Bomb Throwers.

St. Petersburg, April 17.—V. V. Shulgin, a reactionist, workman deputy from Volhynia, was excluded by Vice-President Pozansky, who presided, from yesterday's sitting of the Lower House of Parliament for calling the members of the left party "Bomb Throwers."

John Butler has been appointed police magistrate for Goderich in place of C. A. Bamber, deceased.

Heavy Loss for McGill; Another Very Serious Fire

Medical School Destroyed by Fire—Loss $500,000.

Priceless Specimens In Museum Destroyed—Medical Library Partially Saved—Second Disastrous Fire In Two Weeks—Collection Was Work of Seventy-Five Years—Incendiarism Suspected.

Montreal, April 17.—The second disastrous fire within two weeks visited McGill University at an early hour yesterday morning and practically destroyed the Medical building, one of the oldest and most valuable of the splendid collection on the college grounds. The results of the fire were most disastrous, as, in addition to the usual equipment of the college Medical building, the museum, one of the best on the continent, was destroyed. The loss in this cannot be considered by a money standard, as the museum has been collecting for nearly three-quarters of a century, and contained many absolutely priceless specimens. The actual loss will exceed half a million dollars, but the greatest loss is not in what dollars and cents can replace, but in the museum, library and expensive laboratory equipment.

Origin of the Fire a Mystery.

The fire alarm was turned in at 1.15 yesterday morning, followed shortly by a second and then a general alarm. How the fire originated is not known. It started in the centre of the building on the second floor, where the lecture rooms are situated, but nothing had been going on there to start a fire. The fire burnt with great force, and was almost beyond control before the firemen reached the scene, and then for some time the water pressure was light and the firemen could not get the blaze under control. Every few minutes the roar of the flames was punctuated with loud explosions, as the chemicals in the laboratory exploded. Often the fumes from the burning chemicals colored the flames and gave a weird, uncanny effect to the scene.

Fireproof Library Only Saved.

The present Medical building was built in 1873. In 1885 and again in 1893 large additions were made. Again proving too small, a thorough reconstruction and enlargement of the buildings had just lately been completed. The alterations and extensions consisted of three wings, one a laboratory wing on the north; another ran east, and a third on the west side of the main central building. The building was of stone and brick, four storeys high. The total length was 280 feet, and the width 145 feet. The central part of the building is entirely destroyed, and all the wings more or less gutted except the fireproof library, which escaped, while buildings on all sides of it are destroyed. The library contained many valuable volumes, and while these will be somewhat damaged with water and smoke, the authorities are rejoicing that the library did not burn with the museum.

The Medical building was erected at a cost of $350,000 some few years ago. Lord Strathcona contributed $125,000 to help in the alterations.

Collection of a Lifetime Gone.

The greatest loss will be in the museum. Dr. Sheppard stated that the fire destroyed for him the collection of a whole lifetime, his anatomical collection being part of the portion destroyed. This collection was famous throughout America, and with its destruction passes a chapter in the history of anatomical science on this side of the ocean. Dean Roddick, who was early on the scene of the fire, said:—"Don't ask me what the damage will be; it is too awful to think of, and really we ourselves are at a loss to place any estimate on it."

Immediately after the disastrous fire which wiped out the Engineering building the university authorities, it is understood, placed half a million dollars of extra insurance on the whole university plant. The Medical building will share in this, but it is doubtful whether the insurance will cover half the loss.

Caretaker Cook, who for over a quarter of a century has had a room in the basement, knew nothing of the fire until aroused and rescued by the firemen. He had gone to bed shortly after 11 o'clock. He, with the authorities, is mystified as to the origin of the fire.

There was $350,000 insurance on the building and its contents, shared between 21 companies.

Waterford Hotel Burned.

Waterford, April 17.—The Beemer House was burned to the ground Monday night. The cause of the fire unknown. No insurance.

An "All-Red" Service.

Vancouver, B. C., April 17.—Beginning next year a direct line of 11 fast steamers will ply between Vancouver and Great Britain, via Australia and New Zealand, completing another "All Red" girdle about the world. This will divert to Vancouver the Australian freight, passengers and mails, which formerly, passed through San Francisco.

A feature is that a direct line to Vancouver from the old country, by way of Suez and Australia, will be furnished. This will be a tri-weekly service.

Riddled With Bullets.

New Orleans, La., April 17.—Charley Strauss, the negro who was charged with attempting a criminal assault on a white woman near Bunkie, La., Sunday, was taken from the officers by a mob and hung to a tree about six miles from Bunkie yesterday while being taken from the jail.

His body was riddled with bullets.

Badly Hurt.

Toronto, April 17.—Charles Hong, a reamer at the Polson Iron Works, sustained severe injuries about the head by falling twelve feet from an upper floor yesterday. His face was badly bruised, and he was removed to Grace Hospital.

The Sun Will Be Discussed

At Meeting of Astronomical Society on Friday Night

At the next meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical society in the Y.M.C.A. hall, on Friday evening of this week, the president, Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, will lecture on the "Sun." Solar physics will be discussed in such a manner as to be readily understood and intelligently followed by those who are just commencing the study of astronomy.

The lecture will be illustrated by a large number of limelight views, made from real photographs, showing the photosphere, chromosphere, seculae, sun spots, the sun's corona during an eclipse and the sun's atmosphere photographed at various depths.

The meeting promises to be an exceedingly interesting one, and all members and their friends, and prospective members are cordially invited.

The meeting will open at eight o'clock sharp, when the correct mean and sidereal time will be given.

ANNUAL SALE OF FANCY GOODS

Girls' Guild of St. John's Church Have Accepted an New and Novel Idea

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Girl's Guild of St. John's Church, was held in the school room last evening. The most important matter before the meeting was in reference to the annual sale and social. The girls have decided on a new and novel idea for this year. Instead of the old time sale, all the fancy work and other articles the members have prepared, will be packed in boxes. An inscription designating the contents will be placed on the outside of the wrapper, and then the parcels will be offered for sale by auction. A good auctioneer will conduct the sale, and it is expected that quite a good lot of fun will be had as well as a good round sum for the Guild. The girls this year have worked particularly hard and have a finer lot of fancy goods than ever before. The programme will also include many very choice musical selections by the best talent in the city. This event will take place on Tuesday night, April 23rd, in St. John's school house.

There Should be No Exceptions

Correspondent Gives His Views on the Sign By-law

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—While approving of the conduct of the Council in their determination not to grant the request of the shopkeepers as to the two bylaws recently passed, because there was no necessity for it, I must say, in common with others, who have given the matter fair consideration, that they were remiss in not exempting those from such a drastic measure as the sign bylaw, who occupy upper flats, and have no fronts for their signs, because of the necessity for it, especially as there are so few entrances of that kind, providing such signs did not extend beyond eighteen inches from the wall, and were at least seven feet from the walk, as has been allowed heretofore, in some cases, at least. Such uncalled-for severity will do more harm immeasurably and cause more ill-feeling than that which is sought to be redressed. The unworthy exception in the interest of a few favored ones, with so-called illuminated signs, is only equalled by the falsity of the excuse for the preference, when they say that it is because they were only used by business places which kept open at night. Such signs, too, are more objectionable than the others, because of their immense size and the distance they extend over the streets—the very features which the by-law seeks to overcome. The Council is evidently stumbling over an ant hill and jumping clear over a mountain. Such a measure is class legislation with a vengeance and shuts out the poor man who cannot afford such an expensive article. The principle of paying a license fee is a vicious one, and as one speaker said, "We have enough burdens without adding more." It too, would be legislating against the poor man. It is not yet too late to make the necessary amendments, so that the council may rid themselves of any odium that will otherwise attach.

Yours, etc.,
FAIR PLAY.

The Formation of Builders' Exchanges in Other Cities

Peterborough Contractors are Taking Steps in This Direction—Suggestions for Benefit of Exchanges—Advantages to be Organized in an Association.

The different contractors of Peterborough have held two or three meetings with the objects of forming a Builders Exchange. So far, good progress has been made.

As the public does not generally understand the matter, object and function of such an organization, the following from Mr. J. H. Laurer, secretary of the Montreal Builders' Exchange, which appeared in the last number of the Canadian Architect and Builder, will be read with timely interest:—

By courtesy of the editor of The Canadian Architect and Builder I have been invited to make a few suggestions for the benefit of the various Exchanges throughout the Dominion in general, as to the best methods by which to build up the membership in Builders' Exchanges.

The first difficulty to contend with is the general apathy of contractors and their failure to realize the value of co-operation. When the remarkable results achieved by organization of workingmen are considered for a moment none but a wilfully blind person could deny the enormous power of co-operation, locally, provincially and nationally. Employers act as isolated units, refuse concerted action, prefer to "run their own business," and then fall easy victims individually to any union demands, however extravagant. The employee contributes his weekly quota to his union, far greater in proportion than the trifling dues charged by employers' associations, while the employer despises or thinks himself superior superior to the very means which have proved beyond argument the strength and power of his own employees. If organization is good for the worker it must at least be equally good for the employer. Surely every intelligent employer (and we will assume that their intelligence is at least equal to that of their employees) must see that the labor vote to-day controls Parliament in Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, and is even being wooed with pathetic—however insincere—protestations of devotion by Liberal and Conservative alike here in Canada while the employers' vote, because weak, shiftless and disunited, is absolutely ignored.

Suggestion 1.—Impress upon contractors the need of acting in trade matters as a unit; let them adopt a consistent policy similar to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, acting in unison throughout the Dominion in promoting of opposing legislative measures which are constantly being exploited both provincially and federally, and their annual fee will be saved many times over by having their representations respected at headquarters.

In labor problems, lay down general principles of action. Have a definite programme to face labor troubles, and live up to it. From experience, both here and elsewhere, the writer is more than ever convinced of the value of the "open shop" principle as the most just and unassailable position for contractors to adopt.

Suggestion 2.—Take in the "Open Shop" (Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, Ohio) for your reading room, and act upon its suggestions.

Then there is the vexed question of price-cutting and cut-throat competition. Combines are illegal; but common sense will surely appeal to every contractor to realize that no individual can expect to do all the work; there is enough to go all round without sacrificing legitimate profit. The better class of contractors will refuse to cut down their carefully-figured estimates at the behest of certain architects because of alleged or imaginary lower prices of other competitors, and the best architects will equally refuse to lend themselves to hawking tenders given in confidence all over town with the idea of "scalping" prices.

Suggestion 3.—Print and circulate a high standard of a "Code of Practice." People won't live up to it all at once, but gradually it will make itself felt. Put yourself in touch with your local Architects' Association and insist (1) that bulk and separate tenders shall not be called for on the same job; (2) that general contractors in submitting tenders shall be required to state their sub-contractors at the time, and if these are satisfactory to the architect they shall not afterwards be allowed to be changed. The reason for this is obvious. The curse of contracting today is "trading on sub-bids."

To build up the membership of your Exchange you must show contractors that it is an advantage to be organized in such an association. Naturally at first you will have more contractors outside than in. Endeavor first to secure the men who have the work. Enthusiasm is necessary for success. Start with your directors; induce them to secure the good-will and adhesion of their colleagues outside; when you have secured the "men who count" the others will follow; appoint an influential "Admission Committee," who are workers, to canvass likely or desirable contractors outside; hold weekly meetings of this committee to report and follow up. Do not be afraid of printers' ink; nothing can make money without advertising, except the mint.

Suggestion 4.—A large admission fee is not desirable (if any.) The annual dues should not be too cheap; a thing is appreciated at its cost, and what costs little is valued accordingly.

A feature which has put new life into many Exchanges is the permanent exposition of building materials. The writer is strongly in favor of this extension of the permanent usefulness of the local Exchange, which has the advantage of making it valuable to property owners, architects, and the general public alike.

Suggestion 5.—Correspondence is strongly urged with the secretaries of the following successful Exchange exhibits, to whom the writer gladly acknowledges many courtesies; Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Baltimore and Cleveland, where plans, rents and other details can be obtained first-hand.

There is, of course, the "personal equation" of the secretary. He must not be one to sit in his office and expect members to grow up like mushrooms in a night, or he will expect in vain. If he is one to look for work and go after it, he will not look in vain and will find plenty to keep him busy.

There may be many other and better suggestions from secretaries of longer and wider experience; these fugitive remarks are rather in the nature of hints than an attempt at an exhaustive analysis of so wide a topic. The writer has made no mention of an attractive reading room, with telephones and needful accommodation for stationery, as well as the absolute necessity "advance notices" of all new work coming out or in course of construction, for the simple reason that these form the essential elements of any Exchange worthy of the name.

Do not leave the matter off until too late. Put an X opposite "Yes" or "No," which ever way you desire to record your vote, and hand in or send to the Review office. Can the City Council Amend Bakers' By-Law as Requested?

Guelph Aldermen, Advised By Their Solicitor, Decide Not to Change Their By-Law from Four to Three Pound Loaves—Conflict With Ontario Statutes.

On Monday night last the City Council decided to amend the Bakers' By-law to read three pound loaves instead of four pound loaves. This was done upon the request of the Bakers' Association, which was represented at the meeting by Mr. N. Lush. The argument that gentleman put forth on behalf of his associates was to have all the bread made in the city uniform. At present some bakers make four pound loaves, while others make only three pound loaves, and place stamps on them according to the statues of Ontario.

The object of the amendment is to do away with the stamps, which is, to a certain extent, an expense and a great deal of trouble.

It is a question, however, whether the Council can do this, or whether the aldermen acted wisely. The same question is before the Guelph City Council and the following clipping from the Herald will be of considerable interest just now:—

"The question of the amendments to the bread by-law is being freely discussed among the citizens as well as in civic circles.

On one side the argument is put forth that an amendment to the bread by-law permitting the sale of three pound loaves as a standard would be much more convenient than the four pound.

The city cannot, however, alter the by-law as it would then conflict with the Ontario Statutes, which state that a uniform standard weight of four pounds shall be maintained, and if bread is sold at other weights such weights must be stamped on the loaves in full view of the purchaser.

The question was raised a year ago and the advice of City Solicitor Guthrie was asked. He informed the informed the then Mayor that the meaning of the statute by-laws was quite clear and that an amendment to the by-law would conflict with the statute.

This matter will likely then be dropped as the city fathers have no option in the matter."

It might be advisable to consult the city solicitor before amending the bread by-law in this city and save any probable trouble later on.

Presented Him With Liberal Purse

Rev. A. Bright Receives a Final Mark of Good Will and Esteem

That Rev. Alfred Bright, who for the past year has been assistant pastor of St. Paul's and Knox churches was popular and esteemed to a marked degree, has been abundantly evidenced during the past few days.

On Sunday he was presented by the members of the Young Men's Bible class in St. Paul's Sunday school, with an appreciative address and a handsome mantle clock.

On Monday night several members of Knox church honored him with a kindly worded address, and a complete set of Charles Dickens' works, splendidly bound.

Yesterday afternoon, in the office of Mr. E. S. Clarry, the president of the Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's church, he was presented, on behalf of the Guild and other members of the congregation, with a purse of money—some seventy dollars in all.

Mr Clarry made the presentation in a few appropriate remarks, speaking of the pleasant relations that had always existed between the members of the Guild and the congregation and the retiring assistant pastor, who had greatly endeared himself to all. They joined in wishing him every success and prosperity in his new charge in Ingersoll.

Short addresses were also made by ex-Mayor G. M. Roger, Adam Hall, A. P. McLean, Dickson Davidson, G. B. VanBlaricom and Graham Ferguson, all voicing regret at Mr. Bright's departure, but wishing him every happiness in his new field of labor.

Mr Bright, in acknowledging the mark of esteem, referred to the kindness which had always been extended to him in Peterborough. He felt that he did not deserve the many attentions that had been shown him. He would always take a deep interest in the progress and welfare of the church and trusted that God's richest blessing would rest upon it and the congregation.

Mr Bright left this morning for Norwood, where he will preach this evening at a preparatory communion service for Rev. G. A. MacLennan. He will then go to Montreal to spend a few days at his home and, after a short visit to friends in Kingston, will proceed to Ingersoll where he will be ordained and inducted as pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in that town, during the first week in May.

CANNING TRADE IS RESTRAINED

Public Called Upon to Pay Increased Price—Who is Benefited?

From time to time the consuming public has been called upon to pay an increased price for canned goods. Naturally considerable wonderment was caused as to the reason for this advance. The people claimed it was a combine and the canners and wholesalers stated that it was merely the result of increased cost of production and handling.

Nevertheless the canners and wholesale men have been making additional profits and have been controlling the trade. The following item from the Toronto News is of interest to all retail grocers and to the consumers;

"In effect, the Canadian canners, through their alliance with most of the wholesale trade, constitute a combination in the restraint of trade. Just as the railways gave rebates to the Standard Oil Company to the vast injury of the independent refiners, so the Canadian Canners give rebates to the wholesalers with whom they are in active alliance. This rebate is a direct remuneration to the wholesalers for refusing to handle goods made by the independent canners. Is this rebate not in restraint of trade?

Because the Canadian canners control the majority of the best known and old-established brands, the wholesalers are under the practical necessity of handling their goods. If the wholesaler confines himself absolutely to these brands, made only by the Canadian canner, he is given a rebate, (or a bribe?) of from 5 per cent to 7 1-2 per cent. On a season's business this may well amount to $5,000 to $7,500. Is this rebate not in restraint of trade?

We believe that this state of affairs is covered by section 520 of the Criminal Code and we believe it is the plain duty of Attorney-General Foy to institute an investigation, and if the evidence warrants to prosecute this "combination in restraint of trade," until its system of rebates is effectually brought to an end."

EXTENSION OF TIME GRANTED

Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa R.R., and the Toronto, Lindsay and Pembroke R. R.

The policy of the Government in respect to the requests for aid to railways which have come before them since last session, was defined by Premier Whitney in the Legislature yesterday evening. In a general way, he said that the Government still believed the time had come to stop the granting of land to any of these entreprises, or to give any other assistance, unless in exceptional cases, where the public interests were clearly served.

An enlargement of time for the completion of the Irondale, Bancroft & Ottawa Railway to December 31, 1910, was granted.

To the Toronto, Lindsay & Pembroke Railway, extension of time to December 1, 1909, was granted.

PASSED AWAY AT BUFFALO

Death of Patrick McNamara, a Former Peterborough Man

Intelligence was received in the city today of the death at Buffalo, N.Y., of Patrick McNamara, a former resident of Peterborough. Deceased was seventy-two years of age, but the despatch received regarding his demise did not state what was the cause of death. Mr. McNamara was well known in Peterborough, having resided here for over fifty years, moving to Buffalo about ten years ago. He was a bricklayer by trade and assisted in the erection of many of the business blocks and other buildings in the city. He was highly respected by a large number of friends in Peterborough and his death will be learned of with deep regret.

The late Mr. McNamara is survived by his wife and three sons and four daughters. Mrs. McNamara's maiden name was Mary Griffin, and she is a sister of Mrs. Thos. Hickey of this city. All the sons and daughters reside in Buffalo. Mr. McNamara was a cousin of Mr. P. McNamara, of Lake street.

The funeral will take place at Buffalo.

The late Mr. McNamara possessed many sterling qualities and had a wide circle of friends. In politics he was a Conservative.

We have been highly complimented by scores of citizens on the flavor of our Teas—the best only 40c lb—Kennedy's.

NEW ARRIVALS IN PETERBORO'

About Fifty Salvation Army Immigrants Reach the City

Two immigrant trains passed through the city today, the first one going through about 12.30 a.m. and the other about five o'clock this morning. Some fifty of the immigrants got off here. The Salvation Army had the steamship "Southwark" of the Dominion Line, chartered, and about one thousand three hundred men and women were brought out. They left Liverpool on April 4th, and arrived at Halifax at five o'clock on Sunday morning. The voyage was fairly pleasant, although the first three days were quite rough. Three special trains left Halifax, bringing the immigrants to different points in Ontario, one on the G.T.R. and the others on the C.P.R.

A number of those who got off at Peterborough were at the Salvation Army barracks this morning. All the new arrivals seemed quite enthusiastic over their new homes to be made in Canada.

Mr. Alfred Horton, with his wife and family of four children came on the first train. They are a fine, industrious looking family, and will no doubt make good citizens. Mr. Horton was for a great many years employed with a construction company in London, and has been highly recommended by this company. He has already secured a position at the Canadian General Electric Co.

Mr. Geo. Moors accompanied Mr. Horton. They both come from the metropolitan district of London. Mr. Moors is a painter by trade. He did not bring his family with him, but if he is pleased with Canada, they will follow at a later date.

The steamer Vancouver leaves Liverpool tomorrow, with another load of immigrants. The Southwark will return at once, and will again sail from Liverpool on May 2nd, with more new comers. The Salvation Army intend bringing a large number of settlers to Canada, during the coming summer.

Romaine Street Sewer Being Cleared of All Obstructions

Stories of Failure of Day Labor Are Not So Black—Cost Was Not Excessive—Sand is Being Removed—Two Sections Are Now Free.

From time to time reports have been circulated as to the heavy expense of the Romaine Street Sewer, constructed by day labor and completed last winter. It has been said that the city's attempt at day labor was a failure, and that the sewer cost much more than it would have had it been built by contract. It has also been said that the sewer would never be any good, and that the Board of Education would always have trouble in draining the King Edward school, for which the sewer was especially built. In fact, every bad thing that could possibly be said about this work, has been said.

The Board of Education has complained about water in the basement of the school and has requested that the sewer be put into proper condition at once. But upon investigation it has been learned that conditions are not nearly so unfavorable as painted by some of those opposed to day labor.

The City Engineer put in his tender with several contractors and as his tender was the lowest he was given the job. Mr. White was put on the work with a gang of men, and the sewer has been completed. It was built at the worst season of the year for such work, as it was desirable to give the Board of Education drainage as quickly as possible.

The section through which the sewer had to be laid is one of the worst in the city, as quicksand had to be contended with. The work was carried on in the winter, long after every contractor had ceased operations. All this added to the cost, but when the engineer's report was handed to the Council it was found that the price was not very much in excess of his estimate, and it would have cost as much or more, had the contractor done the job.

Then as far as the sewer being blocked with sand is concerned, the City Engineer and the Board of Works, were always aware of the fact. Every effort was made to prevent the quicksand getting in the pipes while they were being laid, but it was impossible to keep it all out, and as a result there is considerable trouble from this source. But the sand is now being removed, and it will be only a short time when the sewer will be in perfect running order.

Mr. White and another man are taking the sand out. It is a slow business, but it is being done. The two men started at the lower end with one inch gas pipes about five feet long. These are shoved through the sewer and joined together and then taken out and emptied. Considerable progress is being made, and now two sections of the sewer (a section is from one manhole to another) are running freely and the third section is nearly completed. There are only five sections altogether, so that the whole stretch will be free in a few days, and all the trouble will have been overcome.

Many Peterborough Families Will Move To New Dwellings

Vans of the Cartage Companies Will Be Very Busy During Next Two Weeks—New Houses One of the Causes.

May 1st, moving day, is near at hand and the local cartage companies state that their vans are already busy and have orders booked for several weeks in advance. People are already moving to new houses and the "joys of moving" are being experienced in many families. It is said that there will be an unusually large amount of moving on May 1st, of this year, owing to the large number of new houses that have been erected during the past year. These can be secured for about the same rental as dwellings that are not new and are not so well equipped as the recently erected residences and consequently many families are leaving the old houses and renting the new ones.

Practically all the new houses erected recently have city water, electric light and all modern improvements, so that they are much preferable to the older houses, many of which have not these conveniences and improvements.

However, it is not expected that there will be many vacant houses in the city when all the moving is over. A gentleman who owns a large number of houses in the city stated today that no sooner was one tenant out of a house when another one moved in. A large number of new families are coming into Peterborough this spring, being attracted here by the rapid industrial development and the prospect of remunerative employment, and they will not likely be disappointed.

Hoisted Flag of Distress To Tell of Villainous Crime

A Bowmanville Woman, Aged Eighty-nine Years, the Victim of Midnight Attack by Immigrant—Man Arrested on Serious Charge.

A Bowmanville despatch says;

An Irish immigrant named T. J. Moore, who has been in this country about a year, appeared before Police Magistrate Horsey on a charge of breaking into the residence of Mrs. Deacon, 89 years of age, who resides near the cemetery, east of the town. It seems that a week ago Monday night Mrs. Deacon was awakened about 12 o'clock by someone trying her door. She called out, enquiring who was there, and not understanding the reply given, got out of bed and proceeded to dress. However, the party continued to bang against the door, and after breaking through three doors, got into the room. He then caught hold of the old lady. In the struggle she cut her face against the side of the door. She finally swooned away, and when she came to, the man told her he was sorry he frightened her and asked her to say nothing about it, and he would get her a present, and, lighting his pipe, went away; The old lady as soon as morning came hoisted a flag which she has been accustomed to do when wanting anything, and her neighbor, Mr. R. Witheridge, came over, when she related the events of the night. He at once came up town and interviewed Chief of Police Jarvis who, from the description given, soon located Moore. After hearing the evidence, the police magistrate committed the prisoner for trial at the coming assizes at Cobourg. However, it has since transpired that Moore committed a criminal assault on Mrs. Deacon, the old lady being afraid to tell it when the court was in session. Chief Jarvis discoverde all the facts yesterday, and now Moore will have to answer to a more serious charge, as Mrs Deacon positively identified him as the man, and, in fact, he virtually admitted, after the case was over on Saturday, that he was the man who broke in, the subsequent facts not having been known at the time

It is one of the most villainous things that has ever occurred here Mrs. Deacon is one of the oldest residents in this vicinity, having lived for some years in the township before removing to town and is universally respected.

It seems that Moore, who buried his wife last January, then residing at Newcastle, had been drinking at one of the hotels all day.

No. 7 Company's Good Showing

In the Recent Examinations of the Non-Coms. Class

In connection with the results of the examinations to qualify as non-commissioned officers of the 57th Regiment, which appear in another column, it may be stated that sixteen passed out of a class of nineteen, seven securing sergeant's certificates, and nine corporal's certificates. The examination was much stricter than in past years. In former seasons everyone who tried the exams were given certificates; those who could not qualify for the rank of sergeant were given corporal's certificates. But this year it was different and three men who could not qualify were "plucked."

Out of the sixteen who passed, seven were from No. 7 company, three sergeants and four corporals. This is a splendid showing and the company must be congratulated.

This afternoon, shortly after dinner, P. C. Meharry was called to the Royal Hotel, Hunter street, to arrest a man who was wanting to fight, who in fact attempted to stab people and in two instances brought blood on men with whom he tried to quarrel. He was brought to the police station. On the way he tried to use his fist on the policeman. The man was considerably under the influence of liquor and was hardly accountable for what he had done. He will tell his story before the magistrate tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Another drunk was also placed behind the bars this afternoon.

The Bouts Have Been Postponed

Will be Held on Wednesday Instead of Monday Night

The boxing and wrestling bouts which were to have been held in the old opera house on Monday night of next week have been postponed until Wednesday night. Great interest centres in the different events scheduled and there promises to be a big crowd in attendance. A feature of the tournament will be the wrestling bout between Dunn, of Toronto and Harry Burridge, of Peterborough. Dunn is clearing up everything in Toronto, and expects to win from the Peterborough boy but the latter is training faithfully and will prove a doubty proposition. The boxing bout between "Scotty" McEwan, of Toronto, and Jerry Carroll, of Ottawa, promises to be a lively affair.

HOCKEY

IN THE TOILS

"Tuff" Bellefuille, fromerly of Kenora, and one of the world's best hockey players has been arrested in Houghton, Mich. ,charged with burglary. He was found in a saloon basement at 2 o'clock in the morning, and about $10 ,taken from the saloon till, was in his pocket. It would appear that "Tuff's" hockey days are over. He was one of the fastest forwards that ever put on skates, but dissipation clipped his wings and put him to the bad, as it will the best of them.

KENORA AGAIN.

Winnipeg Tribune: "Kenora has signed Whitcroft, the centre player, for next year. From this distance it looks as if the Lake of the Woods town means to be strictly in it again next season, even if the silverware which represents the world's hockey championship, rested with it but for a very brief term."

THE TURF

Still another good one has arrived, sired by Directum, dam Anna Keswick. Messrs. Geo. Lipsett, and John Swanston, the owners of this royally bred young fellow, expect to have something nice in "You know."

That little mare, City Queen, is down on the farm, convalescing after a severe attack of distemper. Mr. Lipsett says that she is very likely to be heard from again this summer.

BASEBALL

SIGNALLING IN BASEBALL.

There are three separate systems of signals in use in every game. The first is that between the catcher and pitcher regarding the kind of balls to be pitched, and the infielders are interested in this also. Upon the kind of a pitch signalled for depends the placing of the fielders to a certain extent, as certain hits are always more liable to follow certain deliveries. The infielders are also interested in the pitching signals, as it is through these they catch runners napping or trying to steal.

The second system used is the one for batting and base running. By this the hit and run, the sacrifice and the steal are managed and these matters are of vital importance in the close score games that are the rule at present.

The third bunch of signals refers to the fielding of the club and the covering of the bases, when two or more fielders are in a position to do this.

BASEBALL RECORDS.

Below are a few of the baseball records made last season;

Shortstop Altizer, of the Washington team, made five runs in seven innings.

Chicago and Brooklyn played nine innings in just an even hour.

The Chicago Americans, out of 25 mid season games, won 23, lost and played an 0 to 0 tie.

The Chicago Nationals won 116 games, breaking the former record of 106, made by the New York Nationals.

The Boston Americans lost 20 games straight and the Boston Nationals lost 19.

The New York Americans won 15 straight, and the Boston Nationals lost headers.

Stone, of the St Louis Americans, made a new record for base hits, having made 207.

The Cleveland team went on record with 120 double plays.

The Philadelphia and Boston teams, of the American League, played the longest game on record in the major league. The Athletics won, 4 to 1, in the twenty-fourth inning. This game was played September 1st.

On May 21st, "Rube" Waddell struck out thirteen Cleveland batters, the season's record in the American League. Later in the season Matthewson duplicated this performance against Brooklyn.

St. George's Baking Powder

There, Madam! That's the name of the new Baking-Powder I have been telling you about — and it's a pure Cream of Tartar Baking-Powder.

You may call me a pure-food reformer if you like—but I don't like to ask anybody else to eat what I would not eat myself—and I don't want to eat the adulterations that are put in some Baking-Powders.

St. George's Baking-Powder is manufactured here in Canada, by The National Drug & Chemical Co., Limited—the largest wholesale and manufacturing chemical house in Canada.

There's no duty to pay, and so the makers dont need to adulterate it to reduce the cost. Then, the fact that the makers are right here, where we can reach them, insures their keeping the goods up to the mark.

You know, I keep the best of everything, and St. George's Baking-Powder is what I recommend every time.

Thank you! That one can will make you a permanent customer for St. George's!

Retail Merchants Not Pleased With Action of City Council

Maintain the Sign By-Law Should Have Been Amended—Fruit and Flowers Should Be Displayed in Front of Stores—Business Will Be Injured.

The Retail Merchants Association in the city, is, to say the least, not satisfied with the action of the council on Monday night in refusing to amend the sign bylaw. At present the feeling is not being expressed publicly, but among themselves and their friends many of the business men are discussing ways and means of retaliating. It is a long time until election day, so that argument cannot be used. But there are others and there is no doubt, but that those who opposed the merchants' requests will hear of it again.

One merchant said that if the Council intended to antagonize the merchants, and if they intended to keep placing additional burdens and taxes upon them, the merchants would simply inaugurate a counter movement. There is nothing like trouble to draw any class of men together, and this sign bylaw will greatly increase the interest in the work of the Retail Merchants Association, and will strengthen the hands of the officers.

There is also a bylaw which prevents the merchants displaying fruit, flowers and other perishable goods on the street, in the doorways, or in open windows, and this the aldermen also refused to alter. As a result the merchants state that there will be great losses in fruit, owing to the heating and close atmosphere in the stores in the summer. There will also be big losses in sales as a great many people only buy fruit, when they happen to see it in front of them. The unfair treatment the merchants do not intend to put up with. They pay the bulk of the city's taxes, and they feel that they should receive some concessions, instead of being persecuted.

Results of Recent Exams. For Non-Coms. Announced

Names of Successful Ones Appear in Orders Read at Last Night's Drill of 57th Regiment—Turnout was Most Gratifying.

The 57th Regiment had a good turnout at their weekly drill last night when about an hour was spent in smart squad drill. There were about 200 of all ranks on parade, which was considered highly satisfactory considering the earliness of the season and the disagreeable weather. The recruits are coming along nicely and are picking up the rudiments of drill very rapidly. Several new ones were sworn in last night. A most desirable class of men is joining the regiment this year and the officers are much elated over the way the men are turning out and the work they are doing. Never was the enthusiasm greater.

The names of those who have passed the recent examinations for the non-commissioned officers' class were announced last night and will be found in the orders, which appear below;

AMUSEMENTS

"THE ROYAL CHEF."

One of the musical novelties which will be seen in "The Royal Chef," at the Grand Opera House, on Monday, April 22nd, will be an electric lighted feather boa. This is the invention of Mr. Gus Sohlke, who produced "The Royal Chef" for the Messrs. Shubert. The boa is used in the opening number of the second act, and on a darkened stage; the boas, which are worn by the girls, lighted up in varied colors, giving a kaleidoscopic effect to the setting. Another electric novelty is the umbrella, which is used in the last act. This umbrella is one of the trick mechanism of the stage. It is 16 feet in diameter and descends from the flies opening out as it comes. The audience can see nothing upon which the umbrella is supported, and it sails down like a bird in its flight, the girls holding ribbons which hang from the spokes of the umbrella, dancing around it Maypole fashion. At a signal, the umbrella lights up with 286 tiny incandescent lights of varied colors. It is one of the prettiest electrical effects ever seen on the stage, and is one of the many bright features of this enterprising musical comedy.

He Indignantly Denies the Story

No Dog Stole Human Bones From Excavation of Collegiate Institute

The story that human remains which have been unearthed at the excavation for the Collegiate Institute, are not respectfully disposed of and that a dog was seen running around with a thigh bone in his mouth, was indignantly denied last evening by Major Wm. Langford, one of the contractors; "I have been on the ground fully three quarters of the time since work began, and I have observed no such a thing as reported, and I do not believe anyone else has. The men have always shown the greatest respect and care when a skull, or any bone, has been disinterred. It has been taken promptly to a box and placed therein. Each day the box has been removed to the Roman Catholic cemetery, the remains to be re-interred there. The story that a dog was carrying a thigh bone, does not contain one word of truth, so far as I have been able to learn."

Joint Committee This Afternoon

Met to Consider Dickson Co's Application for a Sewer Through Their Property

There was a meeting this afternoon of the special joint committee from the City Council and the Board of Health, in connection with the drainage of the Dickson Company's property east of Water street and south of Water street. A few weeks ago the Dickson Company applied for a sewer to drain their property, or else that they be allowed to drain into the river. The matter was referred to the Board of Health, which appointed a special committee to confer with a similar committee from the City Council.

The Dickson Company's property is situated so that only a small portion of it can be connected with the existing sewer on Water street, and there is no way out of the difficulty unless a special sewer is constructed or the company is allowed to drain into the river. The company are anxious to open the land up for building purposes, and this cannot be done to advantage without a sewer.

The special sewer would have to start at the north side of Dublin street and run south along the strip between the hill and the river bank past and through the Quaker Oats Company's property. This would necessitate another septic tank, and the expense of the whole work would be very heavy compared with the benefit derived. At present the Quaker Oats Co. is draining into the river at their mills by special arrangement with the city, so that it is hard to say what course the special joint committee will decide to recommend the Council to pursue.

The Beauties of An Inland Lake

Loon Lake Where Many Citizens Will Soon go Fishing

When the bass fishing season comes round many Peterborough anglers will be hieing to different spots. The beauties of Loon Lake and its unsurpassed fishing are being widely advertised. Something about this pretty spot will be found readable.

Loon Lake is one of the beautiful inland Kawartha lakes, and is yet comparatively unknown to the tourist and sportsmen. It rivals the largest of these lakes in size, being over ten miles in length and from one to two miles wide. It is unequalled for its scenery, pretty islands dotting its surface and innumerable bays marking its shores. The lake itself is surrounded by a beautiful forest of pines and other trees. No more ideal resort can be imagined for the tired business man or the enthusiastic sportsman.

Loon Lake is celebrated for its bass fishing. It is conceded by those who have fished there, that it cannot be surpassed in Canada. Black bass abound and the disciples of Isaak Walton will be well pleased by a visit or outing at Loon Lake.

"The Lodge" which is situated on the shore of Loon Lake is for sportsmen who want good board and lodging, without the many formalities of a more fashionable hotel. While being intended for men, still, any ladies desiring a few days' good fishing and the novelty of a trip up country, will be made feel "at home."

Mount Julian is the starting point by stage for Loon Lake. Beautifully situated on the shore of Stony Lake having splendid steamboat accommodation, daily mail, telephone, good lunge and bass fishing, with daily stage from Loon Lake, Mount Julian makes an ideal resort for people wishing to be in touch with the outside world and still be close to the backwoods. Parties having ladies would do well to register at Mount Julian hotel thus giving them a splendid opportunity of taking side trips to Loon Lake for a few days bass fishing.

Leaving Mount Julian we pass through an open stretch of farming country and come to Eel's Creek.

Crossing and following the many windings of this beautiful stream, we pass through a stretch of wild unoccupied territory, where deer and bear abound in season.

Again, we come into the open country where we find dairying the principal occupation of the people.

After re-crossing Eel's Creek we come into the little village of Apsley. Here we find the post office and stores for supplying the country for miles around. Leaving Apsley we start on our "home run" for Loon Lake. Climbing a steep hill we get a last view of Eel's Creek and surroundings. Then we plunge into a forest of "Canada Maples" emerging on the shore of Loon Lake. Here after a rest and hearty meal at "The Lodge" after the novel stage trip the fisherman unpacks his tackle and proceeds to try his luck.

ASSOCIATION OF CLASS LEADERS

Formed Last Night— Large and Representative Audience

A large and representative gathering of the Class leaders of the Methodist churches of the city, was held in the parlor of George Street Church last evening.

Rev. Dr. Crothers, chairman of the district, occupied the chair, and Mr. Geo. Williamson, of the Y.M.C.A. acted as secretary pro. tem.

Interesting and profitable addresses on the Class Meeting question, were delivered by Messrs. Batten, Dumble, Tovey, Yelland and others. Steps were taken to form a regular Class Leaders Association for the city. All leaders, past leaders and assistant leaders are invited to become members.

Ex-Ald. Batten was elected president; Mr. William Crowe, of Ashburnham, vice-president; and Mr. G. W. Powell, secretary-treasurer. An executive committee, consisting of the officers, D. W. Dumble, and Mr. A. Parker, was appointed.

The next meeting will be held in George Street Church, on the first Tuesday evening in May.

THE SHIELD THAT SHIELDS

Trust the Garment That Bears This Signe of Safety.

On a shield there is shown a coat, and guarding the shield is the British lion rampant and the American eagle —signifying the international reputation of the "Semi-ready." This is the trade mark which the customer must be shown on every real Semi-ready garment. Any neglect to show it may well arouse distrust, for it, the genuine, is sold in only one store. Cressman's clerks will show you the real label just as soon as you ask to see a coat.

Col. Hughes and Mr. Bourassa

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Armstrong called attention to the manner in which the British preference was being turned to account by Germans and other foreigners who are sending goods to Canada, through English middlemen. He urged Mr. Fielding when he visited England to investigate the matter, which he declared was practically destroying the British preference.

Mr. Fielding replied that the matter had already been enquired into, and that it had been found that the amount of goods coming to Canada in that way was not as large as had been represented.

Colonel Sam Hughes, in reply to Mr. Paquette, who on Friday had called on him to withdraw the declaration that the French clerics were a curse to the country, said he had the greatest respect for the French people, but they had expelled those priests who were not agriculturalists or industrialists to promote the progress of Canada. He had nothing to withdraw and was opposed to their coming to Canada.

Mr. Bourassa said he would have taken no notice of the words of Col. Sam Hughes, who represented no intelligent or respectable body to Canada, if he had not known they would be published and read by some respectable journals and people. French priests had done much for Canada, more than two centuries ago. Their position maintained the British flag over Canada. It would be unfriendly for Canada to refuse them admission now.

If Col. Hughes had not been ignorant of the history of Canada, the history of Great Britain, the history of France and the history of the world, he could never have uttered such a sentiment.

Willie Jones Was Present at Church

Although He Had Rather Unpleasant Experience the Night Before

In a recent issue of "Ups and Downs," which is published in the interest of the work of Dr. Barnardo in Canada, appears the following:—

"Willie Jones, a small boy of the August party, writes us that he likes living in his present home, that he helped kill two skunks on Saturday night and went to church on Sunday." We hope the other members of the congregation enjoyed it. If it had been a church where they burned incense the combination would have been powerful. As it was, we should not have been surprised to hear that the minister shortened the service that Sunday, or that the deacon in taking up the collection let off the people in Willie's part of the church, if, indeed, any were left there to contribute."

In Winnipeg, the rooms of the Canadian Stock and Grain Company were raided and seven men arrested, charged with keeping and frequenting a gaming house.

WHEN SHOULD MAYOR VOTE?

The Mayor in the Council is a presiding officer. He is ex-officio a member of all committees and generally attends their meetings. Now should a chief magistrate vote on all questions coming up in Council or in committee? He has a perfect right to do so if he desires, but it is not customary unless there is a tie. Mayor McWilliams, who faithfully attends all committee meetings has, it is said, been in the habit of voting on all important questions in committee. This is proper and no one has the slightest fault to find with His Worship doing so. But at the Council sessions he has not done so unless there was a tie vote. At a recent meeting of the civic fathers when a resolution in favor of having work on all the sewers carried out by the day labor system received the same number of affirmative and negative votes, the mayor in order to prevent a deadlock voted in favor of day labor.

An instance of a different character arose in committee of the whole the sign by-law, on Monday night. The vote of the aldermen stood 6 to 5 in favor of an amendment to allow business and professional men to erect projecting signs, not extending more than eighteen inches over the sidewalks, so long as the signs did not cause any inconvenience to pedestrians. This was what the merchants desired. They would have obtained this concession by a vote of 6 to 5 of the aldermen, had not His Worship cast in his vote with the minority, thus making the result a tie and consequently defeating the adoption of the amendment. It is of course perfectly legal for His Worship to vote but the problem is, should he do so in committee when an amendment is practically carried. If the result was a tie it would be different. The chief magistrate would naturally be expected to vote. Many merchants think the Mayor has gone somewhat out of his way in the present instance in order to kill the concessions which they desired.

Fully seventy-five per cent. of the merchants, who pay over 60 per cent. of the taxes of the city, are in favor of allowing signs to project a certain distance, believing that the present by-law is unjust and unfair to business and professional men, yet His Worship has so strongly opposed any alteration to the present by-law, that he evidently felt it incumbent upon him to go out of his way to negative an amendment that would have been acceptable to the merchants, after the measure had been adopted by a majority of the aldermen. He cast his vote against the motion making the result 6 to 6 and it was therefore lost. Was His Worship right in this attitude and how often should the head of the corporation vote on motions in Council? Should he not do so only when there is a tie—which there was not—on the proposed amendment to the sign by-law.

A MEDDLESOME MINISTER

Sir Frederick Borden seems to be looming rather notoriously in the lime light at present. His acts have been somewhat high handed, and he is evidently afraid to face the result. The minister of militia is now abroad attending the Colonial Conference. It is said that he is seeking the post of Canadian High Commissioner in England, which has been so ably filled for many years by Lord Strathcona. One of the acts which Sir Frederick Borden did just before sailing, was to bring about the retirement of Brigadier General Lord Aylmer, as Inspector General of the militia force of Canada, on the ground that he had reached the age limit. Yet, Col. Vidal, who is within a year of the age limit, and has not had nearly the military training or experience of Lord Aylmer, is appointed in the latter's place, the sole reason evidently being that he may draw a good, fat retiring allowance. The change is no improvement whatever, and seems to have been brought about from petty, personal motives. The strength or prestige of the Canadian militia has certainly not been added to.

The last bold stroke of the minister of militia, was the confiscation of 55,000 acres of land in Petawawa district of New Ontario for militia purposes. The alleged plea for taking this over was section 117 of the British North America Act, for the purpose of "fortification or defence of the country." Prime Minister Whitney and his colleagues do not intend for one moment to stand for this high-handed and outrageous action, and will defend the rights and territory of the province to the last ditch.

Mr Whitney characterized the proceeding of Sir Frederick "as unnecessary, unwarranted and arbitrary," and plainly stated that it would not be tolerated, even if the province had to carry its protest to the foot of the throne. The immense acreage has been confiscated for a military training ground, without compensation to the province, timber licensees or settlers. It appears no such interpretation can be placed on the British North America Act as to permit of this unheard of course, and such an action can be neither excused nor justified on the part of the absent Minister of Militia. Mr. Whitney can be depended upon at all times to safeguard the interests, rights and assets of the province and, in his determined stand to defend Ontario in this matter, against the oppression and advances of the militia department, he will be strongly upheld by all fair thinking and liberty loving people. The maxim of the Government of this province is; "What we have we'll hold," or know the reason why.

SOME MUNICIJAL DONT'S

The civic authorities of Detroit are most solicitous about the cleanliness of their city, and some of the following "Don't" which they impress upon their citizens may well be taken to heart in Peterborough and every other city in Ontario;—

Don't deposit glass in streets, alleys or other public places.

Don't throw banana skins on the sidewalks.

Don't deposit waste materials of any kind in alleys or streets.

Don't start fires in alleys or streets

Don't allow the ice man to deposit ice on the sidewalk.

Don't fail to have your sidewalk swept

Don't let your dog run at large unless adorned with a license tag.

Don't ride a bicycle on sidewalks where streets are passable.

Don't spit on the sidewalk or floors.

PEN POINTS

Do not put your snow shovel aside.

Do not forget to send in your ballot.

Remember this is good weather for sugar making.

Are you taking part in the voting contest? Send in your ballots.

Put down in your diary that there was sleighing in Peterborough on April 17th, 1907—just one month later than St. Patrick's day.

Chilpacingo, Chilapa and Tixtla, Mexico, have all been visited by a serious earthquake. No wonder! Places with such awful names should be shaken up.

They are having earthquakes in Mexico: we are having spring snowstorms in Canada. It takes all kinds and conditions of things to make the world.

The Examiner opposes publicity of the proceedings of the School Board Committees and Laurier supported the measure to exclude the press from the Colonial Conference. All the other colonial representatives were in favor of publicity.

The widow and daughter of the late Speaker J. W. St. John will be given a grant of $5,000, by the Ontario Legislature. The late Mr. St. John rendered faithful service to his province and during his life time, gave to all who were in need with an unstinted hand. His kindness of heart to those in trouble was proverbial, and he even assisted others, when it was really his duty not to so far as his family was concerned. He went so far some years ago, as to mortgage his own home to the extent of several hundred dollars in order to help his church out of debt.

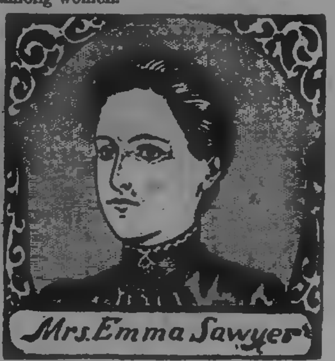
KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair

THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.



Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for chronic kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

Goes to England to See Bondholders

Mr. Frederic Nicholls Left Yesterday in Interests of Power Company

Mr Frederic Nicholls, vice-president and manager of the Electrical Development Co., and general manager of the C.G.E., left yesterday afternoon at five o'clock for London, England, and, it is understood, will consult the bondholders in connection with questions relating to contracts made with the Toronto Electric Light Company and Toronto Railway Company, a course which it is understood, has resulted from recent deliberations between the city and Government on the power question.

"The net earnings derived from the sale of the 50,000 h.p. (held by the company) will amount to considerably more than $8,000,000, a sum sufficient to cover the interest on the bonds twice over, leaving the surplus and the proceeds of the remaining 50,000 h.p. available for dividends on the common stock, reserve funds, etc. Two contracts for power, which alone provide sufficient revenue to pay the interest and redemption on the whole of the bonded indebtedness ($100,000) have been concluded for a term of 18 and 25 years respectively, with the Toronto Railway Company and the Toronto Electric Light Company." From the prospectus of the Electrical Development Company to the shareholders.

Special Events At Roller Rink

There Were Several Interesting Contests Last Night

A large crowd was in attendance again at the Charlotte street roller rink and enjoyed an evening at this popular pastime. Skating last night was made particularly interesting by several special attractions being put on under the direction of Prof Genno. The first event of interest was doing the two-step on rollers, ladies only. Several entered this contest and instead of having judges, the young men voted. Miss Hazel Craig was announced the winner. The next event was the two-step for gentlemen. Mr. Howard Mallory won the prize for this contest.

Another new feature introduced last evening was the May Pole. This is a very pretty march and proved to be popular.

The barrel race for boys created much amusement. Several entered, but Mr. Harry Carr was the successful racer.

These special events add greatly to the attractiveness of the roller rink, which is growing steadily in popularity.

ANOTHER REPLY

"Civis" Has Something to Say Regarding Fair Play

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—If I am not asking too much I would like a little space in your valuable paper to say a few words to, or about Fair Play.

The very few favorable ideas I had of him formed on reading his first letter were shattered on reading his attempt yesterday. To commence at the commencement he proceeds to explain that he should not be classed with those who are devoid of brains and therefore, never experience the sensation of thinking. He tells us that he attended an institution where thinking was taught as a fundamental principle. We cannot help but believe our friend (?), but he must have misunderstood me. I said that he was unable to think now, although he has put in a term (or perhaps very much more) at some school or college. A person might spend years at such a place and learn nothing, as Fair Play must have done.

He then talks of going West to see the people who pay to enter Canada. If I do not want to go west I must read and think, both of which things I would say that I do continually, and intend to follow up Fair Play's advice. He also wound up by saying that he will give up the Italian question for the present. I do not see that he has much to give up; he has made a very poor fist of it.

And oh, yes. (I nearly forgot, he says I have a severe attack of Demented Canadensis. To lead the people of Peterborough to think this was original with him was, I believe, the only reason that prompted Fair Play to write this letter. If not, why did he write for last night's paper, and why did he not quote his authority, namely, the Toronto News of last night? Even a "brainless" person could not give this type of man credit for anything nearly as original. Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

I remain, yours etc.,
CIVIS.

Splendid Luck of the Trappers

Ice in the Timber Interfered Somewhat With Muskrat Catch.

That a skilled muskrat trapper can turn a pretty penny in a short time is being demonstrated at present every day as the nimrods come back to town with their catches, for which they secure from 30 cents upward for each pelt. The season was a little late in opening this year owing to the ice being still in the timber, and the trappers being thus confined in their operations. Many are bringing in good bags now, however, and the buyers will be kept on the move from now until April 31st, when the open season ends, says the Lindsay Post.

On Saturday last the Whetung brothers, Chemong Lake Indians, who have been trapping on Sturgeon Lake, at the river's mouth, brought 260 rat skins to town, and realized the neat sum of $85.50 for the lot. Emmet Roche, of Cross Creeks, sold 50 skins, and Burns brothers, sons of Mr. Edward Burns, of Cross Creeks, sold 100 pelts. Frank Dennison, of town, trapped in all 100 rats, and all on the Scugog river in the vicinity of Lindsay. Chief Johnson, of Scugog Lake, brought his catch to town and disposed of them at a good figure. Messrs. Bushnell, Connors, Bryans, J. Dickson and others are actively pursuing operations down the river at present.

The continued cold weather has been instrumental in delaying the catch. If the fine weather comes a great number of rats will be captured between now and May 1st.

Traffic Blocked For Some Hours

Broken Axle Was the Cause of Five Cars Being Ditched

The cause of five G.T.R. loaded freight cars being ditched one mile west of Birdsall's station yesterday afternoon was a broken axle.

The track was torn up for some distance and the auxiliary, which arrived early in the afternoon from Lindsay, had a busy time clearing the line. The G.T.R. passenger train which leaves here each afternoon at two o'clock, for Belleville, did not pull out until seven o'clock this evening. It ran as far as Birdsall's, fifteen miles from Peterborough, where the train which leaves Belleville at 6.15 each evening, was met and the passengers were transferred, thus being unable to continue their journey.

Will Stop Suicide by Carbolic Acid

Druggists Ask That its Sale at Full Strength be Forbidden

The Toronto Star says:—The Druggists' section of the Retail Merchants Association decided last evening at their monthly dinner to ask the Government to forbid the selling of carbolic acid of full strength except as a registered poison, the sale for ordinary purpose to be confined to a five per cent. solution. Such a solution is plenty strong enough for the purpose of disinfection or for washing sores, etc., and the most determined suicide will hesitate to use it when it is known that a pint of it may be drunk without serious injury. This is due to the fact that the action of carbolic acid is caustic, and dilution removes the danger.

Pleasant Time Spent at St. Andrew's Manse Last Night

The Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church, met at St. Andrew's manse last night, and after reading of minutes and reception of new members, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Potter, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Mr. F. E. Kerr gave a most interesting talk on The Union Jack, explaining the terms "Union" and "Jack," and giving the meanings of the three crosses, St. George's, St. Andrew's and St. Patrick's, narrating their origin and history.

Mr. Freeland delighted the company with his rousing, national songs, rendered in his rich basso voice. Mr. Duncan Campbell also gave excellent service in his strong and patriotic solos. Mr Moore entertained the house with his capital rendition of "The Irish Fusiliers," and responded to a well-merited encore. Mr. Wm. Common assisted with the flute and Mr. Barry treated the Guild to a well appreciated piano solo. Mr. Wm. Campbell, on behalf of the Guild, extended the warmest gratitude to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Potter for their hospitality, to Mr. Freeland, Mr. D Campbell, Mr. Moore, Mr. Common, Mr. Barry, and Mrs. McClelland for their most valuable help.

This motion, seconded by Mr. T. W. R. Black, was vociferously applauded.

Mr. Common proposed "thanks" to Mr. F. E. Kerr, for his valuable "treat" on the flags and this too carried amidst the wildest enthusiasm.

A musical contest formed part of the evening's programme, and on examination of the papers the prize was awarded to Mr. Gilbert Markle.

Refreshments being served, all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and in recognition of the birthday party, celebrating the 43rd year of the pastor, the entire company sang heartily "For he's a jolly good fellow" and gave three cheers and tiger.

Importance of Mission Work

Rev. Horace Peckover Gave Able Address Before St. Andrew's W. F. M. S.

A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held in St. Andrew's lecture hall, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of St. Andrew's church. Many of the societies of other churches, were represented and before the close of the meeting, presented the greetings of their respective organizations and all expressed their intense delight and profit, at being present. The following spoke on behalf of the societies: Mrs. Botsford, St. John's; Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter, Murray Street; Miss Chamberlain, All Saint's; Mrs. Wright, Park Street; Miss Best, St. Paul's; and Miss Tisdale, George Street Methodist.

Rev. Horace Peckover, of Omemee, gave a splendid address, dealing with the most important phases of missionary effort. He gave a picture of the vastness of the field, the many difficulties to be encountered, the answers to objections raised against missions, the very many encouragements, and the ultimate triumph of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Mr. Peckover scored the attitude of many who are hindering the great work, by the Spirit of Higher Criticism, and the New Theology (so-called) and urged upon all the maintainence of the truth as it had proved the power of God in the conversion of sinners. The neglect of Christian missions will discredit the religion of Jesus Christ.

The speaker declared that there was no enterprise that gave such magnificent returns. The inventor, manufacturer, chemist, etc., each put money, brains, genius into their work, but it only fades and crumbles away, yet the Gospel is an everlasting Gospel. It is for the Christian women of our land to hold the ropes while the missionaries are carrying forward the message of the Saviour.

He closed with eulogistic and inspiring words concerning the important work the woman had done. Her place in home, church and community, could not be compared to the dignity and force she had been when reaching out the loving hand of sympathy and help to those perishing.

At the conclusion of the address, the President, Mrs. J. G. Potter, expressed the thanks of the Society, for the practical, encouraging, and instructive address, given by Mr. Peckover. A test was made of the meeting, when everyone present pledged herself to do all that possibly lay in her power to help on the good work.

Rev. Mr. Potter pronounced the benediction, after which refreshments were served.

ASSAULT CASE HEARD TO-DAY

Wm. Duncan Committed for Trial for Attacking Constable Cochrane

Evidence in the case of William Duncan, Sherbrooke street, who was remanded on Monday on a charge of assaulting Geo. Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, when he went to take a boy of Duncan's to the Shelter, was heard this morning at the police court. Mr. E. L. Goodwill was present on behalf of the Children's Aid Society and Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner. Duncan was committed for trial.

The complainant, Mr. Cochrane, was the first witness. He said that he was the agent of the Children's Aid Society, and was also a county constable for the past 32 years. He had first taken the boy, Willie Duncan, in 1903. The Society had the boy a year and then gave him back to his father. The Children's Aid had taken four of Duncan's children and placed them in homes. They had the boy twice since he was first given back. The child is a ward of the Children's Aid Society. Mr. Cochrane knew the boy's home was unsuitable for the correct bringing up of the lad. Witness said that the boy had been sent from school on account of not being kept clean. The child was going around with his father on the junk rig. Mr. Cochrane informed the secretary of the society of the condition of the boy and received instructions to bring the lad to the Shelter. When he went to the house on Saturday evening he found Duncan, Mrs. Duncan, the boy, John Kelly and two dogs. Witness asked for the boy and they refused to give him up. He saw that there was going to be trouble, so he told Mr Henry to go for the police. When Henry left, Duncan jumped off his chair, opened the door, and made a dash at the witness. They had a tussle and Duncan tried to put him out. They had a second round and a third, which were repetitions of the first. In the third round Kelly tried to separate them. Mrs Duncan also got into the fray, but was not tall enough to get a crack at his face. One of the dogs was set onto him but witness kicked it off. Just at this time Mr. Henry came in and Duncan went at him. They had a bout in which Henry had the best of it. Things then became quiet and they sat down. Witness asked for the boy and Kelly said that he had gone out. They then left. When they got out on the street they met P. C. Meharry and they returned to the house. Witness raised a curtain going upstairs to see if the boy was there, and Duncan told him that he could not go upstairs without a search warrant. Prisoner then struck witness a treacherous blow in the mouth. P. C. Meharry then arrested Duncan.

Mr. John Kelly was next called. He was at the house when Mr Cochrane and Mr. Henry came. Mr Cochrane asked for the boy, and Duncan and his wife refused to let him go. There were four rounds and each time Duncan was the aggressor. He confirmed Mr. Cochrane's statement.

Mr. Henry the caretaker of the Shelter was next called. He corroborated Mr. Cochrane's evidence concerning that which took place while he was at the house.

P. C. Meharry was called. He said that he was summoned to the house on Saturday evening. When he went in with Messrs. Cochrane and Henry, Duncan was sitting on an old sofa. Meharry swore that Duncan told Mr. Cochrane that he could not go upstairs without a search warrant. Duncan then struck Cochrane a blow on the face. Witness then arrested Duncan.

His Worship committed Duncan for trial.

Praise for Gerhard Heintzman Piano

High-Class Canadian Instrument Which Has Fully Met Every Demand

Musical Toronto has long felt the need of a permanent orchestra, and every citizen who was fortunate enough to be present at Massey Hall Thursday evening at the first concert of the Conservatory Symphony Orchestra feels that the city is to be congratulated upon the founding of a permanent orchestra under such favorable auspices. The enthusiasm of everyone present, was reflected by the favorable press comments, and it is a subject of general remark that the one instrument usually unnoticed in criticism of orchestral work—the piano—stood out in magnificent proportions and added wonderfully to the complete ensemble of this excellent organization.

Toronto's virtuoso, Mr. J. D. A. Tripp, was the pianist of the evening, and under such fingers was demonstrated what an important factor a really fine piano is in interpreting the great orchestral works. It is due the manufacturers of such an excellent instrument to state that the piano, which has so fully met every demand, was a Gerhard Heintzman.

The Toronto Conservatory Symphony Orchestra has started out well under the baton of Mr. Frank S. Welsman, who already has a reputation as a violinist and a performer of no mean order on several orchestral instruments, but of recent years has been noticed, as a pianist of the first rank, so that great things should be expected of this new and long-looked-for organization.—Mail and Empire, April 15th.

Mr. W. H Jenas of Peterborough, is the popular local representative of the Gerhard Heintzman piano, which is having a large sale in this city and district.

Owes Good Health to Pe-ru-na.

Miss L. Wall, 350 N. Dale street, St. Paul, Minn., writes.

"Last spring I had a very severe case of catarrh of the stomach and bowels. I was very much run down in strength and lost my appetite.

"I took three bottles of Peruna and found myself gaining very quickly in every way.

"I also had catarrh in my head, which has been entirely cured.

"I thank Peruna for the health I am enjoying."

The World's Greatest Medicine Factory.

The rapid growth of the Peruna Medicine Company is as phenomenal in the business world as the universal popularity of their famous remedy, Peruna. The plant covers a number of acres, and employs several hundred people. No other medicine firm in the world reaches anything like the volume of business done by Dr. Hartman's firm.

Although Peruna is a proprietary medicine, the details of its compounding are in strict accordance with pharmaceutical discoveries and nothing gives Dr. Hartman greater pleasure than to show his intimate professional friends through the laboratory where Peruna is made.

A Doctor's Prescription.

For years Dr. Hartman used Peruna in his private practice as a regular prescription. He had no thought of manufacturing it or advertising it as a proprietary medicine until there was a demand made upon him by his many friends, who clamored for the original prescription.

Forty Thousand Patients.

Dr. Hartman estimates that he must have prescribed Peruna for over forty thousand patients before it was advertised as a proprietary medicine.

Relieved in Four Weeks of Severe Cold on Lungs.

Miss Josie Schaetzel, Gen. Del., Appleton, Wis., writes:

"I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs in very short order and it was not long until it developed into a serious case of catarrh. Every morning I would raise a lot of phlegm, which was very disagreeable. My digestion was poor and my lungs sore.

"After a few doses of Peruna I began to mend, and felt that if I kept on taking it, it would not be long until I would be well. I was right, for in four weeks I was well again.

"I think Peruna is a grand medicine, and wish to add my testimony to the many others you have."

Catarrh is almost universal. Catarrh is difficult to cure. Many doctors do not care to treat catarrh at all.

Followed Doctor Hartman's Advice — A Grateful Letter.

Mrs. Anthony Rauch, 438 Johnston street, Bucyrus, Ohio, writes:

"I was suffering from obstinate constipation and torpid liver when I took your advice and purchased six bottles of Peruna and Manalin.

"When I had taken only one bottle I felt much better and since I have taken two more bottles I feel entirely well, but I will continue taking the medicine for a short time to make sure of my cure.

"I think Manalin is one of the finest remedies for constipation that I ever tried. I will never be without it. It has made me so strong. I can do a day's work and never tire.

"I am so glad I do not get those dizzy spells any more. I havn't had one since I took your medicine.

"I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me. All sick people should give it a fair trial."

Pe-ru-na's Popularity.

Peruna is not like so many other remedies that pass away as soon as the first few bottles are used. The longer Peruna is used in any community, the more popular it becomes.

Finds Relief in Pe-ru-na After Suffering Twenty Years.

Mrs. M. S. Davis, 1505 Buena Vista street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After having been a constant sufferer from catarrh for more than twenty years and after trying almost every remedy advertised, and having lost all hope, I very reluctantly began the use of Peruna about two years ago.

"Everybody says I look younger now than I did twenty years ago, and I actually feel younger and better, and weigh more.

"I am recommending it to my neighbors and all with whom I come in contact."

Pe-ru-na Removes the Cause of Catarrh.

Peruna has no bad effects upon the system and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years.

Pe-ru-na Actually Relieves.

The reason why Peruna has become a standard catarrh remedy the world over is simply because it eliminates catarrh.

This explains why Peruna has become so popular. It relieves catarrh. This is an amply sufficient reason why it should become popular.

It therefore follows that when a remedy is devised that can be used in the home at a moderate cost, such a remedy should inevitably become popular.

Keeps Pe-ru-na in the House.

Mrs. Jessie Smith, 408 Buttles Ave., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"I have used your Peruna for catarrh of the head and stomach, and have been greatly relieved from it.

"Therefore, I cannot praise Peruna too much and can recommend it to any one having the above disease, as there is nothing better.

"I always keep it in the house."

There are a great many catarrh cures in the world. The most of them are local applications. Few of them are to be used internally.

Unfortunately, a large number of these catarrh remedies, especially the ones prescribed by the doctors, contain narcotics of some sort. Cocaine, opium, and other narcotics are used.

These remedies give temporary relief. The patient thinks he is better right away.

In a few weeks, however, he discovers his mistake. Not only is his catarrh no better, but he has acquired the habit of using some narcotic.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind.

Peruna is perfectly harmless, if taken according to directions on the bottle. So used, it can be taken any length of time without acquiring a drug habit.

Is the New Sign By-Law A Restraint To Trade?

This Is a Question Which Sign Painters of the City Are Asking—The Measure is Severely Condemned

Is the new sign bylaw passed by the City Council a restraint on trade?

That it has this effect, and is therefore illegal is the view of the sign painters of the city, and needless to say they are not saying complimentary things of the civic solons who framed and passed the measure. The new bylaw practically kills the demand in Peterborough for painted signs, and if it is put into force, it will kill the business of the men in the city, who are engaged in this work. And there are a number of them too and their business represents no small investment. The Painters' Association of the city intends taking the matter up, and to work hard against the bylaw going into force.

"The bylaw is an unjustifiable measure," said a local painter today. Apart from killing the business of sign painters, it has many other bad features. Merchants who have erected valuable signs, some of them costing as high as $100, cannot be expected to pull them down and consign them to the rubbish heap, without being recompensed for the loss sustained. In putting up their signs they did not break the law, and cannot be expected to take them down without being recompensed for their loss. And goodness knows, the taxes are high enough already, without paying out money to merchants to take down signs that might as well be left up."

"I've visited nearly every Canadian city," continued the Review's informant, "and Peterborough is the only one to have a bylaw of this kind. Is it needed?"

Work Was Begun This Morning On Fine New Concert Hall

Work was begun today on a new concert hall which will be erected in connection with the Peterborough Conservatory of Music. Mr. Rupert Gliddon, director of the Conservatory, has long felt the need of a suitable and commodious concert hall for recitals, tec., and this will now be filled.

The hall, which will be of brick, will face Rubidge street, being erected just north of the present Conservatory building. Mr. James Montgomery has the contract. The edifice will be 100x40 feet and will be modern in every particular. It will be provided with a gallery and ample stage or platform room, and will seat about 600 persons. It is expected that the structure will be completed early this fall.

Printers Will Enter Team In City Base Ball League

Another team is in sight for a city baseball league if one is formed as is likely to be done. The printers have been looking over the ground, and have come to the conclusion that they can put a nine on the diamond that can make them all go some. A meeting will be held shortly to discuss the matter and there is no doubt but what the type handlers will make application for admittance to the league, just as soon as one is organized.

The printers have some good men among the ball players in their ranks, being Long, Manoney, Handley, Wilson, Thompson, Burns, Robinson, Paxman, Burridge, Sherrard, and several others.

It's up to some one to call a meeting for the organization of a league. Four teams are now in sight, Shamrocks, Strathconas, Charlotte Street, and Printers. The Windsor Hotel parlors can be secured for holding a meeting any night. It's up to some of the baseball enthusiasts to take the initiative. Let some of the officers of last year's Guild league get busy.

WEDDING BELLS

OSBBORNE—HAY

A very pretty wedding was performed at ten o'clock this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Snyder, 437 1-2 George st., when Miss Maud Evelyn Hay, daughter of Mrs. R. M. Hay, became the bride of Mr. David Osborne, chief operator of the C.P.R. Teelgraph Company. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson in the drawing room, and was witnessed by about twenty guests, all relatives of the contracting parties. At the appointed time the bride, who was charmingly gowned in white silk, trimmed with real lace and wearing a large white hyacinth hat, with white ties, entered the drawing room upon the arm of her brother, Mr. Robt. Hay, who gave her away. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Cora Louise Osborne, of Listowel, who looked very pretty in a gown of white eolienne, trimmed with pleated chiffon; she wore a white picture hat with plumes and long white ties.

After the ceremony the happy young couple, with their guests, adjourned to the dining room, where Caterer T. H. Hooper had prepared a dainty wedding breakfast. After the guests extended the usual congratulations to the young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Osborne left on the noon C.P.R. train for a trip to Montreal and Boston. When they return they will reside at 569 George street.

The bride, who is well known in the city and has a large circle of friends, was the recipient of many very pretty and valuable gifts, including one from the groom, it being a handsome pin, on which were two pearl doves set in emeralds. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pretty wish-bone pin set with pearls.

Mr. David Osborne has been a resident of the city for about two years and during that time he has made many warm friends. He is very popular with the public doing business with the C.P.R. Telegraph Co. and all will join in wishing him and his bride many happy years together.

MERCHANTS MAY OPEN QUESTION

Of the Sign By-law Again—Deputation to the Council Monday Night

Has the sign bylaw been settled yet? It has until next Monday night when it will in all probability be opened for again for discussion. It is stated by several merchants that another large deputation from the Retail Merchants Association will wait upon the council and urge the aldermen to again consider their requests. A number of aldermen are also of the opinion that the proposed amendment will now be carried. They believe that one or two of those who opposed the motion last Monday night have seen the error of their ways and would like an opportunity to vote again.

The general public, meaning those who take an interest in the welfare of the city; those who follow the proceedings of the council and those who are in a position to express a fair and unbiased opinion; are with the merchants in their request. There are some of course, who are opposed to the merchants, and who for once favor the action of the council. But this class usually are opposed to everything, so that the aldermen should not rely too much on their support.

One gentleman this morning said: "What is the city coming to? Take down all the signs, keep all the merchandise, fruit, flowers, etc., off the streets, and a stranger in the city, will not known but that it is Sunday or a holiday. It will be hard to distinguish one store from another. The fruit dealers will lose a great deal because their goods cannot be displayed, and the great heat of the stores in summer will spoil the fruit.

The beauty of the streets during the summer, will be marred, as there will be no display of flowers and plants; there will be no game hung in front of the stores, in fact the street will be deserted."

That gentleman in his statements merely voiced the sentiments of practically every business man in Peter- tically every business man in the city, and the Council cannot be acting in the best interests of the people, even though five aldermen and the Mayor believe they are right.

At the present time there are very few signs which are not attractive, and those few belong to some of the gentlemen who are supporting the minority of the council. There was no call for the council taking the steps they did. They bylaw was not being violated to any extent, except by those erecting illuminated signs. To license these $2.00 a year, to pay for inspection by the City Engineer is all right. No one made any complaint, but it was entirely unnecessary to harangue the merchants who have been in business, and paying the major part of the taxes for many years.

'Frisco Ruined Year Ago To-day

First Anniversary of the Great Earthquake and Fire

One year ago to-day the citizens of Peterborough were shocked by the news flashed over the wires from San Francisco telling of the destruction of the city of the Golden Gate by earthquake and fire. April 18th, 1906, was the day that 'Frisco was ruined, and it will long be remembered by the residents of that city.

Although only a year has passed, however, San Francisco has risen Phoenix-like from its ruins, and a recent despatch from there states that over half of the burned area has been rebuilt.

Jury Brings in True Bill; The Trial Now in Progress

Against Mrs. Perkins in the Canfield Murder Case.

Missing Witness Located—Dr. Edgar of Hamilton Withdraws—Accused Says She Is Certainly Ready For Trial—Witness Expected to Prove Intention to Poison—Opening Spat Between Two Lawyers—The Jury.

Cayuga, April 18.—After a lengthy deliberation the grand jury of the Haldimand assizes yesterday brought in a true bill against Mattie Perkins on the charge of poisoning her husband.

Since the preliminary trial the crown officers have strengthened their case very materially. Now witnesses will be asked to show that Mrs. Perkins has enquired for strychnine and warned the person not to let her husband know of her enquiry; that a box containing strychnine was found in a drawer in the kitchen; and that a guilty liason existed between Mrs. Perkins and Thomas McDonald.

There was an unexpected sensation, however, when it was announced that Dr. J. W. Edgar of Hamilton would be a witness for the defence.

Early Tuesday morning Dr. Edgar, who, it has been understood all along, was to be a leading medical witness for the crown, was told by Mr. Arnoldi that his services, as crown witness, were no longer required.

MRS. MATTIE PERKINS.

Dr. Edgar then left for Hamilton. Yesterday morning he was subpoenaed for the defence and returned to Cayuga.

A True Bill.

It was not until 11.30 that the grand jury brought in a true bill. The prisoner replied to the charge in clear steady voice. Asked if she was ready to proceed she replied, "I certainly am."

Mr. Johnston asked that she be allowed to leave the box, and have a seat at the solicitor's table, which was permitted. Mr. Johnston made an application for the production of certain documents in the possession of the crown. His lordship deferred a ruling. Both sides freely challenged, the jury panel being nearly exhausted.

At the afternoon court Mr. Arnoldi outlined the case as of the very gravest character. Poison was one most abominable mode of destroying human life.

"I am not here to convict Mattie Perkins, but to bring out any evidence which might show that the accused woman was guilty of the charge," he said. The jury must erase from their memory all knowledge of the case which had appeared in the public press.

The prisoner and her husband had lived together apparently happily for fifteen years. Prior to Perkins decease his parents came to live with them on the farm. Later they moved to Canfield, where deceased died. Witnesses would show that Perkins was of a cheerful disposition and always in good health until he returned home shortly before Christmas. The prisoner had insisted on burial on Thursday, although cards had been printed for burial on Friday. The doctor who gave a certificate of death from ulceration of the stomach, did so, he would say, because the prisoner objected to a postmortem.

The analyst would say that he examined portions of the body and discovered strychnine.

It would be shown that the prisoner had visited a lady friend, a Mrs. Carter, at Walkerville, last September. She had asked Mrs. Carter where she could get some strychnine. Mrs. Carter said that she could not get it without a doctor's prescription. Prisoner asked Mrs. Carter to allow her little girl to get a doctor's prescription, but Mrs. Carter refused, saying that if prisoner wanted strychnine she could get all she wanted in Detroit herself.

Prisoner said she knew that, and, most significantly of all, said, in leaving: "Don't tell Henry anything I said about strychnine. If he knew I had any in the house it would make him mad."

After her arrest, in one of the drawers in her kitchen bureau, where she kept the knives and forks, was found a little wooden box, which Dr. Ellis would tell the jury contained strychnine. In addition to this, on one of her dressmaking books, was found written the word "Ptomaine," as if she had been reading a book about poison.

The Motive.

Motives for the crime would be shown in an infatuation she had conceived for a man named Thomas McDonald, with whom she had had scandalous relations during her husband's absence.

Counsel Clash.

Mr. Johnston gave witness a warm time, and when Mr. Arnoldi, K. C., came to his rescue, an exciting scene ensued. Mr. Johnston accused Mr. Arnoldi of making a statement which was absolutely untrue. Both counsel addressed the judge together.

"I don't propose to be bullied out of my rights," said Mr. Arnoldi.

"My learned friend is an adept at using expressions of this kind, and I don't propose to permit him here." His lordship sustained Mr. Johnston.

The court did not rise until 7 p.m.

The jury is composed of George R. Gorrell, Charles Hendershott, Henry Marshall, Robert Wren, John C. Hewitt, James Lindsay, jr., George V. Parsons, Charles E. Best, Silas Avery, Adam Smith, Francis C. Smith, Robert Cranston.

The defence will call Dr. Graham Chambers, Toronto; Dr. Walker, Toront, and Dr. Cayler, Toronto Junction, to combat the evidence of the medical advisors for the crown.

WAS CIGAR THE CAUSE?

Origin of Fire at McGill Not Very Clear.

Montreal, April 18.—Although the finding of the fire committee does not indicate that the loss of the medical building was caused by the butt of a cigar falling from the hands of a member of the faculty, everything points to this as being the correct theory of Tuesday's disastrous fire.

One thing is sure, and that is the presence of the faculty in their room at a late hour on Monday night. The statement is made that these gentlemen left the room in question about 11 o'clock, and in two hours that part of the building was in flames. It was in the faculty room where the fire started.

It was Prof. Cox who first discovered the fire. He had been doing some special work in the physics building. As he was proceeding through the grounds he saw fire in the western wing of the middle section of the medical pile. He at first thought that the fire was on the exterior of the building, supposing that it was a heap of rubbish that was being destroyed. He went to examine and found there was fire inside.

The evidence given before Commissioner Ritchie showed that Dr. John R. Balluah had been experimenting in the medical building up to 12 o'clock Monday night. Dr. J. W. Scane, registrar, said that 14 men had met in the committee room adjoining the faculty room and had been smoking during the evening. There was no waste paper on the floor and he did not see how cigar ashes could cause fire.

France Prodding Morocco.

Tangier, April 18.—A menacing French naval demonstration is taking place off Megador and the general situation is grave, owing to the resentment of the Moors over the French occupation of Oudja.

Native opinion is unanimous that France is seeking to pick a quarrel with Morocco, in order to make further annexations of territory.

In the meantime the country is swarming with "provocative agents."

Mr. Chamberlain's Health.

London, April 18.—A telegram yesterday from Mr. Chamberlain was received at the Colonial Office in reply to a message of sympathy addressed to him by the Colonial Premiers. Mr. Chamberlain reciprocates the good wishes expressed by the conference, and incidentally observes that he is making satisfactory progress in regard to his health.

True Bill Against Asselin.

Quebec, April 18.—The grand jury reported a true bill in the matter of Oliver Asselin, editor of Le Nationaliste, accused of having published a libelous article against Hon. J. Prevost, Minister of Colonization.

William Brannon, the inmate of the Elgin House of Industry, seriously assaulted a week ago by a fellow inmate, died of his injuries.

MEETING OF THE KINGS.

German Journal Talks War—Paris is Perfectly Satisfied.

Berlin, April 18.—King Edward's approaching meeting with King Victor Emmanuel is attracting much attention in the German press, which comments on the event as being an effort to isolate Germany and win Italy away from the triple alliance.

The Cologne Gazette says public opinion in Germany sees in King Edward's course an attempt to disturb the European equilibrium, which is calculated to awaken misgivings regarding his disarmament proposal and finally warns Great Britain, "that war with Germany would be dangerous for any opponent or any coalition of opponents."

Paris, April 18.—The forthcoming meeting of King Edward and King Victor Emmanuel at Gaeta is viewed with the utmost satisfaction in Government circles here, where the royal conference is considered as not only likely to strengthen the cordial relations existing between Italy and Great Britain, but as binding closer the ties between those two countries and France, and as exerting a good effect on the European situation.

NO NEED TO HURRY.

Mr. Fielding's Intimation re. Insurance Legislation.

Ottawa, April 18.—On the motion to go into supply in the House yesterday, Mr. Lennox moved in amendment, "that this House regrets that the Royal Commission on Insurance did not confine its investigation within the reasonable scope of its power, conferred upon it for the purpose of its enquiry; that by its action in conducting unnecessary and irrevelant enquiries into private and personal affairs, with which it was in no wise concerned, coupled with its partial and discriminating treatment, its arbitrary and un-British procedure, its concealment, and misrepresentation of material facts, in the summary issued in its report, the Commission has lent itself to improper and reprehensible partisan poses, been guilty of gross injustice to companies and individuals and materially lessened the confidence which otherwise would have been felt in its legitimate work.

Mr. Lennox complained that the enquiry had been one-sided.

Mr. Fielding intimated that there was no need for haste in drafting a new Insurance Act. The companies were not asking for any additional legislation.

Col. Sam Hughes defended the Western Land deal. He claimed that Fowler and Pope had paid the retail price for land.

The Lennox amendment was defeated; 51 yeas, 92 nays.

Advisory Art Council.

Ottawa, April 18.—Hon. Mr. Fisher yesterday announced that pictures for the National Art Gallery will hereafter be chosen by an advisory council, which will include Sir George Drummond (Montreal), Byron E. Walker (Toronto), and Hon. A. Boyer (Montreal).

Coal Miners Strike.

Ottawa, April 18.—Mr. McCarthy (Calgary) drew attention to the miners' trouble in the West.

Mr. Lemieux said there had been some disagreement between the operators and the miners in one of the mines as to the choice of a representative on the board of arbitration, but that the misunderstanding was likely to be closed up and an end put to the unfortunate situation which existed.

COL. HUGHES DENIES.

Says There Is No Collusion With the Minister of Defence.

Ottawa, April 18.—Col. Sam Hughes took a fling at The Montreal Star yesterday.

"Reference," said Col. Hughes, "has been made by The Star to collusion between myself and the Minister of Militia in regard to military matters. I would say only one word in reference to that, that anything that has transpired between the Minister of Militia and myself is done with the absolute knowledge of my former leader, Sir Charles Tupper, and my present leader, R. L. Borden, the policy being that everything connected with the militia should be as far as possible kept out of the arena of party politics.

"The Montreal Star, I presume, is merely getting back at me in its usual way for having defended my friend Major Fowler. I may point out that The Montreal Star's editorial policy is yet influenced by its conduct on the eve of the election, when it found itself at the mercy of the leader of the Government, and then, after trembling and chattering for a few months, finally succumbed and surrendered itself, and since that time has been under the control of the leader of the Government." (Oh, oh.)

Mr. Fielding rose to a question of privilege and the matter dropped.

Shot Deer Out of Season.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 18.—Game Warden A. Calbeck returned Tuesday from the river where he had been investigating the illegal shooting of deer.

That his mission was successful is evidenced by the fact that the carcases of 14 deer were found and that one of the parties implicated in the slaughter was brought back to the Soo. A Frenchman named Gagnon is known to be the moving spirit in the deer shooting.

Boy Drowns In Cistern.

Wingham, April 18.—About two o'clock yesterday Carl, the five-year-old son of P. N. Tansley, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., was drowned in a cistern at the rear of the house.

He had been playing about the open trap door, and was found in a few minutes by his mother. Medical aid was of no avail.

Thief on Police Force.

Ottawa, April 18.—An Englishman who decamped from Hull with some of the Electrical Railway Co.'s money and owing his landlady for board, and who afterwards went to work for a farmer near Hull and victimised him, was located on the Ottawa police force and dismissed on the plea of uncleanliness.

Clifford M. Smith, New York, has been sentenced to thirty-four years in prison for burglary and assault.

STEALS WIFE AND CHILD

Strange Story of Kidnapping From Lobo Township.

Young Farmer's House Forcibly Entered By Three Men—Owner Tied to the Bedpost—Drove Away With Woman—Turned Team Adrift and Joined Train At Windsor—Motive a Mystery.

London, April 18.—Three men forced an entrance into the house of Frank Attwood, a young farmer of Lobo Township, at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and after tying him securely to a bedpost, drove away with his wife and three months old child.

This is the story Attwood told the police yesterday when he swore out a warrant for Arthur Scott, a neighbor, on a charge of kidnapping.

The county police say the kidnapping was carefully planned. They have learned that a young man, answering to the description of Scott, came to a local livery Tuesday night and hired a team of the best horses, saying that he wanted to drive to the country. Yesterday morning the team was returned by a boy, who said they had been turned over to him at a hotel by some stranger, who asked him to take them to the livery. The horses gave every indication of having been driven a long distance.

The police have also learned that a man and woman answering the description of Scott and Mrs. Attwood boarded the train which leaves for Windsor at 6.30 a.m.

NO MOVE TO RELEASE THAW.

O'Reilly Sees Jerome But Bail Was Not Talked About.

New York, April 18.—Although District Attorney Jerome returned to his office from a visit to his home in Lakeville, Conn., yesterday, no move has as yet been made toward an application for the release of Henry K. Thaw on bail.

Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly called on Mr. Jerome yesterday afternoon, but he said the matter of bail for the prisoner was not mentioned. Mr. Jerome said he would continue to oppose in every possible way the release of Thaw on bail.

When questioned about the signed statement issued by Mrs. Nesbit Holman, mother of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, yesterday, Mr. Jerome said: "I can assure you that when she said that she furnished the district attorney no information for use in connection with the trial of Thaw she spoke the truth."

Thaw informed the keepers in the Tombs prison that he was ill when A. Russell Peabody of his counsel called at the prison yesterday. Thaw was still in bed, but, on being informed that he could not confer with Peabody in his cell, he went to the conference room and consulted with Peabody for two hours.

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, asked if she had any reply to make to her mother's statement, replied: "Not a word to say on any subject."

WINNIPEG EDITOR ARRESTED.

Nichols, of Telegram, Charged by Wood With Criminal Libel.

Winnipeg, April 18.—M. E. Nichols, editor of The Telegram, of Winnipeg, will appear in the Police Court to-day on a charge of criminal libel. Tuesday afternoon detectives raided the editorial rooms of The Telegram and secured the copy of an article which appeared in the paper last Friday afternoon commenting upon alleged methods used by George W. Wood in conducting the business of the Canadian Stock and Grain Co., of which he is president.

The Telegram says: "George W. Wood and his solicitors may be assured in advance of the Police Court proceedings that The Telegram has made no statement which cannot be substantiated by evidence. The spectacle of a man, committed for trial on a criminal charge, taking an action against a newspaper for exposing the methods which brought him within the clutches of the law requires no comment."

ALLEGE FALSE PRETENCES.

Toronto Man Committed for Trial—Factory Was Never Built.

Stratford, April 18.—John A. Mitchell of Toronto, who, along with William Bullock, is interested in the Toronto Industrial Financial Co., and Scientific System Brick Co., was committed for trial yesterday, on a charge of false pretences.

Information was laid by James L. Holmes of this city, who, it is alleged, paid $2,000 into a company organized by Mitchell for the manufacture of sand lime bricks.

An agreement between Mitchell and Holmes called for the erection of a factory at Thornhill by Sept. 1, 1906. The factory was never built and Holmes alleges fraud and receiving money under false pretences.

A charge of conspiracy against Mitchell and Bullock was also taken up yesterday afternoon, but postponed until April 15.

Mitchell is out on $4,000 bail, and his trial takes place at June sessions.

Woman of 89 Assaulted.

Bowmanville, April 18.—Thomas J. Moore, a farm laborer, who came from Ireland with his wife two years ago, the wife having died since, was arraigned before Magistrate Horsey a few days ago for housebreaking.

Information has now been received that Moore assaulted a respectable woman 89 years of age, who lives alone in the house into which he broke. She had fainted with fright.

The community is greatly aroused over the outrage.

General Booth at Tokio.

Tokio, April 18.—General Booth of the Salvation Army was accorded an enthusiastic reception on his arrival here yesterday from America.

The governor and mayor of Tokio were among those who welcomed him at the railroad station.

The Colonial Premiers were presented with the freedom of the City of London, on Tuesday

CHAUFFEUR WAS NEGLIGENT.

Assessed $700 Damages for Injuries to the Driver.

Brockville, April 18.—Yesterday afternoon the jury in the civil action of Wilson v. McDougall awarded the plaintiff $700 damages for injuries sustained in August, 1906, in the Township of Lansdowne, by his horse running through taking fright at automobile driven by the defendant, an iron manufacturer of Montreal.

Wilson is one of the best known dairymen of Leeds County. He swore that for a long distance before the auto reached him the occupants of the auto could see that his horse was becoming uneasy, yet the auto shot past him at 25 miles an hour.

McDougall and his companions said 10 miles. The jury took the view that McDougall had been negligent. Wilson had asked $5,000.

A Story of Manhattan

CHAPTER I.

A SUDDEN gust of wind wrenched the door from Godfrey's grasp and slammed it with a bang that echoed through the building.

"Anything doing?" he asked as he flapped the rain from his coat.

Simmonds, the grizzled veteran of the central office, now temporarily in charge of the devious business of the "Tenderloin," shook his head despondently.

"Not a thing. Only," he added, his eyes gleaming suddenly with appreciation, "you were right about that Delanne abduction case. It was all a faked up story on the mother's part. She confessed this evening."

"I thought she would if you kept at her," said Godfrey, sitting down with a quick nod of satisfaction. "She hasn't nerve enough to carry through a thing like that; she's too pink and white. How does it happen you're alone?"

"Johnston's gone down to Philadelphia to bring back Riggs, the forger. Fleming's got the grip. Bad night."

There was a certain similarity in the faces of the two men, especially in the expression of the eyes and mouth. Age, however, had given to Simmonds' features a trace of stolidity which was wanting in those of his companion. He had been connected with the central office for many years, was dean of the force, in fact, and though he had developed no special genius in his dealings with crime he possessed a matter of fact industry and personal courage which had frequently achieved success. In the end his chief had come to trust him greatly, probably because the brilliant theorists of the force made so many unfortunate mistakes.

Godfrey was a brilliant theorist and something more. He was not so patient as Simmonds, but then he was much younger. He had more imagination, and perhaps his greatest weakness was that he preferred picturesque solutions to commonplace ones. During his three years' connection with the force he had won four or five notable victories, so notable, indeed, that they attracted the attention of the Record management. The end of it was that Godfrey resigned his badge and entered the Record office as criminal expert, climbing gradually to the position of star reporter. Since then the Record had not waited on the police; indeed, it had been rather the other way around.

It was with Simmonds that Godfrey had long since concluded an alliance offensive and defensive. The one supplemented the other—the eagle gave eyes to the mole; the mole gave the eagle the power of working patiently in the dark. Simmonds kept Godfrey in touch with police affairs; Godfrey enabled Simmonds to make a startling arrest now and then. Godfrey got the story. Simmonds got the glory, and both were satisfied. It may be added that without in the least suspecting it the mole was considerably under the influence of the eagle. Brains naturally lead industry. Besides, the blind must have guidance.

They listened until the gust of wind died away down the street, then Godfrey arose and began to button up his coat.

"Nevertheless," he said, "I've got to be moving on. I can't stay loafing here. I wouldn't have stopped at all but for the chance of seeing you."

"Oh, don't go," protested Simmonds. "I was mighty glad to see you come in. I was feeling a little lonesome. Wait till this squall's over anyway and have a smoke."

Godfrey took the proffered cigar and relapsed into his chair.

"I'm only human," he said as he struck a match, "and besides there's a fascination about you, Simmonds. There's always a chance of getting a good story out of you. You know more about the criminal history of New York than any other man living, I think. Hello, what's this?"

The door flew back with a crash, and a man rushed in—a heavy set man with red cheeks—who stopped, gasping, clutching at his throat.

Godfrey had a flask to his lips in an instant.

"Come, brace up!" he commanded sternly, slapping the stranger on the back. "Take a swallow of this. That's it."

"It seems to me I know him," remarked Simmonds, looking at the flushed countenance with contemplative eye.

"O' course you do," gasped the stranger. "I'm Higgins—th' Marathon." And he jerked his head toward the door.

"Oh, yes," said Simmonds. "You're the janitor of the Marathon apartment house, just across the street."

"Well, what's happened at the Marathon?" demanded Godfrey. "Out with it!"

"It's murder!" cried Higgins hoarsely. "I seed him a-layin' on his back"—

He stopped and covered his eyes with his hands. Simmonds had quietly opened a drawer and slipped a revolver into his pocket. Then he took down the receiver from his desk phone.

"That you, sergeant?" he called. "This is Simmonds. Send three men over to the Marathon right away."

He put back the receiver with a jerk.

Godfrey twirled the janitor sharply around in the direction of the door.

"Go ahead," he commanded, and pushed rather than led him out into the storm.

They made a dash for it through the rain, which was still pouring in torrents. Halfway across the street they descried a cab standing at the farther curb and veered to the right to avoid it.

"Here we are," said Higgins, running up a short flight of steps into a lighted vestibule. "It's in soot fourteen—second floor."

They sprang up the stairs without thinking of the elevator—one flight, two. Higgins began to choke again.

A single door stood open, throwing a broad glare of light across the hallway.

"It's there," said Higgins, and stopped to gasp for breath.

The others ran on. For an instant they stood upon the threshold gazing into the room at a huddled form on the floor, with a red stain growing and growing upon its breast—at a woman staring white faced from the farther corner—a woman, tall, with black hair and black eyes.

Then Godfrey stepped toward her with a quick exclamation of surprise, incredulity, horror.

"Why, it's Miss Croydon!" he said.

CHAPTER II.

SIMMONDS had dropped on one knee beside the body. He was up again in an instant.

"No need for an ambulance," he said tersely. "He's dead."

The words seemed to rouse the girl from the ecstasy of horror which possessed her, and she buried her face in her hands, shuddering convulsively. Godfrey caught her as she swayed forward and led her gently to a chair.

"Perhaps you don't remember me, Miss Croydon," he said. "Godfrey's my name. It was only the other night at Mrs. Delroy's I met you. It was Jack Drysdale who introduced me. You know I'm an old friend of his."

"Yes," she murmured indistinctly, "I remember quite"—

An exclamation from Simmonds interrupted her. He had picked up a small pearl handled revolver from the floor in the room.

"Is this yours, miss?" he asked.

She nodded faintly.

He snapped it open and looked at the chambers. One had been discharged. He sniffed at the barrel, then held it out to Godfrey. The odor of burned gunpowder was plainly discernible.

Godfrey's face hardened as he turned to the janitor, who had regained his breath and stood staring on the threshold.

"My friend," he said, "shut the door"—

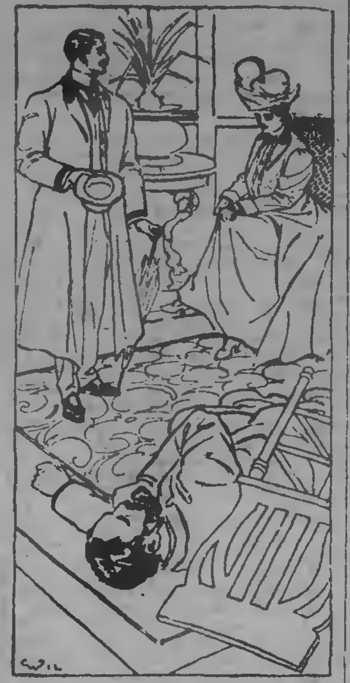
He stopped as he heard the tramp of heavy feet approaching along the corridor.

"Wait," said Simmonds. "There come my men. I'll be back in a minute."

Godfrey nodded curtly and waited until Simmonds closed the door after him.

"Now, Miss Croydon," he said, "tell me quickly how it happened. I can't help you unless I know the whole story, and I want to help you."

"There isn't much to tell," she began, striving to speak steadily. "I came here to—to keep an appointment"— She stopped, her voice dying away, unable to go on.



"Now, Miss Croydon, tell me quickly how it happened."

"With this man?" asked Godfrey. "Who is he?"

"I don't know." And she cast a horrified glance at the huddled form. "I never saw him before."

"Then it wasn't he you came here to meet?"

"No—that is—it may have been"— And again she stopped.

"Miss Croydon," said Godfrey gently, yet clearly, "I can't help you unless you're quite frank with me, and I fear you are going to stand in need of help. Did you kill this man?"

"No!" she cried. "Oh, no!"

"Then who did?"

There was no answer, only a dry, convulsive sobbing.

As Godfrey paused to look at her the door opened and Simmonds came in. He closed it and snapped the lock.

"There's a policeman outside and one at each landing," he announced. "We'll look things over here and then search the building. First, let's look at the body."

It was lying partly on its back, partly on the right side, with both legs doubled under it. The face was a bearded one, rough, coarse and a little bloated; not a prepossessing face under any circumstances, and actually repulsive now with its gaping mouth and widely staring eyes. It was tanned and seamed by exposure to wind and rain and there was a deep scar across the left temple.

"Between fifty and sixty years of age," remarked Godfrey. "Pouf! Smell the whisky."

Then, looking into the staring eyes, he uttered a sudden exclamation.

"See there, Simmonds, how the right pupil's dilated. Do you know what that means?"

Simmonds shook his head.

"No, I can't say I do."

"It means," said Godfrey, "that somebody hit this fellow a hard blow on the left side of the head and produced a hemorrhage of the brain."

They stripped back the shirt from the breast. A little blood was still welling from a wound just over the heart.

"That's what did the business," observed Simmonds, "and at close range too. See there," and he pointed to the red marks about the wound. "He wasn't shot from the corner, that's sure. Let's see what he's got in his pockets."

The examination was soon made. There were only a pipe, a knife, a package of cheap tobacco, a handful of loose coins and an old pocketbook containing a little roll of newspaper clippings and a receipt for a month's rent for suit fourteen made out to "H. Thompson."

"Thompson," repeated Simmonds, "and a lot of clippings. Can you read French, Godfrey?"

"A little," answered Godfrey modestly. "Let me see." He took the clippings and looked at the first one. "'Suresnes, Sept. 16, 1891,'" he read haltingly. "'I have to report an event the most interesting which has just happened here, and which proves again the futility of vows the most rigorous to quiet the ardent desires of the human heart or to change the'"—

"Oh, well," interrupted Simmonds, "we can't waste time reading any more of that rot; it sounds like a French novel. The coroner can wrestle with it, if he thinks it's worth while."

He replaced the clippings in the purse, which he slipped back into the pocket from which he had taken it.

"Now," he added, rising to his feet, "we'd better get the girl's story."

"Miss Croydon," he began abruptly, though perhaps in a gentler voice than he would have used toward the average suspect, "were you in the room when this man was killed?"

"Yes, sir."

"You know him?"

"Only slightly," she answered coolly, disregarding Godfrey's stare of amazement. "His name, I think, was Thompson."

"You had an engagement with him here?"

"Yes, sir; on a private matter which cannot concern the police."

Simmonds passed that over for the moment.

"Will you kindly tell us just what happened?" he asked.

"I drove here in a cab," she said, speaking rapidly, "which I told to wait for me. In the vestibule I met the janitor and asked to be conducted to suit fourteen. He brought me up here where Mr.—Mr. Thompson was waiting. I entered and closed the door. We were talking together when the door of the inner room opened and a man came out. Before I realized what he was doing he had raised a bar of iron he held in his hand and struck Mr. Thompson upon the head. Then, standing over him, he drew a revolver and fired one shot at him. I had shrunk away into the corner, but thinking him a madman, believing my own life in danger, I drew my pocket pistol and fired at him. Without even glancing at me he opened the outer door and disappeared. The janitor rushed in a moment later."

"Did your shot hit him?" asked Simmonds.

"I don't know. I think not. He showed no sign of being wounded."

Simmonds stood looking at her. Godfrey turned to an examination of the opposite wall.

"Miss Croydon's shot went wild," he said, curiously elated at this confirmation of her story. "Here's the bullet," and he pointed to it imbedded in the woodwork of the bedroom door.

Simmonds took a look at it, then he returned to the inquiry.

"Did you know this intruder?" he asked.

"No, sir. I'd never before seen him," she answered steadily.

"Will you describe him?"

She closed her eyes, seemingly in an effort at recollection.

"He was a short, heavy set man," she said at last, "with a dark face and dark mustache, which turned up at the ends. That is all I can remember."

"And dressed how?"

"In dark clothes. He wore a slouch hat, I think, drawn down over the eyes. I didn't see the face clearly."

The answer came without hesitation, but it seemed to Godfrey that there was in the voice an accent of forced sincerity.

"What did he do with the bar of iron?" asked Simmonds.

"As soon as he struck the blow, I think he—he threw it down. I remember hearing it fall"—

"Yes—here it is," said Godfrey triumphantly, and fished it out from under a chair which stood near the wall. "But see, Simmonds, it's not a bar, it's a pipe."

Simmonds examined it. It was an ordinary piece of iron piping about fifteen inches in length.

"Her story seems to be straight," he said in an undertone to Godfrey. "What do you think about it?"

"I think she's perfectly innocent of any crime," answered Godfrey, with conviction. He had his doubts as to the absolute straightness of her story, but he concluded to keep them to himself.

"Well, there's nothing more to be learned out here," remarked Simmonds, after another glance around.

"Suppose we take a look at the other room," and he led the way toward the inner door."

It was an ordinary bedroom of moderate size and with a single closet, in which a few soiled clothes were hanging. The bed had been lain upon, and evidently by a person fully dressed, for there were marks of muddy shoes upon the counterpane, fresh marks as of one who had come in during the evening's storm. An empty whisky bottle lay on a little table near the bed.

"I guess Thompson was a boozer," observed Simmonds.

"Yes," agreed Godfrey, "his face showed that pretty plainly."

"Well, the man we're after ain't in here; we'll have to search the house."

"Can't we let Miss Croydon go home? She won't run away—I'll answer for that. Besides, there's nothing against her."

Simmonds pondered a minute.

"Yes, I suppose so," he said at last. "Of course she'll have to appear at the inquest. Do you know her address?"

"Yes; 21 East Sixty-ninth street."

Simmonds jotted it down in his notebook.

"All right," he said. "You'd better take her down to her cab."

"I'll see her down to her cab. What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to quiz the janitor and then search the house. Maybe the other fellow hasn't had a chance to get away yet. I wonder what's going on out there?" he added as they returned together to the other room.

They could hear a commotion of some sort in the hall, the hum of many voices, the shuffling of many feet.

The commotion swelled to an uproar as Simmonds opened the door and closed it quickly behind him. Godfrey heard his voice raised in angry expostulation, and he chuckled grimly to himself as he turned to Miss Croydon.

He gazed at her with interest, searchingly, pondering how best to surprise her secret—at the bent head, with its crown of dark hair, shadowed by a little velvet hat; at the rounded arms, the graceful figure.

He paused yet a moment, looking at her, at the slender hands, the little ear, and he pictured to himself what her training had been, how she had been fenced away from the rough places of the world, the unpleasant things of life. Certainly she could never have committed such a crime as this or even connived at it.

Yet she had lied—deliberately and distinctly she had lied. She had told him that she had never before seen the dead man. She had told Simmonds just the opposite. Which was the truth? Doubtless the first. Her first impulse would be to speak the truth. Afterward, at leisure for a moment, she had mastered her agitation, had thought out the lie, and had uttered it with surprising calmness.

"May I see you to your cab, Miss Croydon?" he asked.

"To my cab?" she repeated, half rising. "I may go, then? I am free? You have not"—

"Betrayed you?" he finished as she stopped suddenly. "No, I don't intend to. Whether you know the man yonder or not, I don't for an instant believe you killed him."

"Oh, I didn't!" she cried. "I did my best to save him. But it was done so quickly. I didn't understand until too late."

"Nevertheless," continued Godfrey evenly, "I think you're wrong in trying to protect the scoundrel who did."

The color faded suddenly from her face.

"To protect him?" she faltered.

"I'm sure you know him. You could place him in the hands of the police if you wished to do"—

The door opened and a man came in—a keen faced man of middle age, who nodded to Godfrey and threw a quick, penetrating glance at his companion. Behind him the clamor burst out anew; various heads appeared in the doorway, various eager faces sought to peer into the room, but the newcomer calmly closed the door and assured himself that it was locked. He looked at Godfrey again, then expectantly at the girl.

"Miss Croydon," said Godfrey, "this is Coroner Goldberg, whose duty it is to investigate this affair, and who may wish to ask you some questions."

"Only a few at present," began the coroner in a voice soft and deferential, as only he knew how to make it. How often, with that voice, had he led a witness on and on to his own ruin! "You were the only witness of this tragedy, I believe, Miss Croydon?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you acquainted with the murderer?"

"No, sir."

"But you could identify him if the police succeed in capturing him?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"You have already given Mr. Simmonds a description of him?"

"Yes, sir; as well as I could."

"And told him the whole story?"

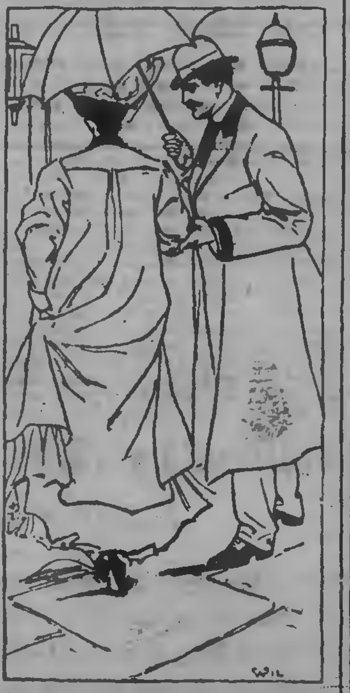
"Yes, sir—the whole story."

"Except one detail, I believe. You did not explain how you came to be in this room. Will you tell me that?"

"I do not think it concerns the police, sir."

"You would better let me judge of that; if it does not concern the police, I promise you it shall go no further. I persist," continued Goldberg, "because I think that perhaps the story may help us to identify this man."

"It won't" said Miss Croydon, "but I will tell you—briefly, this man claimed to have certain papers which concerned our family. We had never heard of him before. We know nothing about him. But I came here—to see, against the advice of my sister."



"Do me the favor to deny yourself to all callers tonight."

"Then your sister knew you were coming?"

"Oh, yes; and tried to dissuade me."

Goldberg nodded, still looking at her.

"That is all at present," he said. "Of course I shall have to summon you as a witness at the inquest."

She bowed without replying.

"One thing more," said Goldberg. "Did he have the papers? Did he give them to you?"

"No," she answered quickly. "He had no papers. He was lying."

"Then that is all," repeated the coroner. "You'd better see her to her cab, Mr. Godfrey," he added, with a little smile. "She'll need an escort."

She rose from her chair and dropped over her face a heavy veil which she had raised about her hat. Godfrey opened the door for her and followed her through. She shrank back from the mob which charged down upon her as soon as she appeared on the threshold, but Godfrey sprang forward quickly to her rescue. In a moment they were down the stairs and at the door of the cab.

"Miss Croydon," he said, leaning toward her as she took her seat, "do me the favor to deny yourself to all callers tonight."

"I shall," she agreed instantly.

CHAPTER III.

GODFREY glanced at his watch. It was after 9 o'clock. The rain had almost ceased, but the wind was still high. He turned back to the building and found the janitor sitting just inside the door. He had endured the ordeal of inquisition by police and reporters and was rather limp.

After all, Godfrey told himself, he had as yet only half the story; he must get every detail from this man, and he saw that it would be necessary to proceed delicately, for his companion's temper was evidently badly ruffled.

"Well," he began at last, "you look as though those fellows had about worn you out, Mr."—

"Higgins is my name," said the janitor. "Simon Higgins."

"Oh, yes. I remember now."

They sat together for a moment in silence, listening to the tramp of feet in the halls overhead, the opening and closing of doors, the subdued murmur of voices. At the stair foot, beyond the elevator, they caught a glimpse now and then of a policeman pacing back and forth.

"They're searchin' th' house," observed Higgins at last, with a grimace of disdain. "I turned th' keys over t' them. Much they'll find!"

To be continued.

Believes Children Have Taste.

One Boston matron who has theories of child culture undreamed of by early New England says it is a great mistake to dress children on uniform lines, but that they should be consulted as to what they wish to wear and to exercise their own taste in dress. The Boston woman adds: "The thoughtful child of today appreciates what is good form in dress and other things, and when a little girl gets to be half a dozen summers or so her preferences should be taken into consideration. It is a mistake for reproving elders to frown upon any little fancy which does not coincide with their own ideas." She further remarks that, given an idea, many of these geniuses of the nursery go ahead and improve upon it with a cleverness that would put many dressmakers to the blush.

Hearty Reception to Rev H. J. and Mrs. Keith at Knox Church

The new minister of Knox church, Rev H. J. Keith, and his wife, were tendered a hearty reception by the members of the congregation, and other citizens last night. A large number were present at the church where the function was held and the evening was one of much pleasure for the new minister and his wife as well for those in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Keith received the guests at the door of the church and were made acquainted with each one as they entered. After the reception was over there was a short musical programme that was greatly enjoyed. Miss Winnie Anderson rendered a piano solo and Miss Gwen Hall was heard to advantage in two vocal solos. Mr. Duncan Campbell also gave a vocal number that was greatly enjoyed. Mr. J. F. Morrison occupied the chair, and after the musical programme hearty addresses of welcome to the new minister were given by Rev. A. H. Brace, Rev. Dr. Torrance and Rev. J. G. Potter. Rev Mr. Major and Rev. Mr. Manning, who were to have been present, were unable to attend owing to other duties Rev. Mr. Keith made a suitable reply thanking those who had spoken for their many words of brotherly love and Christian spirit. He also thanked the members of the congregation for the many kindnesses shown himself and his wife since coming to Peterborough.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets
Are just for women
and Contain just what every Sick and Run-down Woman Needs.

Do you know that distinguished physicians say that ninety per cent. of the ills of women result from your peculiar organism.

This should make clear to you the need and advantage of taking a remedy that contains uterine and female tonics.

You know, of course, that remedies made to sell to men as well as women do not contain these. They cannot.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women (not for men) contain them all, and you don't have to take our word for this. Chemists and physicians, whose standing makes their statements reliable, say that not one single medical ingredient of any value to women has been omitted from them.

What is the result? Simply this.

When you buy a box of these tablets you get a remedy compounded just for your special needs, and one contaning all that medical science can supply in this twentieth century to make you a healthywoman. What more could you ask?

And unless your experience should be different than that of other women, you need nothing more. If you don't feel as well as you would like to, try these tablets.

They Make Healthy Women.

Interesting Relic Given to Society

Valuable Addition to Collection of Local Historical Society

Master Harold Lynn has presented to the Peterborough Historical Society a large padlock, found by his father, Mr Lynn, of the T.V.C. engineering staff, while making a survey of that portion of Cape Breton on which the old historic Fort Louisburg once stood

The lock is massive and built on the lines of strength rather than beauty, although it is of comparatively modern pattern, but, apparently hand-made.

Fort Louisburg was probably the greatest fort ever built in North America It was constructed by the French Government on the eastern point of Cape Breton, after a labor of 14 years. It was captured by a colonial force of New England farmers under Sir William Pepperal, in in 1745, but was restored to the French by the treaty of Six La Chappelle.

It was always a great source of annoyance to the New Englanders, and was the first place to fall in Wolfe's conquest of Canada (1758). It was then razed to the ground, a work that occupied three years.

The society is fortunate in securing this valuable link binding us to the venerate past, and sincerely thank Master Lynn for his thoughtfulness in presenting it.

Frank Cameron Pleaded Guilty To Charge of Wounding Three Men

Appeared Before Magistrate Dumble in the Police Court This Morning—Claimed He Used the Knife in Self Defence—Pleaded Guilty to Assaulting P. C. Meharry—Story of the Exciting Fight in the Royal Hotel Yesterday in Which Levi Thorndyke, Gilbert Blezard, and Patrick King Were Wounded

"I am guilty, but I did it in self defence," said Frank Cameron, to His Worship Magistrate Dumble, in the police court this morning.

Frank Cameron, who hailed from North Bay a few days ago in company with a chum, is the man who used a knife so effectively in the Royal hotel yesterday afternoon. He was arrested soon after the assault and lodged in the police cells, where he spent the night. This morning the police court was crowded with spectators anxious to learn what would be done to the man so accomplished in the use of a knife.

At ten o'clock His Worship took his chair at the bench. The prisoner was brought in and placed in the box.

Cameron you are charged with drawing a knife and of inflicting several wounds on Levi Thorndyke, Patrick King and Gilbert Blezard, at the Royal hotel Wednesday afternoon. You are also charged with assaulting Police Constable Meharry."

What have you to say? asked the magistrate.

"I am guilty," replied the prisoner, "but I did it in self defence. I was intoxicated at the time and hardly remember what occurred."

He also pleaded guilty to assaulting the policeman, but made no explanation of this act.

Magistrate Dumble after a minute's reflection remanded Cameron for one week when he will appear again to receive sentence.

The prisoner had no lawyer to appear for him as he had evidently made up his mind to plead guilty and get out of gaol as soon as possible. On the other hand the Crown had a large number of witnesses present to give evidence.

Three men with several gashes on their faces and heads, and one man in the police cells was the result of a brawl in the Royal Hotel Wednesday afternoon.

The wounded men are Patrick King, an employee of the Rapid Tool Co.; Gibb Blezard and Levi Thorndyke, both of the city, and well known to many people.

Levi Thorndyke recently arrived from Lindsay, and on Monday started to work for the Royal Hotel. His injuries consisted of a straight stab in the nose. The blade entered the right side near the bridge, and went through bones and all to the nasal cavity. He also has a very serious injury on the left side just below the ribs. The point of a bone is cracked, and he was sent to the hospital. The injury is very serious, although not dangerous. It was received when he fell, either by striking on the cuspidor or by being kicked.

Gilbert Blezard has one gash on the face. It is deep, but does not touch the bone. The knife struck the top of the left ear, passed over the side of the face below the eye and then across to the tip of the nose. The cut is fully five inches long, and four stitches were required to close the wound.

Patrick King bore the brunt of the battle. He received two big gashes and two or three smaller ones. One cut started from the right corner of his mouth over his jaw, and down across the side of his neck. It was five inches long and required several stitches. Another big cut was on the front of his head. It started from the top of the eye and ran across to the top of the right ear for a distance of about six inches. There are two smaller gashes on the top of the head and a large piece of skin, about the size of a quarter of a dollar is taken off his left cheek.

The cut which went across his neck is the most serious. It is deep and had the blade gone in one sixteenth of an inch further it would have struck the jugular vein and the probability is the man would have bled death before the doctor could arrive.

The other two men were attended to in the hotel and after their wounds had been dressed and bandaged were put to bed there, and are doing as well as can be expected. While the wounds for the most part are not dangerous, unless blood poisoning sets in, they are serious.

Dr. Leach, Hunter street, was called as soon as the fight became serious. He was on the scene immediately and set to work on the injured. It required about an hour and a half to wash, sew and bandage the wounds, but the work was done carefully and it is not expected that anything will go wrong, providing the men take good care of themselves.

The fight started about half past one o'clock in the sitting room of the Royal hotel. Two men entered the place and one sat down while the other proceeded to make a disturbance. The bartender told Thorndyke to put the men out. The fellow in the chair had apparently fallen asleep and Thorndyke took hold of him and told him to go outside and take a walk. At that the other fellow, who turned out to be Frank Cameron, of North Bay, stepped forward and used several very strong adjectives, ending up with a threat to fight Thorndyke. The two men started with their fists and Thorndyke got the better of it. By this time Manager James Kelly appeared on the scene and the two strange men were put out in the back yard.

Cameron became very angry. He walked right to the front and entered the bar and immediately proceeded to put the place on the rough. He was swearing at Kelly when Thorndyke, and he no sooner got within reach of Cameron when he was stabbed with the knife. Levi fell to the floor. Gibb Blezard went to his assistance and the man, infuriated by the sight of blood, attacked him and slashed his face. Then King took a hand in the fray in an endeavor to quiet things, when Cameron cut and slashed his face. By this time there was great excitement. The wounded men were removed to an adjoining room, and Kelly returned to the bar and tried to send the fellow out, but he refused to go and reached over the bar, to slash at Kelly, but the latter picked up a bottle of whiskey and struck Cameron on the side of the head sending him to the floor.

He got up and felt in his pocket for a gun, but there was none there. He told Kelly, however, that he would put a bullet in him yet, even though he had to wait six months In the meantime the police were sent for and P. C. Meharry arrived at the hotel just as the fellow had left But he was captured in a few minutes at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, where he was arrested by Meharry and taken to the police cells. The fellow accepted his position all right until he was about to enter the cells, when he attacked Meharry and put up a stiff argument, but after several blows were exchanged, the policeman overpowered his prisoner and landed him behind the bars in a dazed condition.

During the excitement the other stranger who appeared to be asleep made good his escape and has not been seen since.

Young Lady Landed on Masher Who Wanted to Escort Her Home

If a Few More Acted Similarly it Would Have Beneficial Effect—Rather Amusing Scene on Brock St.

A young man with a much larger supply of nerve than a sense of propriety received a sever setback in his forward actions on Saturday night. He was standing on Brock street near the intersection of Chambers street on Sautrday night about nine o'clock when a young lady who is employed at the home of a prominent citizen in the west end was passing. The "masher" stepped up and asked her if he might escort her home, but not recognizing the speaker as any one she had ever met the young lady turned her head the other way and walked on briskly. The proffered escort followed her up and repeated his bold advances, whereupon the girl turned around and landed him one across the face that made him draw back and desist from making any further offers Promptly calling his knowledge of profane language into play, the fellow consigned the lady, who had resisted his advances to a warmer climate than that enjoyed in Peterborough on this the 18th day of April, 1907.

Several persons who were in the vicinity at the time and witnessed the little episode chuckled to themselves at the reception that had been given the "masher."

Frequent complaints have been made lately regarding the congregating of young men on street corners at night and about the comments they make upon ladies who pass by. They seem to be lacking in a sense of decency and a short interview with the Police Magistrate would likely have a beneficial effect.

McDonald's Mills Start Monday; Largely Increased Facilities

New Shingle Mill Established With Capacity of 6,000,000 Shingles—Cut of Pine and Hemlock Lumber Will be 5,000,000, ft.—Employ 110 Men.

Under much improved conditions the saw mill of the estate of A. McDonald will begin the season's operations on Monday next. In all departments they will have a staff of 110 men, not including the 75 or 80 who are now bringing down the drives. This old established and well known firm has made several improvements during the past year or two Some time ago a large planing mill, box factory and sash and door factory were erected and have been running full capacity all winter, and there is a steady demand for all the material that can be turned out. This year a new shingle mill, which has just been completed, will be operated. It is 40 feet by 66 feet and contains Reikin's shingle machine, a drag saw, a splitting saw and a joiner and packer. The capacity of the mill is 6,000 000 shingles for the season. It will run steadily as there is a big demand for shingles. The power is derived from a 35 horse power motor.

The saw mill this year by the removal of the shingle mill, will have a greatly increased capacity and it is fully expected that 5,000,000 feet of pine and hemlock will be turned out. The mill will be kept running with last year's cut which has been stored in Little Lake all winter and there are enough logs there to last until the first of July, when the new logs will be down.

The demand for lumber this year is very much larger than this time last year and the prospects for a record season are very bright. Nearly all the output of these mills is disposed of locally, the only material shipped out of the city is shingles. This will give a slight idea of the amount of building going on in Peterborough and immediate neighborhood.

For the past week or ten days this firm has all the men back on the shores of the creeks and lakes ready to start the drives down. The drawback is the lateness of the season. The ice is still solid in many of the lakes and no progress can be made. This will make the logs very late in getting down as last year, the start was mad on April 10th. There will also be considerable difficulty in floating logs this year on account of the very light fall of snow last winter. The snow has melted long ago and has either run away or evaporated and to bring the water up to the usual level there will have to be a heavy fall of rain.

The cut this year has been much heavier than usual on account of the increased facilities at the mills. There will be, including the logs taken out by the Estate and what was purchased from settlers about 130,000 000 pieces. These will come from the townships of Burleigh, Harvey and Galway and will come down in three drives. The logs purchased were from settlers around Pigeon, Buckhorn and Stony Lakes.

Hon. Mr. Hanna Will Visit City

And Deliver Address at Big Conservative Mass Meeting on April 26th

The annual meeting of the West Riding Liberal-Conservative Association will be held on Friday, April 26th.

A preliminary business meeting will take place in the rooms of the Young Conservative Club at seven o'clock in the evening, for the reception of reports and the election of officers for the coming year.

At eight o'clock there will be a big mass meeting in the Grand Opera House, at which it is expected there will be a record attendance.

Among the speakers will be Hon. W. J. Hanna, the able and brilliant Provincial Secretary. This will be the first visit of Hon. Mr. Hanna to Peterborough, and he will doubtless be greeted by a large gathering. The Provincial Secretary is a forcible and eloquent speaker, and is one of the most popular and talented statesman in Canada to-day. His visit to this city will certainly prove a great drawing card, and the Liberal-Conservative Association is to be congratulated on securing his consent to visit here.

Other noted speakers are being arranged for. It is expected that Mr F. D. Monk, M.P., for Jacques Cartier, and the leader of the Conservative party in the sister province, will be here also. Mr. Monk is a clever, convincing speaker, and one of the foremost debaters of the House of Commons.

Another Conductor Was Fined To-day

For Blocking Stewart Street Crossing—Man Gets Three Months for Theft

The police court was packed this morning, much interest being taken in the assault case of yesterday.

There were also several other cases too, but they were quickly disposed of, and the court room was cleared before half past ten.

The authorities are bound to punish conductors of freight trains who obstruct the streets, by having their trains stand at the crossing over the limit of five minutes. Frank Gassieu, of Lindsay, a conductor of a freight on the G.T.R. was charged with obstructing the highway at Stewart street, one day last week for fourteen minutes. Mr. Gordon appeared for Gassieu, and pleaded guilty. He asked for the leniency of the court, as the train was a long one. His Worship imposed a fine of twenty dollars and costs, amounting to $21.80, to be paid in ten days.

GETS THREE MONTHS.

Wm. Angelsey, who pleaded guilty, last Friday, and was remanded on a charge of stealing a chatelaine bag containing $15.10, belonging to Lillie Graham of Selwyn, was sentenced to three months at hard labor in the county gaol His Worship said that his purpose in remanding him was that he might make enquiries as to his past conduct. What he had learned was not at all to the prisoner's credit. The magistrate remarked that Angelsey was a strong, able-bodied man, quite able to do work, instead of trying to live by stealing. The sentence should be six months in Central Prison, but His Worship allowed him the leniency of the court and gave him three months. The money was returned to Miss Graham and His Worship advised her to be more careful of it in the future.

OTHER CASES.

Sam O'Dotcher was found drunk in a public place last night and arrested. He pleaded guilty and was fined two dollars and costs, to be paid in ten days.

Frances McGirr, a vagrant, just out of gaol, was sent back to the county gaol for six months at hard labor. He has no home, nor money, and says that he is not able to work. He is considerably weak in his upper storey.

Street Delivery of Mail Matter

Expected That Service Will Soon be Inaugurated in Peterboro'

An Ottawa despatch says:—It is learned on good authority that free postal delivery at Calgary and Edmonton, which is now being organized, will be followed in all probability by the organization of free delivery at Brandon. An announcement is also expected from Ottawa at an early date that the Postmaster-General has decided to give free postal facilities to a number of the smaller cities of Ontario, including Peterborough.

A number of these have been petitioning for free delivery for some time, and some have recently had a numbering of houses undertaken in order to make ready for the expected boon. The department has favorably considered some of these requests, and the names of the lucky cities will probably be announced shortly.

Young Lady Was Badly Burned

When Putting Papers in Stove Explosion Occurred

A young lady who is employed by Mr and Mrs. Oran Dafoe, township of Hope, met with a singular yet very serious accident yesterday. She was attending to her household duties as usual and had just placed some old papers in the fire when in an instant a terrible explosion followed. The unfortunate lady was in the act of placing the cover on the stove, when the explosion took place, and her face and head were enveloped in the flames. Her face was badly burned and the sight of both eyes injured, one probably permanently. The windows in the room were all smashed and the sash badly shattered.

The cause of the explosion is a deep mystery. There was no gunpowder in the house or, in fact to Mr. Dafoe's knowledge no explosive of any description.

Dr. Clemesha is in attendance, and under his care the lady is progressing very favorably.—Port Hope Guide.

The enterprising firm of J. J. Turner & Sons are beginning to think that they will have to have their catalogues published in French as well as English. Yesterday they received a letter from a firm at Nice, France, asking for a copy of the catalogue issued by the Messrs. It is gratifying to know that the fame of a Peterborough firm has travelled to Sunny France, and that goods manufactured in this city are likely to be shipped to such a distant clime.

Anniversary Day of Woman's Auxiliary

Returned Missionary Gives Interesting Address in St. Luke's

The 22nd anniversary of the founding of the Woman's Auxiliary, of the Anglican Church, was celebrated by the three branches in this city last evening at St. Luke's church.

A large number of the members of this missionary organization was present and were deeply interested in the earnest and instructive address delivered by Rev. J. McQueen, Baldwin, a veteran missionary from Japan, who is home on furlough.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of the rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, through illness, Rev. Canon Davidson, conducted the opening service. After the singing of a hymn and evening prayer had been said, Canon Davidson, in appropriate words, introduced the speaker of the evening. He also congratulated the Woman's Auxiliary, on the splendid work they were doing in the cause of missions.

Rev. Mr. Baldwin prefaced his earnest and thoughtful address, by also adding a few remarks of congratulation to the W. A., on their splendid work done through God's instrumentality. He wished that the men of the chruch would take such an active interest in missionary effort.

The reverend gentleman spoke first of missionary work in Japan in the 16th century. Japan was then under the missionary guidance of Rome. It was not until 260 years later that Commodore Perry sailed up the bay to Tokio, and was able to make treaties with Japan, and soon after the country was opened up to trade and commerce with western countries. It was not long after, that the Church Missionary Society began its great work. It was in 1869 the first missionary was sent. In 1888 Rev. J. Cooper Robinson, went to Japan, and was followed a year after, by Rev. Mr Baldwin, who worked with Mr. Robinson, in South Tokio. Some time afterwards Mr. Baldwin began his work in a place called. Toirahasha, on which his remarks were particularly based. The missionary said it was on Advent Sunday 1896, that the first regular service was held in this place. Services had been held at irregular intervals, previous to this, and there were present fifty baptized persons, and thirty-four communicants at the first service. At present they worshipped in a hired house, but a fund of $500 had been raised by the people and his request to the headquarters of the W. A. for help, he was pleased to say, was received most favorably.

Mr. Baldwin gave a description of the room in which the service was held. The floor of the room upstairs was laid with mats, and everyone had to remove their boots before going upstairs.

The people sat on the floor. They also had a room downstairs, where persons who had never heard the Gospel were invited. In this room an attractive service was held, consisting of a number of hymns, short prayers and two addresses.

The speaker went on to tell of the work carried on in Japan, in general. He related many instances of men who were led to believe in the Gospel He spoke of difficulties that had to be contended with, and also told of many interesting feature of his work.

In conclusion, he hoped that the W. A., feeling that they had a part in this great work, would instil their husbands with a desire to do greater work for the missionary cause. He hoped they would work steadily on till the church was awakened to the responsibility of Christianizing the world, and that the 20th century would see Japan, China and other heathen lands won for Christ.

An offertory was taken for missionary purposes.

Rev. Wm. Major was unable to attend, owing to having another service at the same hour.

The Awnings too Says a Citizen

Considers That They are Worse Than the Signs

"Why don't the City Council pass a by-law to compel the business houses to take down their awnings?" said a prominent citizen, to-day. "Since they have been making such a war on the poor, unoffending signs, why don't they turn their attention to the greater evil of the two, if evils they are, and make the merchants pull down the awnings? They certainly obstruct the streets a great deal more than the signs, and are far from being attractive in many cases. Let the city fathers make a clean sweep of it when they are at it. If the signs have to go, let the awnings go too. Compared with them the signs do not amount to a row of pins when it comes to blocking the view along the street."

Death Knell Has Been Sounded Of the Old School Book Ring

Government Puts An End to the Existence of Monopoly.

All Publishers May Now Compete—Better Quality and Less Cost Will Be Result—Copyright Vested In Minister of Education—Street Railway Taxes—Student Voters—Damages For Injuries to Workmen.

Toronto, April 18.—The Provincial Government sounded the death knell of the school book monopoly in the Legislature yesterday. By an enactment introduced by Hon. Mr. Foy the property of the readers henceforth rests unreservedly in the Government and all publishers are entitled to issue the books on the consent of the Education Department.

The House again sat till after midnight and two divisions were taken and several motions dealt with on statement of division. The Government majorities in the two divisions were 34 and 29 respectively.

Public School Readers.

While the Statute Law amendment act was under consideration, Hon. Mr. Foy introduced an important clause affecting the Public School readers. Under this clause, which is the result of the expiration of the contract with the firms of Gage & Co, Copp Clark Co. and Canada Publishing Co., the right is granted—subject to permission from the Minister of Education—to other publishers to issue readers. The rights for the books will rest unreservedly in the Minister of Education.

"This action is also advisable," was Mr. Foy's significant comment, "in order that the Department of Education may take over the publication of the readers themselves, if deemed advisable in the future."

Mr. Graham asked if this applied to other school books beside readers.

Mr. Foy said not.

Mr. Graham asked how many readers were used.

Hon. Dr. Pyne said he would secure the information. There were about 5,000 Public Schools.

Mr. Graham pointed out that the cost of printing the books would depend on the number used.

Street Railway Evasions.

Hon. Mr. Matheson introduced an amendment to the supplementary revenue act by which the attempted evasions of certain street railways will be dealt with. It sets forth that the tax of $10 per mile was for single tracks. When there were double tracks the tax was double per mile.

An amendment by Hon. Mr. Hanna granted London the right to erect an isolation hospital on a site approved by the Provincial Board of Health.

A discussion followed the introduction of the clause respecting the student vote in Mr. Foy's bill to amend and consolidate the Manhood Suffrage Registration Act.

Mr. Pense argued that the student vote should be registered at the city where the students were attending college as many were not financially able to return home to vote. Mr. Hoyle thought if the matter were left open there might be danger of double voting and the clause passed.

Cobalt Lake Property.

Hon. Mr. Foy's bill respecting Cobalt Lake and Kerr Lake was opposed by Mr. Smith (Soo) and Hon. Mr. MacKay. Mr. Smith claimed that one, H. R. Dreany, had made and recorded a legitimate discovery ere the withdrawal of Cobalt Lake under order-in-council and moved that he should be granted the right to bring action against the purchasers. Mr. MacKay instanced the case of the Florence Mining Co. who were under the bill put out of court in their pending action.

Hon. Mr. Foy said the purchasers bought on tender, paid their money in good faith and the Government must properly and honorably protect the purchasers in the title. The Minister said the Government had fully investigated the claims and deemed them invalid. Much mining litigation these days, said Mr. Foy, was launched purely to tie up the property and force settlements.

Mr. Smith's amendment was lost and the bill was adopted.

On resuming, on the motion for the third reading, Hon. Mr. MacKay moved a six months' hoist upon which the House divided.

The result was a straight party division of 13 to 47, Mr. Studholme voting with the minority.

Mr. McDougal (Ottawa) then moved a second amendment permitting litigation to go on, the Government to recompense any successful litigant to the full amount of his claim. This was lost on the same division.

Compensation to Workmen.

Mr. Downey in an earnest address moved the second reading of his bill to amend the law with respect to compensation to workmen by which employers are made liable for damages for injuries to working men received in the ordinary course of his work and not on account of his own negligence.

Having gone into committee of supply Mr. Pense (Kingston) made a plea for increased grants to hospitals.

Hon. Mr. Hanna at length explained the expenditure of $10,000 for changes to the Toronto Asylum. The building was in a bad state of repair and the equipment was defective. The land had been valued at $200,000. The asylum would have to be moved from its present site. A new asylum near the city was one of the courses open. This would assist the education of the medical profession in the treatment of mental diseases. A hospital for the acute insane in the city was proposed and curable cases would be treated there, only chronic cases being removed to the asylum.

Prison Labor.

Mr. Studholme, after an extended address, moved that the House regretted and condemned the Government course in reference to prison labor. Mr. May (Ottawa) seconded and the motion was declared lost on division.

On the third reading of the bill to amend the university act Hon. Mr. MacKay and Mr. Tudhope presented a resolution providing that all orders from the Board of Governors on the $2,000,000 apportioned must be presented to the Legislature for ratification.

Replying the Prime Minister maintained that the threatened ruin of Toronto University under the old Government was due to the Government and Legislature dabbling in its affairs. The special commission appointed by this Government to enquire into conditions, composed of men of both parties, had found in favor of the present plan.

Mr. Graham supported the resolution. He thought the people's representatives ought to be consulted.

Mr. MacKay reiterated the statement that the Board of Governors sat behind closed doors and spent approximately $400,000 per annum of the people's money. He called for the letting in of the light.

Mr. Studholme announced that he was voting with the Government on this matter.

Mr. Duncan C. Ross as another graduate of Toronto University endorsed Mr. MacKay's position.

The division was taken at midnight, the amendment being lost by 18 to 47.

CRIMINAL APPEAL COURT.

Innovation In the Legal System of Great Britain.

London, April 18.—A bill constituting a court of criminal appeal, which has not heretofore existed in Great Britain, was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by Attorney-General Walton.

He explained that the measure would create the right of appeal against conviction for crime, similar to that now existing in civil cases.

The bill passed its first reading.

THREE SLASHED WITH RAZOR.

Frank Cameron Attacks Citizens in Peterboro Hotel.

Peterboro, April 18.—Frank Cameron of North Bay, an electrician, 28 years old, got on the rampage here yesterday in the Royal Hotel. With a large knife he attacked and wounded three men. All were severely cut about the head and face.

Levi Thorndyke, late of Lindsay, had his nose cut through to the nasal cavity. When falling he sustained a very serious injury on the left side.

Patrick King had five bad gashes on the head and neck, one six inches long.

Gilbert Blezon sustained a deep gash in the face.

Cameron was slightly intoxicated when arrested, a razor and large knife being found on him. No motive is attributed for his murderous assault, as the injured men were all strangers to him.

The Red River is very high, and fears of a flood are entertained at Winnipeg.

HELPS HOME INDUSTRY.

Mr. Fielding's Excuse For Laxity In Customs Laws.

Ottawa, April 17.—The House yesterday afternoon took up the consideration of some amendments to the Customs Act, and Mr. Paterson, in reply to a query by W. F. Maclean (South York) admitted that the custom laws were enforced by the Federal Government, and that he called upon the Minister of Justice for that purpose.

Mr. Maclean thought it peculiar that other federal laws were not enforced, and called attention to the fact that enormous quantities of native spirits were being doctored up and sold as Scotch whiskey, Holland gin and French brandy, and other high-priced liquors, thereby defrauding the Revenue Department and also defrauding the public.

Mr. Paterson said that it wasn't a matter in his Department. It belonged to the Minister of Inland Revenue. Mr. Templeman thought that the matter belonged to Mr. Paterson, and Mr. Paterson being thus appealed to suggested that the matter belonged to the Finance Department. Thereupon Mr. Fielding startled the House by saying that this sale of adulterated liquor encouraged home industry.

Mr. Maclean pointed out that the excise duty was less than the customs duty, hence the revenues of the country were decreased by hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. Not only this, but the public were cheated and imposed upon and honest merchants who were anxious to sell imported goods were subjected to unfair and dishonest competition.

Mr. Templeman then remembered that the matter might, after all, be under his jurisdiction. He was unable, however, to suggest a remedy.

Ontario Land Grab.

Col. Sam Hughes drew the attention of the Government in the House yesterday morning to a report from Toronto in regard to the expropriation of the Petawawa camp site by the Government.

Mr. Fielding said that any information available would be submitted to the House without delay.

The militia department in the absence of Sir Frederick Borden is unwilling to make any statement, beyond that the whole subject had been transferred to the Department of Justice and is out of its hands.

BOY'S FACE SHATTERED.

Reggie Clarke Killed By Accidental Discharge of Gun.

Brockville, April 17.—Reggie, the 4-year-old son of Robert Clarke of Horton, was fatally shot by the accidental discharge of a gun. He and his brother, two years older, secured possession of a breach-loading gun. The older lad snapped a barrel and the charge tore across the little fellow's nose, tearing out the right eye and injuring the other. He died shortly afterwards.

No Leak of Relief Funds.

Shanghai, April 17.—Investigation shows that the plans of the famine relief committee are admirable. There has been no leakage of the funds administered by foreigners.

A house to house inspection has resulted in 90,000 families, totalling 500,000 famine sufferers, being enrolled by the committee, which is attempting to provide food for them until the harvest.

Syracuse, N.Y., April 17.—Howard Kincaid, 24 years old, employed at a grist mill at Port Byron, was killed there yesterday. While oiling a shaft his clothing caught, and he was whirled about the shaft, his head striking the ceiling.

Deseronto, April 18.—John Freeman, Jr., of Deseronto, and Harry Ryan of Marysville, were found unconscious from escaping gas in their room in the Arlington Hotel yesterday morning. Ryan is still in a precarious condition, but is expected to recover. The valve of the gas pipe was defective.

Fire In Homestead Mine.

BIG CARNATIONS.

They Were Cultivated In England In Shakespeare's Time.

A florist says that we pride ourselves nowadays on the size of our carnations, but the florists of 300 years ago grew carnations three to four inches across, as large as any that we see, and thought nothing of it.

"All through Spain, southern France and Italy the carnation is the favorite flower and has been for hundreds of years, but along the Mediterranean there are few glass houses, for in protected situations and on southern slopes of hills even delicate flowers grow outdoors all winter long and bloom as freely at Christmas as in July.

"The big carnations, however, were not grown in Spain or Italy, but in England outdoors during the summer time and before glass houses were known. They may have grown just as large carnation flowers in Spain as in England at that time, but in England there was record made of the fact and also of the size, while in Spain there was not. Shakespeare mentions carnations and gillyflowers, or July flowers, together as blooming at the same season, which shows that the carnation was then a summer flower, whereas in our greenhouses it is now a winter bloomer. How the florists of those days treated the plants to obtain blooms of such size nobody knows, for old time florists grew flowers instead of writing books about them. So all we know is that they had very large carnations in Queen Elizabeth's time without knowing how they were grown."

HIDDEN TREASURE.

New Zealanders Dig For Kauri Gum In the Ground.

Many New Zealanders find it profitable to dig for hidden treasure. That for which they dig, however, is not gold or Captain Kidd's ill gotten wealth, though it has a dull yellow color. It is kauri gum, a resinous substance which is the product of the kauri pine tree. The gum can be secured from the trunks of trees while they are alive, for it protrudes in lumps, but it is especially profitable to dig for it in the soil about the stumps remaining after the trees have been cut down. Sometimes chunks weighing as much as 100 pounds are taken up from the ground.

Digging for kauri gum is profitable, for the gum is used in the manufacture of varnish, and apparently it is one of those products of nature whose place cannot be filled by anything else which has yet been discovered. It has been found that it can be used in certain enamel paints, and this has had the effect of bringing the demand up to a point above the supply.

The kauri pine is a magnificent tree. It rises as straight as a needle to a height of from 150 to 200 feet and attains at times a diameter of fifteen feet. It is noted for its dark, dense foliage and is much used for masts for vessels constructed for the British navy.

Chewing and Dyspepsia.

The lean dyspeptic, taking a mouthful of chop, chewed it interminably.

"Forty chews," he paused to say, "for every bite." And his jaws began to grind again.

"You make me laugh," his companion, a physiologist, returned. "Meat requires little, if any, chewing. You must have wasted a lot of chews in your time."

"Go on!"

"It's true. Vegetables require chewing, for they are digested largely by the alkaline mouth juices, but meat is digested by the acid stomach juices, and to chew it more than enough to make it go down easily does harm instead of good. The mouth alkalis, admixing with it, hinder the stomach acids' work.

"Chew vegetables indefatigably, my friend, but let your meat slip down unground."

The Word "Idiot."

"Idiot" is a word with a curious history. In Greek "idiotes" began by meaning a private individual, as apposed to the state or to a state official; then it meant a nonexpert or layman and finally an ignorant man or an awkward fellow. It was left for English to carry the meaning further to mental deficiency. In "Piers Plowman" an "idiot" is an ignorant person, and as late as 1688 it could mean a person who knew only one language. Wyclif and Jeremy Taylor used it in the sense of "layman," and the latter also in that of "private person." And a professional "fool" or jester was at one time an "idiot" too.

Where Her Father Was.

The daughter of the house had just returned from boarding school. Her finishing branches had made her a little sensitive.

"Is your father out in the wood shed splitting wood?" the caller asked her.

"No," replied the haughty girl; "papa is at the town meeting splitting infinitives."

Liquid Spirits.

"I don't give money to tramps. What do you do for a living?"

"Please, mum, I work for the Society of Psychical Research."

"Indeed! And what work do you do for the society, pray?"

"I help in the investigation of material spirits."

Hard knocks often help to make the man, but he will encounter plenty of them without purposely getting in the way of the rock as it comes rolling down the hill.

W. H. Hunter of the law firm of Hunter and Hunter, Toronto, will be the next supreme counsellor of the I.O.F.

FRANKLIN'S GARB.

The Philosopher Often Taken For a Quaker, Though He Was Not One.

Benjamin Franklin was often taken for a Quaker, but the philosopher did not belong to the Society of Friends. Franklin, being a simple citizen of Philadelphia, wore clothes of a fashion set by the Quakers, a plain gray or drab suit. He continued to wear this costume while he was in France. Once when his court suit was not ready he appeared in his "republican" garb before Louis XVI. He became the fashion in France and indeed in nearly all Europe, and it was at one time the proper thing for young republicans and litterateurs to dress a la Franklin. The German historian, Schlosser, describing Franklin's appearance in the French drawing rooms, speaks of "the simplicity of his external appearance, the friendly meekness of the old man and the apparent humility of the Quaker." In truth, the humility and the meekness were mostly matters of appearance, and the Quaker aspect was only an aspect. Franklin was brought up by his parents in Boston in the Congregational church and was intended by them for the ministry. When he went to Philadelphia, he says in his autobiography, he paid his "annual subscription to the only Presbyterian minister or meeting we had in Philadelphia." But he distinctly avows his disagreement with Presbyterian doctrine and later was quite as ready to welcome and assist Whitefield, the Methodist, with whom he also openly disagreed. Later still, he took a pew in an Episcopal church, but he was never a communicant Episcopalian. He says much about religion in his autobiography, explains how he became a deist in his youth, but abandoned the doctrine because it was not useful in making men good. His own creed he declares to be belief in God and in the immortality of the soul. "Though my scheme was not wholly without religion," he writes, "there was no mark of any of the distinguishing tenets of any particular sect."

HE GAINED HIS POINT.

To Do It the Actor Spoiled the Play and Lost His Position.

An American actress who had toured in England was telling her experiences and related an incident that amused her. She said:

"In a play produced in the provinces there is a scene in which the hero strikes the villain, who slinks away without seeking to defend himself. One night in a large manufacturing town the young fellow who played the deep dyed scoundrel remarked to the leading man before the curtain rose:

"'I say, old chap, I've got my fiancee out in front tonight with her father and mother. Now, of course they don't know anything about our business, and I'm afraid it would rather hurt me with them if I received a blow and got away in the usual cowardly fashion. So, dear old chap, can't you omit the blow tonight?'

"'But, my boy, the management will fine me 2 shillings.'

"'Well, I'll pay the fine.'

"'Oh, yes! That's all very well for you, but what do I get out of it? Nothing but a bad name with the powers that be.'

"'Oh, well, I'll give you 2 shillings extra, or, better yet, you hit me as usual, and I'll hit back! They'll fine me, not you, and I'll give you the 2 shillings besides. You see how I'm situated. I shouldn't like the girl to mix me up with the character I play. Outsiders are so funny that way.'

"So the compact was made, and that night when the hero cried, 'Sir Daniel Deepwater'—or something of that sort—'base offspring of a noble race, take that!' Sir Daniel not only 'took that,' but gave it back with such force that 'the pit in cheers rose at him,' including his relatives to be by marriage, and he walked off the stage in triumph.

"I am sorry to add he lost his situation, but he gained his point."

THE SPANISH ESCURIAL.

It Is a Marvelous Specimen of Ancient Architecture.

The Escurial, the palace of the Spanish king, an architectural marvel, formerly described as the "eighth wonder of the world," is now seldom spoken of even by those who are ready to go wild over much less pretentious structures. The cornerstone of this "Spanish St. Peter's" was laid by Philip II. in 1563, but it was 302 years (1865) before the monstrous building was pronounced finished. It was built by Philip in fulfillment of a vow to "erect the finest monastery in the world" should his forces be successful in their great battle with the French. That battle was fought at St. Quentin on Aug. 10, 1557, St. Lawrence day, and in order to honor that saint as well as to fulfill his vow the king had the foundation of his great memorial laid off in the shape of a gridiron, the implement of torture upon which the goodly Lawrence is reputed to have suffered martyrdom.

To those who have never visited the Escurial the size of the gigantic structure is beyond comprehension. It is 740 feet from north to south and 580½ feet from east to west, the square towers at each corner rising to a height of over 200 feet. Within this monstrous building are the king's palace, a cathedral, a monastery of 200 cells, two colleges, three chapter houses, three library buildings, five large halls, six dormitories, three hospitals and over 3,000 other rooms. In order to make St. Lawrence's gridiron complete, the building is built in quadrangular form, with seventeen rows or ranges of monstrous stone structures crossing each other at right angles, these forming the gridiron's ribs, the handle being a wing 470 feet in length. The church, which is a part of this vast pile of masonry, is 364 feet long, 230 feet wide, with a dome 330 feet in height. It is estimated that the building cost $50,000,000.

FAMOUS ARCHERS.

Stories of Wonderful Skill With Bow and Arrow.

The expression "drawing a long bow" does not of necessity mean the telling of a falsehood. It sometimes refers to a wonderful story, which may be true enough, but which is so marvelous as to require a firm trust in the veracity of the narrator to enable the hearer to believe it. Some of the longest bows of this sort have been drawn about bows and arrows.

These stories began long ago. Virgil in the "Æneid" tells of four archers who were shooting for a prize, the mark being a pigeon tied by a cord to the mast of a ship. The first man hit the mast, the second cut the cord, and the third shot the pigeon as it flew away. The fourth archer, having nothing left to shoot, drew his bow and sent his arrow flying toward the sky with such speed that the friction of the air set the feathers on fire, and it swept on, like a meteor, to disappear in the clouds.

The stories told of Robin Hood's archery, illustrated by his wonderful performance as Locksley in Scott's "Ivanhoe," are also a decided strain upon a sensible person's credulity. The famous story of William Tell, doubted by many persons, is believed by others to have a foundation of fact. There was a Dane named Foke of whom the same story is told, and William of Cloudesley, an Englishman, is said to have shot an apple from his son's head merely to show his expertness.

Most stories of bows and arrows relate to the accurate aim of the archers, but a Frenchman, Blaise de Vigenere, tells one that shows the tremendous force with which an arrow may be propelled if the bow be strong and long enough. According to his own account of the matter, he saw Barbarossa, a Turk, admiral of a ship called the Grand Solyman, send an arrow from his bow right through a cannon ball.

Grip Facts.

The grip is not simply a bad cold, and this fact is worth knowing. It resembles a cold in some respects, and colds are often wrongly diagnosed by the victims as grip. The grip is a malady which has laws of its own, both as to origin and progress after development. According to the doctors, it must run its course—"there is no special remedy that can directly destroy the infection, no drug that can kill the bacillus or neutralize its toxin." This also is worth knowing. The main thing is to nurse with care and give the system the best possible aid in its efforts to throw off the poison.

Not Thirsty.

Jane, the bright new maid, always anxious to please, had been intrusted with the care of a little aquarium, in which the goldfish had always thrived very well until Jane came on the scene. The first day she arrived she gave them fresh water, as instructed, and then left them to their own devices. But, alas, one morning the little fishes were found floating feebly on their backs. "Jane," called the anxious mistress, regarding her pets with concern, "have you given the fish any fresh water lately?" "No, ma'am. Bless their little hearts, they haven't drunk the water I gave them last mouth yet!"

NO VOTES FOR WOMEN

Mr. John Smith of Peel, is the staunch supporter in the Ontario Legislature, of extending the franchise to women.

Each session he comes forward with his measure on behalf of female suffrage. He urgently advocates the extension of the franchise to unmarried women and widows, having the property qualification.

Mr. Allan Studholme, the loquacious Labor representative from East Hamilton strongly upheld Mr. Smith's bill.

Again the bill was lost on division but the sentiment in favor of giving women a vote, seems, nevertheless, to be advancing.

About four hundred members of the British House of Commons, are said to have given pre-election promises to favor women suffrage, and nothing but the action of the Speaker of the House, who refused the closure of discussion, may have prevented the passage of the bill, which came lately under debate. It suffered what English papers describe as the fate of being "talked out." In the opinion of the Spectator, of London, there is quite a possibility that the present Parliament, during its term of life may equalize the two sexes in the possession of the elective franchise and it regards the prospect with grave concern. It appeals for at least, a referendum of the question to the existing electorate of the kingdom.

The view of Prime Minister Whitney on the matter of Mr. Smith's measure is interesting. He declared that Mr. Smith was quite within his rights in introducing the bill, and it should be considered seriously. He thought the bill a little inconsistent in that it confined the franchises to classes of women. In Parliamentary elections there were no property qualifications, and consequently if any women, were permitted to vote, all should have the same privilege. The Prime Minister was satisfied that the time had not come for the passage of such legislation, for he felt that the women of the country, did not desire the franchise, and Mr. Whitney, is doubtless right.

PEN POINTS

How did you like our April winter.

The ballots are coming in. Is yours among the number?

A noted London clergyman says that women are degenerating. He should be sued for libel.

Nearly all the ballots handed in so far, favor open committee meetings of the Board of Education.

One is not told now to go to a warmer climate than South Africa, to Halifax or any distant point. He is consigned to Petawawa instead.

Although the temperature may not change greatly, it is somewhat more moist in Asphodel, since the local option bylaw was quashed.

No matter of what nationality a cordial welcome awaits you at the Young Conservative club rooms this evening. "Scotch night" is the attraction.

When the high rate of taxation of other cities is considered, Peterborough, with its 17 1-2 mills on the dollar, is a fortunate and highly favored municipality.

With Ald. Jury and Clifford Sifton on hand to welcome him in England, Premier Laurier must have wondered whether he had left all his troubles behind him.

Thaw has changed his counsel, dismissing all his lawyers except O'Reilly. He should remember Abe Lincoln's advice about not swapping horses horses when crossing a stream.

The Whitney Government stands fairly by provincial rights. The interest and integrity of this province will be conserved against Dominion encroachment or confiscation.

The Y.M.C.A. Mock Parliament has prorogued, the Ontario Legislature will have finished its work in a few days, but there is no sign of the rather spectacular performance of the Federal House, nearing an end.

In replying to Mr. Borden in the House of Commons relative to electoral corruption and crookedness in the Liberal ranks, Mr. Fielding resorts to the tu quoque style of argument. His defence is chiefly that two wrongs make a right.

The third resignation of Hon. C. S. Hyman is said to be on the way. It is hoped that it will be made out in due and legal form this time. Practice in the art of writing resignations should make the minister of Public Works perfect in observing the proper procedure.

The Canadian Senate should be commended for its decision to preserve provincial rights. After this the promoters of any bill containing those much-abused words: "For the general advantage of Canada," must show that the objects of the bill are really for the general advantage of Canada, and not merely a means of evading provincial control.

Speaking at the college meeting of the peace conference in Carnegie hall in New York, Edwin D. Mead, director of the Old South Historical work, stated that Canada and the United States in agreeing in 1815 to keep no armaments on the lakes or on the frontier, had pointed the true way for the reduction of armaments among the nations. If they had kept up their forts and frigates, their garrisons and marines, there would probably have been friction a score of times, and there might have been war; without them there has been peace, security and mutual respect. It pays for nations, as well as men, to act like gentlemen, instead of like boys.

The Hamilton Times says:—"The amendment to the Municipal Act to encourage aldermanic neglect of public streets, by exempting municipal corporations from liability for accidents resulting from allowing them to fall into a dangerous condition, passed the committee stage of the Legislature yesterday. It is perhaps the most anomalous measure that was ever presented to an intelligent body of legislators. The bill had its origin in the Municipal Association, a self-appointed body."

Why does the Times object so strongly to the measure? Is not the Ambitious City deeply enough in debt now without having to defend actions for damages that, under the old state of affairs, could be entered on trivial pretext. Municipalities can not have men stationed all over patching up every possible danger spot, and the citizen, who will not take the trouble to notify the civic authorities of any roadway, or walk that is a menace to public safety, possesses but little public spirit or civic pride.

Elevators Filled To Their Capacity

Cars of Wheat Still Adding to Congestion of Fort William

Fort William, April 17.—The local elevators are filled to the roofs with wheat and the Canadian Pacific yards are also filling rapidly. The British America House at Port Arthur has refused to take any more cars from the Canadian Pacific, and the Empire is also in about the same position. The loading of the Mizch and Bixley will relieve the congestion somewhat, but it is not probable that vessels from the east will get here for the next ten days.

The ice in the river is now all broken up by the big ice breaker, and the big vessels were able to move around without any difficulty. The Whalen is attempting to break a passage out to the lake but it will likely be some time next week before this is accomplished as the ice is upwards of two feet thick.

Croyland Yokome's New Song "The Flower of Japan" to be Sung

For the First Time in Canada by the Royal Chef Comic Opera Co. on Monday Night Next—Song is Catchy and Tuneful and Has Great Chorus

"The Flower of Japan" is the name of a new, catchy and tuneful song, which has been written by Mr. Croyland Yokome, son of Mr. F. R. Yokome, and a talented young writer of this city. This is the first song Mr Yokome has had published, although he has written several others, and it will be sung for the first time in public in Canada by the Royal Chef Comic Opera Co., which will appear at the Grand on Monday night next.

"The Flower of Japan" is a very pretty thing, with a chorus which is bound to make a hit. It was published by the North American Music Co., of New York, and is now being rehearsed by the chorus of the Royal Chef, which is playing this week at the Grand in Toronto. This company is one of the best of its kind on the road, and is under the direction of Mr. Ben. M. Jerome, the well known composer and musical director, and this song will be one of the features of the Peterborough programme.

Mr. Yokome is well known in this city and has many friends here, and there will no doubt be many take in the opera on Monday night to hear his first attempt at song writing. The song is for sale at J. M. Green's Music Store.

Sawed 43½ Cords of Wood In 2 Hours and 10 Minutes

James Madill, Aged 70 Years, the Veteran Sawyer of Cavan, Made a New Record—Young Lady Shot a Muskrat.

Special to the Review.

Springville, April 17.—Yesterday, a feat was accomplished in this village which defies anyone to beat. That afternoon Mr. James Madill, Cavan township's veteran sawyer, aged 70 years, sawed 43 1-2 cords of stove wood in two hours and ten minutes This record was made on Mr. David Wilson's, J.P., property, and eclipsed all previous records of this wonderful old man. Mr. Madill started at a pile of cordwood containing 14 1-2 cords and cut it into three pieces with a saw made by himself and driven by Mr. Albert Reynolds' traction engine.

On Sunday afternoon a big muskrat appeared on the lawn of Mr Hatherly, and Miss Georgie took a rifle, which was in the house, and shot it, and then proudly carried her prize to the wood shed in the rear of the house, where she invited the other members of the family out to see it. Miss Hatherly is a first rate shot, and is quite at home with a rifle or revolver.

WEDDING BELLS

MOORE—SOLMES.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at half-past seven, at the residence of Mr. Walter Jarvis, Victoria Avenue, when Miss Cora Solmes of the township of Limerick, was united in marriage to Mr. Irvine Moore, of the township of Tudor, Hastings County, in the presence of only the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Manning, of the Charlotte street church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Rosa Solmes, and the groom was ably assisted by Mr. Ben. Solmes, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony a most sumptuous repast was served and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the bride and groom. They were the recipients of a large number of beautiful presents, which testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held by a large number of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in the township of Tudor.

Many Merchants

Deceiving Their Lady Customers.

From time to time The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, manufacturers of the popular DIAMOND DYES, receive letters from people residing in the various provinces of Canada, telling of the attempts of retail merchants to induce the ladies to buy weak, adulterated and worthless package dyes when the reliable DIAMOND DYES are asked for.

These efforts of retail merchants to substitute worthless dyes, should be resented by every woman and girl who has a desire to do successful home coloring.

The merchants who try to substitute and deceive the public, do so for the sake of the big profits they receive. Such merchants care little for the comfort and success of their customers.

Successful home dyeing can only be done by the use of DIAMOND DYES, which are all guaranteed to give perfect results in beautiful, bright and never-fading colors.

This month The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal, P.Q., will send free to any address new Diamond Dye Booklet and pretty Souvenir Card for baby. You should have them.

DEBATING CLUB CLOSES SEASON

Mock Parliament and Banquet at the Y.M.C.A. Last Evening

The Y.M.C.A. Debating Club closed most successful season by the holding of a "Mock Parliament" and an enjoyable little banquet last night. Both events proved highly successful and were greatly enjoyed by those who were present. The Mock Parliament was a somewhat new feature in connection with the meetings of the club and was decidedly interesting and entertaining. Parliamentary procedure was followed with every detail and the various matters brought before the House were discussed in a manner that demonstrated that the club contains some able debaters, many of them graduates of the meetings held this season.

The House was divided into two sections, the Government supporters being ranged on one side, while the opposition members occupied the benches on the other side of the House. Over thirty were in attendance and they were about equally divided in their political leanings. The speaker was Mr. J. E. Hodgson who has acted as critic for the club during the season, and who looked worthy of the important position of Speaker, as he sat last night, attired in the robes of office, and wearing a pair of immaculate white gloves. Mr. B. A. Lillie was the leader of the Government, and Mr. Wilfrid Shiner acted as leader of the Opposition, both being well fitted for their positions. Each of the other members present, represented a constituency.

The speech from the throne was read by the Speaker and referred to the great prosperity of the Dominion and gave notice of the introduction of several important measures by the Government. They were as follows:

A bill to provide for compulsory military service, for all men over 18 years of age.

A bill to provide for an increase in the tariff duties on all manufactured goods entering the country, except those, the raw material for which is a natural product of the Dominion, and further to place an export tax on all raw material leaving the country.

A bill to impose a tax, not exceeding five dollars per annum on all able bodied bachelors over the age of 25 years.

Mr. Greenhalgh moved the adoption of the address from the throne, which was seconded by Mr. Howarth.

The proposed legislation of the Government was scathingly assailed by the leader of the opposition and his retinue and was as ably defended by Prime Minister Lillie and the Government supporters. Some strong points were made on both sides, especially in regard to the proposed tax on bachelors. This question was vigorously debated and was the cause of much mirth. Much ability was shown by several speakers and flights of eloquence came thick and fast.

The adjournment of the House was moved by the Prime Minister at ten o'clock.

The following were those who took part in the debate on the proposed legislation outlined in the speech from the throne,—

Government Speakers—Hon. B. A. Lillie (Toronto), Prime Minister; Messrs. Greenhalgh, Howarth, Geo. Armstrong, C. Coleman, and H. R. H. Kenner.

Opposition Speakers—Hon. W. Shiner, (Peterborough) leader, and Messrs. F. Ray, Common, M. Rosenburg, and W. H. Collier.

Clerk of the House, Mr. F. Simpson.

The others present were as follows, R. E. Harding, W. Richardson, G. H. Williamson, W. Langford, F. Simpson, Mr. Northcott, Mr. Redgrave, D. Downie, J. Hardwicke, G. R. Coleman, W. J. Coleman, A. E. Walker, Mr. Airries, R. Lees, A. MacFarlane, C. E. Sisson, C. H. J. Mitchell, Bert Huston, D. B. MacRae, and Mr. Taylor.

After the Mock Parliament was over an adjournment was made to the banquet hall, where all sat down to a splendid spread that had been prepared. After the inner man had been satisfied, a toast list was honored, Mr. R. E. Harding acting as chairman. "The King," was proposed by Mr. Harding, and honored by the singing of the National Anthem.

"Canada and the Empire," was proposed by Mr. Lillie and responded to by Mr. Howarth, both of whom made eloquent speeches.

"The Y.M.C.A." was proposed by Mr. Coleman and responded to by Mr. R. Lees.

"Former Members" was done justice to by Mr. G. H. Williamson, and Mr. Rosenburg.

"The Critic," having reference to Mr. Hodgson, was proposed by Mr. Shiner, who took advantage of the occasion to say some complimentary things about the value of Mr. Hodgson's services to the Club, during the season. In order to express this in a tangible way, he presented Mr Hodgson with a handsomely bound book of Tennyson's poems, a gift from the Debating Club.

Mr. Hodgson made a suitable response. He had greatly enjoyed the meetings of the Debating Club and greatly appreciated their gift although he had not expected anything of the kind.

The cause of the ladies was ably championed by Messrs. Greenhalgh and Common.

"Auld Lang Syne" brought the most enjoyable function to a close.

The refreshments were served by Coleman Bros.

How These Towns Love Each Other!

Cobourg Cries for Everything Which Port Hope Mentions

(Port Hope Guide.)

The Cobourg Post of Dec. 28, 1906, said,—"This town is certainly unselfish towards Port Hope. Our citizens are always pleased to hear of the prosperity of any of the surrounding towns, Port Hope especially."

The same paper of last week says: "Cobourg is still advancing. In addition to securing the new gaol and house of refuge, the terminal of the G.T.R. ferry has been secured for Cobourg. The terminus of the Midland Railway at Cobourg will be the next to be located at Cobourg."

MATERIAL ARRIVING.

"On Thursday two cars loaded with lumber for use on the ferry slip arrived in Cobourg and were unloaded at the docks. Twelve hundred piles have been shipped to Cobourg and are expected to arrive within the next few days. The Grand Trunk poured oil on troubled waters by allowing a gang of Port Hope men to unload the Pears'

All the Cobourg papers have been very jolly at Port Hope's expense. It has to be at the expense of some other place; nothing is ever originated or paid for by our Counties' Town. This generosity for themselves has extended through every avenue, Local, Counties', Ontario Government, Dominion Government and the Grand Trunk Railway. Nothing that Port Hope first originates but Cobourg like a spoiled child reaches out and cries for.

The Counties' buildings are largely owned by Durham, and had it not been for the treachery of some ones in Durham, the County House of Refuge would not have been at Cobourg. It is hard, though, for the Post to call it a house of "refuse."

The sooner Durham is separated from its blood-sucking eastern neighbor the better for Durham.

Take, too the Trent Valley Canal outlet. The Cobourg people never had the remotest hope for it, but they insisted on their route being surveyed because Port Hope had put in a valid claim, and the Dominion Government would have less hesitation in turning down Port Hope's feasible and cheapest route when both were so treated, in favor of the grafters along the Trent River, who would thus save their stake. It will cost more money to build the canal by Tory Trenton and maintain it, but what of that, the county is rich and Port Hope must be made to suffer."

Cobourg has usually contrived to have a representative with both the local and Dominion Governments, and no Government could change so quickly that Cobourg could not as rapidly right about face. Port Hope on the contrary has stood loyal to the Liberal cause through every discouragement ,but owing to the almost impossible Tory handicap of Cartwright, Manvers and Cavan our plucky work fails to elect even an Aylesworth, one sure of a portfolio.

Port Hope and Hope with their 400 Liberal majority cannot get common justice with insatiable Cobourg—secures its Armory—steals the Durham Field Battery from Port Hope to ornament the new building, and compels the Dominion Government to undertake the initial steps of building their harbor that cannot fail to run up an expenditure of $300,000 at least.

Port Hope, on the other hand builds its own harbor, contributes heavily towards building the Midland Railway, and now Cobourg decides that it must have the terminal of the Midland to match the robbery of the G.T.R. ferry, which was first planned and announced to be for Port Hope. On this as in other matters, Cobourg appears to have the backing of the full power of the Dominion Government.

Port Hope is the only town on the front which has stood continuously Liberal, and this is how Port Hope is rewarded for its Liberal loyalty by its "friends."

Port Hope certainly owes no extra good will towards J. B. McColl, M.P., for it is largely through his efforts that Port Hope has been robbed: Not satisfied with what has been done, insult is added to injury to our citizens ,who have the misfortune to visit the Counties' town. Mr. McColl is reported to have guyed one of our citizens about losing the ferry and also said, "Oh, we will give you $5,000 for your old harbor."

A stranger at first coming to Hope cannot at first understand the deep resentment toward Cobourg, but when the wrongs of Port Hope are explained, wonder ceases. Words fail to express the utter contemptible meanness of our Counties' town.

ABLE LECTURE ON COLUMBUS

Rev. Father McColl Delighted a Lindsay Gathering

The Lindsay Post says—The semi-blizzard and heavy snowfall Tuesday afternoon was not calculated to put people in the notion of venturing abroad last evening, and in consequence the attendance at the Catholic Literary Association entertainment in the Parish Hall was not as as large as the quality of the programme merited. Mr. John Rogers, president, was chairman, and Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Father Collins and Rev. Father McColl—the latter from Peterborough—occupied seats on the platform.

The musical portion of the programme was very pleasing. It comprised a banjo solo by Miss Brady, an Irish song by Mr. R. J. Begley, formerly of Peterborough, who had to respond to repeated recalls; an exceedingly well rendered vocal quartette by Misses Smith, McIlbargey, Flurey and Brady, and a pleasing duet from the Gillogly brothers. Then followed a well written paper on "The Pioneers of Upper Canada," by Mr McNevin, one of the clever young men of the society.

The treat of the evening, to which all were, of course, looking forward, with impatience, came next—a lecture on "Christopher Columbus," by Rev. Father McColl, Rector of Peterborough Cathedral, and former curate of St. Mary's. The address met the expectations of all, and was listened to with keen enjoyment.

Ald. W. J. Johnston, who has the contract for the north ward school addition of six rooms, has begun excavation. A number of men are at work.

The Situation is Not Improving

Miners Quit Work and Output of Coal is Very Small

An Ottawa despatch says:—In the House of Commons this morning, Mr. M. S. McCarthy, M.P., drew attention to a telegram from Calgary, representing that the railways now are refusing freight and are expected soon to refuse to take passengers; though no strike has been declared, the men are leaving work, and the output of coal has become very small; the situation threatened was the worst ever experienced in the West.

Mr. Lemieux said that it looked as if some disagreement had occurred between the operators and the men at one of the mines. The miners had appointed a representative for the board of investigation, his name being Eckstein.

The operators had suggested the name of a person who was directly interested in the operation of the mines, and both the Government and the miners had protested. The operators had yielded and had appointed a disinterested person, a Mr. Parker. He hoped that Mr. Eckstein and Mr. Parker would soon select a third member.

In reply to a question, Mr. Lemieux admitted that some of the men had quit work.

REV. DR. MARSH GAVE ADDRESS

Lectured in Gilmour Memorial Church Last Week

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, lectured at Gilmour Baptist Church, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Bible Class on Wednesday, April 10th.

His subject was "A Night in the Sky." Limelight views of the sun, moon and stars were given. The lecture was most entertaining and instructive. The audience was large and well pleased with the lecture.

LAWYERS MAKE A BIG PROTEST

Against the Sign By-law—It Will be Quashed

One of the most prominent lawyers in speaking of the sign bylaw today, said that, "As yet I have not heard of the aldermen passing a bylaw to prevent men and women walking on the sidewalks in their bare feet. I suppose, however, they will do that at their next meeting, or something else about as ridiculous. That sign bylaw, if the mayor attempts to enforce it, will be quashed sure. It cannot hold, for the simple reason that it discriminates. To enforce such a law would mean that a clean sweep of the whole street. Not only must the signs come down, but anything that looks like one or serves the same purposes. The awnings must all come off, the blinds in the windows, must be altered, so that no name appears. In fact the streets in the city must be cleared of everything that is in the nature of a sign in order to make the bylaw hold.

"This," continued the lawyer, "would be the death of those aldermen and the Mayor, who passed it. There is going to be an awful row about this thing. Take our sign for instance. It projects a few inches over the walk, and we got notice to take it down. We pay $80 taxes each year on this office, and the only privilege we get is to shovel our own snow in the winter and pay the city to do it also. It is very little we ask, to put up a sign and personally I cannot see that we are obstructing the streets very materially."

New serial story "The Marathon Mystery" begins in to-day's issue of the Review. Read every word of it.

WEDDING BELLS

FRANKISH—ROSE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rose, 2nd line, Dummer, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, April 10th, when their youngest daughter, Mary Gertrude was united in marriage to Mr. Charles W. Frankish of Douro. The house was comfortably filled by a number of relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely robe of white eolienne over taffeta, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Geo. W. Rose, B. A., of Mono Centre, Ont., uncle of the bride, the company did justice to the bountiful supper provided. Many beautiful gifts testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held. The evening passed pleasantly, and when the wee sma' hours were not far ahead, the happy couple took their departure, for their future home in Douro, accompanied by the good wishes of all.

Splendid Addresses Given In Charlotte Street Church

Rev. R. Burns, of Tweed, Spoke on "Education in General"—Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Port Hope, Talked on Individual Evangelism and Pointed Out What Active Lay Workers Could do.

A public meeting in connection with the examinations of the probationers for the Methodist ministry which were begun this morning was held at the Charlotte Street Methodist Church last night. There was a good attendance, and the addresses delivered by Rev. Mr. Henderson, of Port Hope, and Rev. Mr. Burns, of Tweed, were of an interesting character, and contained many words of sound advice. Rev. J. A. McCamus filled the position of chairman in a satisfactory manner. The usual custom on such occasions has been to hold a public meeting at which the young ministers deliver addresses. However, this was not entirely practicable last night, hence the substitution. The probationers, he stated, are men who have been on heavy work on missions, and their studies for matriculation. Those who will show that they are fully qualified will receive their ordination only after five more years, three of which are spent on circuits or missions, and the other two at college. Their university course is thorough, as was shown by the syllabus, which the chairman read. Rev. Mr. McCamus then called upon Rev. Mr. Burns to address the gathering.

REV. MR. BURNS.

Rev. Mr. Burns chose an excellent subject to speak on "Education in General," and his treatment of it was scholarly and well arranged.

The term education is derived from educo, to lead forth. There must be something to lead forth, to develop, and we have our natural endowments, given us by God, which must be developed. The first form of education was in the home, and is still there. The speaker gave an historical review of the development of systematic teaching from ancient times through the pagan era, and later, through the Christian age. "How far are the systems of education useful to the world?" he asked. Many people look more to the ornamental than to the useful, but the object of education is the right ruling of conduct in all directions; in other words to live properly.

The field of education is very comprehensive and cannot be covered by everyone. First of all, there is that phase which leads to self-preservation, 2nd, second, that ministers to the needs of man. That which relates to the home is a third branch. Then there are the moral and spiritual activities, and last, the miscellaneous studies, including the fine arts.

The highest thoughts should be towards the knowledge that leads us to live the perfect life, living up to the ideal. We are living in a practically golden age. Knowledge to-day is peerless in quantity, whatever it may be in quality. What has Christianity to say to this evolution of education? It says that we should hearken to it, for it springs from God. It develops our reasoning powers. Education fails went we take God out of our thoughts and life. He is the basis of all true knowledge and culture, and all truth.

If the world were deprived of the Bible and of our dealings with God, the world would be dark and nothing of value would be left.

REV. MR. HENDERSON.

~~Rev. Mr. McCamus next~~ called upon Rev. Mr. Henderson. The latter stated that he had not chosen any particular subject to speak upon, but would have a little heart to heart talk with the people. In his remarks he dealt chiefly with individual evangelism, and pointed out what every lay person could do in this regard if he made an honest effort. The speaker also said that everyone should be influenced by a proper motive, otherwise the attempts may fail. The pulpits and press, said the speaker, are to-day teaching individual evangelism. In former days thousands were led to Christ on the same occasion, but there are many instances in which individuals were brought to Christ by individual work. Great evangelists have picked out certain persons and, by personal advice, exhortation and prayers, have led them to a better life and have accomplished great results. And there is reason to believe that this medium is greater than the pulpit. The speaker told of experiences related by evangelists, and also recited a personal experience of his own which occurred in Port Hope. In this work of winning men to God, tact (applied in its true meaning) must be used in dealing with men. Care should be taken lest they be repelled instead of won. He that winneth souls is wise; he must be wise in order to win men to God.

Approach a man along the line and level he sympathizes with, and you can generally win him. In other words, interest him in the work of God and His love. The speaker said that the ordinary layman does not realize what he can do in this direction, and especially when acting for the love of God. To be effective workers, men must be filled with the Spirit of the Living God. God can do wonders for us if the work is done for the true end.

Contractor for Masonry and Brick Work of New Armoury

Visited Peterborough a Few Days Ago and Commenced Arrangements for Securing Necessary Brick and Stone—Mr. Simpson, of Sarnia, Has the Contract for This Work.

From present indications work on the new armory in this city will be commenced at an early date. The gentleman from Sarnia who secured the contract for the building, has sublet contracts for many portions of the work, and everything is being put in shape for getting operations under way in the near future.

Mr. Simpson, of Sarnia, who has secured the contract for the masonry and brickwork of the building, was in Peterborough a few days ago, making arrangements for securing material for this part of the contract. It is likely he will secure the brick required for the building from Curtis Bros. He had an interview with them in this connection and it is likely that a contract for the supply required will be closed at an early date. Many thousand brick will be required for the work, as the structure is one of large dimensions.

The site for the building has been located, this being done at the time the site for the new Collegiate Institute was staked out. The east walls of the two buildings must be in line according to the agreement made with the City Council, and so the site for the armory had to be decided upon before work could be commenced on the Institute.

If Curtis Bros. secure the contract for the brick required for the armory, it will be one of the largest orders they have ever handled.

Three Lectures Will be Given

On the Sun—Prof. Chant of Toronto Coming on May 3.

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, has received a letter from Dr. Chant, professor of astronomy in Toronto University, conveying the information that Dr. Chant, who is president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, will deliver a lecture on "The Sun," on Friday, May 3rd.

There will be three lectures on "The Sun" before the Peterborough Astronomical Society.

The first one will be to-morrow evening in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, by Rev. Dr. Marsh. The second will be by Dr. Chant, of Toronto, on Friday, May 3rd, and the third by Dr. Marsh two weeks later.

ARRIVED FROM SUNNY ITALY

Italian Population of the City is Increasing

The Italian population of Peterborough is increasing steadily. Four natives of Sunny Italy arrived in Peterborough last week from their native sod and secured work as laborers in the city. The number of Italians in Peterborough has increased rapidly of late, and there were nearly fifty of them spent the winter in the city. Now that spring is here many of them are leaving, going out to work upon construction work in different parts of the country.

LAST RESTING PLACE

Funeral of the Late Charles Fry Took Place This Afternoon

The funeral of the late Charles Fry, whose death occurred on Tuesday, took place this afternoon from the family residence, McDonnel street, to the Salvation Army barracks where a memorial service was conducted by Adjt. Wiggins, and thence to Little Lake cemetery. A large number of the friends turned out to pay their last token of respect to the deceased. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers:—Messrs. Dancey, Leader, Carr, Hobbs, Swinning and Borman.

The Latest Dean Pattern

4128.—A CHARMING LITTLE EMPIRE COAT.

The modes for grown-ups are often most quaint and fetching when adapted to the apparel of the little people and a very attractive example is shown in the small Empire coat. The skirt portion is circular fitting the waist exactly and rippling prettily at the hem. The deep collar is a very becoming feature giving the long-shouldered effect and offering an opportunity for trimming. The model is of broadcloth with collar, cuffs and buttons of velvet, but a serge, cheviot or pongee might serve. The sleeves may be full length or shorter and are exceedingly well shaped. The front of the coat is double-breasted and the shield may be worn only when desired. The design is a bit different from the ready-to-wear styles and therefore will appeal to the particular women. The medium size requires 2 yards of 54 inch material.

4128.—Sizes 3 to 10 years.

Leave your order and 10 cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

4160.—SOME PRACTICAL SLEEPING DRAWERS.

Every mother appreciates the practicability of sleeping garments which cover the small wearer from head to foot with not the slightest chance for cold to get in. No amount of tumbling and tossing can expose the small person to the night air and this alone relieves the mother of no end of worry and care. These shown are to be made with or without feet and with the closing in back. They may be worn by a boy or girl and should be made of such material as washable flannel, canton flannel or longcloth. The medium size calls for 2 3-8 yards of 36 inch material.

4160.—Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c. Leave your order and ten cents at the REVIEW OFFICE and pattern will be sent you by mail.

NO CRIMINAL ACTION TAKEN

Against Ontario Bank Directors—May be Civil Suits

Toronto, April 18.—It is generally understood that in view of the collapse of the police court case against Mr G. R. R. Cockburn, ex-President of the Bank of Ontario, all ideas of further criminal proceedings against the former directors have been definitely abandoned. The question of civil proceedings has not yet been considered thoroughly, and it is possible may not be decided for some time, as it is naturally a slow process to overhaul every transaction of the bank. It is believed, though, the newly appointed directors are opposed to taking any civil action.

Mr G. R. R. Cockburn, the past President, will be out of the city for a short time, as he leaves at once for the south with Mrs. Cockburn, who has been very ill for the past few months, and has been ordered south in the hope that it may benefit her.

NOTES OF THE DAY

The coroner's jury at Stratford, found that Harriet Dewing's death was accidental, and Leopald Koeller, who was held for murder, was discharged.

Mayor Chisholm, Battleford, Sask., was operated on for appendicitis in a Carman drug store, because he could not reach Winnipeg, and death resulted.

Professor S. G. Archibald, Montreal, has resigned the chair of law in the Government University at Cairo, Egypt. Mr. Archibald will practice law in Paris.

A second resignation of the London seat is on its way to Speaker Sutherland, from Hon. C. S. Hyman. Mr. Fielding has received a telegram to that effect.

The railway commission has asked the C.P.R., G.T.R., and Intercolonial Railwway, to help the Canadian Northern in the present crisis by lending motive power.

A Calgary despatch says that business is paralyzed by the coal miners quitting work, and the railways will be tied up for want of coal in a week or two, unless the mines are operated.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS

An old and well tried remedy.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over sixty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906. Serial Number 1098.

Druggist Fined For Illegal Liquor Sales

Acting on behalf of the Crown, Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, on Monday at Springbrook, prosecuted Dr. Towle, a druggist of that village, on two charges of selling unlawfully spirituous liquors. Springbrook is situated in the Township of Rawdon, where local option is in force, and it is alleged that the temperance people have for some time been suspicious that liquor was being secured from the drug store for other than medicinal purposes. The charges were investigated before three local magistrates, namely, Messrs. Welsh, Thompson and Meiklejohn. The accused was convicted on both charges and a fine of $50 and costs in each case was imposed. Mr. J. E. Halliwell, for the accused, intimated that an appeal would be entered.—Belleville Intelligencer.

PENNY BANK A SUCCESS

The canvas for the Penny Bank, in our public schools, has been completed and the returns show 285 deposits and a total of $84.50. For the initial step this is a remarkable showing, and no doubt the number will be increased each week." — Port Hope Guide.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, chronic kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Lydia E. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for a woman's ills — Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing-down pains, scalding or burning sensations or deposits in the urine, unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet, swelling under the eyes or sharp pains in the back running through the groin, she may infer that her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.

The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect Plains, N. J., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the female organs. My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all bad symptoms have disappeared.

"I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it."

Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure kidney disease, and I began to take it: and it has cured me when everything else had failed. I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than likely she has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Defence Scores Well in Murder Trial at Cayuga

Mrs. Perkins' Counsel Suggests Police Put Poison in Drawer.

Chief Constable Farrell Makes Damaging Admissions—Dr. Ellis Gives Sensational Evidence — Medical Man Scored By the Judge—Deathbed Scene Described By Witnesses —Public Excluded.

Cayuga, April 19.—The afternoon session of the court yesterday, in which Mrs. Mattie Perkins is on trial for the alleged murder of her husband, was an exciting one.

Chief Constable Farrell, called to the stand, told of finding a litte box with strychnine crystals clinging to it. He was mercilessly examined by Mr. Johnston, and failed to explain why the box had not been produced at the preliminary enquiry.

The sensation thus produced was tremendously heightened when Dr. Ellis, provincial analyst, followed, and after testifying to finding strychnine in parts of the body and that the little wooden box had poison, admitted that Detective Greer did not bring him the box until last Friday, April 12. Previous to that time he knew that the detective had 28 grains of strychnine in his possession. The officer had brought it to him to weigh in a similar box.

"That will do, you may sit down," said Mr. Johnston with a grim smile.

The defence make no secret that they intend to try and show that Greer himself put poison in the kitchen drawer, or that he had it placed there.

Mr. Johnston subjected Dr. Kerr of Dunnville to a savage cross-examination, during which the counsellor charged him with violating his sacred oath as a physician by disclosing immaterial secrets confided to him by a patient, in order "to put the knife" into Mrs. Perkins.

Disgrace to Profession.

The witness became so inaudible toward the close of his examination that after many admonitions to "speak up," Justice Mabee threatened to order him out of the box, saying he was "a disgrace to his profession to behave so."

The morning session was taken up by the evidence of the little group who witnessed Perkins' deathbed sufferings and testified to the twitchings which he underwent on the morning of his death, but Mr. Johnston elicited from them that the body was limp and that there was no difficulty in laying him out. The undertaker engaged for the interment told of the hurried burial.

Defence Scores Heavily.

Last night it was felt that the defence scored heavily. Mrs. Perkins, for the first time during the trial, betrayed emotion and wept as her counsel thundered out his reflections on her behalf on Dr. Kerr. It was noticed that she is not wearing a wedding ring.

At the close of the afternoon session the judge instructed the sheriff to announce to the assemblage of curiosity seekers "that the public will be debarred from attending any further sittings of the trial."

Night sittings will be held until the case is concluded.

"This is not a sewing circle," said his lordship to a group of females who were talking in court, and shortly after, annoyed by the noise of the people constantly filing in, he gave an order to bar the door.

The Death Bed.

In the morning Miss Minnie Moodie, Canfield, said that she knew the Perkins couple, and that Henry Perkins was a sick man.

Cudmore Topp said he saw Perkins on his deathbed. His mouth was open, his eyes staring and his body twitching. He seemed to be in great pain and had difficulty in breathing. He did not speak and "red stuff" was coming out of his mouth.

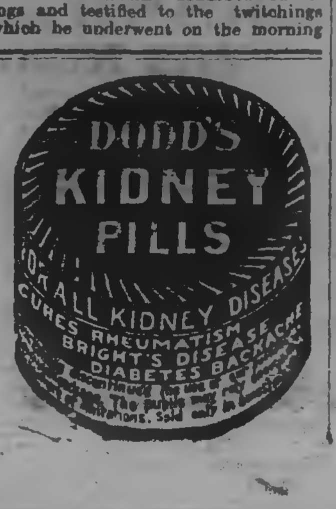
Jacob Cline, who was with Topp at the time, gave evidence. He and Thomas Macdonald went in together about 10 o'clock on the Christmas morning, half an hour before Perkins died. Perkins seemed to be in a fit and unconscious.

Louis Mehlanbacker, a Canfield hotelkeeper, said that on Christmas morning soon after breakfast Macdonald came and took him over to Perkins' who was moaning and twitching, and asked them to send a repeat telegram to Mr. Spencer of Welland. Then he asked for a drink of water, but did not seem to be conscious for long after.

Twitched Severely.

W. H. Thompson said that every minute or so Perkins would clench his hands and twitch severely in a way which witness illustrated. Afterwards he saw Mrs. Perkins. She said, "I've lost my husband. I never can stay here alone. You know there is no will and they'll put me out into the road."

Henry Wilkinson, a neighbor, said the fits of twitching at first were infrequent, but became very frequent towards the last. His sufferings were so great that witness had to leave the room.



Postal Thief Confesses.

Wilmington, N. C., April 19.—The mystery concerning the disappearance of $10,000 in currency in transit by mail from this city to New York, was cleared up yesterday by the arrest of Edward A. Nelson, 27 years old, in the railway mail service.

Nelson made a complete confession. Most of the money was found under Nelson's house here, where he had buried it. He was recently married and was preparing to leave the postal service and engage in business here.

NO "SPOILS" IN SYSTEM

Charges of Opposition Warmly Refuted by Government.

Mr. Graham's Bill to Repeal Three-Fifths Local Option Clause Is Hoisted—Attack on License System Falls Flat—Ministers Do Not Regret Their Action—Closing Hours of Legislative Session.

Toronto, April 19.—The hottest debate of the session was concluded at 10.45 in the Legislature last night, and the question of the alleged operation of the spoils system in provincial politics, and incidentally the administration of the liquor license law.

A. G. MacKay moved: "That this House is of opinion that the administration of all liquor license laws should, as far as possible, be removed from the realm of party politics. This House, therefore, regrets the introduction by the present Government of what is commonly known as the spoils system in connection with the administration and enforcement of such laws, contrary to the repeatedly expressed and oft recorded opinions of its members while in opposition."

As an amendment, Hon. W. J. Hanna moved that after the word "politics" there be inserted: "That the House takes pleasure in declaring its hearty approval of the course followed by the Government in the administration of the Liquor License Act."

The amendment was declared carried on the same division that had occurred during the afternoon, by 52 to 21, with seven pairs, except that Allan Studholme changed his vote to the Government interest, making 53 to 20.

Mr. MacKay went back to 1883 and 1885, and quoted resolutions found on the journals of the House, another in 1890, and another in 1896, introduced by the Conservative party and voted for by them, in which a non-partisan policy with regard to liquor license laws was laid down. Hon. Mr. Whitney had in his speeches stated that he would remove the appointment of political and party influences. It was a serious charge to bring that a body of men should by false pretences obtain from the people their tenure of the treasury benches.

No Spoils System.

Hugh Clark was surprised that Mr. MacKay admitted that the spoils system was not acted upon with respect to the license commissioners, who were only appointed for a year. If they were to have responsible government, it was their duty to interfere with officers if they did not execute the law as it should be enforced. For years all Liberal office-holders had been active in elections, and yet most of them were still in their offices.

W. K. McNaught declared that so far as he knew, the resolution was quite contrary to the facts. It was the late Government which introduced the spoils system. He had himself been instructed to give a fair and impartial administration. What did he find when he took office? There was no minute book to show what had been done for years previous. During the whole term of his office Mr. Hastings had never administered the law according to the act.

R. R. Gamey Is Hot.

R. R. Gamey spoke with considerable heat, and declared the Government was not going far enough in dismissing officials.

Hon. Mr. Hanna said the hour had not yet come when the Government regretted for one moment the dismissal of Mr. Hastings. The Government had promised a non-partisan administration of the liquor license law, but it had never been in their minds to go into the camp of their enemies for officials to carry it out. No one could seriously argue that any Government could remain in power and do so. He quoted the late Hon. Mr. Fraser and Sir Oliver Mowat to support this view.

Mr. Hanna produced a letter from a brewing company, written to the late Government, stating that the license commissioners and inspector in their district granted licenses on condition that no beer was bought from their brewery. They asked for an investigation, offering to prove their case, or pay the costs. The whole thing was hushed up.

He also adduced a letter from the late Mr. Lee of London to Mr. Harcourt, asking for his influence for one Garvie of Windsor, who had "moved heaven and earth to elect Lee or any other Grit." Mr. Hanna read a series of independent letters testifying to the enforcement of the law in Northern Ontario.

Premier Whitney suggested that the member for North Grey had spoiled his own day by introducing the resolution he had. The discussion had shown only the fringe of public opinion as to the honesty with which for the first time in history the license system had been administered in the province. For 12 months past he had kept silent under constant invective from the Opposition. A predecessor of the Minister of Education had taken care to have no difficulties with his license commissioners, for he said, when there were any they had to come to him and he gave them orders as to what they were to do.

He had no doubt the Government would lose votes on account of their policy, and he welcomed the possibility. Extremists might be displeased, but no one else was. The dismissal of Hastings was his own act, as was that of every official dismissed in the province. The Liberal party had debauched and degraded the civil service. He only regretted he had allowed Hastings to remain one hour in office after the Government came into power.

Only the formal obsequies of prorogation remain to be performed to end the third session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada. The red star is extinguished, the horseplay of the members indulged in, and the last motion carried. The House adjourned at 1.55, singing "God Save the King." Prorogation will be on Saturday afternoon at 2.30. A number of important matters were dealt with in the Legislature yesterday, several of which are dealt with elsewhere.

Hon. Mr. Graham's bill, to amend the liquor license law, came up at 11 o'clock at night. He moved the second reading, and Dr. Lackner moved a three months' hoist. The Provincial Secretary moved an amendment.

The division resulted in a vote of 50 for and 21 against the amendment. J. S. Gallagher (Frontenac) voted against the Government, as did Mr. Studholme.

The object of Mr. Graham's bill was to restore the majority vote in the local option law instead of the three-fifths required by the new law. He supported the bill with the arguments already familiar in previous debates.

Hon. Mr. Hanna pointed out the large number of states and provinces in which the three-fifths vote was required and analyzing a return of the districts adopting local option showed how the law tended to its establishment.

Following A. Hislop, Premier Whitney read a letter from a clergyman, which declared that the public were sick of the country bar-rooms and would adopt local option if it was found to be successful, and he believed the three-fifths vote would tend to that result.

Allan Studholme supported the motion, he said. Dr. Lewis objected to making a great moral question a political football. Sam Clark supported his leader.

Hon. Mr. Graham said that the amendment was a device of the Government to prevent a vote on the three-fifths question, and Premier Whitney retorted that the bill had been introduced to embarrass the Government and they had met it in that spirit.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

For Places Over 10,000—Little Hope For the Farmers.

Ottawa, April 19.—Mr. Fielding and Mr. Lemieux clashed yesterday morning, but the latter had his way and the evidence taken by the insurance commission will be printed in French.

Mr. Lemieux in reply to Mr. Armstrong gave no encouragement to any hope for the rural postal delivery system. On his recent trip to Washington he found officials considering restricting, rather than extening, the system, he said. The supplementary estimates would contain provision for the extension of free delivery to cities and towns in Canada where population exceeded 10,000.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux said the whole question of civil service salaries would be reviewed in a few days. As to the postmasters, half of them did not produce more revenue than their salaries.

Mr. Fielding yesterday afternoon presented his resolution to advance money to the extent of three million dollars to the Montreal harbor commissioners upon debentures.

At the evening session Mr. Gervais urged that Montreal be made a truly national port. The harbor had a wharfage 38 miles long, many things were needed, especially facilities for loading and unloading, and Parliament should appropriate money for electric cranes. He also urged the building of a dry dock and floating elevators.

There was some discussion re W. T. R. Preston. Mr. Fielding said he had done nothing to justify his dismissal from the public service.

The mail service to North Sydney is hereafter to be a permanent feature.

No change is contemplated respecting Chinese immigration.

KING EDWARD IN ITALY.

Pays Visit to Victor Emmanuel and Gets Warm Reception.

Gaeta, Italy, April 19.—The British royal yacht, Victoria and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra on board, arrived here at about 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning, from Malta, escorted by the British armored cruisers Suffolk and Lancaster.

King Edward was received by King Victor Emmanuel, who was on board the Italian royal yacht Trinacria, surrounded by 12 Italian warships and 12 torpedo boats. The usual salutes were exchanged and hearty cheers greeted the British King from the people on shore and the sailors on board the warships.

The two Kings embraced each other repeatedly when they met on board the Trinacria and King Victor Emmanuel kissed Queen Alexandra's hand.

The Mayor of Gaeta sent Her Majesty a bouquet of orchids and roses, with a card bearing the words, "Devotion and admiration to the most powerful Queen in the world." A lunch on board the Trinacria followed. It was mainly attended by military and naval officers.

A crowd of English women who were permitted to witness King Edward's arrival from the high bastions of the fort, gave vent to their patriotism by singing "God Save the King," which was acknowledged by the British royal yacht dipping her ensign.

LONDON, April 18.—Liverpool and London cables are steady at 11½c to 12⅝c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9c to 9⅝c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 18.—Receipts of live stock since Tuesday, as reported by the railways, were 134 car loads, composed of 2419 cattle, 1388 hogs, 120 sheep, 219 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

Not many shipping cattle were offered and not many were wanted owing to a scarcity of shipping space. Prices were reported as ranging from $5 to $5.25 per cwt. for loads; a few odd lots of two and three cattle each, as selling at a little more money. There were some few lots on sale that cost $5.50 in the country. Bulls sold from $4 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Owing to heavy receipts of butchers' cattle, there was an easier feeling, which caused the market to be a little draggy.

George Rountree, who bought 400 cattle for the Harris Abattoir on Wednesday and Thursday, quotes prices as follows: Best loads of butchers', $4.70 to $5.10; fair to good mixed loads, $4.40 to $4.70; good cows, $4 to $4.50; medium cows, $3 to $3.70; bulls, $3.50 to $4.25 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. Murby reports considerable business in this line this week, especially for the good quality steers, weighing from 800 to 1150 lbs. The lighter kinds weren't in much demand and sold off.

Mr. Murby bought about 400 head this week at the following prices: Best short-keeps, 1100 to 1200 lbs., $4.75 to $4.90; best feeders, 1000 to 1100 lbs., $4.50 to $4.75; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., $4 to $4.15; best stockers, 700 to 800 lbs., $3.60 to $4; best stockers, 400 to 600 lbs., $3.25 to $3.50; common stockers from $2.75 to $3.

Milch Cows.

There was a better demand for milkers and springers, owing to one or two dealers being on the market from Montreal. Prices ranged all the way from $30 to $55 each. It was reported that one or two cows had been sold at $60, but we were not able to confirm these sales.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves remains about steady at $3 to $6.50 per cwt. for veal calves, altho two or three prime new milk-fed calves reached $7 per cwt. during the week.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run was light and prices were firm. Export ewes sold at $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; bucks, $4.50 to $5; yearling lambs of good quality sold at $7 to $8 per cwt.; common yearlings, $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $4.50 to $7 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris reports market easy at $6.40 for selects, and $6.15 for lights and fats, with prospects for lower quotations.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 18.—Cattle, receipts 100 head; steady; prices, unchanged. Veals, receipts 350 head; active and steady; $4.25 to $7.75. Hogs, receipts, 2500 head; fairly active and a shade lower; heavy, $7.05 to $7.15; mixed and yorkers, $7.15 to $7.20; pigs, $7.10 to $7.15. The Marathon Mystery

A Story of Manhattan

By BURTON E. STEVENSON
Author of "The Holladay Case"

Copyright, 1904, by Henry Holt and Company

"Nobody there, eh?" It was not really a question. It seemed more a sign of polite interest on Godfrey's part.

"I ought t' know. I told 'em they wasn't nobody there. Ain't I been here all evenin' 'cept fer that minute I run acrost th' street? Nobody in nor out, 'cept th' girl, not since 7 o'clock. That was about th' time that there Thompson come in too drunk t' stand. He'd never 'a' got home in th' world by hisself, but they was a feller with him, a-holdin' him up."

Godfrey was listening with strained attention. There were many questions he wished to ask, but he dared not interrupt.

"Well, we got him upstairs atween us. An' then, when I went through his pockets, I couldn't find his key, an' I had t' come down an' git mine afore I could git his door open. We laid him on his bed an' left him there, a-snorin' like a hog. That feller who was with him was certainly a good sort. He set down here t' talk t' me awhile—it was rainin' so hard he couldn't go—an' he said he'd run acrost Thompson down at Pete Magraw's place on Sixth avenoo. Thompson was treatin' everybody an' actin' like a fool ginerally. Then he got bad an' started t' clean out th' saloon, an' Pete was goin' t' call a cop, but this feller said he'd bring him home, an' so he did."

Higgins stopped to take breath, and Godfrey ventured to put a question.

"Did you know him?"

"No. I never seed him afore."

"What sort of a looking fellow was he?"

"A good lookin' feller, well dressed—no bum, I ken tell y' that. He was short an' heavy set, with a little black mustache that turned up at th' ends."

Godfrey's heart gave a sudden leap—so Miss Croydon had told the truth after all!

"And then what happened?" he asked. "I suppose this fellow went away?"

"Oh, yes; he stayed here talkin' quite awhile—he started t' go onet or twice, but th' rain was too bad. But about 8 o'clock he said he couldn't stay no longer, rain 'r no rain, an' was jest buttonin' up his coat when a cab drove up an' a woman got out. She had a thick veil on so's I couldn't see her face, but from her style I judged she was a high flier. She come up t' me an' she says, 'I want t' go t' apartment fourteen—Mr. Thompson.' 'Madam,' says I, 'I wouldn't if I was you.' 'Why,' she asked, quick like, 'ain't he there?' 'He's there,' says I, 'but he ain't in no condition t' see a lady.' 'Never mind,' says she, 'I'll go up.' 'All right,' says I. 'I'll be back in a minute,' I added t' my friend. 'No,' he says, 'I can't wait; I must be goin',' an' he started toward th' door. 'Well, good night,' I says, an' stepped into th' car an' started it.

"I showed her th' door o' fourteen, an' she knocked. I was waitin' at th' elevator, fer I knowed Thompson was too dead drunk t' hear her an' I'd have t' take her down ag'in; when blessed if th' door didn't open an' in she walked. Well, sir, I was so dumfoundered I couldn't believe my own eyes! But in she went, an' I come on down, tryin' t' figger it out. It was mebbe ten minutes later that I heard a pistol shot an' I knowed in a minute what'd happened. That drunken brute had got too familiar, an' she'd put a bullet in him; though," he added reflectively, "why she'd go t' his room at all is more'n I kin see."

"Was there only one shot?" asked Godfrey.

"Only one," answered the janitor, "but it sounded like a small cannon. It didn't come from no sech little popgun as that which Mr. Simmonds picked up in th' corner. I rushed up th' stairs an' threw open th' door"—

"Wasn't it locked?"

"No; an' that's funny, too," he added, "fer I remember hearin' the lock snap after th' girl went in. Somebody must 'a' throwed it back ag'in. Mebbe th' girl did it, tryin' t' git out, an' Thompson got a-hold of her an' then she let him have it."

Godfrey nodded, with an appreciation seemingly very deep.

"That's it, no doubt," he said. "I see you're a close reasoner, Mr. Higgins."

"Why," said Higgins, with a smile of self satisfaction, "I allers have been able t' put two an' two t'gether. They's one thing, though, I can't explain. As I was rushin' up th' steps, I heard th' openin' an' shuttin' of a door."

"Ah," said Godfrey thoughtfully. "And there was no one in the hall?"

"Not a soul; not a soul in sight."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Sure! O' course I am. There's a light in th' hall—an', anyway, they ain't no place anybody could hide."

"He might have gone into one of the other rooms, mightn't he?"

"They was all locked—I'm certain o' that."

Godfrey took a thoughtful puff or two.

"Well," continued Higgins, quieting down a little, but still keeping one eye over his shoulder, "as I was sayin', I throwed open th' door, an' there was th' girl leanin' agin th' wall an' Thompson on th' floor with a big blood spot on his shirt front. I jest give one look at 'em an' then I went down th' steps three at a time an' over t' th' station. I tell you, it purty nigh done me up."

He was interrupted by a tramp of feet that came down the stairs. It was Simmonds and the coroner.

"Well, we searched the house," said Simmonds.

"Nobody there?" asked Godfrey.

"Not a living soul. I didn't really expect to find anybody; but we went through every room—even to the suits which are occupied."

Higgins opened his mouth suddenly; then as suddenly closed it.

"Did you find the doors all locked?"

"Every one; the hall windows bolted on the inside and the trap in the roof hooked in place. There's only one way our man could get out—that was by the front door yonder," and Simmonds looked sharply at the janitor.

Higgins grew red in the face.

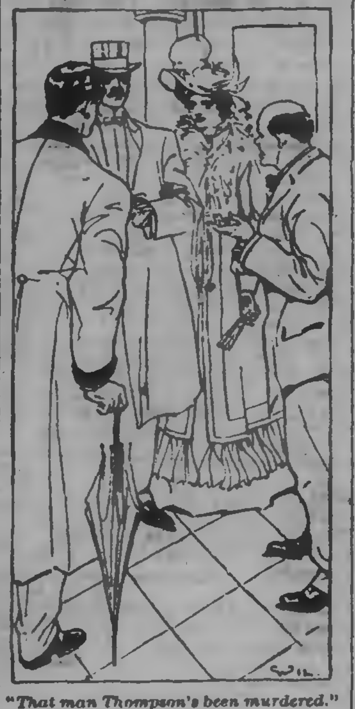
"I ain't got nothin' more t' say!" he burst out explosively. "You'll be sayin' I did it next!"

"Oh, no," retorted Simmonds coolly, "you didn't do it. But I'm not quite sure you've told us all you know."

Higgins sprang from his chair, fairly foaming at the mouth with rage, but Simmonds calmly disregarded him.

"I've left a man on guard in fourteen," he said. "Goldberg wants to bring his jury around in the morning to look at things. Here's your keys," and he handed the jingling ring back to the janitor and went out.

"They ain't no cause t' suspect me. I ain't done nothin'," grumbled the janitor. Then he looked meditatively at his keys, which he still held in his hand. "Funny," he murmured. "Funny. I don't know when they went out."



"That man Thompson's been murdered."

Godfrey said nothing, but contemplated him through half closed eyes.

At that instant the street door opened and a man and woman entered.

"There they come now!" cried Higgins, springing to his feet. "Good evenin', Mr. Tremaine."

"Good evening," returned the stranger in a voice singularly rich and pleasant.

"I was jest a-sayin' t' my friend here," added the janitor, "that I hadn't seen y' go out."

Godfrey for an instant found himself gazing into a pair of the keenest eyes he had ever encountered.

"You wished to see me?" asked Tremaine.

"Oh, no, no," interrupted Higgins. "But th' p'lice was goin' through th' buildin' "—

"The police?"

"Oh, I forgot—you don't know—that man Thompson's been murdered. He had th' soot right acrost th' hall from you."

"Murdered!" echoed Tremaine. "Murdered! Why, that's terrible! Who did it? How did it happen?"

Higgins retold the story with some unction, evidently enjoying his listener's horror. But Godfrey did not even glance at him. He was gazing, perhaps a shade too intently for politeness, at Mrs. Tremaine. And, indeed, she was a woman to hold any man's eyes.

Godfrey rather wondered that Mrs. Tremaine took no part in the discussion. She stood listening apathetically, not even noticing his stare.

"When they told me they'd gone through your rooms," added Higgins, "I was kind o' surprised. I thought you was at home t'night."

"We left the house just after 7 o'clock—that was the first that I knew fourteen was occupied—I could see a light through the transom. I didn't see you anywhere about." Tremaine started forward.

"Elevator, sir?" asked Higgins.

"No; we've been sitting all evening at the vaudeville," and they went on up the stairs, leaving Godfrey staring after them.

Godfrey smoked on placidly. He suspected that Higgins had something more to tell, and he saw that the only way to get it was to wait with what patience he could. He was in no hurry; besides, he wanted time to think.

The door opened; he heard Higgins utter a sharp cry of amazement. He looked up to see Simmonds—and with him another man, short, heavy set, with a dark mustache. He caught the gleam of steel at his wrists.

Higgins was on his feet, staring.

"So you recognize him, do you?" asked Simmonds, his face shining with triumph. "I thought I couldn't be wrong. I got him quicker 'n I expected, Godfrey; I didn't even have to hunt for him. Of course you know him?"

"How do you do, Mr. Godfrey?" said the prisoner politely. "Oh, yes, Mr. Godfrey knows me—he knows me too well to think I'd be mixed up in anything like this?"

"How are you, Jimmy?" returned Godfrey. "No, I didn't suppose"—

"Of course not!" said Jimmy, with scorn. "I wouldn't put a man out—that ain't, my line." And, indeed, it wasn't, for Jimmy the Dude had gained his reputation as an expert manipulator of combination locks.

The detective had listened with a satisfied smile.

"Higgins," he said, "this is the fellow who brought Thompson home, ain't it?"

"Yes, sir," responded the janitor inarticulately.

"This," observed Jimmy, with fine indignation, "is what a man gets for doing a good action. I found that cove over at Magraw's just spoilin' for trouble, and I took him in tow and brought him home. Now you say I put him out! I'd better have kept my hands off!"

Jimmy threw up his hands with a fine gesture of despair.

"Oh, you've got it all fixed," he cried. "You'll railroad me to the chair if you can. I suppose you've got somebody that'll swear they saw me do it?"

"Yes," agreed Simmonds quietly, "we have. I'll have you identified tomorrow by the woman who saw you kill Thompson."

Jimmy's face was growing flushed. His temper was getting the better of him, which, perhaps, was just what Simmonds wanted.

"Magraw got a share of that last deal, didn't he?" he continued imperturbably. "Naturally he's grateful. But you ought to have waited a little, Jimmy, you really ought. When was it you got back?"

"Yesterday," answered Jimmy sullenly. He evidently realised the danger of losing his temper and managed to control himself.

"And after an absence of two years! Come, Jimmy," pursued Simmonds persuasively, "what did you do it for?"

Jimmy relieved his feelings by some vigorous swearing.

"Say, you might tell me her name. I'd like to know who this posy is that says I did it. While she was about it, I don't see why she didn't give you my address."

"I don't think she has the honor of your acquaintance, Jimmy. You see, she doesn't move in just your circle. I warn you her word will count more with a jury than yours and Magraw's together."

"Well, who is she?" repeated Jimmy impatiently.

"She's Miss Croydon, sister-in-law of Dickie Delroy."

The prisoner's mouth fell open, his color changed.

"What?" he gasped. "What?"

Then his jaws snapped shut.

"Well," inquired Simmonds, "what 've you got to say?"

"Nothin'," answered Jimmy sullenly. "Not a single word. Lock me up, if you're goin' to."

CHAPTER IV.

The coroner's court was crowded, as it always is at any hearing presenting features of morbid or sensational interest, and Goldberg, with an inborn love of the theatric, arranged his witnesses so as to lead gradually to the climax, the denouement. He put the janitor on the stand first, and then had Simmonds tell his story. Some medical testimony followed as to the exact nature of Thompson's injuries, and the bullet, which had been extracted, was put in evidence—it was plainly much too large to have come from Miss Croydon's pistol. Finally Miss Croydon herself was called. A little gasp of delicious excitement ran through the crowd as she appeared at the door of the witness room. Here was a tidbit to touch the palates of even the jaded police reporters.

Godfrey, looking at her as she came steadily forward to the stand, felt his heart warm with admiration. She seemed perfectly composed and, if not perfectly at ease, at least as nearly so as any woman of her position could be in such a place. Godfrey was pleased to see Drysdale in close attendance, and he nodded to him encouragingly.

Miss Croydon told her story clearly and with an accent of sincerity there was no doubting. It differed in one detail from the story she had told the night before. Thompson, she said, had perceived the intruder, and there had been a short, fierce struggle before he fell under the blow of the pipe. He was not unconscious, but was struggling to his feet again when his assailant shot him.

The coroner glanced at the jury, but none of them seemed disposed to ask any questions. Then Goldberg made a sign to Simmonds. He left the room, but reappeared in a moment, leading in Jimmy the Dude.

Not until they were quite near did Miss Croydon perceive them; then, as her eyes met the prisoner's, she half started from her chair, her face like marble. As for Jimmy, Godfrey was astonished to perceive the fascinated gaze he bent upon Miss Croydon. Goldberg had perceived their agitation, and the gaze he bent upon the witness grew perceptibly more stern.

"Miss Croydon," he began, "you have described the guilty man as short and heavy set with a dark mustache turning up at the ends. Look at the prisoner before you. Is he the man?"

"He is not," replied the witness in a firm voice and without an instant's hesitation.

"You are sure?"

"Perfectly sure; there is little or no resemblance."

"That is all," he said abruptly. "You may go, Miss Croydon."

She passed from sight, the door closed, and Godfrey leaned back in his chair to hear Jimmy tell a smooth story of his doings the night before. Magraw and half a dozen others confirmed the tale; it was a really good alibi, carefully arranged; there was nothing to disprove it, and at the end the jury, without retiring, handed in the usual verdict of death at the hands of a person unknown.

When it was over Simmonds crooked at Godfrey an inviting finger, and together they went down to the detective's private office.

"Sit down," said Simmonds. "I want to talk to you. We're up against a tough proposition."

Godfrey sat down and looked at him.

"Have you gone through Thompson's belongings?"

"Here they are," and Simmonds brought out a canvas bag and opened it. "Look at them."

Godfrey turned out the contents and examined them piece by piece. It was merely a lot of ordinary clothing, most of it much the worse for wear and all of it strongly impregnated with the odor of tobacco.

"Anything in the pockets?" asked Godfrey.

"Not a thing except some loose smoking tobacco. There's one thing about the clothing, though—have you noticed? It's all summer clothing; see these linen trousers, now?"

Godfrey nodded with drawn brows.

"What's this?" he asked suddenly, holding up a swart object shaped like a clam shell and halving in the same way along the sharp edge.

"I don't know. A curio picked up at sea somewhere, perhaps. I have a theory that Thompson was a sailor."

"Why?"

"Well, the bag, in the first place—only a sailor would carry his clothes that way. Then put your head down in it and under the tobacco you'll smell the salt."

Godfrey sniffed and nodded again. Then he got out his knife.

"Let's take a look at the inside of Mr. Thompson's curio," he said, and inserted the blade.

A twist and the sides unclosed. Simmonds sprang back with a sharp cry of surprise as he saw what lay within, and even Godfrey's heart gave a sudden leap.

For there, coiled thrice upon itself, lay a little viper, with venomous, triangular head.

Then in an instant Godfrey smiled.

"It's not alive," he said. "Don't you see, it's some marvelous kind of nut."

Simmonds approached cautiously and took another look.

"A nut?" he repeated. "A nut? Well, that beats me!"

And well it might, for in every detail the form was perfect. Godfrey looked at it musingly.

"This may give us a clew," he said. "I shouldn't imagine a nut like this grows in many parts of the world, though, of course, a sailor might pick it up anywhere—from another sailor, in a slop shop, even here in New York, perhaps."

He closed the shell together again and placed it in the bag, stuffing the rest of the clothing in after it.

"Thompson had no very exalted idea of cleanliness," he remarked. "His clothing needs a visit to the laundry. And this is all?"

"Yes. He'd rented his furniture from a store down the street. He had to pay his rent in advance because he had so little baggage. That receipt's the only thing that's got his name on it—oh, yes. There's a letter tattooed on his left arm, but it's not a T—it's a J."

"Which goes to show that his name wasn't Thompson. I think you're right, Simmonds, in putting him down as a sailor. I thought so last night; in fact, I've already got two men making a tour of the docks trying to find somebody who knew him."

"Have you?" said Simmonds, smiling. "That's like you. There's another curious thing, though, about the clothing he had on."

"What is that?"

"Some of it's marked with one initial, some with another. Not one piece is marked with his."

The door opened and the coroner's clerk entered.

"Mr. Goldberg sent the exhibits back to you," he said, holding out a parcel to Simmonds.

Simmonds opened it and took out a pocketbook, a pipe, a knife and some silver money.

"All right," he said, and signed a receipt.

Godfrey waited until the door closed, then he rose and came over to Simmonds' side.

"There's something here that might help us," he said, picking up the pocketbook. "Those newspaper clippings—why, they're not here!"

Simmonds smiled dryly.

"That's another thing I wanted to tell you. The clippings have been removed."

"Removed? By whom?"

"That's a question. They were removed some time between the moment we looked at them and the moment the coroner took charge."

Godfrey stared at him with startled eyes.

"You remember," Simmonds continued, "that after we looked at the pocketbook I put it back in Thompson's pocket."

"Yes; I saw you do that."

"We then went into the bedroom and had a look around, leaving the body alone"—

"With Miss Croydon," said Godfrey, completing the sentence.

"There's another thing," continued Simmonds after a moment. "Here's the piece of pipe we found on the floor. Do you know where it came from?"

"No—I was going to look that up."

"It came from the radiator. The connections were defective, and a plumber was replacing them. This is a piece of pipe he had removed and left lying behind the radiator. He remembers it distinctly. Do you recall the position of the radiator?"

"Yes; opposite the bedroom door."

"Exactly. Then the person coming from that door must have crossed the room to get it. More than that, he must have hunted for it or known it was there. Miss Croydon knows more than she's told us. I don't think she's been square with us."

"Well, perhaps she hasn't," Godfrey said slowly. "Anyway, we've got to work at the case from the other end. We've got to identify Thompson first."

"Yes," agreed Simmonds. "You'll let me know if you find out anything."

"Of course," said Godfrey, rising, and with a curt nod he went out and down the steps to the street.

At the office he found two reports awaiting him. One was from the men he had sent along the docks—they had found no one who could identify the photograph of Thompson. The other was from Delaney, the head of the Record's intelligence department. At 2 o'clock that morning, just before retiring, Godfrey had phoned a message to the office:

> Delaney—I want all the information obtainable concerning the history of the Croydon family, to which Mrs. Richard Delroy and Grace Croydon belong.

This was the result:

> Gustave Croydon, notary and money lender, 17 Rue d'Antin, Paris, removed with wife and young daughter about 1873 to Beckenham, just south of London, England. Why he removed from France not known. Rue d'Antin has been completely rebuilt within last thirty years, and only person there now who remembers Croydon is an old notary named Fabre, who has an office at the corner of Rue St. Augustin. He has vague memory that Croydon left France to avoid criminal prosecution of some sort.
>
> Croydon bought small country place near Beckenham and lived there quietly in semi-retirement. Fortune apparently not large. In 1891 mortgaged estate for £2,000; mortgage paid in 1897. Religion, Catholic. Excellent reputation at Beckenham.
>
> Eldest daughter, Edith, born in France Aug. 26, 1874. Educated at school there, but broke down from overstudy and returned to Beckenham, where she became interested in social settlement work. There met Richard Delroy, New York, who was making investigation of London charities. Married him June 6, 1900, and went immediately to New York.
>
> Only other child, younger daughter, Grace, born at Beckenham May 12, 1880. Educated at home. No unusual incidents in life so far as known.
>
> Croydon and wife died, typhoid fever, 1901. Delroys came to England and after selling property and settling estate took Grace home with them. Estate, left wholly to younger sister, paid inheritance tax on £7,500.

Will Inspect North River Bridge

Belmont Structure May be Moved 100 Yards South

On Friday afternoon, 26th inst., County Engineer Belcher, Warden McNulty and County Councillor Jos. Johnston will inspect the North River bridge in Belmont, with a view to moving it some hundred yards south of the present location, and also to determine the advisability of having the County assume its erection and maintenance. Prominent township men will be present, and Reeve Johnston wishes us, on his behalf, to extend an invitation to all those interested in the matter to attend on that day and give their advice.—Havelock Standard.

COUNCIL MEETS MONDAY NIGHT

Take up General Business—Also Fire Escape By-law

A special meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday night for the purpose of taking up general business. One matter likely to come up again is the sign bylaw. Those who wish to fall in line with the merchant's request, want an amendment put through. If the matter does not come up and no amendment is made on Monday night, instructions will be issued first thing on Tuesday morning to enforce the bylaw. There will likely be a short meeting of the Committee of the Whole, before the Council Meeting to take up the fire escape bylaw, which was left over from last meeting night.

Special Meeting Will be Held

JUNK DEALER IS IN TROUBLE

Contracted to Supply Large Quantity of Iron From Peterboro'

The Toronto Star says:—Julius Aschinski was remanded until to-morrow on a charge of obtaining $1,000 by false pretences from Salway and Cohen, of Toronto. The plaintiffs say that Oschinski contracted to supply a large quantity of iron, etc., which he said, was at Peterborough. Solway and Cohen advanced $1,000, but got no junk, hence the indictment.

Skeleton Unearthed in Central Park

More Bones Dug up at Collegiate Institute Site

An entire skeleton in a good state of preservation was unearthed in the excavation for the Collegiate Institute yesterday.

It was plowed up in about three and a half feet of ground, at the south side of the building. The ploughshare of course, broke up the skeleton, which was evidently that of a man. The outline of a coffin could also be distinctly seen, and a few pieces of the wood remained. The bones were placed on a box and will be interred in St. Peter's cemetery. The contractors report that they are down as deep as they require to go for the basement of the Collegiate Institute, and do not anticipate there will be any more skulls or bones disinterred.

COLLECTION OF FINE MINERALS

Purchased for the Museum From Mr. J. B. McWilliams

The auction sale of furniture and household goods at Mr. J. B. McWilliams' residence yesterday was largely attended, and Auctioneer Charles Stapleton succeeded in getting pretty good prices. Mr. McWilliams has sold his handsome residence and will shortly move to his cottage at Burleigh, where he will spend the summer. The list of articles sold yesterday included a valuable collection of Canadian minerals. These samples numbered about 150 and were gathered by Mr. McWilliams during his travels extending over many years. The minerals are in themselves of great value and they are enclosed in a handsome oak case. The Peterborough Historical Society purchased them for the summer.

New Government Tug "Bob Hall" Was Successfully Launched

At Point St. Charles Yesterday Afternoon—Took to the Water Like a Duck—Well Built Boat—Work of Mr. Hickey.

While the sun was shining brightly through an open space in the heavy clouds and a stiff western breeze sent cold chills down your back, "Bob Hall" slid gracefully into the waters of Little Lake. The ceremony was very informal. There were no ministers present, the Mayor of the city was not invited, no members of parliament made speeches, no bottle of champagne, was broken, not even a bottle of lager was spilled. The best that could be done for the honored few who assembled at the Point St. Charles ship yards was to hand out a quarters worth of good cigars.

The boat was launched successfully and it rides the water as gracefully as a swan. It was designed and built by Mr. George Hickey of this city for the Department of Railways and Canals, and will be used for towing for the dredge Emmerson, now working at Young's Point.

The Bob Hall is a strong tug, built especially for heavy work. The material used is all oak—the best that could be had. It is fifty-one feet long with a twelve foot, six inch beam. It has a thirty horse power steam engine built by Mr. Doughty of Goderich, while the boiler is one of Wm. Hamilton Co.'s make. This machinery is already placed in position and ready to be completed. There is also a lot of other work to be put on the boat before it makes its first trip, such as the cabin, wheel-house, etc. It will require about a month yet to finish the work, and then the boat will have a speed capacity of ten miles an hour with a scow load of cement behind.

The tug was started just before the new year, and Mr. Hickey has worked on it all winter, and he has done a splendid job. It has been ready for launching for a couple of days, and yesterday afternoon the slides were greased and everything made ready. The superintendent of the canal, Mr. J. H. McClellan and his staff were notified, as well as the engineering staff, and they all went down to see the fun. About four o'clock, the blocks were knocked out, and with Mr. E. S. Clarry on the deck, the Bob Hall took its first dip into the water, going in bow first. Everything proved to be first-class. The boat was tight, well-balanced and easily handled. It was pulled around to the shore and made fast, and this morning the carpenters proceeded to put on the finishing work.

This tug will be a valuable addition to the fleet of boats working on the Trent Canal, but every year the necessity for tugs is increased and at the present time two more could be used.

Notes of Navigation Picked Up Around Otonabee Boat House

Rob Roy Was Launched Yesterday After Repairs Were Made—New Landing Stage at the Boat House—Getting Ready for the Summer.

In spite of the very late season and disagreeable weather, the boat men in the city still have hopes that the ice will go out of the lakes, and that the weather will turn warm before many more weeks have slipped by. Among the most optimistic are Mr. Harold Rye, proprietor of the Otonabee Boat House, and Captain R. M. Roy.

Mr. Rye has been at his boat house for some time. He has been working on the Rob Roy, which was wintered at his boat house. Among other improvements, a new floor was put in the bottom of the steam launch and new seats were built all around the sides. Yesterday morning the work was completed, and in the afternoon, the slides were greased, and this well-known boat once more took to the water. Mr. Roy is now busy making minor repairs, in preparation for the first trip of the season, which he will take as soon as possible.

Many improvements are being made at the Otonabee Boat House. A fine new landing stage has been built in front of the house, on which are rollers, opposite each door, for letting the boats down easy. This does away with the awkward slides used for the past two years, and it will be greatly appreciated by the public, which patronize his place so largely in the summer. A floating wharf will also be placed in front of the stage.

There will be additional accommodation this year for the gasoline launches. All the docks will be in their places but these have already been constructed for any new boats, and there will be quite a number of them will have new docks. Last year Mr. Rye looked after the boats so well that these docks have become very popular.

All winter five big launches were stored on the property adjoining the boat house. These were the largest of the small craft on the river, and required a lot of work to look after them. The boats were the Rob Roy, steam power, owned by Mr. R. M. Roy; the Gypsy, run by an oil engine and owned by Messrs. H. Rye, Dickson Best and Jas. Metherall; the Tootsie, steam power, owned by Mr. Herbert Allen of the C.G.E.; The Mollie, steam power, owned by Messrs. Stratton and McPhin; the Strathmore, gasoline power, owned by the late Charles Donnelly of Pittsburg.

In the boat house there are stored twenty-six skiffs and canoes, owned by private parties, who have rented racks. Mr. Rye, himself, owns twenty-four boats, fourteen skiffs, and ten canoes. This makes a total of fifty boats and they take up pretty nearly all the room. Several applications, however, have been made for rack room this summer, and if many more are received, the boat house will have to be enlarged again.

The fleet of boats belonging to the house will be enlarged this year. Models are now ready and material is out for a new skiff built especially for two. This craft will be as wide as other boats, but it will be short well built, strong and light. One of the features will be the square stern. Altogether this boat should be very popular with the young people.

There is every indication at the present time of a very heavy boating season, providing of course, that the weather turns warmer. A great many enquiries have been made, and there is more than the usual amount of talk about the sport. The Otonabee boat house will not be opened before the first of May, although Mr. Rye is there every day, and any who have their own boats, they will be able to get them, if they wish to.

MAYOR MAKES EXPLANATION

As to Why He Voted on the Sign By-law—Not a New Thing

His Worship Mayor McWilliams this morning in speaking of his action at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole last Monday night, when the vote on the sign bylaw was being taken said:

"The municipal act expressly declares that the mayor shall have the right to vote at his option, either as a member of the council, or after the other members have voted, by means of his casting vote."

This refers to council meetings.

"The same reasoning applies to the mayor, when acting as chairman of the Committee of the Whole Council, or to the chairman of any of the standing committees. The idea underlying our municipal government is radically different from that in Parliament. In Parliament, the Speaker is merely a presiding officer, to give dignity and form to the deliberations, and having no responsibility of the business, that being thrown on the leader of the Government.

"Under the municipal system the Mayor is intended to be the effective leader of the business, and to shut him out of a vote, except on rare occasions of a tie, would make a mere figure head of him."

Continuing the Mayor said: "I hold that the chairman of each committee is primarily responsible for the manner in which the business of his committee is conducted, and that he should take the lead in the deliberations, by expressing his opinions and voting among the first and not waiting to follow the lead of the majority. It is entirely incorrect to say that I exercised an unusual power in the vote on the sign bylaw.

"In January last, I took occasion to vote in the same way, and called the attention of the aldermen to the fact that I was voting in order to make it clear what I thought was not merely my right, but my duty as mayor. At that time no objection was raised by any one. Since then I have voted one way or the other on every occasion, where the vote was at all close."

Lakefield Young Men in Trouble

Five of Them Will Appear Before the County Magistrate

Because they were not pleased with an entertainment, which was being given in the town hall at Lakefield, on Tuesday evening, April 9th, five young men of that village are alleged to have acted in a very disorderly manner and now they are in trouble over it. They are Joseph Quigley, Wilbert Godfrey, Howard Rowe and Vernon and Wm. Graham. The five of them will appear before County Magistrate Edmison on Monday at two o'clock, charged with wilfully disturbing a public assembly. The concert was being given by Mrs. W. J. Morrow, Peterborough, assisted by a number of her pupils and others, and a large number were in attendance. The programme was an excellent one, but apparently the young men in question did not appreciate it and they started a rumpus. The information against them was laid by the Lakefield Constable, Mr. Wm. Doidge.

Their children have not been attending school again of late, hence the action taken.

PRECEDENCE IN BUSINESS

One Company Give Thanks for the Hammer of Envious Rival.

The business that is not progressive is sowing the seeds of dissolution. New methods, new inspiration and new men must be introduced into the business which shall keep the lead.

If the men who evolved the great idea of Semi-Ready tailoring had been content with the first productions they would not have attained the success achieved. Out came the hammer of the old-line fellows when the ideas were first conceived and presented. Looking backward, the present Semi-ready Company can join in the anvil chorus, for they are not in 1907 proud of that which they were deservedly proud of in 1902. And they hope to be patronizing to their Semi-ready product of 1907 when five years more have passed away. The little hammer of their competitors helps some. Precedence in business can only be held by learning of one's own faults from plain-speaking critics.

WORK ON NEW GRAIN ROUTE

The Toronto Construction Co. will remove their office from Orillia to Coldwater in the course of a fortnight or so, as the latter place will be more convenient for them in handling the contract on the C.P.R. line from that place to Victoria Harbour. Mr. Hinds will continue to make Orillia his home, as his family is comfortably settled here. It does not seem likely that any work east of Coldwater, on the line from Victoria Harbor to Peterborough will be undertaken the present season.—Orillia Packet.

WEDDING BELLS

HAGGART—MARKEL

The marriage took place at Richfield N.Y., on Wednesday of this week of Miss Mabel Markel, daughter of Mr. Alfred Markel, of that place, to Mr. Wm. Haggart, also of Richfield, but formerly of Peterborough, son of Mr. Jas. E. Haggart, Union street. The ceremony took place at five o'clock and was performed by Rev. Mr. Cook, of Richfield. The bridal pair was unattended and the marriage was witnessed by only a few intimate friends of the contracting parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Haggart are spending their honeymoon in Peterborough, guests of the groom's parents, Union street. They will visit here two or or three weeks before returning to Richfield, where they will reside. The happy young couple have many friends both in Peterborough and Richfield who will wish them every success.

DESERVES SUCCESS

Mr. A. J. Johnston, of Peterborough, nephew of Mr. James Johnston here, has purchased Mr. Nugent's drug business, with whom he has been employed for many years. We all wish Alf. every success knowing he deserves it.—Millbrook Repporter.

PREACHED AT MILLBROOK

Rev Dr. Crothers, of Peterborough, preached educational sermons in the Methodist church on Sunday, and, as was to be expected, he treated his subject in a most impressive way. Miss Richardson contributed a solo at the evening service that was much enjoyed.—Millbrook Reporter.

LOCAL TALENT PRAISED.

The T. E. Kyle Entertainment Co., of Peterborough, will appear in the opera house, Stirling, on Friday evening under the auspices of Stirling L. O.L. No. 110. This is one of the best companies on the Canadian circuit today and should receive the hearty support of the lovers of first class entertainments in Stirling.—News-Argus.

SETTLED THE CLAIM.

Mr. Minehan, Canadian manager of the Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, was in the city yesterday settling the death claim of the late Wm. Spence, who met with a fatal accident at the power house of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., in March 12th. The claim, which amounted to $1,250 was paid in full to the mother of the deceased.

LARGE SHIPMENT

Two large consignments, one of cattle and the other of hogs, were shipped to-day to Montreal, by Brown and Morris, cattle buyers. The hogs were particularly fine animals, as also were the cattle. The price per hundred for the hogs was $7.40.

MIDNIGHT OPERATION

Yesterday evening about 6 o'clock the Dan Spence Ambulance received a hurry call to C.G.E. Works, where Mr Daniel Quinlan had been seized with a sudden illness. He was removed to his home on Concession street, East City. It was found that Mr. Quinlan was suffering from appendicitis. About 11.30 last night he was taken to St. Joseph's Hosppital, where an operation was at once performed. His condition to-day, is quite serious.

THE ROYAL CHEF.

The plan for "The Royal Chef," which appears here on Monday night opened at the Grand Opera House this morning with a rapid sale of seats. There promises to be a packed house to see this great musical comedy which is making a big hit at the Grand Opera House in Toronto this week.

PRAISE FOR ZEPHRA.

Queen Zephra was produced in the Belleville opera house this week under the direction of Mr. H. J. Booth. Mr R. Gliddon of Peterborough had charge of the music. The Intelligencer says :—The performance was certainly beyond the expectations of all who witnessed it, and it speaks volumes for the training of Mr. H. J. Booth, under whose management and direction the production was put on, that the large cast were able to go through their parts without a mistake last night after having had only one rehearsal since the previous presentation.

SHOULD BE STOPPED.

For some time past numerous complaints have been made regarding the disorderly conduct indulged in by boys and girls at the station in the evenings while waiting for the local. This week a prominent gentleman called at this office and desired us to bring the attention of the C.P.R. authorities to the matter. This gentleman, who has had opportunities of observing states that the continuance of the practice of children loafing around the station will result in time to sorrow and shame on the part of those parents who allow their children to gad about so. A word to the wise is sufficient.—Havelock Standard.

Duncan McClean, who is charged with stealing ten dollars from his employer, Wallace Thompson, of Scarboro, came before Magistrate Ellis this morning, and was permitted to go on suspended sentence. The Salvation Army will take charge of him.

Budget of News From Havelock

Council Rents Land for Dumping Ground—Other Notes

Havelock, April 18th, '07.

The marriage of Mr. Thomas Buchanan, to Miss Rebecca McArthur, daughter of Mr. Alex. McArthur, of Belmont, took place at the home of the bride's parents, on April 10th, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. H. Clarke, of town. Only the immediate relatives of the young couple were present. The bride, who was given away by her father, was prettily dressed in a dress of white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations. Mr. Wm. Buchanan assisted the groom, and Miss Nellie McArthur acted as bridesmaid, while Master Gerald Clarke, of Havelock, carried the ring. After the ceremony all present adjourned to the dining room and partook of a dainty luncheon. The many beautiful presents received showed the great estem in which the young people are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold watch and guard, and to the bridesmaid a gold ring. Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan after spending a few days among their friends, will take up their abode in their new home in Dummer.

DUMPING GROUND.

The council have rented the land north of the site of Ashby's old mill, wher all refuse of the village may and must be placed. The action will be recognised as a good one by many of our citizens, who have been complaining of no place where they might dump refuse.

TRY TO KILL PASTOR.

Faction of Church Explodes Dynamite Under Parsonage Porch.

Hazleton, Pa., April 19.—An attempt was made yesterday to kill Rev. Matthew Yankola, pastor of St. Joseph's Slavonic Church here, with dynamite.

A heavy charge of the explosive was placed under the entrance to the parsonage, and tore out a portion of the porch, shattered all the windows in the house and splintered the front door.

There have been factional troubles in the church for some time. One faction has asked for the removal of the pastor, but without success.

Several weeks ago Father Yankola received a letter from the Black Hand, threatening him with death unless he left the city.

HIS FATAL BEAUTY.

Resemblance to Another Man Leads to Persian Official's Injury.

Baku, Russia, April 19.—Mirza Abbas Khan, chief engineer of the Persian ministry of way and communications, was shot and seriously wounded in the street here Wednesday night. Four shots from cover were fired at him, and two of them were effective in his abdomen and side.

The Khan bears a close personal resemblance to the ex-Persian grand vizier, Amin Sultan, whom the Shah summoned from Paris to assist in combatting the revolutionary movement in Persia, and it is thought that the assassins were revolutionary emissaries.

Must Sign Articles.

Ottawa, April 19.—In the public interest the Department of Marine and Fisheries has decided to enforce strictly, on and after the 1st of June next, the provisions of the law requiring the master of every ship subject thereto on the inland waters of Canada to sign articles with every seaman whom he carries as one of his crew. The penalty for carrying a seaman who has not signed these articles is a fine not exceeding $20 for each offence.

Bennings Loser Suicides.

New York, April 19.—A well-dressed man, about 30 years old, who registered as "J. Ryckman, Boston, Mass.," Wednesday night, was found dead yesterday in the Broadway Central Hotel, with a bullet hole in his head.

In a letter addressed to "My Darling Antoinette," he said he had lost his last $100 at Bennings and was "going to heaven."

Chronic Constipation

BILEANS A CERTAIN CURE

"I had chronic constipation for five years," says Mrs. M. O'Byrne, of Agnes st., Toronto. "It brought on headaches and dizzy bouts, and robbed me of health and vitality. I spent a lot of money in trying various useless remedies. At last I tried the right one—Bileans—and they cured me."

One of the finest scientific papers in the world (Science Siftings), says of Bileans in this connection: "They cure constipation without causing griping, and do not cause after-constipation, as other purgatives do."

Piles, debility, anaemia, indigestion, biliousness, heartburn, headache, and female ailments all disappear before a short course of Bileans. All druggists and stores at 50 cents, or Bilean Co., Toronto, for price.

Death Before Separation.

Springwood, April 19.—Stewart C. Gay, 19 years old, and Miss Mabel Pendleton, 17 years old, committed suicide yesterday by leaping from the suspension bridge across Jackson River at Clifton Forge. They started Wednesday night for Washington to be married, but were intercepted and brought back.

75,000 Die In Week.

Simla, India, April 19.—There were 75,000 deaths from the plague in India during the week ending April 13. Seventy thousand of these occurred in Bengal, the United Provinces and the Punjab.

The epidemic began in the Punjab in October, 1897 since which nearly a million and a half deaths have occurred.

Criminal Libel Charged.

Winnipeg, April 19.—M. E. Nichols, editor of The Telegram, appeared in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of criminal libel, and on application of his lawyer, J. A. M. Atkins, K. C., the case was enlarged for one week.

IMPERIAL BUDGET SPEECH.

Surplus of $26,955,000 Devoted to Reduce Debt.

London, April 19.—No budget statement of recent years has been awaited with so much interest as that of Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith yesterday. Although it was his second budget, that of last year really was only a legacy from the previous administration, so his proposals yesterday constituted the first real Liberal budget in 12 years. The House of Commons was thronged, and the public galleries were densely crowded. The financial statement issued by the Treasury in advance of the Chancellor's speech informed the House that the exact realized surplus for 1906-07 was $26,955,000, which, in accordance with the law, would be devoted to the reduction of the public debt.

Mr. Asquith estimated the expenditure for 1907-08 at $703,785,000. The revenue on the existing basis of taxation was estimated to be $720,950,000.

The permanent reduction of the national debt for 1906-07 was announced to be $68,570,000.

The duty on tea was unchanged.

Mr. Asquith opened his speech with a brief review of the past year, pointing out that with the exception of the stock markets, which suffered from the money stringency, trade at home and abroad had been remarkably flourishing. The Treasury receipts were over $10,000,000 in excess of the estimates, unanticipated death duties accounting for $6,000,000 of this sum, while the balance was made up of increased receipts from the coal duty and the mint. The latter was due to the increased demand for coinage on account of the preposterous state of trade and the large amount of silver, aggregating $2,500,000, required for various purposes.

CATHEDRAL WAS DAMAGED.

Quake Cracked Ancient Building From Top to Bottom.

Mexico City, April 19.—It has been discovered that the cathedral of Mexico City, one of the most famous churches in the world, was cracked from top to bottom by the recent earthquake. The fissure is an eighth of an inch wide. An engineer has been appointed to examine the building. The cathedral is centuries old. It is built on the old site of the Aztec Temple.

Many Prominent Victims.

City of Mexico, April 19.—Owing to the great difficulty in establishing communication with the cities situated in the region of the greatest devastation, wrought by the recent earthquake, details are coming slowly. Each succeeding intelligence magnifies the extent of the disaster.

From the latest reports it is learned that the earth is now quiet in the region which was so seriously affected, but the last shock occurred as late as noon Wednesday.

In the list of known dead, which now totals 50, and of the injured, which approximates 300, are many names of Mexicans prominent in the official and social life of the region.

Volcano In Action.

New York, April 19.—A despatch from Valparaiso, Chile, says: Puyehue, a volcano adjacent to the large lake of the same name in the Province of Valdivia, is in a violent eruption.

The phenomenon is accompanied by awful subterranean rumblings, earthquakes, inky darkness, noisy electrical displays, ashes and boiling water.

Torrents of lava have set fire to the surrounding forests and people and cattle are fleeing in terror.

QUEBEC MURDER TRIAL.

Witnesses Say Prisoner Threatened to Kill Wife for Infidelity

Quebec, April 19.—The witnesses heard yesterday morning in the Lecoutours murder case were for the crown, Mr. Raoull Bergevin, and for the defence Messrs. George Smith, M. P. P., of Thetford Mines, and Mr. Pelton, saloonkeeper.

Mr. Raoull Bergevin testified that on the 18th of October the prisoner wanted to borrow his revolver to kill his wife because she had deceived him during the course of her trip to Ireland. He had discovered by a letter found in her trunk that she had relations with the steward on board the steamer.

The deposition of Mr. Chas. Bergevin tends to prove that the prisoner had made up his mind to kill his wife some weeks before the murder on account of her pretended infidelities. George Smith, M. P. P., testified to the prisoner's good conduct as a constable.

Pelton, the saloonkeeper, said Lecoutours had often spoken to him of his wife's infidelities, saying that she had left him after 40 years of married life, that she deserved to be killed, that he did not care much to live that way, and would rather be hung than live that way.

MORE PUBLICITY NEEDED.

Government Accused of Hushing Up the Colonial Conference.

London, April 19.—(C. A. P.)—The proceedings at the conference yesterday were private, but it is understood that the subject under discussion was again the constitution of the Imperial Council. Sir George Clarke, Secretary of Imperial Defence Committee, suggests that the question of Imperial defence was very probably under discussion.

Publicity Needed.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the precis of Wednesday's deliberations by Downing street is a fine example of the policy of "hushing up" the colonial conference, and stifling public interest in the debates until the Premiers are on the way home.

Col. Steele and Borden.

The Canadian Associated Press understands that Col. Steele had an interview with Sir Frederick Borden shortly before the latter left the Hotel Cecil for the conference.

Premier Laurier will make a presentation on behalf of the donor to the National Liberal Club of the picture of Campbell-Bannerman, painted by Colin Forbes.

W. R. Hunter of the law firm of Hunter and Hunter, Toronto, will be the next supreme counsellor of the I.O.F.

OVERSHREWD LAWYERS.

Who Were Defeated by Witnesses Through Their Own Weapons.

Overshrewd lawyers often furnish their adversaries with weapons. "Did you see this tree that has been mentioned by the roadside?" an advocate inquired.

"Yes, sir; I saw it very plainly."

"It was conspicuous, then?"

The witness seemed puzzled by the new word. He repeated his former assertion.

"What is the difference," sneered the lawyer, "between plain and conspicuous?"

But he was hoist with his own petard. The witness innocently answered:

"I can see you plainly, sir, among the other lawyers, though you are not a bit conspicuous."

In another instance a blow directed against the character of a witness forcibly recoiled.

"You were in the company of these people?" he was asked.

"Of two friends, sir."

"Friends! Two thieves, I suppose you mean."

"That may be so," was the dry retort. "They are both lawyers."

The blow that destroys the effect of an adverse examination is occasionally more the result of accident than of conscious effort. In a trial not long ago a very simple witness was in the box and after going through his ordeal was ready to retire. One question remained:

"Now, Mr. ——, has not an attempt been made to induce you to tell the court a different story?"

"A different story to what I have told, sir?"

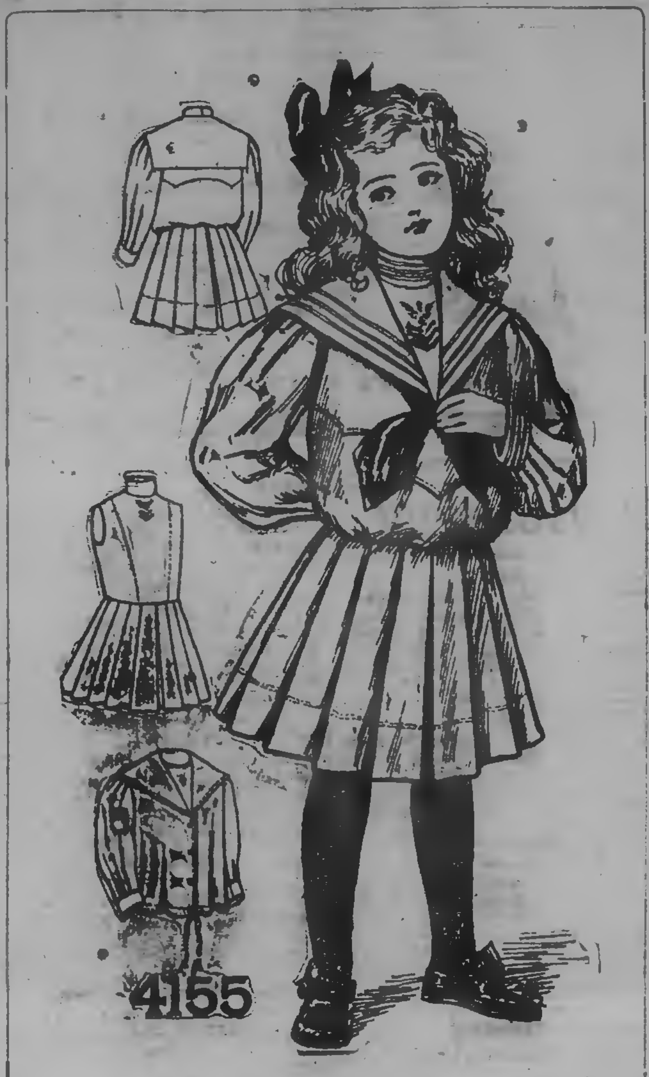
"Yes. Is it not so?"

"Yes, sir."

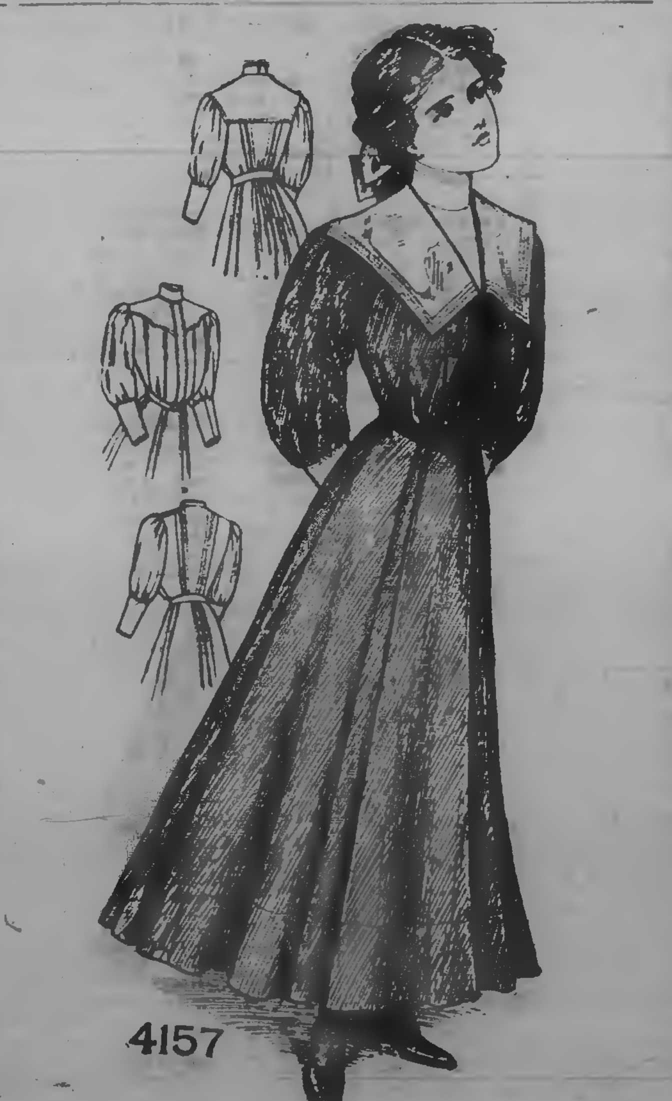
"Upon your oath I demand to know who the persons are who have attempted this."

"Well, sir, you've tried as hard as any of 'em," was the unexpected answer.

It ended the examination.—Rochester Herald.



A CHIC LITTLE GOWN



IN SAILOR OR SHIRT WAIST STYLE

There is a charm about the sailor modes which girls of all ages appreciate. Here is a frock which has the becoming sailor collar and shield without the unbecoming blousing which characterizes the real sailor blouse. If the sailor effect is not desired, these features just mentioned may be omitted and the waist be finished with the deep fanciful yoke and centre box pleats. The tucks in front are stitched in slot seam effect and terminate at the bust line, while those in back continue in regulation style to the belt. The skirt is a seven gored one having tuck-pleats at the side seams and tuck-pleats of gathers in back. The dress is not difficult to make and may be realized in serge, cheviot, mohair or a washing fabric. For the medium size 5 1-2 yards of 44 inch goods are needed.

The price of this pattern is ten cents.

SILK OF THE SPIDER.

The Delicate Machinery That Spins the Liquid Threads.

The spider is able to secrete at least three colors of silk stuff—the white, which forms the web, and the enswathement of captives and the egg cocoon; the brown mass that fills the cocoon interior and the flossy yellow between that and the inside of the sac. The glands end in minute ducts which empty into spinning spools regularly arranged along the sides and upon the tips of the six spinnerets, or "spinning mammals," or "spinning fingers," which are placed just beneath the apex of the abdomen. The spinnerets are movable and can be flung wide apart or pushed closely together, and the spinning spools can be managed in the same way.

The silk glands are infolded in muscular tissue, pressure upon which, at the will of the spider, forces the liquid silk through the duct into the spool, whence it issues as a minute filament, since it hardens upon contact with the air. One thread as seen in a web may be made up of a number of the filaments and is formed by putting the tips of the spools together as the liquid jets are forced out of the ducts. When the spinnerets are joined and a number of the spools are emptied at once their contents merge, and the sheets or ribbons are formed which one sees in the enswathement of a captive or the making of Argiope's central shield. This delicate machinery the owner operates with utmost skill, bringing into play now one part and now another and again the whole with unfailing deftness and a mastery complete.—Dr. H. C. McCook in Harper's.

A QUEER HOUSE.

The Novel and Famous Fossil Bone Cabin In Wyoming.

"The queerest house in the world," said a zoologist, "is undoubtedly the famous bone cabin in Wyoming, near the Medicine Bow river. This cabin's foundations are built of fossil bones.

"Bones of dinosaurs—jaws of the diplodocus, teeth of the brontosaurus, knuckles of the ichthyosaurus, vertebrae of the camarasaurus, chunks of the barosaurus, the cetiasaurus, the brachiosaurus, the stegiosaurus, the ornitholestes or bird catching dinosaur—all entered into this wonderful cabin's foundations, making it the most curious and most costly edifice in America.

"This hut was built by a Mexican sheep herder who had happened by chance on the grandest extinct animal bed in the world. This was a plot about fifty yards square, wherein lay in rich profusion the bones of all the animals of the reptilian age. The heaviest and the lightest, the largest and the smallest, the most tranquil and the most ferocious, lay side by side.

"The place was evidently once a river bar, and the dead bodies that floated down the stream were here arrested to lie for hundreds of thousands of years till a sheep herder came along and, rooting among bones as big as bowlders, set about the building of the world's queerest cabin."

Absentminded.

The judge was at dinner in the new household, according to the Philadelphia Ledger, when the young housekeeper asked:

"Did you ever try any of my biscuits, judge?"

"No," replied the judge, "I never did, but I dare say they deserve it."

PUBLIC LIBRARIES

The Minister of Education, Dr. Pyne, deserves the thanks of the lovers of literature who appreciate the benefits arising from the establishment of a public library conducted in accordance with modern methods. The report of the inspector of public libraries for 1905, issued by the Education Department, differs from ordinary departmental reports in that it is handsomely illustrated. The half-tone engravings and zinc etchings of the floor plans of some twenty of our public libraries are interspersed through the letter press and afford an excellent object lesson of the improvement recently made in this province in the construction of public libraries.

Not only have the buildings generally been improved, but the reports points out many of the defects in administration which characterized the immediate past. Suggestions of a valuable character are made, with the approval of the Minister of Education, for replacing antiquated systems by inaugurating modern and scientific methods.

The department has been cordially assisted during the past year by the executive officers of the Ontario Library Association, the book parliament of Ontario. The mutual exchange of views relating to the library problem has already been productive of much good, while the future is bright with promise. Scientific classification, special attention to the childern's section of libraries, additional assistance to weak and struggling libraries by lending them travelling libraries, will mark some of the advances for the year 1907.

It is time the public library in Peterborough was housed in a larger and more commodious building. The present quarters are entirely unsuitable and the agitation for a new home for the library will, it is hoped soon bear fruit.

Now that the Thaw trial is over it is fitting there should be a peace conference in New York.

Great Britain is reducing her debt. Some private citizens might follow this worthy example.

Alluding to the Trent Valley Canal, the Guide remarks that the Port Hope route is the cheapest and most feasible, but that it has been "turned down, in favor of the grafters along the Trent River." The Times can congratulate the Guide upon the soundness of its views and on the unexpected courage that it has shown in expressing them. The Times has in the past exposed the discreditable motives of the Laurier Government in its treatment of the Trent Valley Canal question, and it notices with extreme satisfaction, that the Guide, at last, has adopted its opinions on the subject. — Port Hope Times.

The Board of Governors of Toronto University, desire to meet in secret. The Toronto Star contends that the meetings should be open and furnishes cogent arguments which will apply with equal force and point to the secret committee metings of the Peterborough Board of Education. The Star remarks: "The Globe has persuaded itself that the condition of publicity is fulfilled if the governors sit behind closed doors and afterwards hand out a report of the proceedings to the newspapers. If this were admitted, the meetings of a Cabinet or a party caucus might be described as public, for reports of the action taken by a Cabinet or a caucus are aften handed out to the newspaeprs. A meeting from which the public and the press are excluded is a private meeting, and is not taken out of that category by the handing out of a cut and dried official report of the proceedings. The people have a right to know not only what is decided, but what is proposed by their servants, and what reasons are urged for and against a proposal. It is only in this way that public opinion can be brought to bear upon the government of the University."

Fine Programme Was Contributed

Scotch Night Was a Decided Success at Conservative Club Rooms

"Scotch Night" at the Young Conservative Club rooms was a distinct success. There were a large number of men present, young and old, who took a lively interest in a programme of unusual merit. The assembly room was crowded while the reading room was well filled. Some splendid Scotch songs, intermixed with those of other nations gave a pleasing variety to the numbers. Mr. Peter Gardner ably occupied the chair. He stated that there were days in the year, which the Sons of Scotia everywhere celebrated—St. Andrew's day—the anniversary of the patron saint of the land of the heather and Burns' birthday, which fell on January 25th. This occasion was a sort of go-between, but he was glad to welcome such a large gathering and trusted they would spend a very pleasant evening. A splendid programme was then carried out. Lt.-Col. J. W. Miller, recited "Glencoe," by the late Dr. W. H. Drummond, and was well received. Stirring songs were contributed in good voice by Messrs. J. Barr, J. W. Chambers, H. B. Paddock, W. A. Greenslade, Frank Pratt, while several duets were admirably given by Messrs. Paddock and Greenslade. Encores were frequent and the singers generously applauded. All did remarkably well and shared in the success of the evening, which was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. Mr. J. E. Dickenson ably filled the position of accompanist.

Mr. R. E. Layfield, who will be the chairman for Irish night, announced that the entertainment would take place on Thursday evening, May 2nd. A good programme has been prepared for the occasion.

King's Daughters Doing Good Work

Many Claims Made Upon the Society This Year

A most enjoyable afternoon tea was held at St. John's school house yesterday afternoon, from four to six o'clock, under the auspices of the King's Daughters. A large number of ladies were in attendance, and the time was spent pleasantly in social intercourse. The tea was under the direction of Miss Halliday, President of the Society.

A table, where homemade candy was sold, was in charge of Miss Margaret English. Another where choice homemade viands were disposed of, was looked after by Mrs. H. D. Burnett. Tea was served by Mrs. Poole, Miss Hatton and Miss Doble. A good sum was realized by the sale tables, and also by a silver collection at the door. The object in holding the tea was to raise funds for the work of the King's Daughters during the summer. There has been a greater demand for help from the King's Daughters, during the past winter than ever. This work is a most praiseworthy one and deserves the support of the citizens of Peterborough. Their undertakings are undenominational in character, and they have done a great deal to alleviate the suffering and want of many of this city's deserving poor.

The Berries are Hit Very Hard

Late Frosts Nip Early Buds of Rasp and Thimble Berries

The fruit growers of the vicinity of London will suffer heavily by the recent frost. The premature warm weather of the early part of the month caused the canes on the berry bushes to produce their tender buds, and when the frost came the result was that the raspberry bushes were almost totally destroyed. Thimbleberries, although suffering heavily, are not injured to such an extent as their red neighbors.

The loss to fruit consumers as well as growers will not be inconsiderable, as these two berries are the most popular in the eyes of the majority of house-wives, and when the necessarily limited quantity comes to the market for preserving, the anxiety to procure a supply of these toothsome delicacies, it is expected, will boost the price out of sight.

It is not though that the larger fruits are hurt to any great extent by the recent cold snap.

Death and Distruction Result: Women Hemmed in by Flames

Three Dead and Nine Injured in Fire at Montreal.

Many Women Had Narrow Escape—Laundry Set Ablaze—Spread With Awful Rapidity—Fire Engines Could Render Little Service—Ambulances Do Good Work—Women Leaped From the Windows.

Montreal, April 19.—Three dead and nine injured, several of them severely, is the result of the latest conflagration in this city.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the second storey of the three-storey brick building on St. Justin street, just below St. Catharine, and occupied by the Canada Laundry and Dye Works.

The fire spread with such fearful rapidity that for a few moments it seemed as though a score of lives would be lost, but by a rear stairway a number of the girls were enabled to make their escape.

The casualties are:

Dead.

William Martineau.
Jane Furlong.
Mrs. P. Giroux.

Injured.

Miss Albertine Paradis, 38 years, arm fractured and face burned.

Miss Victoria Daigle, 39 years, ankle fractured.

Miss Jeanette Bonenfant, 39 years, face burned and back injured.

Miss Emma Etienne, badly burned.

Miss Bertha McMercher, face burned and arm fractured.

Mrs. Georgina Lavigne, hand fractured.

Miss Marie Rodger, slightly injured.

Jumped For Their Life.

There were nearly fifty people in the place when the fire started. All the injured met their injuries by jumping for the life net.

The fire started in the cleaning-room, being caused by benzine, which was used in one of the machines, catching fire. In a few minutes the whole place was in flames. A panic ensued amongst the hands, who all rushed to try and escape, but their escape was cut off by the dense smoke.

The man Martineau and the woman Furlong were overcome by smoke and their dead bodies were afterwards found in one of the windows. Mrs. Giroux received her injuries in jumping.

A general alarm was sent to all the hospitals and five ambulances were soon on the scene, the cry that 25 lives had been lost spreading through the city even as quickly as the fire through the building.

There were three alarms all sent in to the fire department, but even though excellent work was done, there was absolutely no chance at any stage of the conflagration to prevent a complete destruction.

There were thirty girls and ten men employed and the majority of the girls lived in the immediate neighborhood of the laundry. As a result of this scores of relatives hastened to the scene, pushing their way madly through the immense crowd that had gathered, and crying for the safety of their loved ones.

It is estimated that the loss by the burning of the building itself will amount to about $20,000 and possibly $10,000 to $15,000 for machinery.

Problem is Solved at Last; How to Reduce Your Coal Bill

How One May Convert Ashes Into Fuel—The Formula is Very Simple and All the Citizens of Peterboro' May Try it—A Great Saving in the Coal Expenditure of Households.

The following despatch from Altoona, Pa., will be read with much interest by many citizens of Peterborough, especially those who have heavy coal bills.—

The remarkable ashes-burning secret discovered by John Ellmore, an Altoona cobbler, which has excited attention almost the world over, is out. Almost every householder in Altoona is now converting his ashes into fuel, with great saving of coal bills.

Several well-known chemists immediately it was announced that Ellmore had solved the problem of obtaining heat from ashes, set to work to try and discover the formula. They were successful and here it is: Moisten with either salt water or salt water in which oxalic acid has been dissolved. A mixture containing one part coal and three parts ashes, and a better fuel than pure coal is obtained. The ashes of the anthracite coal burn as readily as do those of bituminous coal. This mixture will, upon being placed on a burning fire, fuse into a coke-like mass and deposit but little residue. The salt water may be obtained by the dissolution of common salt in water.

The ash-burning compound is now being used in many large industrial and mercantile places here, and it is claimed for it that it has reduced the fuel item more than half. It has eliminated almost entirely the question of depositing of ashes, which has been considerable, where great quantities of coal are consumed.

The discovery has resulted in a number of complications, and is retarding the work of paving contractors, who have utilized ashes as a foundation for sidewalks. Heretofore it was possible to secure all the ashes required for this purpose, without cost, but now contractors are complaining that it is impossible to get them.

Ellmore, who discovered the secret and focused attention upon the possibilities that lurked in ashes, claims that his patent will protect his secret. He claims to have received an offer from the British Government if he can demonstrate the practicability of his compound.

While it is everywhere conceded that Ellmore has conferred a great boon upon humanity, it is feared that he will not derive any tangible benefits from his discovery in view of the fact that hundreds of others have secured the same results, following his lead.

BURNS ASHES.

The Toronto Star says: Mr. Jas Cosgrove, engineer at the Customs House, has been experimenting with burning ashes for a couple of days. The ashes are sprinkled with a chemical, known to Mr. Wm. Reid, messenger at the Customs House, and the engineer says he will take the coal he can save in a year for his salary and buy the chemical.

Chewing Tobacco Engenders Thought

New York, April 19.—The value of chewing tobacco as a help to ruminative habits that lead to good statesmanship is one of things that Woodrow Wilson, President of Princeton University, touched upon in his lecture, yesterday, in the Horace Mann auditorium at Columbia University, on "The Senate of the United States."

Dr. Wilson pointed out the fact that a western senator as a rule, is more valuable than an eastern man because he comes from the part of the country that is productive of thought. In the east, according to Dr. Wilson, men have no opinions because they do not have time to think.

"If you live in a place," said Dr. Wilson, "where you can sit around the stove in a country store, and spit tobacco juice into a sawdust box, you are much more likely to have opinions than if you live in New York. Whatever, you may think of the habit of chewing tobacco, I want to suggest that chewing sometimes leads to ruminative habits. If a man stops long enough between sentences, it shows he is more likely to have opinions that have weight than if he does not. There is something in a sawdust box.

"People who have their heads buried in a morning paper in the morning and in an evening paper in the afternoon, have no ideas except those which the newspapers give them. This is the kind of people that are found in the east, where people think about nothing else except what they see in newspapers and their business. In the west this is not true. The western senator has time to chew between sentences, and consequently, is more likely to think of those things that are valuable to the nation."

Dr. Wilson advocated the establishment of a national newspaper. Whether you read the New York, Philadelphia or Chicago newspapers, or all three, you would not get national opinion. For this reason the country is still provincial. The speaker thought a national medium of intelligence, would rectify this evil.

To Mr. Will and Miss Nellie Richardson:

Peeps into Women's Letters

If our readers could spend one morning looking through the letters received from all over Canada by the Zam-Buk Co., it would bring home to them with irresistible force the healing virtues of this great household balm. Old women, young women, wives, mothers, and even rich young girls have something to say how Zam-Buk did this or that good office in their home. Many of these writers give permission to make extracts from their grateful testimony. From these the following were taken at random:

"I was troubled for some weeks with salt rheum in hands and arms and was using a salve which did me little good. On receiving a supply of Zam-Buk I applied it, and it really seemed to act like magic! The itching and burning ceased, and in a few days the skin was cleared and healthy." So writes Miss E. A. Butchard, of North Keppel.

"Three boxes of Zam-Buk cured me of Eczema, from which I had suffered a long time." So says Mrs. Gladden, of Masonville, Que.

"Zam-Buk cured a case of blood poison in my family, and I wish to thank you for the great blessing it has proved," is the effect of a letter from Mrs. Webb, of Dovercourt.

And so one could go on quoting extract after extract, showing how Zam-Buk cures chronic sores, ulcers, abscesses, bad leg, itch, and blood poison takes the soreness out of cuts and burns, and grows new, healthy skin over injured or diseased places. All stores and druggists sell at fifty cents a box, or the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will mail for price.

Pill Pounders' Jolly "At Home"

Enjoyable Time at the Foresters, Hall Last Night

One of the most delightful affairs of its kind during the season was the Pill Pounders "At Home" in the Foresters Hall last night. The committee in charge deserve hearty congratulations on the splendid success achieved, as the arrangements were everything that could be desired, and everything passed off in a most enjoyable manner. About seventy-five were in attendance, and dancing was kept up about 2.30 a. m. Splendid music was supplied by Mr Harding, the musical director of the Colloseum, who is an exceedingly skilled pianist. Several selections on the mandolin were given during the night by Messrs. Quinn, Cranfield and Holland.

Refreshments were served at midnight, and were as much enjoyed as the other events on the programme. Altogether the "At Home" was a jolly affair, and those who were present look forward with pleasure to the time when the "Pill Pounders' will be "At Home" again.

WEDDING BELLS

STENTON—CURTIS

A very pretty house wedding was celebrated last evening at 7.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Mark Curtis, Douro, when his only daughter, Miss Ada, was united in marriage to Mr. John Stenton, of Bad Axe, Mich.

Owing to the illness of Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, who was to have officiated, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The wedding took place in the beautifully and tastefully decorated drawing room.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Maud Curtis, niece of the bride, the bride entered the room leaning on the arm of her father. She was becomingly attired in a dainty costume of cream San-toy trimmed with baby Irish lace. She carried a large bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Bertha Curtis, niece of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. She looked charming in a pretty gown of cream nun's veiling, and carried pink carnations. The groom was ably supported by Mr. J. Tammets of Otonabee.

After the nuptials a choice wedding repast was partaken of and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the bride and groom.

A large number of beautiful and artistic presents were received by the bride. Among them were $60 in gold from Curtis Bros., silver tea knives and forks from Sunnyside branch of the Women's Auxiliary, a purse of gold from Mr. David Curtis and many others. The groom presented the bridesmaid with a pearl ring, and to the pianiste he gave a gold brooch.

Last evening was also the silver wedding the 25th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Curtis' nuptials. Mr. and Mrs. Stenton will remain here until Monday when they leave for Bad Axe, Mich., where they will in future reside.

The bride is a faithful worker in St. Luke's parish and has been the energetic secretary of the Sunnyside branch of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mr. Stenton is a young man who is highly respected for his many excellent qualities. In their new home in Bax Axe may they have a long, happy and prosperous married life is the wish of their numerous friends.

THREE DRUNKS IN POLICE COURT

Three drunks were arraigned before His Worship Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, and as a result the city was enriched by the sum of six dollars.

Percy Kennedy pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly last evening. He was fined two dollars, to be paid in ten days.

Edward O'Brien, of Otonabee, came into the city yesterday and got "loaded." He also pleaded guilty and had to hand out two dollars.

Another old fellow also was indulging too freely yesterday, and wanting to fight everyone he met also faced the court. He will have to hand over two dollars within the next ten days.

THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION

The Jamestown Exposition, which opens on April 26th, 1907, promises to be one of the most interesting of the larger expositions which have been held in later years. Its location at Sewell's Point, on the historic Hampton Roads, some nine miles from the city of Norfolk, Virginia, and directly opposite Old Point Comfort, in itself will appeal to many and the magnificent array of warships that will congregate here from all the countries of the world will attract a tremendous number of people from all parts of the American continent, as well as from abroad. To Canadians who have not had the privilege of visiting the South this event will be the best opportunity that will present itself, and the low transportation rates that are offered will lend an additional attraction.

The only Canadian exhibit at this great Fair will be that of the Grand Trunk Railway System, who have erected a building of their own in which the resources and attractive features of Canada will be shown, and at which building Canadians will be welcome, and where all information may be obtained. Another feature that is offered is the many different routes that can be taken to this Exposition from Canada, including rail river and ocean journeys. The true hospitality of the Southern people, the historicity that surrounds the locality and the many things to see and do, should be the means of inducing a large number to go from the north. Grand Trunk Agents will gladly give information as to rates and routes. 2d

DELIGHTFUL DANCE

The Millbrook Mirror says:—The dance given by the gentlemen of Millbrook on Friday evening last proved one of the social successes of the season. The music supplied by Glionna's orchestra of Toronto, was, as on their former appearance here, much enjoyed. Among those from out of town were noticed: Miss E. Fair, Messrs. Whitcroft, Warren, Fairweather and Potvin, of Peterborough; Misses MacDonald and Reynolds of Bethany; Miss Burnham, of Port Hope, and others. Much credit is due Dr. H. A. Turner, honorary secretary, and Mr. G. L. McHattie, manager of the Bank of Toronto, upon the success of the event,

TRUTH ABOUT CANCER.

This Deadly Disease Is a Puzzle to the Medical World.

About cancer we must admit that we know next to nothing. We don't know the cause of the disease. Except in a small proportion of very early cases, we don't know how to cure it. We don't know whether it is hereditary. We don't know if it is induced by peculiarities of diet. We don't know to what extent it depends upon climate. We don't know whether it is contagious or infectious. We don't know why it reserves its attacks for oldish people. We don't know why it is increasing. All we may do at present, is to keep a sharp lookout for incipient cancers and cut them out ruthlessly.

In brief, we must try to kill the cancer before it really exists. The preliminary spot or pea-like growth must be removed at once. We must keep a weather eye upon inflamed places and have them looked after without delay. No one fears the removal of such tiny growths these days. Not even children are scared by small operations.

It is not sufficient that a family physician remove the suspected growth with lancet or caustic. He has done his share if he merely sounds the warning in time. The cutting out should be done by a thoroughly competent surgeon, one who has served an apprenticeship under a master of the art and not one who has merely dabbled in surgery while attending cases of pneumonia, typhoid and measles.

A good surgeon of this sort does not temporize with a cancer. He knows that the operation must be performed immediately and that there must be no fatuous endeavor to conserve healthy tissue. It is far better to remove two inches of sound flesh than to err on the cautious side and leave behind one microscopic cancer cell. It is only by such radical and merciless surgery that we may combat cancer. We must take it in time, and we must cut deep and wide.

And even then we are never sure.

Nature indeed is the only doctor whose skill is capable of combating cancer. Ehrlich and others have observed that of a given number of mice displaying symptoms of cancer a certain portion recover. The same thing is true of human beings.

Luckily there is no disease, no matter how virulent, that nature herself cannot cure, and so even in the worst cases of cancer it is well not to abandon hope. I have myself seen several cases of such spontaneous cures. One patient was a wealthy Baltimorean, whose malady was diagnosed by an operation as cancer of the stomach.

Three prominent American surgeons saw the cancer, which was inoperable because of its location. He submitted to a serum treatment, and three years later a second operation revealed the fact that his cancer had entirely disappeared, leaving a scar. Here was an undoubted case of cure. But did the serum do the work? Its advocates maintain that it did, but a great many very learned and scientific physicians hold that it did not. One cure, it is obvious, by no means establishes a specific's efficacy.—Dr. Hirshberg of Johns Hopkins in American Magazine.

TIPPED AS HE WENT.

His Promise to Pay in Lump Sum Weekly Did Not Bring Results.

"I had heard all about the tipping system in Europe before going abroad," said the young man just returned from his maiden voyage, "so I thought I'd inaugurate a new system. At a fashionable hotel in London the valet assigned to my floor was the subject of my first experiment.

"'See here,' I said in a frank, jovial manner when he came in to attend me, 'I want to make an arrangement with you. It's an infernal nuisance to be handing out tips every few minutes, or, at least, when I want anything done. Now, I purpose to lump the whole thing in weekly payments. I expect to be here at least three weeks. You look after me to the best of your ability, and at the end of each week I'll make it all right with you—in fact, I'll give you more in a lump sum than you would get in tips. Is that satisfactory?'

"'Quite, sir,' he said cheerfully, but I fancied he looked disappointed.

"'Very well,' said I. 'I'm going out for a drive about town. Meanwhile take my evening clothes out of my trunk, have them pressed and laid out for me. You'll find studs and buttons for the shirt in that box on the dresser. My shoes are in that valise.'

"'H'all right, sir. Very good, sir. Thankee kindly,' said he, and I left with a feeling of elation.

"When I got back to the hotel I found my evening clothes still in the trunk, the shirt and shoes untouched and, in short, 'nothing doing.' Next day I went back to the old system."

PIE BIRDS OF BRITTANY.

They Must Be Pretty Strong, According to This Breton Story.

"Speaking of exaggerations," said a traveler, "reminds me of the pie bird story of the Breton farmer.

"There was a farmer in Brittany who wished to tell a visitor how his farm had been overrun with pies. Pies, you know, are large birds, black and white, with long tails—a kind of crow. The farmer said the pies devastated his fields horribly. If he put up scarecrows, the birds tore them down. One day his young son ran into the granite farmhouse and shouted:

"'Oh, father, hundreds and hundreds of birds! The wheat is being all eaten up!'

"The farmer loaded his gun. But where was the shot? It couldn't be found. He put in a few handfuls of tacks instead. Then he ran out. The wheatfield was black and white, like a checkerboard, with pies. The farmer gave a loud yell, and the birds all flew up into a tall poplar. He fired, and, lo, every bird was nailed fast to the tree. They were nailed fast. Their flapping wings filled the air with a loud whir. The farmer, amazed, stood watching them. Then a strange thing happened. The birds, with one grand united effort, pulled up the huge tree and flew away with it."

Important Correction.

To Tennyson truth was a simple thing. It was simply to be exact. In this light should be read an amusing story found in Bram Stoker's "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving." Irving had heard a story that Tennyson not long before had been lunching with friends in his own neighborhood not far from Haslemere. His hostess said to him as they went into the dining room:

"I have made a dish specially for you myself. I hope you will try it and tell me exactly what you think of it."

"Of course I shall," replied Tennyson.

After lunch she asked him what he thought of it.

"If you really wish to know," said he, "I thought it was like an old shoe."

When they met, Irving asked Tennyson if the story were true.

"No," he said at once. "I didn't say that. I said something, but it wasn't that it was like an old shoe."

"What did you say?" persisted Irving.

"I said it was like an old boot."

DOG POINTED A LION.

All Game Looked Alike to This Plucky Little Fox Terrier.

The following incident is perfectly true and absolutely unique:

As a member of a colonial mounted corps, the British South Africa police of Mashonaland, Rhodesia, South Africa, it fell to my lot in April, 1903, to enumerate for official statistics the white residents of Rusapi district, which is 180 miles southeast of Salisbury, the capital, and sixty-four miles west of Umtali, near the Portuguese border. It was upon my return journey to the main camp that the following dog incident occurred:

On the 18th day of April about 4 p. m. I reached an outlying farmhouse close to the railway and in the vicinity of very suggestive looking hills. As I knew the owner, I decided to outspan there for the night. My horse having been sent to water with a native boy, the farmer and I entered the house. In a few minutes a Mashona herd boy dashed in unceremoniously, crying: "Baas! Baas! A lion is down near the cattle!" After questioning the boy, who was much excited, we set off, accompanied by a fox terrier, and upon arriving where the cattle were grazing we at once found his majesty's spoor (track), which we followed until lost on the hard ground.

After searching the most likely places we gave up hope of finding him and, turning about, headed for home. After crossing a vlei (open grass land) we entered a thick bush and proceeded a short distance. Then I missed the dog and, looking back, descried him pointing in the orthodox style, the hair on his back fiercely bristling and body as rigid as a statue. Retracing my footsteps and looking over the bushes where he was, imagine my complete surprise to behold a magnificent lion, full length, with face toward me, barely fifteen paces off. At sight of me he growled softly, and then I shouted, "There he is!" But by the time my friend had run up and I had recovered from my surprise the lion was bounding off, much to the chagrin of my friend. The bush was thick, and we had to fire at random, and he got clear away.

Needless to say a few choice epithets were slung at me by the other fellow, but it all happened very quickly, and I was totally unprepared for such a close view. Moving around behind the bushes, we found the skin and entrails of a sheep, which had been devoured, bearing out the statement that the lion will not eat the intestines of his prey. All this time the dog was jumping around and at last started off on the trial, and we had a hard job to get him back. The evening was getting dark, and we had no wish to meet the lion among the bush in the dark. After reaching home the farmer placed some strychnine on a piece of meat and placed it on the veldt, but our visitor did not return that night.

It is not often a dog has the opportunity to point such royal game.

Talking about dogs, I remember seeing an Irish terrier rout out a hedgehog, and there ensued a terrific onslaught, ending in the death of the spiney one and leaving Boxer, the terrier, full of quills, which I plucked, much to his discomfort.—Forest and Stream.

LETTERS BY MESSENGER.

A Postal Law of Which You May Not Have Knowledge.

The statement made in an uptown club one evening lately that the law prohibits carrying an unstamped letter past a postoffice and delivering it caused much argument. Inquiry was made at the postoffice, where an official said that the question had been asked frequently. "You may send a letter by messenger anywhere, past as many postoffices as you please," said the official, "but you have no right to send your mail that way regularly or at stated periods. This is prohibited by the postal laws and regulations. Sections 1136 and 1137 were enacted to prevent the establishment of private mail routes, because the postoffice department is recognized as having the absolute monopoly of the transportation of letters and 'packets' or bundles of letters by regular trips and at stated periods on all post routes. As to open letters and circulars, they may be delivered by rival concerns, but the people who make the delivery of circulars a business have no right to deliver unstamped closed letters. The law shuts out the milkmen and the tradesmen, who travel regularly along established post roads, who would otherwise become rivals to the United States postoffice for the purpose of accommodating their customers."

Many Improvements Made Along Trent Canal Route

New Lock Gates and Practically New Locks at Burleigh Falls—New Swing Bridge at Young's Point and Extension of Entrance Pier—2000 Acres Drowned Land Cleared at Balsam Lake.

Many improvements have been made along the route of the Trent Canal, during the past winter, which will add to the facilities and conveniences of this important waterway.

The new lock gates at Burleigh are completed and the locks have practically been rebuilt. The latest locking apparatus has been installed and everything at Burleigh is now in first-class order. Superintendent McClellan reports that the outlay at Burleigh will be about $8,000.

AT THE POINT.

At Young's Point, the new swing bridge has been installed. It was supplied by the Dominion Bridge Co. of Montreal, and is located, just above the locks. The cost of the bridge was $2,900. The old bridge over the locks has been removed. The change in the location of the bridge is not only a safeguard, but will be a decided convenience.

As it is now, the bridge will be swung only for a minute or two, when a boat is passing, whereas at the former location, the bridge had to remain swung, all the time that it required a steamer to be locked through. The new concrete entrance pier, just above the lock is being pushed to completion and will be finished in a few weeks. Some 250 feet was built last year, and 300 feet are being added, making the entire length 550 feet. The new pier will add greatly to the attractiveness of the locks. The cost of the improvements at Young's Point will be about $12,000.

AT BALSAM LAKE.

A gang of forty men at work all winter at the north west side of Balsam Lake has effected wonderful changes. The water was lowered three feet in the reach of the canal from Balsam Lake to Kirkfield, and some two thousand acres of drowned land cleared up. A dam was placed at the mouth of the canal. About five thousand cedar posts and poles were secured, as well as some seventy thousand feet of pine. Enough rafters, joists and timber were secured to build houses for six lock masters on that section of the canal. The cost of clearing the drowned land or marsh was about $4,600. The superintendent of the canal states that the pine, poles and posts obtained are valued at $5,000, so that the Department effected a really important work, without any cost to the Government. That portion of Balsam Lake is greatly improved by the removal of all the trees, stumps, etc., which were cut off at the level of the ice and now that the water has been let in no obstructions are seen and a great deal of timber that would decay in stagnant water, has been removed. On sanitary grounds alone the work was necessary. Mr. Clem Gordon was the overseer of the work, which was finished a few days ago, and Mr. P. McDonald was foreman. As stated some forty men were employed all winter at the job, and lost no time in carrying it to completion.

Will Erect New Presbyterian Church

Mill Street Congregation Port Hope Will Have Fine Structure

At a congregational meeting of the Mill Street Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, held last Wednesday evening, April 16th, the question of a site for the new church was discussed and it was unanimously decided to purchase the Kirchoffer property, just south of the Royal Hotel. The plans and specifications for the new church as submitted by Contractor Chislett, were accepted, and the work of constructing the new edifice will be proceeded with shortly.

The new building will be built after the same design as the present structure, but will be twenty feet longer and will have a seating capacity of 400. The cost will be $6,100. The Grand Trunk are paying $6,200 for the present one and allowing the congregation the building.

ENFORCING THE SIGN BY-LAW

Mayor McWilliams Explains Position of the City Council

There has been considerable publicity given to the now famous sign bylaw. For the most part it has been opposed to the bylaw, and this morning Mayor McWilliams had something to say in favor of the council.

"With regard to the sign bylaw," he said, "I desire to mention only one thing. This bylaw was carefully considered by a committee and was then passed by the Council with little or no opposition. All that the present council has done in this matter is to moderate the strictness of the old bylaw. When the City Engineer came to enforce the amended bylaw he brought me a list of the offenders and asked if it was the intention of the council to govern all these cases. To avoid any subsequent trouble I brought the matter up in the council and explained exactly the effect of the bylaw and asked it the council desired it enforced. I took no part in the discussion on that point because I was one affected by the strict bylaw.

"Only two or at least three of the aldermen favored any limitation, the remainder being agreed that it should be enforced as it stood, while one alderman went farther and objected to the exception in favor of illuminated signs, claiming that all signs should be removed."

Selling Liquor Over the Phone

License Inspector Connelly had a rather peculiar whiskey case at Combermere last week. A hotel-keeper, P. O'Brien, had been selling liquor over his telephone at Craigmont, 7 miles away. It seems that some one at Craigmont looked upon this method of the Combermere hotel-keeper of selling liquor by 'phone seven miles away and in another township, as illegal, and reported it to the department. The license inspector had also knowledge that the liquor was thus ordered from the hotel-keeper over the 'phone and sent as ordered, but was in doubt as to whether the Combermere hotel man was breaking the law. On laying the matter before the department the inspector was told to prosecute and he did so. Now the magistrates, F. W. Dunn and James Murray, have to decide whether O'Brien, the hotel man at Combermere, broke the license law by accepting orders from Craigmont over the telephone and sending the liquor down and collecting the price of it from those who ordered it. The magistrates have sought the assistance of County Crown Attorney Metcalfe to help them unravel the tangle.—Renfrew Journal.

Druggist Fined For Illegal Liquor Sales

Acting on behalf of the Crown, Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, on Monday at Springbrook, prosecuted Dr. Towle, a druggist of that village, on two charges of selling unlawfully spirituous liquors. Springbrook is situated in the Township of Rawdon, where local option is in force, and it is alleged that the temperance people have for some time been suspicious that liquor was being secured from the drug store for other than medicinal purposes. The charges were investigated before three local magistrates, namely, Messrs. Welsh, Thompson and Meiklejohn. The accused was convicted on both charges and a fine of $50 and costs in each case was imposed. Mr. J. E. Halliwell, for the accused, intimated that an appeal would be entered.—Belleville Intelligencer.

Radiator Factory for Brantford

The American Radiator company commenced operations yesterday at their plant in Brantford, after many months delay in getting their pattern equipment from the United States, which delay was due to the unexpected demands for new equipment at their other plants to meet the large increase of new business.

The Brantford plant will produce cast-iron steam and hot-water boilers only, which product is handled and sold through wholesale or jobbing houses at Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

Many Laborers Are Yet Needed

Great Scarcity of Farm Hands in This Vicinity

"Yes, there is a great scarcity of farm hands in this vicinity" remarked Mr. Georeg H. Howson, immigration agent today.

"If I had fifty men I could place them all in good positions on farms. I have applications from all the surrounding townships. Good wages are offered and there is great anxiety for desirable helpers. I could also place a large number of domestic servants.

"Yes, there are a number of men on the way—about a dozen—who I know will get off at Peterborough, but the great majority of new arrivals go farther west. There are no better opportunities offered those persons coming to Canada than ribgt here in Peterborough County."

STAND PIPES WERE FROZEN

The stand pipes were all frozen this morning, at least those used a couple of weeks ago, and the men on the water wagons were late getting the sprinklers started. The standpipes have always been a source of trouble in the spring and fall, and the council this year intends to have things changed. The water commissioners will be required to provide turn-offs at each standpipe, so that freezing will be prevented

The Trial of Mrs. Perkins; Death Due to Strychnine

Line of Defence Becomes Clearly Marked in Perkins Case.

Poison In Tablets Taken As Medicine Will Be Plea of Defence—Counsel Reflects Upon the Police—Toronto Coroner Gives Evidence—Recognized the Symptoms—Contest of Wits With Counsel.

Cayuga, April 20.—Comparative quiet was observed in the Haldimand Assize Court yesterday as a result of Justice Mabee's decision to exclude the "assembly of curiosity seekers." The order is much resented by townspeople, many of whom have country visitors who had come in for the occasion.

The morning session was entirely taken up with medical testimony, the object of the defence being to account for Perkins' death as being primarily due to kidney disease, accelerated by strychnine taken in his medicine.

"Nobody here will deny that strychnine was found in the body, and that it contributed to his death," said Mr. Johnston, K. C., to Coroner Johnson immediately before that witness stated that strychnine in medicinal doses might be fatal if the subject was suffering from uraemic poisoning."

Applies For Documents.

Counsel for the defence made application for certain documents containing statements made by Thomas MacDonald and his mother, Justice Mabee ruled against the application.

Fred Goulding, who watched the Perkins' home on several occasions while MacDonald was there, was severely handled by Mr. Johnston, and admitted he was not on good terms with MacDonald.

"This witness—I will not call him a man," was typical of Mr. Johnston's mode of address.

Mr. Johnston endeavored to incriminate Detective Greer in suggesting evidence to witnesses, but none would admit that the evidence had been so influenced.

Mrs. Perkins retained her usual composure as she sat in court, looking paler than usual, and leaning over now and then to make a suggestion to counsel. She wept quietly while Mr. Johnston rebuked Mrs. Johnston of Amherstburg in the words taken from her letter, "if it hadn't been for Mrs. Perkins I would have lost my baby."

The defence intend to put Mrs. Perkins in the witness-box, and will also call on Dr. Edgar.

Medical Evidence.

As soon as the court opened, Mr. Johnston put in an affidavit and made application for certain written statements of Thomas MacDonald and his mother in the possession of the crown.

Dr. Bauer of Hamilton was recalled, and said that the post-mortem revealed that the deceased had suffered from appendicitis.

Dr. A. Jukes Johnson, chief coroner for Toronto, said the symptoms and post-mortem led him to conclude that strychnine poisoning was the cause of death. If Perkins had taken 25 or 30 of the heart tablets it would have been a dangerous dose.

Mr. Johnston asked witness if he had ever given expert evidence and changed his opinion.

"Yes," said witness, "I have in this case."

"And you may again?"

'I may with your assistance," retorted the witness.

Mr. Johnston produced a book on poisons, which Mr. Johnson recommended to him some years ago as the best book on the subject, and cross-examined him at great length.

Would Be Disastrous.

Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of prisons and public charities, followed, and was asked the result if a man, suffering from a disease of the kidneys, such as uraemic poisoning, were to take a small dose of strychnine.

"The effect would be disastrous," said witness.

Frank Arnoldi, K. C., produced a little dressmaking book found in Mrs. Perkins' home, and asked witness what the word "ptomaine," found there, meant. He described it as a form of poison arising in the system as a result of decomposed food.

Mr. Arnoldi replied to the application for documents. He said the defence could learn what were in the documents by putting the MacDonalds in the box. Mr. Johnston replied that the committal was partly in consequence of the testimony of the MacDonalds,—and their statements were all material to the defence. The judge decided that he could not order the production, but would be open to consider any authorities Mr. Johnston might produce.

The Brother's Evidence.

John Perkins' name caused a little excitement. He is a civic foreman in the employ of Winnipeg. He said he knew the prisoner as his brother's wife, and had received a letter when he was in Winnipeg. Mrs. Perkins' read the letter with much agitation and admitted it as being hers. It told details of Henry's illness.

He came to Canfield in reply to a telegram from his sister, and saw Mattie Perkins on Feb. 6. She spoke about having the property settled, but witness said there was plenty of time about that. The property was worth about $2,500, and there was no life insurance.

The letter said: "As you know, Henry has been sick for years," but witness had never heard that. He had not been in Canfield for twenty-five years.

There was some feeling between Henry and his wife and witness sister. Once, he said, he had been sued by his father for money sent him, and the father got judgment.

His only motive in coming down in February was to enquire into his brother's death. He denied that the main object was to obtain possession of the property. Since coming down he had done all he could do to aid the crown in making up the case. Mrs. Perkins told him that if Henry had died of strychnine he must have got it from Dr. Kerr.

The Eyewitness.

Fred Goulding, who lives near the Perkins' house in Canfield, had several times observed Thomas MacDonald going to the Perkins' house, in October, November and December, both by daylight and dark, mainly at night, between 7 and 11. On the occasion he saw him go in at 11 o'clock he waited on the opposite side of the road for two hours, but MacDonald did not come out.

Purchase of Poison.

The evening session came to an abrupt close, owing to the absence of a medical witness to prove that strychnine had been bought.

Mr. Arnoldi called upon Detective Seymour of Detroit to prove that it had been purchased in Detroit.

Mr. Johnston objected on the ground that no foundation had been laid for this evidence by first showing that poison had been bought. He said he would ask for an adjournment, rather than have a link missing in the chain of evidence.

~~John Perkins was recalled. He was~~ with the search party that found the books and pill-box in Mrs. Perkins' kitchen. High Constable Farrel Thursday said that Detective Greer found the book, but witness said Crown Attorney Murphy found it. He also differed from Farrell in telling of the personel of the couples who conducted the search.

He Won't Tell.

Detroit, April 20.—S. K. Trembley of Brown's pharmacy, this city, refuses positively to go to Ontario to testify in the Perkins' murder case at Cayuga. Mr. Trembley's connection with the case is only through an entry on the drug store book that early in November he sold 60 grains of strychnine to a woman who signed herself "Mrs. Davis, Canada."

CALLS BUDGET BRUTAL.

Labor Members Acknowledge Chagrin—A Middle Class Budget.

London, April 20.—Judging by the debate which followed the budget it will meet with a larger degree of general approval and less sectional antagonism than usually falls to the lot of budget statements.

The most persistent complaints emanate from the extreme section of the labor party, which is disappointed at the postponement of the pension scheme and the absence of any direct relief in the taxation of the working classes.

James Keir Hardie frankly calls it a "brutal budget," and declares his belief that the Government has no intention of dealing with the question during its lifetime, but purposes to reserve it as an effective election plank when it becomes necessary to go to the country.

That there is some jurisdiction for the complaints of the workers may be regarded from the fact that in the lobbies of the House, the statement was generally characterized as a "middle class budget."

IRISH LAND BILL PASSED.

Unionists Opposed Measure Which They Describe as Pure Confiscation.

London, April 20.—By a vote of 208 to 60, the House of Commons yesterday passed the second reading of the bill introduced by the Nationalist party, amending the Irish Land Acts.

Under the new law the power of the land commissioners to acquire estates, sell them to tenants, and provide the purchase money, is extended so that they can compulsorily buy out such landlords as Lord Clanricardo and others who refuse to sell. The commissioners will be empowered to themselves fix the prices of the estates to be so acquired.

The, Unionists opposed the measure, which they described as being "pure confiscation."

The Attorney-General for Ireland, Mr. Cherry, in behalf of the Government, approved the principle of the measure, but he said that in consequence of the congestion of business it could not become law during the present session of Parliament.

No Fuel; Mills Close.

Fort William, April 20.—The Ogilvie Mills shut down Thursday on account of the scarcity of fuel.

The supply to run the railway engines is also exhausted, and coal is being rushed in from Montreal. This is coming very slowly, and on Wednesday nothing but passenger trains were run out. At Kenora there is only enough fuel for passenger engines, so all freight traffic has been suspended.

The opening of navigation will relieve the situation, but this will be, at least a week. The ice is still solid for over twenty miles, and shows no signs of breaking up.

United In Death.

Detroit, April 20.—Daniel McDougall, for 30 years proprietor of the Exchange Hotel, and the oldest hotelkeeper in Alpena, Mich., and John D. McDonald, 40 years old, a citizen, and in the same city, and 35 years proprietor of the Serman House, died within three days.

The men were lifelong friends. Both were born in Glengarry, Ont.

They came to Alpena about the same time, and their hotels were only a short distance apart.

Cripple Dies In Fire.

Elmira, N. Y., April 20.—The Hotel Campbell, in Athens, Pa., was completely destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Elum Kendall, a cripple, was unable to get out and lost his life.

Booth Welcomed In Japan.

Tokio, April 20.—The Emperor of Japan has joined in the popular welcome to General Booth of the Salvation Army, and will receive the general in special audience to-day.

Longshoremen Lose.

Hamburg, April 20.—The locked out longshoremen have voted to resume work Monday. The decision denotes a complete victory for the shipping companies.

Farmer Hangs From Bedpost.

Napierville, Que., April 20.—Merule Bougeois, a farmer, in the parish of St. Jacques Le Mineure, hanged himself to the post of his bed yesterday morning.

Property Loss Is Great.

Mexico Cnty, April 20.—Communication has now been opened with all the important points in the section most affected by the earthquake.

The latest reports indicate that the loss of life will not reach a hundred, but many persons have been injured, and the property loss is great.

Vice-President Corral yesterday declared that the whole of the State of Guerrero has been devastated.

Thousands of dollars are being subscribed to the relief fund being raised here.

Thaw Stays In Jail.

New York, April 20.—No movement to attempt to secure the release of Harry K. Thaw on bail has been made, and none is likely for some time.

That Thaw must spend another summer in the Tombs is apparently indicated by the departure from the city of nearly every member of the family.

SAFER LIGHT FOR CARS

Jury Give Verdict in Regard to Chapleau Wreck.

Broken Rail Was Cause of Accident—Horrors Might Have Been Avoided Had It Not Been For Acetylene Gas—Railway Exonerated From Blame—Safer System For Lighting Trains Is Suggested.

Chapleau, April 20.—The coroner's jury investigating the wreck, in which 15 lives were lost, yesterday returned the following verdict:

"The immediate cause of the accident or derailment of train was a broken rail, located on a curve around which the train was running at the time.

"No blame is attached to any of the railway crew or to the roadmaster or sectionmen or any employe of the railway company for the accident.

"The train was lighted with acetylene gas, except one coach, and upon derailment the gas escaped and ignited and seems to have prevented to a certain extent at least the occupants of one of the coaches from escaping and to render all attempts at rescue almost useless.

"This jury is strongly of the opinion that had it not been for the fire that broke out in the coaches almost immediately after the derailment, the accident would not have been attended with such marked fatality.

"We, the jury, having viewed the scene of the disaster and having carefully considered the facts placed before us, would strongly recommend a safer method of lighting trains than by gas."

Possible Causes.

Coroner S. McCuaig of the Soo conducted the enquiry, assisted by Crown Attorney McFadden.

Roadmaster Faugh was the principal witness. He stated that four men, a foreman and three laborers, had charge of the eight-mile section on which the wreck occurred.

Early on the morning of the day the wreck took place he instructed them to go over their section which they afterwards said they did.

He was of the opinion that the weight of the engine forced down a rail until it came to break, when the flange mounted it, causing a jolt, which probably loosened the rail still more. Broken rails occur more frequently at this time of year owing to frost getting into the steel in the night and being thawed out in the day. There is no method of positively telling when a break had occurred.

As to the likelihood of the track having spread, he thought it might have been possible. If the right elevation of curve had been altered by the frost coming out of the ground and raising the truck it might have spread by the train's weight. The weight of the rail on the curve where the derailment occurred was 73 lbs. to the yard.

Heavy Engine.

Walter Dummert, locomotive foreman, stated that the engine and tender alone weighed 180 tons, without either coal or water. Asked if he thought a 73-lb rail was strong enough for such a heavy engine, he replied that engines of her type ran much easier than locomotives of lighter weight, but could not definitely answer the question.

BROKEN RAIL AGAIN.

Was Cause of Another Train Wreck Near Chapleau.

Chapleau, April 20.—A westbound freight train was partly derailed fifty miles west of here Thursday night. Two cars were derailed, severing telegraph connections in their plunge. Three other cars ripped along the ties, tearing up the track for 60 yards. The derailment is thought to have been caused by a broken rail.

Roadmaster Faugh left here early yesterday morning with a wrecking crew, and it will take all day to clear the tracks; in the meantime all passenger trains are held up and the sidings here are blocked with freight cars awaiting power to haul them.

The supply of coal is only sufficient for passenger and way freights for the next two days, unless boats are able to load coal at Fort William at once. All movement of trains will be at a standstill.

WINS SUIT AGAINST I.O.F.

Society Refuses to Pay Alleging False Representation.

Rochester, N.Y., April 20.—A supreme court jury yesterday awarded Mrs. Theresa Bossenbach a verdict for $2,000 against the Supreme Council Independent Order of Foresters; the amount of a policy on the life of her brother, William Marzhauser, of whom she was the beneficiary. The case has been in litigation six years.

The fraternal order refused to pay the policy on the ground that Marzhauser concealed his true habits, alleging that he was a drinking man, while representing himself to be a total abstainer.

No License For Algonquin.

Toronto, April 20.—Premier Whitney stated in the Legislature on Thursday night that even if there were a hotel in Algonquin Park the Government would not issue a license to it.

The question was raised by G. S. May, who asked whether a permit would be issued to erect a summer hotel there, without which visitors were not attracted.

Twenty Thousand Homeless.

Manila, April 20.—The Town of Iloilo, Island of Panay, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning, with the result that 20,000 persons are homeless. The conflagration is still raging and, owing to the heavy wind blowing, it is beyond control.

Quake In Carolina.

Charleston, S.C., April 20.—A slight earth tremor was felt here yesterday. No damage has been reported.

It is asserted in official circles that nothing in the nature of a French naval demonstration is intended off Mogador, Morocco.

CONSPIRACY WAS BOGUS.

Chief of Detectives "Planted" Evidence Against Russian Officers.

St. Petersburg, April 20.—M. Ponomarieff, chief of the Government detectives attached to the Lower House of Parliament, is threatened with dismissal owing to revelations made at Vilna during the trial of military officers and others charged with inspiring to import arms from Germany, the discovery of which caused M. Ponomarieff's promotion.

The court acquitted the accused on the ground that the "conspiracy" was really an invention of Ponomarieff. Evidence taken showed that Ponomarieff planned the hiding of arms, ammunition and bombs purchased abroad in pre-arranged spots, notably in the stable of Col. Miasoyedoff, one of the accused officers.

Ponomarieff's main work in connection with Parliament was to furnish his confidential reports of the doings of the deputies, and it is understood that his highly colored accounts caused much of the friction between Premier Stolypin and the Lower House.

HIS LIFE FOR OTHERS.

Wm. Martineau Played a Hero's Part At Montreal Fire.

Montreal, April 20.—The coroner's jury to investigate the Canada Steam Laundry fire Thursday afternoon when three people lost their lives, was chosen yesterday, but the work of taking evidence was adjourned until next week.

Miss Furlong was employed on the top floor and near at hand were she was stationed was a stairway leading to the roof. It had been a matter of comment on the part of the employes on that floor how easy it would be for them to make their escape to the roof in case of fire. Instead she went to another part of the flat and was lost.

It seems that William Martineau played the part of a hero. He brought several girls out of the fire, and re-entered the building on his errand of mercy, only to himself fall a victim to the flames. He got all the women on the top floor out on the fire escape except one.

VOLCANO'S GREAT DAMAGE.

Showers of Red Hot Ashes Falling—Inhabitants Ruined.

New York, April 20.—A despatch from Lima, Peru, says: The volcano Puyehhue, in the Province of Valdivia, Chile, is still in active eruption and new craters have opened. The losses in the neighboring country are enormous, and the inhabitants are panic-stricken.

Showers of red-hot ashes are falling, and there are continued earthquake shocks, accompanied by underground explosions. Absolute darkness would prevail, but for the light from several fires over an extent of six miles.

A great number of cattle have been killed near Lake Ranco. Several brooks which had furnished drinking water for the people have dried up. The inhabitants, ruined, are fleeing in all directions. The Government has sent assistance.

SMALLPOX NEAR BROCKVILLE.

Contagion Supposed to Have Been Carried Through Newspapers.

Brockville, April 20.—Smallpox has broken out in Kitley Township, a few miles north of Toledo, the victim being a prosperous farmer named Thomas Heffernon.

His wife and two children are the occupants of the house, and these, with an adjoining family exposed to the infection, have been placed under quarantine.

It is thought the man contracted the disease from papers sent through the mails from an American city.

"What if I can make more profit on a powder that you say is just as good"?

"I have no use for those 'just as good' things. And I will not have 'cheap', impure baking powder in my store at any price."

"No, sir! People, who deal here, expect me to protect them against doubtful goods. And I am not going to risk losing good customers by selling a Baking Powder that I can't intelligently recommend."

The Marathon Mystery

A Story of Manhattan

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Holladay Case"

Copyright, 1904, by Henry Holt and Company

Godfrey read this through slowly, dwelling upon it point by point.

"The skeleton," he said to himself, "is pretty plain—it lies concealed somewhere behind Croydon's departure from France. There must have been some unusual reason for that—a reason even more serious, perhaps, than this threatened prosecution—the clippings would tell the story.

"But is it worth while trying to dig it up? It wouldn't be a difficult thing to do if the newspapers handled it at the time, but I don't know," and he stared out through the window with drawn brows. "If it's buried again, I believe I'll let it rest—for the present, anyway," and he whirled back to his desk.

He wrote the story of the day's developments and turned it in.

"We've been lucky," said the city editor, with a gleeful smile as he took the copy. "We've got photographs of all the principals."

"Have we?"

"Yes—they cost $500, but they're worth it. No other paper in town will have 'em."

"That's good," said Godfrey, but it was a half hearted commendation, and he left the office in a frame of mind not wholly amiable. The methods of a popular newspaper are not always above reproach.

"Thank heaven," he added to himself, his face clearing a little, "there's nothing in my story to implicate either Miss Croydon or Mrs. Delroy—there's no hint of the skeleton! I took care of that which," he concluded, with a grim smile, "is mighty forbearing in a yellow journalist!"

What further tests there were to be of his forbearance not even he suspected!

CHAPTER V.

As a matter of course, the affair at the Marathon created a great public sensation. The papers overflowed with details, theories, suggestions to the police, letters from interested readers.

It has long been a habit of mine, when any particularly abstruse criminal mystery is before the public, to pin my faith to the Record. Its other features I do not admire but I knew that Jim Godfrey was its expert in crime, and ever since my encounter with him in the Holladay case I have entertained the liveliest admiration of his acumen and audacity. If a mystery was possible of solution, I believed that he would solve it, so it was to the Record I turned now and read carefully every word he wrote about the tragedy.

I was sitting in my room on the evening of the second day after the affair, smoking a postprandial pipe and reading the Record's stenographic report of the coroner's inquest, when there came a knock at my door and my landlady entered. She held in her hand a paper which had a formidable legal appearance.

"Have you found another apartment yet, Mr. Lester?" she asked.

"No, I haven't, Mrs. Fitch," I said. "I'm afraid I've not been as diligent in looking for one as I should have been."

"Well, I've just got another notice," and she sighed wearily. "They're going to begin tearing down the house day after tomorrow. I can't find another house, so I'm going to put my furniture in storage. I've told the men to come for it tomorrow."

"All right," I said. "If I can't find an apartment to suit, I'll put my stuff in storage, too, and stay at a hotel for awhile. I'll know by tomorrow noon, Mrs. Fitch."

I settled back in my chair and took up my paper again, when a sudden thought brought me bolt upright. Here was an apartment, two rooms and bath, just what I wanted, empty—and, moreover, so situated that I should be admirably placed for close at hand study of the tragedy. I glanced at my watch. It was only half past 7, and I hurried into my coat in a sudden fever of impatience lest some one else should get there before me.

Twenty minutes' walk brought me to the Marathon apartment house, and as I stepped into the vestibule I saw sitting by the elevator a red faced man whom I recognized instantly as Higgins, the janitor. He rose as I approached him.

"You have an apartment here to rent, haven't you?" I asked.

"Not jest now, sir," he answered. "There will be next week—if th' walkin' delegates leaves us alone. You see, th' house is being remodeled."

"Oh," I said, more disappointed than I cared to show. "I thought perhaps there was one I could move into at once. Next week won't do me any good."

He moistened his lips and scratched his head, eying me undecidedly.

"May I ask your name, sir?" he said at last.

I handed him a card which had also the address of my firm, Graham & Royce. He read it slowly.

"We've got one apartment, sir," he said, looking up when he had mastered it; "two rooms an' bath—but it needs a little cleanin' up. When do y' have t' have it?"

"I have to move in tomorrow," I answered, and I told him briefly why. "May I look at this apartment?"

He hesitated yet a moment, then straightened up with sudden resolution.

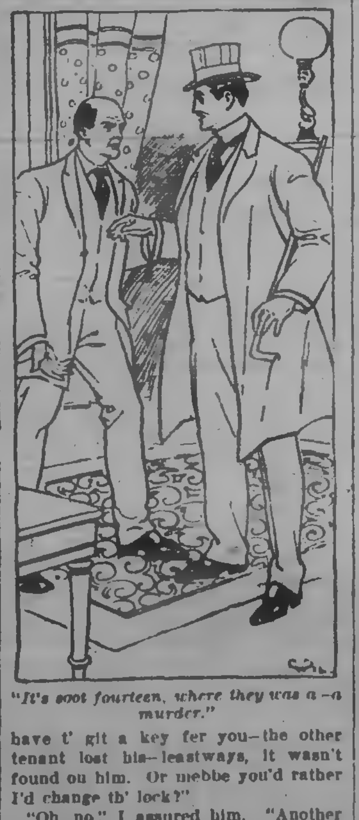
"You kin see it if you want to, sir," he said, "but first I must tell you that it's soot fourteen, where they was a—a murder two days ago."

"A murder?" I repeated. "Oh, yes; I did see something about it in the papers. Well, that doesn't make any difference; I'm not afraid of ghosts."

"Then that's all right, sir," he said, with a sigh of relief, and motioned toward the elevator.

The car stopped and he led the way down the hall.

"Here we are," he said, pausing before a door and producing a bunch of keys. "Which reminds me that I'll have t' git a key fer you—the other tenant lost his—leastways, it wasn't found on him. Or mebbe you'd rather I'd change th' lock?"



"It's soot fourteen, where they was a—a murder."

"Oh, no," I assured him. "Another key will do," and we entered together.

I examined the room with keen interest. Evidently everything had been left just as it was on the night of the crime; only the body had been removed, and it, I knew, was at the morgue waiting identification.

Higgins led the way into the bedroom and opened the door of the bathroom beyond.

"I shall bring my own furniture," I said. "But I haven't any carpets. Perhaps I can buy these. They seem pretty good."

"They are, sir," agreed Higgins. "They're good carpets, and as good as th' day they was put down. It'll make it lots easier for us if we don't have t' take 'em up."

"All right," I agreed. "Find out what they're worth. When can you have the rooms ready?"

He looked at me and scratched his head again. Then, remembering suddenly the nature of janitors, I took out my purse and tipped him.

"Have them ready by tomorrow afternoon," I said. "Get a man to help you, if necessary. I'll expect to be at home here tomorrow night."

"That's all right, sir," he assured me instantly, and just then the elevator bell rang. "There," he added, "it's them confounded artists, too lazy t' walk downstairs. I'll be back in a minute, sir."

I looked about the room. There was the corner where Miss Croydon had cowered, and from which she had shot at Thompson's assailant. There was the spot where Thompson himself had fallen. He had lain extended on the carpet, while the—what was that? A tiny sparkle caught my eye, a reflection of the light overhead. I sprang from my chair and stooped above the place, but could see nothing. I returned to my chair and again caught the reflection. This time I marked it exactly in the pattern of the carpet, went to it carefully, put down my hand—nothing—yes, a little hard point pressed into the carpet, so minute I could not pick it up. I moistened my finger, and an instant later under the light I saw that I had found a diamond!

"Well, have y' got it all fixed, sir?" asked a voice from the door, and I turned with a start to see Higgins standing there.

"Yes," I answered, rousing myself with an effort; and I gave him such directions as occurred to me. "Has any one else been in the rooms?" I asked.

"Say, that's funny!" he cried. "I'd purty nigh fergot it. Early this mornin' they was somebody—a woman." He came close to me and dropped his voice to a hoarse whisper. "D' y' know who I think it was? That Croydon woman!"

I stared at him in amazement.

"Weren't you sure?"

"No; she had a veil wrapped round her head an' she was dressed different. But it was her—I know it."

"And what did she want?" I asked, more and more astonished.

TO STOP COAL STRIKE

Suggestion That Provinces Be Permitted to Work the Mines.

Also to Build and Operate Necessary Railways — Government Asked to Control the Situation—Miners and American Unions—Hon. Mr. Oliver Declares Trouble Is Due to Lack of Transportation Facilities.

Ottawa, April 20.—The most significant event of yesterday's debate upon the coal "strike" in the West was the suggestion by W. F Maclean (South York) to turn over to the prairie provinces their own coal deposits and to leave them free, if they see fit, to adopt provincial operation and to build and operate such railways as may be necessary.

Cut Loose From U. S.

W. E. Knowles, M. P., Regina, also had a telegram from the Regina Board of Trade urging the Dominion Government "to immediately take such action as may seem best to avert the dire calamity."

And further strongly suggest "that the time is opportune for the Dominion Government to take necessary steps towards diverting Canadian miners' unions from dependence upon American organizations and their influence, making these unions thoroughly Canadian."

Mr. Verville protested against the suggestion that the Government should take steps to divorce the Canadian miners from the American unions.

Mr. R. L. Borden declared himself in favor if necessary of taking over the coal mines and having them operated by the Government. He drew attention to the numerous representations from the Boards of Trade at Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

None So Blind as Lemieux.

Mr. Lemieux thought that the various Boards of Trade were getting hysterical. They exaggerated conditions. Some men had quit work at Coleman and Fernie, B. C. That was about all there was to it. Freight and passenger traffic had not ceased.

R. L. Borden asked how many men were on strike? It was reported that at Fernie, B. C., 1,000 men had walked out. Why did not the Government enforce the law? Mr. Borden suggested that the Government should take coal lands and operate the mines.

Give Province a Chance.

W. F. Maclean (South York) was heartily in favor of public ownership and the operation of this great utility. If the Federal Government was not willing to undertake this, then let the coal lands be turned over to their respective provinces and let the Provincial Governments furnish cheap fuel to the West. He pointed out, however, that it was useless for the Government to control the coal mines unless they also owned and operated the railways.

Hon. Mr. Oliver agreed that the problem was essentially a problem of transportation. During the Lethbridge strike he had investigated complaints as to the car supply and coal output. The mine owners assured him that they could not get cars. One company answered that they had been furnished eight cars in ten days, while they require five cars a day. Another company had only had cars two days out of the month. A third mine closed down half the time for want of cars.

Should Prepare.

R. L. Borden could not understand why the coal could not be stored. Mr. Oliver said that this was impracticable. Mr. Blain (Peel) said that enormous quantities of coal were stored every summer in Ontario, so as to prepare for winter.

Mr. Fielding thought that some of the Boards of Trade were unduly excited. They proposed violent and heroic remedies, including the calling out of the militia. It was the object of the Government to prevail, not through coercion, but through conciliation.

Supplementary Estimates.

Ottawa, April 20.—Supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1908, were tabled in the House last night. They amount to $10,941,558, bringing the total appropriation for the year up to $116,631,077.

The items under the head of civil government provide for numerous increases in civil service salaries. It is the intention of the Government to create a new office, that of assistant Deputy Postmaster-General, at a salary of $3,000 a year.

For the first time provision is made for paying duties on articles imported by the Government.

The following appear under the head of arts and agriculture: Enforcement of the Meat and Canned Food Act, $75,000; cold storage warehouses, $50,000; additional for exhibitions, $100,000; for the construction of an electric railway track at the central experimental farm, $15,000.

FOR YOUNG OFFENDERS.

Special Treatment for Juvenile Lawbreakers—Bill In Senate.

Ottawa, April 20.—In the Senate yesterday Hon. R. W. Scott moved the second reading of the Juvenile Delinquents' bill. It was not proposed to press the measure through this session, but to put it before the public for consideration.

The bill declares it "inexpedient that youthful offenders should be classed or dealt with as ordinary criminals, the welfare of the community demanding that they should on the contrary be guarded against association with crime and criminals and should be subjected to such wise care, treatment and control as will tend to check their evil tendencies and to strengthen their better tendencies." Progress had been made in legislation of the sort in Ontario, British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. President Roosevelt had declared that special treatment of youthful offenders was necessary for the good of the state.

Senator MacDonald of Victoria declared that in nine out of ten cases parents were responsible, chiefly through neglect and indifference, for children going wrong.

Senator Cloran stated there had long been crying need for special dealing with young offenders, particularly in Montreal and other centres of population.

Attempted Suicide.

Montreal, April 20.—Almost immediately after the arrival of the train from Toronto at the Bonaventure station yesterday morning a woman, 24 years of age, was noticed to have fallen to the floor, frothing at the mouth, and clutching at the legs of the chairs. Several tablets of bichloride of mercury were still clenched in her hand. She was taken to the hospital and revived, giving her name as Mrs. Hannah Fordham of Toronto. She said her husband had deserted her.

230 Drown.

Berlin, April 20.—Colonial Director Dernburg stated yesterday that a cable message had been received from the Governor of the Island of Yap, announcing that a disastrous typhoon swept over the Caroline Islands on Good Friday last and that 230 of the 800 natives of the Ululthi group were drowned.

Cocoanut trees were destroyed and famine threatened the surviving natives.

Machine Shop Burned.

Welland, April 20.—Fire yesterday morning burned the Robertson machinery Company buildings with contents. They carried some insurance. Valencourt's boiler shops were saved, although badly damaged; no insurance.

S. O. E. Quarters Leased—Large Initiation at Next Meeting

Court Chemong, No. 530, Independent Order of Foresters, which for a number of years have met in the C. O.F. Hall, George street, have now arranged for and rented the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street.

The work of moving the paraphernalia of the court has been completed, so that in future the regular monthly meetings on the last Thursday of each month will be held in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street.

Bro. A. Bradshaw, D.S.C.R., who has recently been the means of adding quite a number of new names to the court, will be on hand with more additions, and Bro. F. C. Rooke, who also helped to increase the membership, will have some new members to initiate so that the initiation ceremony will equal, if not surpass, any of the previous meetings. Bro. G. N. Brown, D.H.C.R., who passed through the city the other day en route for various points in Eastern Ontario, when reminded of the first meeting in the new hall, stated that, should his other numerous appointments permit, he would make a special effort to be present. The first monthly meeting will therefore be held on the evening of Thursday, April 25th, in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, and the members are requested to remind one another of this event so that a large attendance may be the result.

Are You Burning Coal Ashes?

Many Citizens are Trying the Experiment With Much Success.

"Are you burning your coal ashes?" is a question which one Peterborough citizen may be heard frequently asking another.

The city coal men do not appear to be much disturbed over the new discovery for consuming ashes, but several residents have tried the experiment with more or less success.

A few local manufacturers will try the experiment. The George Matthews Co. intend trying it today.

Mr. Snowden of the Snowden House reports that he has experimented with the new fuel and is well satisfied with the results obtained.

A Review man, anxious to ascertain if he could save a few dollars in his fuel bill "took a whirl," at it last night and believes that his demonstration was a success. The following formula is furnished for large furnaces.

To four bushels of ashes add 84 pounds of coal and mix it thoroughly. Dissolve two handsful of common salt in a bucket of water; dampen the ashes and coal with the brine and it is ready for use. Throw a shovelful on the fire and await developments.

If you want to try it on a smaller scale take one shovelful of coal and three of ashes, mix thoroughly and dampen with a solution of salt and water. The brine must be made pretty strong. After the ashes, coal and brine are mixed in a semi-solid mass, like mortar, and your fire is burning brightly, throw the mixture on top. The mixture will, upon being placed on a burning fire, fuse into a coke-like mass and deposit but little residue.

Some of the citizens who have large piles of ashes are holding them at a premium.

The remarkable ashes-burning secret was discovered by John Ellmore, cobbler of Altoona, Pa., which has excited attention the world over. Almost every householder in Altoona is now converting his ashes into fuel with great saving of coal bills.

DRUGGIST TRIES IT.

Mr. A. J. Tovey, druggist, East City, tried the experiment of burning ashes, and was quite successful. Mr. Tovey having read in yesterday's papers how that ashes mixed with certain proportions of common salt and water would give a good heat, decided to put the experiment to the test. The mixture looks very much like mortar, and after being in the stove for a while it forms itself into lumps. It is no exaggeration to say that a far greater heat is produced from this mixture than from coal. Mr. Tovey was highly pleased with the result and in future intends to make use of the ashes

AMUSEMENTS

"THE ROYAL CHEF" Opinion of the Toronto Press

If enthusiasm is an indication of the feeling of an audience towards a production, then "The Royal Chef," which was given its premiere at the Grand Opera House last night, ought to tax the capacity of the theatre at every performance this week, is the opinion of the Toronto Press.

The attraction is one of the best musical plays of the season. Bright, sparkling music, the kind that the audience hums and whistles when it pours out into the street, greeted the hearers at every turn. Ben Jerome the composer, conducted the orchestra last night, and his melodies were given their full effect.

This book and lyrics were written by Stoddard and Taylor, and tell a fairly humorous story. The piece is called a musical comedy, but it is more on the comic opera order. There were encores for every song and many for several, and the whole house participated in the confetti shower which ended the performance. Hundreds of yards of the vari-colored paper, was thrown from stage to balcony, festooning the pit, to be torn down and wrapped about the audience as it sought the exits, while on the stage, the big company was literally buried under confetti, which fell from the flies, or was hurled back from the audience.

Harry Hermsen, who appeared in Toronto, a few years ago, as Hans Nix, in "The Telephone Girl," has the chief comedy role and allows none of the lines to lose their effect. Oscar Ragland has also a part which he presents in an entertaining manner. Gertrude Hutcheson, as Princess Teto, sang the leading female part and shared honors with Elsie Frazee and Aimee Buckley.

The story of the play is a simple one. The royal chef is beheaded because he tried to poison the rajah, and the prime minister is ordered to get a substitute or lose his head. Heinrich Lemphauser, of Chicago, happens along and is installed by the chef. He is captured by the inevitable comic opera bandit, and is released just before the curtain falls on the last act.

The production is mounted in first-class style, nothing being lacking in detail. Of the many song hits, "Let Us Go Back," and "In the Morning," sung by Harry Hermsen, were the most popular.

In the tableau, the management arranged a picture that met with approval, the flags of England and the United States, flying together and the chorus singing a catchy air with the lines, appropriate to the incident.—Toronto World, April 16, '07.

The Supplementary Estimates Give $741,000 For Trent Canal

Total Amount to be Spent on the Canal and in the City is $783,200—Several New Wharfs on the Canal —Total Estimates for the Year, $126,001,463.

Ottawa, April 19.—The supplementary estimates totalling $10,941,558, for the current fiscal year ending March next, were brought down in the Commons to-night by Hon. Mr. Fielding, making the total for the year the astounding figure of $126,001,463.

Of the $10,941,558 voted in the supplementary estimates there will be $783,200 spent in the city of Peterborough and on the Trent canal, while $67,500 will go to the Cobourg Harbor and $15,000 towards dredging at Port Hope.

For the Trent canal the appropriation is $741,000, considerably less than was expected, and an indication that times have changed since Mr. Emmerson resigned as that gentleman had promised a large grant to complete the southern and northern sections. This includes $22,000 for a new dam at Bobcaygeon.

Other amounts included in the supplementary estimates are:—

Peterborough Steamboat landing, $1,200.

Gore's Landing—wharf, $1,000.

Hale's Bridge—wharf on Otonabee, $950.

Lakefield—wharf on Otonabee, $3,850.

River Otonabee—dredging additional at Peterborough, $5,000.

Cobourg Harbor, $67,500.

Port Hope—dredging, $15,000.

Peterborough—Public building revote, $2,000.

Peterborough—Armoury, additional, $30,000.

To provide for the appointment of letter carriers in such cities and towns as the Governor-in-Council may determine, $60,000 is asked.

Presentation of "Sunbonnet" In the Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium

Entertainment Was Great Success—The Troubles of Church Societies Clearly Portrayed—Clever Work by Young Ladies—An Interesting Dialogue.

The gymnasium of the Y.W.C.A. was filled with an appreciative audience last evening to hear the entertainment being given under the auspices of the Domestic Science committee. The main feature of the programme was dialogue in two parts, "Sunbonnets," and this was very enjoyable. Miss Bawden, the Domestic Science teacher, and the young ladies of the Y.W.C.A., who reside in the building, are to be congratulated on the success of the evening. The dialogue portrays the jealousy existing between two societies of a certain church, the Woman's Aid Society and the Ladies' Benevolent Society. These were to be entertained at the same house, but on different days by Mrs. Butterfield, (Miss Ross) and by her boarder, Mrs. Debois, (Miss Dean). For some reason the day of the Woman's Aid Society meeting was changed to the same day as that of the Ladies' Benevolent Society and then the trouble began. How to keep the ladies of the different societies separate and avoid unpleasantness was the next question and the working out of the problem was very amusing. It was eventually ofund out by a letter received by the secretary of each society that both were working with the same idea, the support of a missionary in Honolulu. A truce was declared between the two societies and they decided to work together in future.

To Miss Bawden belongs the credit of originating and carrying out the dialogue and she was ably assisted by the other young ladies, who did their parts with much cleverness. Those who also appeared in character were Misses Ross, Hazel Dean, Hallett, Burns, Lochead, Cummer, Glady, Fry, Lillian Dean and Marion Denne.

All these young ladies were dressed in costumes of the grandmother's time and looked very quaint and charming.

In addition there was a short musical programme. Miss Reesor sang "Happy days gone by," with violin obligato, played by Miss Kathleen Wallis. Miss W. Gumpricht gave a brilliant piano solo that was much enjoyed. Miss Kathleen Wallis gave a violin solo, her accompaniment being played by Miss Gladys Crane. The entertainment was a great success financially and the committee are much pleased with the result. The members of the committee under whose auspices it was held are Mrs. Gressman, Mrs. Hunter, Miss Emma Morrow, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Robert Neill and Mrs. Denne, convenor.

Coal Merchants on Cobbler's Invention for Burning Coal Ashes

Difference of Opinion—Some Call it a Fake While Others are Convinced That it is a Good Thing—People Will Save from 15 to 20 Per Cent.

The local coal men, the parties who will be affected most by the cobbler's discovery, which enables one to burn the coal ashes, are not as excited as one would imagine. Some of the dealers, of course, sneer at the idea. It is impossible, they say, while others claim the reports are only newspaper yarns published for the purpose of reducing the price of coal. One of the largest firms claim it is a great fake, and they have so much fear of their business being decreased that they are buying more coal than ever.

Mr. Robert Hicks, of R. Hicks & Co., who handle probably as much coal as any other firm in the city, says that he is convinced that the cobbler has produced a good thing. He has known for the past couple of years that a large part of the ashes from the coal stove or furnace will burn again by being cut. He has burned them in his own furnace with great success. But he had not thought of the salt and oxalic acid, but he will try it to-day and on Monday. He firmly believes, however, that it will be the greatest fuel saving device ever produced.

Asked as to what difference it would make in the coal bill, Mr. Hicks figured that the people would benefit to the extent of 15 to 20 per cent. That is, if one bought five tons of coal one ton would be saved But there is only 30 per cent. ashes in coal, and therefore, the coal business will not be killed outright. After the first supply of ashes has run out more coal will have to be burned to make more ashes. The bulk of the business will be decreased, but so will the expense of handling it, so that the total profits will not be materially effected. Continuing, Mr. Hicks said he believed this invention would be of wonderful benefit to the world. As he had not tried it yet he could say nothing about the nature of the compound or the direct results. He did not doubt but that it would work perfectly satisfactory in furnace, but he would not be so sure about a range or self-feeding coal stove. The people however can experiment for themselves as he intends to do

Well Known Citizen Burned Ashes and Salt in Coal Stove

Tried the Cobbler's Process With Greatest Satisfaction and Success—House so Hot They Could Not Sleep —His Method.

A prominent citizen who had been somewhat wrought up by the fuel question, and other things tending to increase the difficulty of house keeping, determined to prove the value of the cobbler's invention of burning ashes and experimented with entire satisfaction. First of all he took some salt and water and dumped into it a half pail of ashes, and a few bits of coal. This he mixed up and put onto the fire, more with the idea of extinguishing what fire there was than with any hope of producing sparkling effects. To his amazement and gratification the viscid mass burned slowly and produced a great heat, and to all appearances passed entirely away.

Encouraged by his success, the experimentor purchased a small qauntity of oxalic acid and followed the advice of the engineer's in Toronto, as furnished last night by this paper. He took half a pail of water, and placed into it two handsful of common salt. Then he took a shovel full of ashes which contained a small quantity of coal, as they had not been screened, and threw that into the water. Next he put in the oxalic acid, and by great exertion he succeeded in making it look like a batter pudding on rampage. Without chemical warrant, he added however, another half a pail of ashes, and upon a fire, totalling in volume not more than three quarts of live coals he put three small shovels full of this compound and turned on the drafts. The fire seemed to like it and in two and a half hours every part of the stove was red hot. Before retiring for the night and in order to give a fair, complete and final test, the rest of the mixture was dumped onto the fire. Throughout the night, under mild draft, the fire burned, and the heat was intense, and this morning, nine hours after, there was a fine residue of hot burning mass.

There can be no question that this experiment was a complete and convincing success. Several citizens in the neighborhood were called in at different times to bear witness, and they will all testify to the facts. The proportion of coal and ashes was ten to one, a rather long shot.

As the residue of ashes after the fire amounts to about a quarter of the total bulk of coal This ash and smoke consuming process, therefore, means the saving of that quantity of coal, and has further the result of giving much greater heat than the same quantity of coal.

Steamer Monarch Arrived in Port

Capt. Harris Brought up 35 Passengers on His First Trip

Railway wharf this morning, with his steamer, the Monarch from Gore's Landing. This is the first trip of the season, and it is just four months and twenty days since the last trip was made, it being on December 1st.

The Monarch left Gore's Landing at half past six this morning and was unable to get into Harwood on account of ice. During the night a large cake broke and blocked both sides of the bridge. The trip up was unusually slow on account of the very swift current. The boat arrived at 10.30, but it will go down a great deal faster.

On board the Monarch were between 35 and 40 passengers, all glad to get on the boat again. Next Saturday, Capt. Harris expects to get his boat right up to the Wolfe Street wharf.

A Plan to Prevent Railway Accidents

Makes it Possible to Telegraph to and From Running Trains

A young Canadian, Albert J. Hitch, of Windsor, Ont., has, according to the "Canadian Engineer," invented and patented a railway signal apparatus, which it is claimed will completely revolutionize railway operation rendering accidents either by collision and derailment at open switches practically impossible. Operators will not be needed at the smaller stations, since it enables despatchers to send messages to trains without the use of telegraphy. It will also enable him to know at all times where each train is, at what speed it is travelling, and whether the numerous switches are open or closed.

The device, which is protected by patents in Canada and the United States is known as the "Know-Hitch Railway Signalling Apparatus." Many prominent railway men have examined the apparatus, and all are of opinion that it is the most complete arrangement of the kind that has been invented, and in consequence they are much in favor of its adoption. Some are of the opinion that sooner or later the invention will be used on all first-class roads, and already Mr. Hitch has received offers for the purchase of his patent, although it has been made public only a short time.

For every few miles of road there is a "casing" just inside one of the rails, and of the same height. This casing has wires connecting it with the divisional point, and when the train passes over it a message is transmitted on the principle of telegraphy opening or closing an electric circuit. The "casing" is about the same height as the rails and is set on springs, and beneath the spring plate are the ordinary telegraphic instruments. When the train passes over this casing the flange of the wheel depresses the spring plate, and in so doing completes the circuit, thereby transmitting a message to the despatcher's office, where it operates an indicator giving the exact position of the train, and at the same time distant telegraphic signal.

The system for sending messages to trains is entirely separate, and is done by means of a third rail of a much lighter material than the regular rail. This third rail is placed just outside the usual rails and the locomotive is fitted with trolly wheels that run on the same. These rails are electrically connected, and connections are made with the despatcher's office that enable him to ring the bell in the cab, an incandescent lamp being lighted at the same time. The blocks are placed ten miles apart, and each one is connected with the main office by separate wires, so that the despatcher can send a message to any particular engineer, without sending one to every engineer along that line. When the signal is being sent an electric light in the office shows whether the line is in working order or not. These two systems will give the despatcher entire control over the line in his section.

The inventor who was formerly an operator on Wabash at Paynes' Mills, not far from St. Thomas believes that the combination system can be put in at a cost not exceeding four thousand dollars per ten miles of road.

Maple Syrup Was Plentiful To-day

Sap Has Run Well During the Past Week—Other Prices

This mornings' market was a hummer, a larger amount of produce being offered for sale than for several weeks past. There was not much new in the offerings, however, and prices showed no great inclination to get out of the groove.

Maple Syrup was again offered freely and sold at 30c to 35c. per quart. Those who had it for sale stated that there has been a greta run of sap during the past week, the weather being everything necessary for a good flow of the saccharine fluid. Although the season was not a good one at first, there has been a change and the country folk state that this has been one of the best maple sugar years for a long time.

Eggs sold at 15c to 16c per dozen and were in good demand at these figures. There was a large supply on hand and business was active in this line. Butter was quoted at 25c to 27c per pound and was also in active demand. In the line of poultry, chickens were about the only thing in sight and sold at 75c to $1.00 per pair, according to size.

Potatoes were plentiful and sold at 80c to 85c per bag. Beef was 5c and 6c per pound, and pork 10c and 11c.

In other lines there were no changes to note, prices being about the same as last week.

Our Choicest Boiling Beef from 5 to 8c per lb—Kennedy's Phones 275.

Dog Poisoner Again at Large

Miscreant Will be Given Warm Reception if Caught

The dog poisoner is again abroad. Four dogs are dead as a result, it is thought, of arsenical poisoning. The police should make a determined effort to apprehend the fiend who causes the death of canines, that are much valued by their owners and do no harm to any one.

The dog, after taking arsenic, is seized with convulsions and generally dies a few hours later. Dr. Johnston, V.S., was called to see these animals yesterday.

A fine black spaniel belonging to the family of Rev. J. C. Davidson was poisoned yesterday and died today.

A black and tan hound owned by Mr. T. J. Parker, Hunter street, and a hound, the property of Mr. Llewellyn Hall, also met death yesterday by poisoning.

A canine belonging to Mr. Peter Wanner, corner of Brock and Water streets, passed away yesterday, while a fox terrier of Mr. John Watson, Chambers street, came nearly meeting a similar fate, but was saved by the the prompt services of a veterinary surgeon.

"Daylight Man" to Run After Dark

Clothing Proprietor and His Head Clerk Will Race To-night

There will be a Marathon race in Peterborough tonight when Mr. J. T. C. Lang, of Lang & Maher, proprietors of "The Daylight Store," will run Mr. Geo. Wesley, head clerk of the firm.

The race will start at 11 o'clock at the corner of George and Hunter streets and will end at Smith street, the sprinters going up George street. Mr. Lang is known as "The Daylight Man," but he is going to run after dark while Mr. Wesley believes that he is an embryo Longboat.

Messrs. Lang and Wesley have of late had some warm discussions over sprinting and the Marathon road race of yesterday in which each has been proclaiming his ability and endurance. The outcome of so much "talk" has been a challenge and the contest in the sprinting line will take place at eleven o'clock tonight over the course mentioned.

Great interest centres in the event

HOW WISE MEN MAKE MONEY VERY FAST

By buying Land in the way of a growing city, you convert your dollar into hundreds and your hundreds into thousands. The more you buy the more money you must make. A friend of mine bought land at $100 per acre 10 miles outside the limits of Chicago and less than 20 years after sold it for $5000 per acre, making $4,900 profit per acre. I offer you Land on "Western Ave." ½ mile outside Peterborough limits and in the way of its most rapid growth, in blocks of 8 lots 30x140 ft. for $75 per lot and only ask you to pay $10 cash and $5 per month. This is your opportunity to convert a few dollars into hundreds. Within a few years those lots will sell for from $300 to $400 each and perhaps for double my estimate. Build a house or I will build one for you, plant your garden and you are on the high road to a rich and happy man. I await your call and will guide you right.

Big Crowd Present at Closing Exercises of the Gymnasium

Excellent Programme Was Given—Members of Different Classes Show Much Skill—Basketball Match a Feature.

The closing exercises of the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium last night were a great success. The scores of young athlets who performed on the "gym" floor, the enthusiasm with which they entered into their work, and the gallery overcrowded with spectators recalled the glory of former days, when the "Y." was the gathering place for hundreds of young men. The closing exercises last night, clearly demonstrated that there has been a revival of interest during the past winter, and that the athletic department is in better condition at present than it has been for several years. Gymnastic work, basketball, fencing and music, all had a place on the programme which was one that delighted the large number present. And by the way, the attendance was one of the gratifying features of the exhibition. The gallery was filled, in fact, overcrowded with spectators, and a number of young men and boys had to be given seats downstairs in the gymnasium. Every class in the gymnasium was represented in the exhibition, and the excellent work done by the boys was greeted by hearty applause. They showed that the time spent in the gymnasium during the winter, had not been lost and that Mr. Dingman is a capable instructor.

Mr. G. L. Galley, chairman of the physical committee, presided, and the programme opened with class apparatus work by the junior school boys. In this the boys showed much proficiency. This was followed by a musical dumb-bell drill by the junior school boys.

A vocal solo by Miss Olive Howell was a pleasing feature of the programme and was enthusiastically received.

The obstacle race and Indian club race by the junior school boys were also interesting events and well deserved the applause they evoked.

The final bout for the fencing championship between Max Dobbin and Eddie Mann, was won by the latter, after an exciting contest. The winner was presented with a set of foils by the fencing master, Sergeant Major Brittain.

An exhibition of wrestling was given by Harvey Staunton and A. Elliott. It was a clever exposition and was won by Elliott. He took the first fall and the second bout resulted in a draw.

The wrestling bout was followed by work on the parallel bars and mats by the intermediate leaders' corps, assisted by H. Lees and D. Lees of the junior leaders' corps. For juniors the work of the Lee brothers was exceedingly clever and was greeted with great applause.

BASKETBALL MATCH.

The basketball match between the Harriers and a picked team, resulted in a victory for the Harriers by 48 points to 26. It was an interesting struggle and was witnessed with great interest. The teams were as follows,—

Harriers—Defence, W. Campbell and R. Best; centre, R. Dobbin; forwards, E. Best and W. Richardson.

Picked Team—Defence, F. Turner and L. Dobson; centre, H. Staunton, forwards, F. Cressman and N. Darling.

Mr. Jack Laing made a satisfactory referee.

Altogether the closing exercises were a great success and augur well for the future success of the athletic department.

Special Attractions for Big Industrial Exhibition

Company of Wonderful Dogs—Billiard Table Comiques and Nature's Most Graceful and Sensational Contortionist and Acrobat.

Arrangements have been completed by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for the special attractions at the big show next fall. The show is going to be big in every department and big from a financial and successful point of view. The special attractions will be quite in keeping with everything else. One day this week the agent for the New York Vaudeville Contracting Co. was in the city and met members of the Association. As a result, the thousands of people who will attend the fair will be entertained by Mlle. Pauke with her big company of trained dogs, including the best educated and high leaping greyhounds; Miss Bessie Phillips, nature's most graceful and sensational contortionist and acrobat. She performed at New York's Hippodrome Theatre for six week.

George and Georgie, the wonderful billiard table comiques, will be seen in this and several other acts.

This combination will undoubtedly be a great drawing card. It is the same as Owen Sound is having, and promises to be first class in every respect.

TEAM OF HORSES SOLD FOR $612

R. Hicks Disposed of His Big Team to Wholesale Firm in Moncton N. S.

Six hundred and twelve dollars is not often paid for a pair of dray horses in this part of the Dominion. However, Mr. J. Harris, of the firm of J. Harris & Co., wholesale grocers, of Moncton, N.S., has purchased the handsome team Mr. R. Hicks purchased a year ago for his cartage business. M. Harris was in the city some time ago and he happened to see the team at the Quaker Oats Mills. He at once made inquiries, and yesterday the deal was closed, and the horses will be shipped on Monday. Mr. Harris will have to pay almost another hundred dollars to have his new team delivered, but when they are put on the streets of Moncton they will create as much interest as when they first appeared in this city. The animals are without exception the handsomest pair of drays that could be found, not only in Peterborough, but in the whole district, and Mr. Hicks will have trouble in replacing them.

Small Houses in Great Demand

Many More Dwellings Needed to Lease at $9 and $10 per Month

The houses which are in the greatest demand and rent the quickest are those which rent at nine and ten dollars per month, was the answer given a Review representative by local real estate agents in reply to the question—"What houses rent the quickest?" In fact it is the answer of all the real estate men and there are comparatively few of this class of houses to rent.

J. T. O'Connell & Co. stated yesterday that whilst they had a number of houses for sale, they had few to rent. Those at modern prices were taken long before they were vacated. Whilst there was never any trouble in disposing of a house to rent, this firm said that there was not such activity in real estate this spring as last year. There were not so many people moving, but this fact is probably due to the cold weather which has been such a disagreeable feature of this spring. As soon as the warm weather comes it is then the moving will commence and changes in real estate will be more frequent.

Mr. A. Brown, who has been in the real estate business for many years, stated that there was a great demand for rented houses and especially those at nine and ten dollars a month. Mr. Brown had a house in a terrace to rent at $10 a month, which will not be vacated until May 12th. This was spoken for some time ago. It is just but another instance which shows the necessity of building a number of houses at moderate rents. At this season of the year when there are many people coming from the Old Country and a large number of them settling in this city, there is bound to be a house famine. These newcomers cannot pay the high rents.

Messrs. C. Blewett, R. A. Elliott & Co., W. Might, George Ruth, J. J. Bain, & Son, Bell & Taylor, H. C. Stabler, T. Hurley and others bear out the statement that there is an exceedingly great demand from the laboring man for houses which rent at prices corresponding to the wages he earns.

As far as properties for sale are concerned most real estate men report business brisk and a good many houses and farms have changed hands this spring, although the weather conditions have not been desirable.

Mr. Turner Tells of Some Appalling Scenes at Chapleau Wreck

Mr. E. E. Turner of London, Eng., traveller for dry goods firm of Paris, France, was in the city today visiting some of the dry goods stores of the city. Mr. Turner was one of the fortunate passengers on the C. P.R. train which was wrecked last Thursday, twenty-five miles west of Chapleau. A Review representative called on Mr. Turner today, and he related his experience of the wreck. The disaster was one of the most appalling that has occurred on the C. P. R. for some time. The wreck was not so deadly in its effect as was the awful fire, which followed, in which fifteen persons were burned to death and between thirty and forty others were seriously injured.

Mr. Turner was on a business trip to Victoria and Vancouver, B. C. The train on which they were travelling consisted of a baggage car and three colonists cars. A large number of immigrants were on their way to the west. Mr. Turner was in the last car. About 25 miles west of Chapleau, they came to the steep embankment where the train fell over. Mr. Turner said that he hardly realized at the time what had happened. He was sitting in the car chatting away to a friend, when the catastrophe occurred. There was an awful bumping backwards and forwards. Mr. Turner says that he grabbed two seats and then it was awfully hard for him to keep his feet. When the sudden stop came he was only a quarter of a minute in leaving the car. He was about the third person out and quickly climbed to the top of the embankment. It was in the first car that such a loss of life occurred. The colonists car stove was the immediate cause of the blaze. The fire from the stove soon caught on to the gas and in a few minutes the coach was wrapped in flames. The panic was something indescribable. Women and children were screaming and shrieking. There was a mad rush for the doors, and women were being pulled through windows. It was impossible to get them all through and many were left to perish in the flames. Mr. Turner said that the ones in the back cars could do nothing to help the others, as the car was enveloped with flames. It was a sight which he never would forget.

Mr. Turner added that had the cars been modern such loss of life would not have occurred. In the first place the cars should have been lighted with electricity. It was due to gas igniting that the flames spread so rapidly. If the cars had been built with doors on the sides the people could have all got out.

After the wreck, Mr. Turner abandoned his trip to the west, and returned to Toronto. He left Peterborough today for Montreal.

SOLAR PHYSICS WAS DISCUSSED

Interesting Lecture at Meeting of Astronomical Society

Solar Physics was the subject dealt with at the meeting of the Peterborough section of the Astronomical Society at their meeting in the Y.M.C.A. hall last night. The principal part of the evening was occupied by an address on the sun by Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, president of the society, whose remarks were listened to with great pleasure by the large number in attendance, and proved exceedingly interesting and instructive. The lecture was illustrated by a large number of stereopticon views of the sun and other heavenly bodies, the majority of the slides being made from photographs. This added greatly to the speaker's remarks, and made the lecture much more interesting than would have been the case without them.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Pringle, vice-president of the Society, who presided in a most capable manner. The programme was opened by a song by Mr. Freeland, who has an excellent voice and was warmly received last evening.

In speaking of the sun, Dr. Marsh stated at the beginning, that it was not much use dwelling on the distance of the solar body from the earth. The distance between the two bodies, 93 million miles, was so great that the human mind could not grasp it. The sun is the centre of our solar system. Around it the different planets revolve and are kept in position by the centre body. Although several hundred times larger than the earth, the sun is only a speck in the great dome of the heavens. If it were to disappear it would not be missed among the myriads of stars that form the wonderful canopy of the skies. We on this earth would miss it, in fact we would cease to exist, just as soon as the sun was gone, but if some astronomer was left to view the heavens after the sun had disappeared he would likely only remark that one small star was missing from the great dome. The sun is a star, one of the second magnitude. Stars of the first magnitude are bluish-white in color, and those of the second magnitude yellow. The sun is one of the latter. It is the source of all heat, life, vegetation, in fact, of nearly everything that exists on earth. The mighty rivers that carry their waters to the sea, the roar of the torrent, the music of the little brook that trickles down through the mountains, the green on the hillside and the vegetation that clothes our plains, are all the work of the sun. It has been only during the past fifteen years that astronomers have been able to study the sun satisfactorily. It is impossible to view it through an ordinary telescope owing to the great heat and light. But during the past fifteen years instruments have been invented that can be adjusted to the telescope, which make it possible for the astronomer to study the sun with as much ease as he would turn his glass on the moon if he desired to view that body closely. The object of the instruments invented is to turn aside the heat and light of the sun and to let only a small quantity of these strike the eyepiece of the telescope when it is in position for observing the great solar body. The views shown of the sun showed the photosphere, chromosphere and seculae of the sun, and also the solar prominences. The latter are the great fires that belch out from the edge of the sun and shoot off into space thousands of miles. They can be seen very plainly with a telescope and are a wonderful sight. Dr. Marsh expressed the opinion that meteors and comets were caused by this matter, which shoots off from the sun. His theory was that at times these great fires belched so far out into space that they got beyond the sun's gravity and kept on travelling through the heavens. The sun, said Dr. Marsh, is a great gaseous, molten body that is forever on fire.

At the close of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Marsh was moved by Mr. D. W. Dumble, and seconded by Mr. J. Coyle Brown.

Several minor matters in connection with the Society were discussed before the close of the meeting. A number of new members were added to the roll. The total membership of the branch now numbers 45.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, May 3rd, when Prof. Chant, of Toronto, a prominent astronomer, will give another lecture on solar physics, taking up other phases of the subject than those dealt with last night. The local branch is making great progress, a fact that was evidenced by the well filled hall last evening.

TELLS STORY OF DEVOTED LIFE

Miss Donoghue Reads Able Paper on "The Lily of Quito"

A large audience assembled last evening at the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S., in the Assembly Hall, to enjoy the excellent program presented. This consisted of an able essay on "The Lily of Quito," by Miss V. Donoghue, and a bright musical programme, introduced by Miss Crowley, who occupied the chair for the evening.

In very beautiful language, quite in harmony with the life of this humble servant of God, Miss Donoghue, in a pleasing manner, presented to the audience, a most accurate account of her life showing wherein she was an exemplification of piety, humility and patience.

The following is a short resume of this interesting essay,—

For the purpose of manifesting the force of His Divine grace, and of enlivening the fervor of faith among the inhabitants of South America, it pleased Almighty God at the commencement of the seventeenth century, to place before the world a most astounding example of extraordinary perfection and holiness in the person of "The Lily of Quito," which she was so fittingly called. Her advent was hailed with inconceivable joy, and she served as a shining light to all humanity.

Her birth took place on the 31st of October, 1618. Her father was a nobleman, a descendant of one of the most illustrious of Spanish families of that kingdom. Her parents possessed so much devotion and Christian piety, that they were as a model to the whole community, in which they resided.

At its earliest infancy God took possession of the precious soul and filled it with the treasures of His grace, preparing it for that lofty perfection, to which from all eternity he had destined it. As the devout child advanced in years, she daily increased in perfection. A disrelish and disgust for the things of earth, a love of solitude and silence, a fervor of piety and devotion, and the greatest delicacy of conscience were every day more and more visible. Her life was one of solitude in her own home, where she subjected herself to various forms of penance. When not employed in innocent occupations, her time was spent in acts of piety. Her cell became her paradise, prayer her element, and she enjoyed that tranquil faith, which is the sweetest worship, because it seems to say that all is at peace, because God is concerned.

Although extraordinary graces were bestowed upon this pious soul, yet she received very severe crosses. Realizing as she did that "Suffering is the one grand similitude of Christ," she bore all her sufferings with the sweetest patience. During the last years of her life, she suffered much. On the 26th of May, 1645 after a very severe illness which she bore with unparalelled fortitude, her pure spirit quitted her mortal body, and was calmly yielded into the hands of her Creator, whom she had so faithfully served.

For a just soul like hers, death was something sweet and desirable, delighted as it was at the idea of reaching its longed-for goal. Her mortal remains were consigned to the tomb with all the ceremonies befitting such a happy death.

The fame of the wonderful "Lily of Quito," and the odor of her heroic virtues still remain, not only in South America, but in all parts of the Catholic world where her memory will ever remain as a model of extraordinary patience and suffering.

The heroic virtues of this precious soul were very ably portrayed by Miss Donoghue and the essay proved to be a source of much interest to all who had the pleasure of hearing it.

The musical programme, both in the selection and the manner of presenting it, afforded much pleasure to the audience. The various renditions reflected much credit upon the performers and proved to be most artistic.

The following was the musical programme presented,—

Instrumental—Miss B. Flynn.

Vocal Solo—Miss N. Fitzgerald.

Vocal Solo—Master Jos. Clancy.

The accompanists of the evening Misses Geraldine Rudkins and Josie Clancy.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, April 26th, when a paper on "The Heroines of Shakespeare," will be read by Miss K. McGrath.

INTENSIFIED FRUIT JUICES AN IMPROVEMENT ON NATURE

A Discovery that is Revolutionizing Medicine.

Remarkable Success Attends the Finding of a New Medicinal Compound by Combining the Juices of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

Fruit helps to keep one healthy. Fruit, in itself, will not cure disease. The medicinal principle—or that part of fruit which has a curative effect—is in such infinitesimal quantities, that it is unable to overcome a diseased condition of the stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys or skin.

Just here is where science stepped in. An Ottawa physician did what nature could not do. He first found that some fruits were stronger medicinally than others—and that apples, oranges, figs and prunes contained all the healing properties of other fruits. There are two principles in fruit juices—bitter and sweet. After extracting the juices of the four fruits mentioned, this physician succeeded in replacing one atom of the sweet principle by one of the bitter. This resulted in an entirely new combination being formed. This new compound was many times more active medicinally than the fruit juices. Where eating fruit only helped to keep one well, this compound actually cured disease.

To make it more valuable still, this physician added the finest tonics and antiseptics, and then, by evaporating the entire compound to a powder, made it into tablets.

This, in short, is the method of making "Fruit-a-tives"—these wonderful tablets — the most reliable cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Stomach Troubles, Kidney and Bladder Disease and Skin Affections. Being made from fruit, "Fruit-a-tives" may be taken by women and children without fear of ill-effect.

Don't take a substitute. If your druggist does not handle them, send 50c for a box to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Mr. Culverwell Explains Matters Regarding Healey Falls Power

Whole Question is Left in the Hands of the Cabinet to Deal Out Justice—Several Misleading Statements Corrected—The Situation at the Present Time.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, managing director of the Northumberland Power Co., has sent the following letter to the Toronto Telegram:—

Editor of Toronto Telegram.

Sir,—On behalf of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co., Limited, and as its managing director, I wish to state that your article re Healey Rapids in Monday's issue of the Telegram requires correction by us, much as we desire for the present to leave the whole matter in the hands of the Cabinet to deal out justice.

The tenor of the whole article shows inspiration from the chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission or Mr. Cecil B. Smith, its engineer, and I cannot help but remark that it would be more fitting for the chairman instead of rushing to the newspapers to gloss over his defections—rather to make explanations to the Cabinet, written charges having been made by us against him and Mr. Smith.

There will be no bomb thrown by well primed liberals as the article intimates, for at my request Liberal members have consented to refrain this session from bringing the matter up in the Legislature, I having explained the fact that we expected justice from the Cabinet when they became fully seized of the whole facts of the case. Indeed it is not a matter of politics. Instead it is something like the case of the watch dog becoming a wolf and should only be treated in that light.

The statement in the article that our Company had been unable to procure the necessary consent from the Dominion Government is also wrong. When some twelve municipal councils interviewed Dominion Government a year ago to secure the lease of their portion of the Healey Rapids for our company, we were informed by the Government while receiving our request favorably, it was necessary for us to wait until the Trent Valley canal survey was completed and reports laid before the House. Just recently this happened and we had arranged for a deputation from the nine ridings on the lake front to interview the Dominion Government on our behalf, when suddenly we learned that certain members of the Hydro-Electric Commission were evidently not acting in good faith either with the Government or with the public, and since then we have been endeavoring to have this this trouble settled and our Ontario Government lease as previously promised. We therefore think in the meantime our Ottawa trip should be delayed.

Letters of the company signed by several officials have been addressed to the Cabinet. In effect we charged that Mr. C. B. Smith, while a member of the Hydro-Electric Commission and even now its consulting engineer, has been and is antagonistic to our company, endeavoring to thwart its progress in every way possible, directly and indirectly—becoming President of the Northumberland Paper & the Electric Co. at Campbellford, and having for months past been competing with our company and endeavoring to procure large contracts for electric power at Belleville, thirty-five miles away, for his own private company. We charged him also with using the information and prestige secured by him as a commissioner and as the engineer in forwarding and promoting his own private interest in opposition to our company.

We since have also charged the chairman of Commission with permitting himself to be used by Mr. Smith thwarting our company's progress and aiding Mr. Smith in his private operations, and we protested vigorously against a Cabinet Minister and Government employee using their position to the detriment of a company, which is strongly backed by the people in this vicinity interested and generously treated by other members of the Cabinet.

Then there is to us a still more serious aspect of the trouble. In our statement of the 15th inst., we reminded the Premier and Cabinet that when a large number of municipal councils interviewed him and Hon. F. Cochrane and other Cabinet members a year ago, he stated that we need not fear the other applicant since then we were granted the lease. We also informed the Premier that he would be surprised to learn that Mr. C. B. Smith, while a commissioner became a partner in the Power Co., owning a portion of Ranney Rapids, whose present manager R. B. Rogers, is the very competitor, that we first complained of, and whose associates had been interfering with us at Ottawa in the Healey Rapids matter.

Our desperate predicament is thus seen when our Provincial Healey Rapids Lease is not yet renewed, and the chairman of the commission stating recently to a lake front legislator that he would block our renewal of the lease, and also previously intimating through some means to Kingston people that he would block the lease, and about the same time to another legislator that power would be transmitted to the lake front from the Trent River from another source than from the Northumberland Power Co. This last statement of the chairman caused me to write a letter to him, dated March 5th, from Kingston, which, however, drew no answer from him as other "kindly" letters did also. His last statement to this legislator was made no doubt to block my Company organization at that time at Kingston. In fact, some of the wealthiest men in Kingston have agreed to subscribe largely for stock upon our Ontario lease being renewed, but at the same time they informed me that it was reported, and they felt so, too, that the chairman of the Commission would block us.

This stand of the Commission's chairman is all the more extraordinary after having only a few weeks before on January 1th, told a deputation from five ridings of leading Liberals and Conservatives, which waited on our behalf upon him, and the Hon. F. Cochrane (now abroad) that he would do nothing detrimental to our interests, and also let the deputation to believe that the lease would be renewed subject to the new terms to be imposed, to which we consented. We had shown that it was really the fault of the Government that we were not able to start actual construction in the four months' limit, on account of our not securing until after the time limit, the patent from the Government of the 56 acres of land required for a raceway and power works on account of the blockade of politicians antagonistic to us, and who eventually caused us to pay $20.00 per acre to a mere squatter for worthless farming land, valued in the department at $1.00 per acre. However, we were fortunate to secure a settlement at all."

I interviewd the chairman of the Legislature lobby (recently before laying our charges before the Cabinet, and upon complaining to him of Mr Smith's unfair actions, he treated me in a most churlish manner, notwithstanding my letters and telegrams to him to show we were doing our utmost to conform to the Commission's programme and to the spirit of the Electric Act. In fact the chairman stated it would be the worse for us if I said anything about Smith, and added, that "Smith is engineer and is going to remain engineer."

Upon my request that he would again intimate publicly that he would do nothing detrimental to the interests of our Company so as to offset the feeling in the lake front, that he would block us, he replied that he would give his statement only to the Cabinet. Yet the next day he told a lake front legislator (so this gentleman informed me, and also a third party since), that he would block our lease. Certainly by his actions all through the chairman has evidenced that feeling.

We want from the Government speedily the renewal of our lease and protection from the detrimental actions of Government officials which are harmful to the interests of our shareholders, who compose the largest manufacturers and business men on the lake front (high in both parties), including the writer, who have subscribed thousands of dollars in good faith

We desire to transmit power to Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton, Belleville, Kingston and district from Healey Rapids, as called for in the Hydro-Electric Commission report, and we own already several portions of the Healey Rapids and also the land requisite for the works. Further, the writer has purchased this winter portions of all the other large powers on the Trent River to endeavor to carry out the unification power scheme as advised in the Commission's report, and in fact has purchased as much power of Ranney Rapids itself as Mr. C. B. Smith's Company owns.

Here I wish to publicly intimate that Mr. Smith's Company is not able to fulfil either of the two large contracts that he is attempting to secure at Belleville, for the simple fact that their available one thousand horse power at Ranney Rapids will not supply 4,500 h.p., and especially so 35 miles distant.

Further, the chairman and engineer will find, too, that the alleged forefeiture of our Healey lease will necessarily, at the worst, be inquired into legally, not only because it was not our fault that we did not get sufficient land included in our lease as requested, for development works, but it was also not our fault that we did not get the patent of the land until three days after our lease time limit expired, the fact that the Government did issue that patent after lease time limit expired, showed that the lease was not forfeited, and also showed the intention on their part not to formally cancel the lease, as was also further shown when we were promised the lease extension when our deputation asked for it on our behalf.

We do not intend to be played with fast and loose by a Cabinet Minister-chairman with impunity—especially by one who professes so loudly Public Ownership on the platform and aids his friends in private ownership on the side—with power delivered to the consumer direct, for that is what a letter signed by C. B. Smith, as president of the Northumberland Paper and Electric Co. offers to a large manufacturer in Belleville, and that, too, while a member of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Our worthy Premier stated recently before the Private Bills Committee that he would avoid, as he would avoid a pestilence, anything of the nature of confiscation, and it was therefore with a spirit of trustfulness that I read that statement, while certain Government officials show an inclination of this spirit.

In conclusion I wish to express our appreciation of the courtesy and fair play accorded to our Company and our assisting deputations by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, now travelling abroad

Yours faithfully,
J. A. CULVERWELL,
Managing Director.

P.S.—Letters have been placed in my possession by my Engineering friends, which are signed by the present engineer of the Commission, and that, too, while a member of the Commission, which show that he was using in other matters the knowledge acquired for private purposes.

J. A. C.,
Man. Dir.

The Insurance Commissioners recommend that if an agent give or offer a rebate, no penalty shall be imposed on him, but each director of the Company shall be fined $1,000.

A FUTURE SCENE

If this excellent principle be extended to include embezzlement and murder. When a few directors shall have been hanged, the survivors will "have the strongest personal inducement" to see that no more agents commit murder. Each of the above unfortunates in waiting at the back of the executioner is a director in a Canadian life company.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

SAVED SUFFERING AND BROUGHT BACK HEALTH—DR. AGNEW'S GREAT HEART CURE AND CATARRHAL POWDER DEFY DISEASE AND NEVER FAIL IN THEIR MISSION OF HEALING

"I feel so thankful at the restored health of my daughter that if any use can be made of this I shall be pleased." This is what Mr. George Weels, of Elora, Ont., says in giving his testimony to the wonderful curative qualities of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Mr. Weels' daughter was a great sufferer from heart disease and nervousness. She was unable to lie on her left side. She ran down in health and her recovery was a source of anxiety. Induced by friends, who had proved its worth, she obtained Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart and before one bottle had been taken was able to lie in any position she desired, and when two bottles had been taken, an absolute cure was pronounced. Yes, this great remedy is a cure for all ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, and the instantaneous relief given by it has snatched thousands from death's jaws. Don't trifle a minute if you have the slightest evidence of heart disorders, such as palpitation, fluttering or uneasiness. This remedy will relieve such troubles immediately and will cure the stomach and nerves.

"When I know a thing is worthy of a recommendation I consider it my duty to tell of it." The Rev. James Murdock, of Harrisburg, Pa., says this after having been cured of a very malignant form of catarrh by Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powders. What he can say of its healing powers thousands of others have said and can say of it. Don't neglect "only a little cold" in the head. It may lead to chronic catarrh. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder relieves in 10 minutes and is easily applied. Keep it near you if you are a "cold in the head" subject.

Frost Does Much Damage To Fall Wheat and Clover

This is the Report From all Sections of Peterborough County—Some Fields Will be Practically Ruined

The exceedingly cold weather which has prevailed during the past few weeks is likely to prove disastrous to fall wheat and clover. The sheltering protection of snow, having been removed, these crops are now exposed to the severe frosts, and farmers state that the effect is being disastrous. Fall wheat is suffering the worst, although clover is also being badly damaged. Every day is adding to the seriousness of the situation, and unless a change comes soon these crops will be completely ruined.

A gentleman from Indian River, who was in the city today stated that the frosts were playing havoc with the clover and fall wheat in that vicinity. The fall wheat crop has practically been destroyed and much damage is being done to the clover. It is expected that large patches of it will be killed, as it is without shelter from the frosts which are unusually severe, for this time of the season. Both fall wheat and clover are grown extensively around Indian River and the loss will be heavy.

Much the same conditions prevail around Douro post office. The farmers have great fears as to what the outcome will be as there is a large amount of fall wheat grown in that section of the county and clover is also grown extensively.

The destruction of the fall wheat and clover crops by frost was also a subject for considerable conversation among farmers on the market this morning. From all parts of the county the opinion was the same and the opinion was expressed on all sides that the loss would be heavy.

MUST SEND THE BOY TO SCHOOL

Parents Were Fined $5 To-day for Neglecting to do so

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Windover appeared before His Worship Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with neglecting to send their boy Willie to school. The father said that he had tried his level best to get the lad to go to school but he would not go. He did not like to whip the boy. His Worship said that the parents were to blame and it was a funny thing if a boy that age was the boss. He imposed a fine of five dollars on the father to be paid in ten days. The son is getting to be an expense to his parents. It was just about a month ago that his mother was fined five dollars for not sending him to school.

CHORAL CLASS HONORED LEADER

Appreciative Address Presented to Mr. W. E. McCann at Warsaw

At the conclusion of the splendid concert held in the town hall in Warsaw last night, the choral class and the pupils from Peterborough, who assisted were invited to the music hall over Mr. Choate's store, where a sumptuous spread had been prepared by the ladies of the village. About sixty people were seated about the prettily decorated tables, the seat of honor, being occupied by Mr. W. E. McCann of Peterborough, organist of the George Street church, the efficient conductor of the Warsaw Choral Society, and Dr. Douglas acted as chairman for the toast list that followed.

Ample justice was done the dainty feast, of which nothing was stinted to make it enjoyable to all. An impromptu list of toasts was drunk, and a short musical programme given by some of the musicians present.

The main toast was to "Our Guest" proposed by Dr. Douglas and responded to by Mr. McCann. Dr. Douglas paid Mr. McCann many glowing tributes as a gentleman and as a musical director, and referred to the culture that he had brought to the young people of Warsaw by his weekly visits. He then read an appreciative and well-worded address.

Mr. McCann, although taken completely by surprise, made an appropriate reply thanking the people of Warsaw for this evidence of the kindness which they had always extended.

Snowden House Used its Ashes

First in the City to Experiment —Results Were Very Satisfactory.

Among the first to take advantage of the new fuel, composed of ashes, water and salt, was the Snowden house. Yesterday Mr. Snowden had a large quantity of the compound mixed up and put it on the fire in his furnace in the hotel. The results were most satisfactory. Soon after the ashes were applied the heat from the fire increased greatly and practically no coal was used all night. So satisfied is the proprietor of the Snowden house with his experiment that this afternoon he will put a lot more in the furnace and will continue to use it so long as the ashes last.

Family Was Not Frozen to Death

The following report appeared in our issue and probably in every daily of the Province on the 21st of February last.—

Estevan, Sask., Feb. 21. — A man named David Trapper has arrived here with news that a farmer named Radcliffe, with his wife and three children were frozen to death.

Mrs. Radcliffe and three children, were frozen stiff with no fuel in the house. Radcliffe and his team of oxen were found frozen to death on the ice in the creek with a sleigh loaded with coal. Radcliffe arrived from England last fall.

We have since learned from relatives of persons above referred to that the report is incorrect. The Northwest Mounted Police were sent out to investigate the matter and when they called at the Radcliffe home they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe and their three rosy cheeked children. Mr. Radcliffe had not heard the report and how it originated is a mystery.

JUSTICE?

THE JUDGE (severely): Prisoners at the bar, it has been proved that the Timbuctoo Agent of the Life Insurance Company, whose Directors you are, gave a policyholder a cigar. The terrible crime of REBATING must be suppressed in the interests of outraged society. You are fined $1,000 each, half to go to this public-spirited witness in the box.

(The Royal Commission on Life Insurance have created a sensation by the extraordinary remedy proposed by them to stop rebating. They "do not believe that penalties imposed upon the immediate parties to a rebating transaction will prove at all effective," because such penalties "do not interest the directors of companies in which the practice prevails. The managers and directors themselves must be compelled to make the law effective by having the strongest personal inducement to do so. Visiting penalties upon companies punishes the policyholders." The remedy they propose is that $1,000 be imposed upon every director and manager of a company, any of whose agents pays or allows, or offers to pay or allow, any rebate of premium, and that any person shall be authorized to sue for this penalty, one half of the amount of the fine going to the person suing. "No such director or manager shall be indemnified in whole or in part, either in respect of the penalty or of any costs, out of the funds of the company." The Commissioners further make it clear that this fine shall be collectable whether the rebate be given or offered "with or without the knowledge of the manager or director sued.")

Warsaw Choral Class Gave Splendid Concert Last Night

Members Have Made Excellent Progress Under Direction of Mr. W. E. McCann—Fine Results Achieved During the Past Season.

The Conservatory of Music for the second time this season delighted a large Warsaw audience with a concert conducted under their auspices. Its chief feature was the work of the Choral Class of Warsaw, the members of which have received singing lessons from Mr. W. E. McCann of the Conservatory staff. They were taught as a chorus, and some individually and Mr. McCann should be highly elated with the excellent results he has achieved.

Lessons were commenced in November last and this concert, marked the conclusion of Mr. McCann's efforts. The class has forty-two members and the work of teaching the different, mixed voices has been thorough, judging from the quality of their singing.

The Choral Class contributed four splendid numbers, and were encored several times.

Mr McCann as accompanist, greatly assisted the class.

The rest of the programme was made up of numbers contributed by local pupils of the Conservatory. Miss Julia Choate delighted the audience with two violin solos, played with the finesse that has always been a feature of her selections.

Mrs. Patterson-Mowry gave several readings which were also greatly appreciated. Mr. L. Mendel contributed a mandolin solo, and was given a warm encore and the mandolin club composed of Messrs. Holland, Cranfield, Mendel and Theobald, were heard twice and as often recalled.

Attractive Spot for Burglars

Mervin's Butcher Shop Again Entered—$12 Taken

A daring robbery was committed during the early part of last evening when Mr. John Mervin's butcher shop, corner of Hunter and Aylmer street, was entered, and the till emptied. The burglar got away with about $12 worth of small chang and one dollar bills. This is the second time within a week that Mr. Mervin's shop has been robbed, and the third time within a month. Evidently this place is a favorite one for thieves and they must be encouraged by the fact that no one has been apprehended. The last time Mr Mervin's premises were entered the nervy looters did not get much for their efforts. Considerable damage was done to the books and papers of the office, but all the money taken was the small sum of 83 cents. Last evening the burglar was more lucky. It appears that between eight and nine o'clock a small boy passing the corner noticed in the butcher shop a light every now and then like some one striking a match. The lad thought he thought he saw some person in the shop. He went down to the police station and told P.C. Adams his story. The policeman went at once to the store. He first tried the front door and it was locked. He then went around to the back door, which was unlocked. Mr. Adams entered, but the burglar had made his escape, and everything seemed all right, as far as he could see.

On Saturday evening all the doors were locked, but a fanlight over the front door was open, and it was through this the culprit entered. On coming out the thief unlocked the back door and escaped unseen. The electric lights which are usually left burning over night, unfortunately were turned off last evening. This helped the burglar a great deal in not being detected.

WHERE IS THE PUBLIC LIBRARY?

The Cayuga Murder Trial; Good Progress Made so far

Detective Greer Tells How the Pill Box Was Found.

Mrs. Carter Says Perkins Hinted at Suicide—Police Told Her to "Go Easy" on That Point—Counsel Refused Statement by MacDonald—Witness Faints on Stand—Evidence For the Defence.

Cayuga, April 22.—The intention of the defence to heap discredit upon the crown officers who prepared the case was apparent in the cross-examination.

Mrs. Carter of Walkerville, whose importance to the crown's case was considered so great that her non-appearance until noon on Tuesday nearly produced an adjournment, was in the witness box on Saturday.

Mr. Johnston drew out from witness that she had told Detective Mahoney of Windsor about Henry Perkins having said that he suffered from stomach trouble and would rather suicide than die a lingering death from cancer of the stomach, like his father, and that Mahoney told her to "go easy" on that part of the story and that she was not obliged to say anything about it if she were not asked.

Mr. Johnston strenuously opposed admitting the evidence of the Detroit detective, that poisons could be bought in that city, on the ground that the crown had not connected Mrs. Perkins with any transaction in Detroit, and therefore the evidence was only collateral. He reserved his right to state a case in the point.

Wanted to Buy Poison.

Mrs. George Carter of Walkerville was the first witness. Mrs. Perkins visited her last October. After supper one night Mrs. Perkins told her Henry had been very sick with his stomach and had been to an expert in Hamilton. Next morning Mrs. Perkins said she would leave on the 11 o'clock train in the morning. Before she returned she said she wanted to do some shopping. Among other things she asked witness where she could obtain some strychnine. She said she wanted it to poison rats. She asked witness if she would get it for her with a prescription which Mrs. Carter had. Witness declined, telling her where she could get it "over the river"—meaning in Michigan.

In the July previous Mr. and Mrs. Perkins had paid her a short visit. Henry complained of feeling tired on that occasion.

The party also had a steamboat trip and during the night Henry became sick. Previously he complained of thirst and asked for a drink.

In October Mrs. Perkins asked witness not to say anything to Henry about the strychnine. She said: "He would go crazy if he knew I had it in the house."

Had Stomach Trouble.

Perkins said he had stomach trouble and thought of moving to the coast to see if it would do him any good. He spoke of the terrible sufferings his father had when he died of cancer in the stomach, and said that if it were not for the "sin of body" he would rather commit suicide than die a lingering death. Witness saw a detective and told him the whole story, including the portion about Henry's thought of committing suicide, and he told her to "go easy" on that part of the story. The man was Detective Mahoney of Windsor.

Witness replied: "I will tell the whole truth." Mahoney said, "You are not obliged to tell that part if you are not asked."

Greer on the Stand.

Detective William Greer said he was put on this case on the 4th of February by the Attorney-General, and performed his duties up to Feb. 19, when Mrs. Perkins was arrested. On that date he searched the Perkins house in company with Crown Attorney Murphy, Constables Farrell and Everingham. In the front room used as a sitting room he found the book. In the kitchen bureau he found the box produced in court. The drawer was open and contained spoons and bottles as well. He did not get the box back again until the 9th of April. The box had great interest to him because Dr. Snider had given him a similar one a few days previously. He got certain information from the attorney, and, in consequence, took the Perkins' pill-box to Prof. Ellis on April 12, having had it in his possession for three days. He had also taken the Snider box to Prof. Ellis on Feb. 24, and a package containing strychnine which he had purchased and asked that it be weighed.

He told of seeing Mrs. Perkins at her home previously. She told him she and her husband had lived together very happily, and that if he had died of strychnine poisoning, he must have been given it by Dr. Kerr of Dunnville in mistake.

He searched the house and inquired for her husband's trunk, and she promised to let him see it as soon as she could get it from Welland. The trunk was sent to Mr. Johnston's office instead.

The MacDonalds' Statement.

Detective Greer said in evidence, when questioned about the statements made by Mrs. and Thomas MacDonald, that Crown Attorney Murphy and himself heard their stories and dictated the statements to the stenographers and told the McDaonalds to return in half an hour and sign the statements, which they did.

Mr. Johnston asked witness to produce these statements, but Greer said he had not got them. Mr. Johnston then said he must ask the crown to produce them. Mr. Arnoldi refused to do so.

Mr. Johnston appealed to the judge, saying that it was quite proper to show all evidence. An English judge had recently given that decision, and that such statements were good in evidence. These statements were improperly obtained. Greer had testified that parts of these statements were objected to and altered, but he was dissatisfied to rest his case against them merely on Greer's evidence.

Justice Mabee said he would have to rule against Mr. Johnston, who stated he would ask for a reserve case. In the meantime he will endeavor to produce a satisfactory authority by Monday morning.

Detective Greer denied using threats to either Tom MacDonald or his mother. He denied telling Tom MacDonald he would get himself into trouble if he didn't own up.

County Crown Attorney Murphy was called and gave his version of finding the box and book.

Witness said he could not swear positively that the box produced was the same box, because there were millions of boxes like it, but it was a similar one. He saw Greer initial it, but did not know Greer's initials well enough for identification.

The evidence of Crown Attorney Murphy closed the case for the crown, and Mr. Johnston at once proceeded to call witnesses for the defence.

For Defence.

Dr. Emmet of Fonthill said he had known Henry Perkins for many years. He had practiced at Fonthill for forty-two years and had treated Perkins for six or seven years for rheumatism, which was caused by uric acid in the blood. It was a poisonous condition.

Mrs. Perkins sent for a doctor, although Perkins did not seem to desire one.

John MacDonald, father of Thomas MacDonald, said he was in the hardware business in Canfield, and that his family and the Perkinses were on terms of closest friendship. In the fall of 1906 Mrs. Perkins was several times unwell, and Mrs. McDonald stayed all night with her on two or three occasions.

Witness Faints.

At this stage witness called out "I'm feeling ill," threw up his arms and collapsed in the witness-box. Medical assistance was summoned. Restoratives were given him. He recovered and returned to court later and continued his evidence. He was given a seat in the box. He said the occasions when Mrs. MacDonald and Tom stayed at the Perkins' home was toward the end of November.

Merville MacDonald, a law student in the office of Johnston, McKay, Dods and Grant of Toronto, gave evidence of bringing a trunk from Canfield to Toronto, and identified the contents, which included keys, circulars, empty bottles, three pass-books, a writing pad, a "pink pill" box, an atomizer, medical lozenges and some medical tablets. There was a quantity of clothes, also. Prisoner wept bitterly while the items were being enumerated and exhibited.

The court adjourned until this morning.

FOUR YEARS FOR BIGAMIST.

Belbeck At 53 Took 16-Year-Old Girl As His New Love.

London, April 22.—Jas. Belbeck of Exeter, who pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy, appeared before Judge Macbeth Saturday and was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary.

Although he is 53 years of age, Belbeck became enamored of Ada Harris, a 16-year-old girl, and shortly afterward proposed marriage to her. The girl asked time to consider the matter and held him off for a while. One day she received a visit from Mrs. Belbeck, the prisoner's first wife, who informed her that she was the wife of Miss Harris' intended husband. The girl's parents then made a few casual enquiries in reference to the matter and found that no man by the name of John Bell had been married in this city in years. Miss Harris eventually accepted his offer of marriage.

"Did you tell the girl that you were not a married man?" asked Judge Macbeth.

"No sir, she didn't ask me out and out, your honor," replied the accused. "I lied to the minister who married us, though, and told him that I had never been married."

BROTHER SLAYS BROTHER.

Rivalry for Affections of Married Woman Causes Tragedy.

Ottumwa, Iowa, April 22.—Because he thought his brother had gained the affections of Mrs. Sallie Morgan, to whom both had been paying attention, Ovitt Thompson of Bedford, Iowa, Saturday shot and killed the woman, mortally wounded Roscoe Thompson and committed suicide. The woman had been separated from her husband for some time and both the Thompsons had been paying her attention.

In the afternoon Ovitt found his brother and Mrs. Morgan together and immediately began shooting.

Buried In Sand Pile.

London, April 22.—Two men employed on the new sewer which is being put down on Dundas street were for 10 minutes buried beneath a pile of sand and shoring at the corner of Dundas and Wellington streets Saturday afternoon. The men were A. Van Conkoghnet and R. McConechy. Neither was seriously hurt, though they were almost suffocated.

Queen's University will confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Prof. Willet G. Miller, Provincial Geologist, for seven years professor in the School of Mining.

DOCTOR BRIGHAM SAYS

~~MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE~~

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant, not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it.

Dr. S. C. Brigham, of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it in my practice for female difficulties.

"My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for female trouble some time ago, and my youngest daughter is now taking it for a female weakness, and is surely gaining in health and strength.

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all diseases to which women are subject, and give it honest endorsement."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, bloating (or flatulence,) weakness of organs, displacements, inflammation or ulceration can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If advice is needed, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. No other living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating female ills. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

LAST COAL MINE CLOSED.

Operators and Employes Confer In Order to End Strike.

Rossland, B. C., April 22.—The last of the coal mines to close down in British Columbia and Alberta was the Pacific Coal Co.'s collieries at Bankhead, Alta., where the men quit on Saturday.

W. H. Aldridge, managing director of the Pacific Coal Co., will leave tomorrow for Fernie, to attend the conference of mine operators and employes for the purpose of endeavoring to end the strike.

The C. P. R. has given notice that, owing to the shortage of coal, it will handle no more freight, and refused freight consigned from Rossland to Greenwood Trail and other points.

A. B. MacKenzie, secretary of Rossland Board of Trade, when interviewed in regard to the coal mine trouble and the situation, said:

"I cannot understand the statement made by the Hon. Rudolphe Lemieux, Minister of Labor, in the House at Ottawa, Saturday, that there was no coal strike or lock-out. There is certainly a strike in all of the coal mines in Eastern British Columbia and Alberta. I see that the statement is made that difficulty has arisen out of posting of certain notices. So far as facts now appear only notices posted were by Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. at Fernie and International Coal and Coke Co. at Coleman.

PUGSLEY ACCEPTS NOMINATION.

Will Contest Federal Vacancy For St. John In Liberal Interest.

St. John, N.B., April 22.—At a large meeting of Liberals on Saturday evening Premier Pugsley accepted the invitation to contest for the federal vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Stockton, M.P.

Sussex (King's County) Liberals had asked him to continue in provincial politics.

The city wishes a strong man at Ottawa to look after the winter port interests, as Fielding's policy to date has been favoring Halifax.

Liberals here have openly split, the machine considering personal interests.

Pugsley is undoubtedly the strongest man, but is not consistant. If elected he will undoubtedy be the next Minister of Railways.

The requisition was signed by 3,000. Mr. Pugsley denied that he had any Cabinet aspirations, and said be hoped Emmerson would clear himself and be taken back again. He announced that he would probably be chief counsel for Emmerson in his libel suits, and moved a resolution of sympathy with the late Minister.

Two Dead, Twelve Injured.

Birmingham, Ala., April 22.—Two dead and twelve injured is the result of a collision on the Southern Railway at Woodlawn Junction early yesterday.

A southbound freight train, entering the yard limits, found itself without power on the main line.

A passenger train some hours later ran into the rear of this train, though it is claimed a flagman was sent back to protect the freight.

A wrecking train leaving the city yards to clear another wreck ran into the Woodlown Junction wreck.

Robertson's foundry and machine shops at Welland were burned yesterday.

LEGISLATURE CLOSES

Ontario House Prorogued on Saturday With Due Ceremony.

Important Address Made By Lieut.-Governor—Pledges Ministers to Take All Necessary Steps to Secure Provincial Rights—Reference to Cobalt Boom—Statute Revision Promised Next Session.

Toronto, April 22.—At 2.30 on Saturday afternoon his Honor Lieut.-Governor Clark formally prorogued the Ontario Legislature.

The ceremony was very simple and quiet, being marked by none of the pomp or display of the opening.

Only a few members remained in the city to see the end, and only a few ladies occupied places on the floor of the House. Being Saturday afternoon, however, quite a large number of people filled in their leisure by viewing the proceedings from the gallery.

His Honor, accompanied by his aides, Capt. Macdonald and Lieut. Young, was escorted by the Royal Canadian Dragoons. As they approached the buildings a salute of 15 guns was fired by "B" Battery of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

Makes a Long Speech.

His Honor's address was somewhat longer than usual. It mentions all the important legislation of the session, and congratulates the members on the careful attention displayed. Cobalt district comes in for special mention, and his Honor observes with satisfaction "the efforts of my Ministers, by careful legislation, to aid in the development of these deposits in the interest alike of the mining prospector, the investor and the people."

Agriculture and education are mentioned, and statute revision is promised for next session. Private legislation is described as "steadily growing," and a continued increase in the growing revenues is anticipated.

Provincial Rights.

To the question of provincial rights two paragraphs are devoted, as follows:

"Questions of grave character and great importance relating to the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the province with reference to railway and other corporations have come before you. A measure has been adopted, namely, an act respecting certain railway and other corporations, which, it is hoped, will serve to protect the province from any encroachments upon its jurisdiction.

"I observe by the terms of the address, which you have presented to me, that another grave question has arisen, namely, the claim of the Dominion to assume, for military purposes, and without compensation, certain lands and timber which are the property of the province. In pursuance of the terms of the address, my Ministers will take all necessary steps to protect the interests of the province in that behalf."

His Honor concluded: "In relieving you from your duties, I desire again to express my thanks for the great public service you have rendered, and join with you in expressing hope that the blessing of Almighty God will continue to rest upon our country and upon our people."

THAW'S FATHER A SHRINER.

Policeman Told Juror—Jerome to Find Guilty Party.

New York, April 22.—District Attorney Jerome has received definite information that the Thaw jury was approached by a policeman, who informed one of the jurors that Thaw's father, William Thaw, was a member of the Mystic Shriners.

Juror Charles E. Newton, himself a Shriner, said on Saturday that the approach was made to him, and it is said the policeman who conveyed the information was also a member of that society.

Mr. Newton said he immediately told all the other jurors what had been said to him. All the policemen who did duty with the Thaw jury will be lined up in the district attorney's office on Monday, and Juror Newton will be asked to pick out the man who is alleged to have made the remark.

TO FIND BAIL FOR THAW.

Aged Mother Is Converting All Her Property Into Cash.

New York, April 22.—A despatch from Pittsburg says when Mrs. William Thaw reached her Pittsburg home on Saturday she collapsed and physicians were summoned. With her is her daughter the Countess of Yarmouth.

Josiah Thaw, who accompanied his mother home, was very busy. He went to the Union National Bank and, after a meeting with J. Denny Lyon, deposited $3,000 to his cash account.

The work of converting part of the fortune of Mrs. William Thaw into cash will, it is stated, begin to-day. Practically every piece of property owned outright by Mrs. Thaw, will be sold and the money received pooled into a fund for bail for Harry K. Thaw.

Boy Blinded.

Brockville, April 22.—Playing at school H. Mather of Balderson was accidentally struck in the eye with the end of a broken broom handle by a playmate and blinded, the eye ball being ruptured. Mather is 12 years old.

Sandbagged, May Die.

Winnipeg, April 22.—Footpads probably committed murder Saturday night as well as robbery, when they sandbagged Simon Sherman on Main street. The man was so badly injured he will not recover.

Let Colonies Pay Cost.

London, April 22.—(C. A. P.)—The central unemployed body has decided to suggest to the Colonial Office that the Colonies be asked to contribute to the cost of emigration of the Woolwich arsenal unemployed.

Premier Rutherford, of Strathcona, Alta., will leave for a trip to Great Britian on May 5th.

The Marathon Mystery

A Story of Manhattan

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Holladay Case"

Copyright, 1904, by Henry Holt and Company

"She wanted t' see th' rooms, but I told her they was closed. I tell you, I was dead afeared t' come up here with her. How'd I know but she'd take a shot at me? Then she wanted t' rent 'em sight unseen, an' offered a month's rent in advance, but I told her we didn't rent soots t' single women, which was true. Mebbe I was kind o' rough, but I was a-skeered t' have her around, fer I kind o' believe she's crazy, so purty soon, after some more talkin', she give it up an' went away."

As we went down in the elevator the car stopped. A man and a woman were waiting to be taken up. At the man I did not even glance, for his companion held my eyes. Such fierce, dark, passionate beauty I had never seen before, and my nerves were still tingling with the sight of it as I left the building and turned westward toward my rooms.

CHAPTER VI.

FOR three days Thompson's body lay enthroned on its couch at the morgue, but of the thousands of people who filed past it not one could give a single clew to its identity.

Public interest waned and dwindled and passed on to other things. Even with me, living at the very scene of the crime, it faded in an astonishing way; it no longer occupied my thoughts. Over my evening pipe it was not the details of the mystery I conjured up, but a vision of a dark face.

An inquiry of the janitor developed the fact that it was my neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Tremaine, whom I had met that evening as I left the elevator. They had the apartment just across the hall from mine, and I had thought, of course, that I must meet them frequently, but three days had passed and I had caught not a glimpse of them; their hours for coming and going seemed radically different from mine.

I heard the sudden opening of a door; a scream, shrill, full of terror.

Rarely have I been so startled as I was by that voice. In an instant I was in the hall. A red light streamed through the open door of the apartment opposite, silhouetting a woman's figure, staring, with clasped hands.

I sprang past her, pulled down the burning curtains and threw them into the hall, where Higgins, who had run up the stairs, stamped out the flames. The room was full of smoke, but it was evident that the fire had spread no farther. I opened the window and the smoke was whirled away.

"Ah, bon die!" cried Mrs. Tremaine in a queerly broken but very charming mixture of French and English. "What a chance! What good fortune that you were in your room, m'sieur!"

She had closed the window with a nervous shiver at the cold and then stepped back into the full light. I fairly gasped as I looked at her. Charming she had been gowned according to the New York fashion; now she was radiant in a costume whose gorgeousness seemed just the setting her beauty needed. At the moment it completely dazzled me, but I was able afterward, in a calmer mood, to analyze it—the crimson petticoat, the embroidered chemise with its fold upon fold of lace, showing through the silken shoulder scarf; the necklace of gold beads and bracelets, studs, brooches—what not. The sight of Higgins standing staring at this vision with open mouth brought me to my senses.

"I am very happy to have been there, madame," I said, and started toward the door.

"But you will not go," she protested. "M'sieur Tremaine will be here in a moment. He will desire to thank you."

The words were accompanied by a smile there was no resisting. I faltered, stopped.

Higgins was still staring from the hall. Mrs. Tremaine stepped forward and calmly shut the door in his face.

In that instant a quick shiver ran through me, as though I had been suddenly imprisoned with a wild beast—a shiver that had in it something fearfully delightful. And let me add here that the emotion which Cecily—for so I came to know her—raised in me was not in the least admiration in the ordinary sense of the term, but rather an overpowering fascination, such as one sometimes feels in watching a magnificent tigress pacing back and forth in her cage. Such, I believe, was the feeling she inspired in most men, even in Tremaine himself.

She smiled at me again as she swept past me to a couch in one corner and sank upon it.

"Sit, m'sieur," she said, and motioned me to a chair close at hand. "I was very lonesome. I was weary of talking to my own body."

I cannot reproduce the soft dialect she spoke. Any effort to do so makes it appear grotesque, so I shall not try. At first it puzzled me occasionally, but I soon came to understand her perfectly.

"So was I," I said, smiling at the quaint expression. "I was growing very sick of my own body. Have you been in New York long?"

"Less than a month, m'sieur; and I do not like it. It is too cold, too gray."

"Ah, you have come in a bad time," I said, wondering at her almost childish expression of misery. "Wait until June. Then you will see!"

"June! Ah, we shall not remain so long—I at least! I have promised to stay one month longer, but more than that—impossible!"

She reached out and took up a cigarette from a pile which lay on a taboret beside the couch.

"It was thus the curtains caught," she laughed, and, after a whiff or two, flung the still blazing taper over her shoulder. "Pouf! And they were all in flame. A moment before I was longing for excitement, any excitement whatever, but that sudden burst of fire frightened me. I rushed out, cried for help, and," she finished, with a charming little gesture, "spoiled your smoke. Try one of these."

There was no resisting her. It was like playing with fire. I took a cigarette and lighted it.

"At Fond-Corre there was much to do," she continued, with a little sigh. "Here there is nothing but to smoke, smoke!"

"Fond-Corre?" I queried.

"Just beyond St. Pierre," she explained, closing her eyes with delight at the memory. "There was our home I can see it again in its grove of cocoa trees running down to the gray sand, with the waves lapping gently over it. Tambou! How I sigh for it!" and she stretched her arms above her head with a gesture of infinite longing.

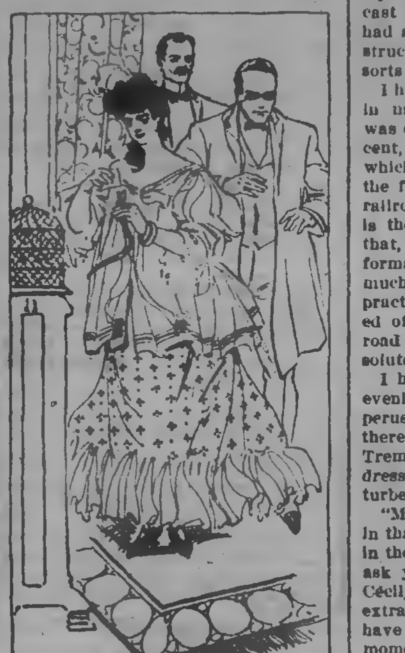
A key rattled in the lock, the door opened and a man came in. It was quite in keeping with the dream—the enraged husband with naked scimiter. Even here in New York it was hardly the proper thing to be discovered thus, though not till that instant had I thought of it.

"Ah, now," I said to myself, "stilettos and pistols! You're in a ticklish place, my friend."

But before I could rise, Cecily had sprung from the couch and thrown her arms about his neck.

"Oh, coument ou ye, doudoux?" she asked in a voice like—well, I have never heard anything to compare with it.

"Toutt douce, che—et ou?" he answered, and kissed her. Then he perceived me, seemingly for the first time, though this I somehow doubted. "Good evening, sir," he said, standing with his arm still about his wife and gazing at me with a look so sharp that I found myself for an instant unable to meet it.



She poured the wine down its throat, drop by drop.

His wife uttered in his ear a sentence so rapid that I was utterly unable to catch the words, but I suppose it explained the reason of my presence, for he turned to me instantly with outstretched hand.

"Cecily tells me that your presence of mind prevented a general conflagration, Mr."—

"Lester," I said. "I am your neighbor across the hall."

"My name is Tremaine, and I'm exceedingly glad to meet you," he continued, with a courtesy which charmed me from the first moment. "We must pour a libation to honor the escape."

Cecily, who had been hanging on his lips, flew to the next room and was back in a moment with decanter and glasses—three of them—and she joined us with an imperturbable matter of course air which somewhat surprised me. Only I noticed she left a little wine in her glass, and with it she approached a square cage of fine gilt mesh hanging over the radiator in the warmest corner of the room.

"She's a most extraordinary woman," Tremaine said, with a smile that seemed a little forced. "She's about to do what no other woman in the world would dare do, and she thinks nothing of it. Come and see."

Cecily had already reached the cage and was bending over it, humming a weird little refrain that rose and fell and turned upon itself, reminding me faintly of the negro spirituals I had once heard at a camp meeting in the Jersey woods. After a moment I saw a movement within the cage and a head erected itself, a broad, triangular head, deep orange barred with black, with eyes like coals of fire. It swayed to and fro, to and fro, as Cecily fitted words to the refrain—queer, chopped off creole words.

"Oh, ou jojolli, oui. Oh, thou art pretty, pretty, Fe-Fe! I'a ka fai moin pe! I do not fear her, not at all! Is she not pretty?"

Gradually we had drawn nearer, Tremaine and I, and I felt myself yielding to the fascination of the song, even as the serpent did. It was not very large, nor seemingly very formidable, so I did not even think of fear when Cecily opened the little door of the cage and drew it forth. She held it between thumb and finger just behind the head and by a slight pressure she forced its jaws apart. Then she poured the wine down its throat, drop by drop. Finally she returned it to its cage and shut the door.

When it was over and she was lying again on the couch, panting with a kind of fearful exhaustion, I turned to Tremaine, who was mopping his forehead feverishly.

"I've got a kind of superstitious horror of that snake," he said apologetically as he met my eyes. "I've seen a lot of them, but none ever affected me just as this one does."

"What is it?" I asked, astonished by his pallor, by the trembling of his hand as he put away his handkerchief and reached for a cigarette. He lighted it before he answered, inviting me by a gesture to help myself.

"It's a fer-de-lance," he said at last, "one of the deadliest serpents in the world, and this particular variety is said to be especially deadly, a sort of creme de la creme, as it were. Its bite kills a man in three minutes if it happens to strike an artery. It does more than that. It turns him to a swollen, rotten piece of carrion. I've seen it." And he leaned back to blow a ring toward the ceiling.

I sat, petrified, with my cigarette halfway to my mouth.

CHAPTER VII.

MY acquaintance with the Tremaines in the weeks that followed grew by imperceptible degrees into an intimacy which was one of the most pleasant of my life. Of Cecily I have already attempted to give some idea, although I realize how cold and inadequate it is. As I began to know her better I came to wonder more and more at her complexity, her simplicity, her swift change of mood, her utter ignorance of social convention. Another thing I saw, and that was her absolute worship of Tremaine.

As for Tremaine, I hesitate to say how utterly I fell under his spell. Yet this was not in the least to be wondered at. My life had been on the whole so narrow and his had been so broad; my experience of the world had been cast in the usual grooves, while his had so evidently overleaped them, had struck out a path for itself into all sorts of unexpected places.

I have said that his life had been cast in many curious places. Martinique was only the last of these, the most recent, and I gathered that the business which brought him to New York was the forming of a syndicate to build a railroad through the island. Through is the right word, for it was evident that, owing to the island's peculiar formation, there would have to be much tunneling. But he waved all such practical difficulties aside and discoursed of the great future before such a road with an enthusiasm that was absolutely convincing.

I had just come in from dinner one evening and was settling down to a reperusal of "L'Affaire Lerouge," when there came a knock at the door and Tremaine entered. He was in evening dress and was seemingly much perturbed.

"My dear Lester," he began abruptly, in that quick, nervous way of his, "I'm in the deuce of a box, and I'm going to ask you to help me out. I promised Cecily to take her tonight to see the extravaganza at the New York, and have the seats here, but at the last moment I find I can't get away. I've a business engagement that I can't afford to break, but Cecily will never forgive me if I disappoint her. Have you anything on for tonight?"

"No," I answered, looking at him in some astonishment, for it was evident what was coming.

"Then perhaps you wouldn't mind taking Cecily? It would be a tremendous favor."

"Not at all," I assured him, "but"—

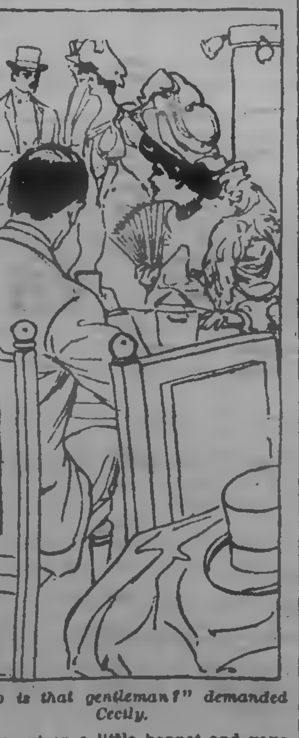
"It isn't quite convenable?" he finished as I hesitated. "Surely we don't need to stand on ceremony, and Cecily doesn't care a hang for convention. It's a great favor to both of us. She'll cry her eyes out if she has to stay at home, and I simply can't take her."

"Very well," I said, "I'll be glad to take her," and thanking me again he hurried away.

She was dressed and waiting for me when I knocked at her door, and she caught me by both hands as I entered.

"This is good of you!" she cried. "Doudoux has been so busy for many days that we have gone nowhere, but he promised me tonight. Oh, I should not have stayed at home! I should have gone alone! I care not for the eyes of the men!"

"Oh, I shan't let you go alone!" I protested, and watched her, fascinated, as she put on a little bonnet and gave her hair two or three final pats before the mirror.



"Who is that gentleman?" demanded Cecily.

She was in the highest spirits, singing to herself—really, I told myself, only a child—and at last she swung around and dropped me a courtesy.

"How is that, che?" she cried, smiling up at me. "Does that please you?"

"Charming!" I cried, gasping a little, with a feeling of giddiness, as I looked down into her eyes.

Our cab swung around into Broadway, ablaze with light, and Cecily forgot me in the excitement of watching the changing crowd, the brilliant shop fronts.

"Here we are," I said as the cab drew up at the curb, and sprang out and helped her down.

We went up to the promenade after the first act and ate an ice together. The place was crowded, and Cecily soon became the center of attraction. Men strolled past merely to look at her, and from more than one woman I caught a flash of eye that said unutterable things. The advent of a new, incomparable siren could not pass unchallenged. At them all Cecily glanced from time to time with admirable nonchalance. One would have sworn she had been reared in New York. She chatted gayly, eating her ice, sipping her wine, looking at me with eyes that glowed like stars. Then suddenly as she looked up her face changed. I glanced up, too, and caught Jim Godfrey's astonished eyes fixed on mine. He bowed and passed on.

"Who is that gentleman?" demanded Cecily eagerly, leaning across the table toward me. "You know him?"

"Oh, quite well," I answered, more and more surprised. "His name is Godfrey."

"God-frey," she repeated slowly after me, as though fixing it indelibly in her memory. "And what is his business?"

"He's a reporter by trade; he gathers news for a paper," I added, seeing that she did not wholly understand.

"Oh," she said, and breathed a deep sign of relief, "I see." Then as she met my glance she added: "I fancied that I had met him somewhere; I was mistaken. In New York I have met no one except you, m'sieur."

But I scarcely heard her; my eyes had dropped to a pin at her throat. As she leaned forward I could see it very clearly—an opal surrounded by a blazing ring of diamonds. I looked at it mechanically, then with a sudden, intent interest, for one link of that brilliant ring was missing; one of the diamonds had fallen out.

CHAPTER VIII.

I WAS scarcely surprised when Godfrey's card was brought in to me at the office next morning. Both Mr. Graham and Mr. Royce happened to be out at the time, so that I had the inner room to myself, and I directed that Godfrey be shown in at once.

"I was expecting you," I said, rising to shake hands with him. "That stare of yours last night warned me that you'd be around to demand an explanation."

"Demand is hardly the word," he corrected, as he sat down. "Beseech would be nearer it. I confess I was never more surprised in my life than when I saw you sitting there calmly chatting away with Mrs. Tremaine."

"Then you have met her? She thought she was mistaken."

"You mean she knew me?" he asked quickly.

"She asked who you were; she fancied she'd met you somewhere."

Godfrey laughed a little dry laugh.

"She has," he said, "but it's strange she remembers it, for I'll swear she never looked at me, or perhaps," he added, knitting his brows, "she has some special reason to remember. I happened to be in the hall of the Marathon apartment house talking with Higgins, the janitor, when she and her husband came in from dinner the night that man Thompson was killed there. Perhaps you remember about it?"

I nodded, smiling.

"Yes, I remember."

Something in my face caught his attention.

"You mean you know something about it?" he asked quickly. But a movement of feet across the floor outside interrupted him. "We can't talk here," he said. "Will you be at home tonight?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll look you up," and he turned to go.

"Wait a minute," I said. "I'm not with Mrs. Fitch any more."

"Aren't you?"

"No. I'm quartered at the Marathon."

"At the Marathon?"

"Yes. Suit fourteen. Higgins will show you up."

He stared at me an instant with starting eyes. Then the door opened and Mr. Royce came in, followed by two clerks.

To be continued.

IMITATION PEARLS.

They May Be Detected by the Hole Drilled Through Them.

The means of ascertaining the genuineness of pearls, which are frequently imitated with marvelous skill, is especially important to the layman, even though the jeweler may quickly detect them. Imitations are usually lighter than real pearls and generally are brittle, although some are made solid of fish scales and do not break so easily, while the holes, which in the real pearl are drilled very small and have a sharp edge, are in the false larger and have a blunt edge. As a rule, the imitation pearls are like hollow spheres of glass colored internally with a coating imitating the orient of natural pearl.

The manufacture of these articles embraces two series of operations—the production of the sphere and the introduction of coating. The spheres are produced by the glassblower, who by aid of an enameler's lamp solders the extremity of a tube when the substance is of the right consistency. In this way are obtained very regular little spheres that serve for the composition of the ordinary quality of false pearls.

In the more beautiful imitations the tube employed is slightly opalescent, and the glassblower, besides, gives to the little spheres while they are yet malleable certain slight perceptible inequalities of surface by gently tapping them with a small iron bar. This gives them a still greater resemblance to natural pearls, which are very seldom absolutely regular.—Exchange.

AMUSEMENTS

KING OF TRAMPS.

The offering at the Grand Opera House on Saturday afternoon and evening was the Yankee Doodle Musical Comedy, "The King of Tramps." The production was greeted by a large and appreciative house, and was bright and entertaining throughout. It was especially interesting to Peterborough people, from the fact that Mr. Oscar O'Shea, the energetic and popular manager of the company, is a Peterborough boy, being a son of Mr. James O'Shea, proprietor of the Commercial House. He ably filled the role of Mark Hartley, the lover of Edith Hartley, his acting being marked by spirit, fidelity and earnestness. Mr. O'Sheas selections on the trombone were admirably given and enthusiastically applaudied.

Mr Dave Derden, "the King of Tramps," is a whole show in himself, and is as versatile and original as any character ever seen on the local stage in the guise of a hobo. He is a wonder in the musical line and evoked melody from several instruments—cow bells, tin cans, brass rods, etc. His monologues were also greeted with hearty applause

Mr Clyde Long, as the "Scarecrow," and "Jimmie," was a prime favorite with the audience. By his antics he created roars of laughter. The remainder of the company was well balanced, and it was a well satisfied audience that departed at the close of the production.

Mr O'Sheas many friends in this city wish him every success in his chosen profession, and warmly congratulate him on the excellent company which he has the honor to manage.

Salt and Ashes Not a Success

Are Good for Banking a Fire at Night But No More

On Saturday afternoon and Sunday many citizens experimented with the new compound of oxalic acid, ashes, water and coal, with varied results. One man who had great faith in the reported invention was greatly disappointed. He tried the mixture and found that it would burn, but that it gave no heat worth considering, and that the ashes were no good except for banking the fire, and the extra labor involved mixing the three substances was practically wasted as the fire can be successfully banked by using just the ashes slightly dampened alone.

This citizen had very little hopes of reducing his coal bill and freely stated that he would not like to make any experiments when the thermometer is down around the zero mark.

They Should Not Shop so Late

Rev. Mr. Manning Scores Late Buying on Saturday Nights

On Sunday evening in Charlotte street church, Rev. H. M. Manning, the pastor, delivered a timely sermon on "The Signs of the Times." He took occasion to score the practice of late Saturday night shopping, so prevalent in Peterborough, and said that the habit tended to undermine the observance and sanctity of the Lord's Day. He was sorry to note among the "signs of the times," a growing disrespect for Sunday. Persons bought goods very late on Saturday night. This made the store keepers and clerks work until eleven and twelve o'clock, while the deliverymen in consequence were often compelled to deliver parcels on Sunday morning. He had known women to insist that milliners should labor until Sunday morning in order to have a new Easter bonnet finished, while dressmakers often had to do likewise to complete some costumes in order that a customer might appear in a new dress on Sunday.

Mr. Manning deprecated such practices and lack of consideration on the part of certain ladies and others, and trusted that all citizens would unite to do their shopping early on Saturday in order that those employed in stores might attend service on the Lord's day.

BUSSINESS MEN ARE UP IN ARMS AGAINST MAYOR AND ALDERMEN AND DUST NUISANCE

Great Damage Done to Stocks on Saturday and This Morning—Strong Language Used by Merchants in Condemnation of the Negligence of the Mayor, Aldermen and Officials—No Attempt Made to Water Outside Sections—General Public is Suffering and, Paying for the Privilege

Language will not express the merchants' disgust with the City Council and the City Officials, who are responsible for the outrageous dust nuisance. To say that it is disgraceful is making the statement very mild. It is little short of criminal. The damage to merchandise, especially dry goods, groceries, fruits, meats, and clothing, is so serious that if the mayor and aldermen were called upon to pay for it for only one day, they would begin to realize in a small way what the business people are compelled to put up with.

To use the mayor's own figures and arguments the business people are called upon to pay more than double for what they receive in the way of street watering, even when the service is at its best. This in itself is a matter for condemnation. Yet the merchants would not have a word to say if they were given even a half decent service.

It would do the mayor and aldermen a whole lot of good if they took the trouble to call upon two per cent. of the men who are at the head of the stores on George street, Hunter street, Charlotte street, Water street and any other street in the city. They would hear something from the people who pay the biggest half of the city's taxes, that would give them something else to think about, besides such trivial things as sing bylaws, etc.

The Review this morning was called up by phone by several angry merchants and told about the dust. A representative then called on several of the merchants and the following are some of the expressions, although they all mean the same thing.—

"On Saturday, all day, and this morning, the dust which swept through my store was something terrible. It was a disgrace, which every aldermen and the mayor should be forced to feel. I have lost already this year, through dust, more money than would pay my whole tax bill for street watering. We are expected to pay out our good money for improving our stores and making the street attractive and we get no protection from the City Council. It's not only now that the dust is frightful, but the whole summer. We don't get half a service."

Another merchant said,—"The dust was so bad on Saturday, that farmers, men who are accustomed to dusty roads, and who live where there is no pretence made to water the streets roundly cursed the city. Why, the clouds of filth and dirt which swept through our streets and into our stores was worse than would be found in a little village or on the country roads. Is that what we pay our good money for? Do the mayor and the council think that sign bylaws and other bylaws of a similar, condemnable nature, of more importance? Are we to be harassed forever without one bit of protection?"

A third merchant said,—"I have suffered already this year, a great deal from this dust, and if the council does not get down to business at once I intend to take proceedings to see if the mayor and aldermen cannot be held responsible. They have passed bylaw after bylaw, which are driving us off the streets: they have fined us for minor infractions of their personally small ideas, and they have put us to great expense in trying to live up to their unreasonable and unjust bylaws. Yet they do not pretend to live up to their part of the business. We are taxed every year a good big sum of money, double what we are even supposed to get, and you can see for yourself what we actually get. The contracts this year for street watering date from April 1st to Nov. 10th, I believe. So far there has been only one cart out and that for only part of a day on two or three occasions, and even then the work was not done properly. The other five carts, that is two were to be put on the business streets, one in the south, one in the west, one in the north and one in the east, have not even been out once. Are we to pay taxes for something we do not get, and no pretense is made to give it to us? What kind of a place is this city getting to be? I would like the mayor and aldermen to answer this question. His Worship has frequently boasted that he will see that all bylaws are enforced. Why doesn't he make just one little effort to give us a decent street watering service. He can surely spare a little time for this. If not let him forget his pet sign bylaw for half an hour and think of something that will be of some benefit to the people."

Another merchant said, — "I have been in public life. I don't like to put too much blame on the council. I know there are officials to look after the different departments. But in the case of the dust, I do not hesitate to condemn the mayor and aldermen. It is their duty to see that this work is done. If the officials are incapable, then get new ones. That's a very simple matter. I don't ask the mayor to sit on top of a water waggon, but I do expect him and his colleagues to see that other men sit on the waggons and sprinkle the streets."

Another merchant said,—"Just to show you the inconsistency of the council. There is a bylaw which compels us to wash our windows before eight o'clock in the morning. We are fined if we are a few minutes later than that. About nine or ten o'clock in the morning, along comes the water waggon to lay the dust which has been blowing on our clean windows and through the doors, on to our goods for two hours. The bylaws governing us are enforced to the letter. We have not a minute's grace. The bylaws governing the council are not enforced at all, and we have to pay the shot in both cases."

Other statements made were,—

"Give us a street watering service and cut out the sign bylaw nonsense."

"We dare not open our store in the morning to air out. The dust would ruin our whole stock."

"The dust sweeps through our place and my desk is one mass of sand and filth. I clean it off every time I sit down."

The above does not tell a hundredth part of the sufferings of the business people, on account of the failure to get a street watering service. Still no mention has been made of the suffering thousands who use the streets. The people have yet had no attention given them, although they are paying for it.

Charge of Disorderly House Brought Against Royal Hotel

Chief Roszel Laid Information as Result of Last Week's Fight—Disorder Includes a Long Period of Time—Frank Cameron Testifies for the Prosecution.

Before His Worship Magistrate Dumble at the police court, James Kelly, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, was charged with violating the liquor license act by keeping a disorderly house. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for Kelly. No specified date was mentioned in the information, and Mr. McWilliams objected on those grounds. He was quite willing to meet a dozen charges with specified dates. The Chief contended that the disorder extended over a period from the first of April, until the time the information was laid. The chief said that it was a disorderly house continuously, not on one particular date. His Worship said that the charge covered a period of more than one day and he did not think the Chief was bound to give any specified date, but would give Mr. McWilliams until Thursday morning to find out all he could about it and if he could give any authority why the Chief should give dates he would ask him to do so. The case was enlarged until Thursday morning.

Frank Cameron, whose right name is Chambers, was brought down from the gaol to give evidence in this case. His evidence was taken to save bringing him down again. He told his story as follows,—I pleaded guilty last Thursday in this court to wounding three men at the Royal hotel. My friend and I were taking several drinks during the course of our rambles Wednesday. We went into the Royal Hotel about noon. When we went in there was a fight on. I saw my friend, Jos. Lenare in the mix-up and I went to his assistance. I tried to get him out. I was set upon by several men and punched and kicked and thrown out the back door. I then went around to the front door and went in to square matters, and let them see I wasn't so bad as they thought I was. They were laughing over the matter. Someone said, "Here he comes again." I tried to explain matters, but I didn't get a chance. They came at me again. There must have been eight or ten of them. I then missed my friend. In the struggle I was hit by a beer bottle in the face. They then let me go and I drew a knife from my pocket and threatened to cut anyone who came near me. One fellow came and I struck him and he fell against the bar. I also struck a second one but I do not remember slashing the third man. I do not know the proprietor. I found that I had a cut on my foot next morning, so someone else must have used knives. besides me. I did not see any knives during the fracas. I was in that house on the Tuesday night previous. There were talks of fights but there were none. I had four dollars when I went into the hotel on Wednesday, but when I was arrested I had none. I had no drinks in the house on Wednesday. On Tuesday I had several drinks and treated several fellows hanging around. I came to the city on Monday on the midnight. I gave my name as Frank Cameron, but my right name is Fred Chambers. I live in Toronto. I was in penitentiary for attempted robbery. I got ten years, but some time ago was allowed off for good conduct. I am out now about four months.

Curtis Bros. Have Contracts to Supply Brick for 50 Houses

Over 2,000,000 Brick Already Sold—Firm Compelled to Decline Big Order From Hastings Owing to Large Local Demand—Prospects for the Season.

Curtis Bros expect to start operations in their brick yard in a few days.

The prospects for a busy season are very bright and already half of the season's output of their yards is contracted for. The firm have the contract for supplying the brick for the extension to the North Ward school and also for the new Collegiate Institute building. They have also to provide the brick for over fifty new dwellings which will be erected in Peterborough this year. They have received inquiries for brick from several outside firms, but have been obliged to refuse the orders as it is expected all the output of their yards will be used at home. They were asked to furnish 100,000 brick for Hastings to help along rebuilding operations in that village, which suffered from such a severe fire on Sunday night, April 14th.

Mr. Thomas W. Gibson, director of the Bureau of Mines, in his report for 1906, says "Curtis Bros., Peterborough, have about four feet of red top clay which is underlaid, by 13 feet of sandy Erie blue clay. Both are used in the manufacture of red and white brick, and tile and paving block. In this yard are two from Quaker machines and one Martin machine all run by electric power. The clay is handled direct from the pit in automatic dump cars, which feed Baird pug mills which in turn feed the brick machines mentioned above. The bricks are stacked out to dry and are burned in two square down drafts kilns and in large open scoved kilns. The output of this yard is about 4,000,000 brick per year. The tile and hollow block are made in a Close machine, the hollow block being used for raised barns and stable floors. This is one of the largest yards in the province and the goods manufactured are among the best.

TO TAKE TRIP TO IRELAND

Rev. Dr. O'Brien Leaves in May for the Old Land

Rev. Dr. O'Brien will leave about the middle of May on a trip to the Old Country, and it is expected that he will be absent from Peterborough for about two months. The doctor is taking this trip abroad, to obtain a much needed rest, as his labors in Peterborough for some time, have been very active, and he is not enjoying the best of health.

Dr. O'Brien will spend the major portion of the time he will be abroad in Ireland, the land of his ancestors, and the visit there will be especially interesting to him on that account. His host of friends in the city will wish the reverend gentleman a most enjoyable trip abroad, and will hope that it may bring back his wonted good health. Dr. O'Brien will sail sometime in May.

May Build New Church at Bethel

Important Congregational Meeting Will be Held This Evening

The present Methodist church at Bethel, Otonabee, which is in charge of Rev. J. G. Lewis, of Mark Street Church, has become inadequate to accommodate the large congregations that attend.

The residents in that district think the time has come when a new edifice should be erected. For the purpose of considering the advisability of building a new place of worship, a congregational meeting will be held at Bethel this evening. The church, if one is erected, will not be in the same place as the present one, but will likely be erected in the vicinity of Stewart's Hall. The present church is a small brick structure and was built many years ago.

Will Organize Epworth League

Rev. Dr. Crothers and several members of George Street Church Epworth League, will go to Bethel Church on the Warsaw circuit, in Dummer township tomorrow, to organize an Epworth League Society.

Many Entries for the Tournament

Bowlers Will Have Big Time Next Week

Entries are coming in at a great rate for the bowling tournament, which opens at the Majestic alleys, Water street, on Thursday. The time for receiving entries has been extended until Monday night when all must be in. Four teams have entered in the competition for hotel teams, the National, Oriental, Munro, and Southern. All have some high rollers, and the contest should prove very interesting. A handsome silver trophy, will be the prize for the winning team.

Four teams have already entered in the open event for five men teams, two teams from the High Life's, and the Merchants and Independents. Several other teams are likely to be entered tonight. There will be large fields in both the individuals and doubles. Entries can be made to Mr. C. E. Frost, who will furnish all information.

FOOTBALL

QUAKERS' PROSPECTS.

The Quakers had a capital practice on Saturday at the Central Park grounds. About twenty-five players took part and two very even teams were picked. The game resulted in a win for Baker's team by 2—1. Judging from Saturday's display, everything points to the Quakers having a very strong team this season. Several newcomers were on hand, and all had a good knowledge of the game and need but very little practice to fit themselves for the league games.

WILL PLAY WEDNESDAY.

The football match which was to have been played last Wednesday night, but was postponed, on account of the weather, will be played Wednesday night of this week, if the weather is favorable. The boys are asked to be at the Y.M.C.A. at 6.45 sharp. After the game, the Harriers will take a short run from the association. Everybody is requested to be on hand in good time.

HOW WISE MEN MAKE MONEY VERY FAST

By buying Land in the way of a growing city, you convert your dollar into hundreds and your hundreds into thousands. The more you buy the more money you must make. A friend of mine bought land at $100 per acre 10 miles outside the limits of Chicago and less than 20 years after sold it for $5000 per acre making $4,900 profit per acre. I offer you Land on "Western Ave." 1 mile outside Peterborough limits and in the way of its most rapid growth, in blocks of 8 lots 30x140 ft. for $75 per lot and only ask you to pay $10 cash and $5 per month. This is your opportunity to convert a few dollars into hundreds. Within a few years those lots will sell for from $300 to $400 each and perhaps for double my estimate. Build a house or I will build one for you, plant your garden and you are on the high road to a rich and happy man. I await your call and will guide you right.

ENGLAND, MOTHER ENGLAND.

By Mr. Edward C. Booth.

Little lonely woman, watching o'er the waters,
Tell me what you look for with your wistful eyes of grey.
"Far beyond the ocean I have sons and daughters;
What a mother's heart can love her eyes can see alway.
Day by day I see them—day by day I hear them—
Hear the murmur of their voices ever in the sea;
And my heart is yearning, yearning to be near them,
Children, I your mother am; cry 'Mother' back to me.
Make me proud, my children; that one word my heart shall fill,
Grey-hair'd England is your mother; call her 'Mother' still."
Little lonely woman, watching o'er the waters,
Let you bosom swell with pride, your mother's heart rejoice.
Far beyond the ocean you have sons and daughters,
Sons and daughters swift as flame to leap up at your voice.
Whisper but a summons, sigh to them in need,
East and West and North and South sounds back the answ'ring hum
Star of children marching; beat of hearts that bleed;
Thunder of ten thousand lips; "O mother! here we come.
England, Mother Egland, all our blood cries back to thee,
Blood of kinship beats to blood like waves that seek the shore.
Bind us close, O mother, let us gather at thy knee;
Hand in hand there let us stand, thy children evermore."

Former Peterborough Man Met Death by Drowning

Sad News Received by Mr. Jas. Tighe of East City—Death of His Son James at Detroit.

The sad intelligence was received Saturday evening, by Mr. James Tighe, East City, of the death by drowning of his second son, James, in Detroit, Mich, on Saturday. No particulars of the accident were contained in the telegram, only that the accident had occurred Saturday. Another telegram was received yesterday morning, informing them that the body had been recovered. The news came as a great shock to the family and also to a large number of friends, as the deceased was widely known and popular throughout the city.

The late Mr. Tighe was 32 years of age. He was born in Peterborough where he resided until twelve years ago, when he moved to Detroit, Mich. He was a carpenter by trade. He was married four years ago, to Miss McFrederick of Detroit. He leaves no family. Besides his wife, his parents, three brothers and two sisters are left to mourn his loss. The brothers are, Messrs. John of Detroit, Mich., Hugh, of Rockford, Ill., and Walter of this city. The sisters are Mrs. C. Abraham, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Robt. Maniece, East City.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday in Detroit. Mr. James Tighe left this morning to attend the funeral.

The family have the sympathy of a large number of friends in their sad bereavement.

Improvements to Trent Canal to be Carried on During Year

Four Contracts for Half a Million Each Will be Let for Lower End of the Canal—Dredging the Otonabee and Several New Wharves.

The announcement was made on Saturday of the supplementary estimates in which were included several sums for this city and vicinity. The $700,000 voted for the southern section of the canal is what was estimated would be spent this year. The department of Public Works will let four contracts amounting to about $500,000 each, but as it would be impossible for the contractors to spend anything like that sum there is no use providing for the full $2,000,000, as the balance would only have to be revoted. The appropriation this year will however give the contractors a good big start and they will be able to work as long as the weather permits.

The $5,000 for dredging the Otonabee is an addition to the $10,000 placed in the original estimates for completing the work between the C.P.R. and Hunter street bridges and for the turning basin north of the Hunter-st. bridge opposite the Quaker Oats building. The work which has been carried on under the superintendance of Mr. Wm. Quinn for over a year past will be resumed very shortly, and carried on all summer. It might also be mentioned that the work of filling in the basin between the C.P.R. spur and the west bank of the river, for the city, will also be resumed and Council a few weeks ago took action along this line. The Quaker Oats company will also get a large quantity of the material out of the turning basin for the purpose of filling in the raceway on the east side of the river next the McAllister mills.

The $1,200 for the Peterborough steamboat landing is for a new wharf at the end of the street car line where the Otonabee Navigation Co. will make its headquarters for passengers and excursion purposes. This wharf will be a small one, but as soon as the traffic demands a large one it will be built. The wharf's at Hale's bridge and Gore's Landing are for the same purposes with freight added.

The Lakefield wharf for which $3-850 has been voted is for a new freight wharf near the present passenger landing where scows and steamers can load cement and lumber for Peterborough and other points along the canal or for unloading coal and general freight for the village.

THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION

The Jamestown Exposition, which opens on April 26th, 1907, promises to be one of the most interesting of the larger expositions which have been held in later years. Its location at Sewell's Point, on the historic Hampton Roads, some nine miles from the city of Norfolk, Virginia, and directly opposite Old Point Comfort, in itself will appeal to many and the magnificent array of warships that will congregate here from all the countries of the world will attract a tremendous number of people from all parts of the American continent, as well as from abroad. To Canadians who have not had the privilege of visiting the South this event will be the best opportunity that will present itself, and the low transportation rates that are offered will lend an additional attraction.

The only Canadian exhibit at this great Fair will be that of the Grand Trunk Railway System, who have erected a building of their own, in which the resources and attractive features of Canada will be shown, and at which building Canadians will be welcome, and where all information may be obtained. Another feature that is offered is the many different routes that can be taken to this Exposition from Canada, including rail river and ocean journeys. The true hospitality of the Southern people, the historicity that surrounds the locality and the many things to see and do, should be the means of inducing a large number to go from the north. Grand Trunk Agents will gladly give information as to rates and routes. 2d

TWENTY FIVE HORSES SOLD

Another big crowd attended the auction sale of horses at McCollum Bros. livery barns last Saturday. There were twenty-five animals offered, mostly drivers, and the bidding was fairly brisk and the prices satisfactory. Quite a number, however, were not sold and these will be sold by private sale during the week.

Big Blaze at Manila.

Manila, April 22.—Fire destroyed nearly 300 houses and parts of the districts of Singalong, Paco and Bambang, in Manila on Saturday.

The flames, fanned by a heavy gale, swept an area of 100 acres clean within two hours. The damage is conservatively estimated at $200,000 in gold.

Boy Killed by Gun.

Chatham, Ont., April 22.—As the result of the accidental explosion of a shotgun on Saturday, Francis Barnier, Concession 4, Dover township, aged 15 years, lost his life. In company with a 17-year-old brother, he was shooting muskrats in the Thames river.

Quake In Algeria.

Oran, Algeria, April 22.—A telegram received here from Mostaganem says a severe earth shock was felt in that section at twenty minutes before ten Saturday night. The message makes no mention of casualties or damages.

For St. George and Merrie England

To-morrow, St. George's Day, April 23rd, Englishmen Throughout the World Will Gather Under the Banner of St. George in Honor of Their Patron Saint.

St George's Day will to-morrow again be commemorated with all the formality and ceremony associated with its observance. In England in many of the churches special services will be held and the red cross banner of St. George will float from many buildings, as has become customary. A perusal of the year book sent out to the members by "The Royal Society of St. George" shows a large increase in the observance of the day not only in the British possessions but in other countries as well wherever Englishmen do dwell. There is no branch of the "Royal Society of St. George" in this city, but it has been felt that such an organization would be beneficial, and steps may be taken in the near future to organize one.

St George of Lydda, the Patron Soldier-Saint of England, must not be confounded with George the infamous Arian Bishop of Alexandria, and erstwhile fraudulent army contractor, who was justly killed A.D. 362, whereas St. George was martyred on the 23rd of April (Good Friday) A.D., 303, just fifty-nine years before

St. George was born in Cappadocia. His parents were Christians, and he himself was brought up in that faith. In his early years he became a soldier and rapidly rose to high rank. While in command his master, Emperor Diocletian, became exceedingly hostile to the Christians. The youthful warrior's courage did not, however, fail him in this crisis. He asked for and was granted an interview with the emperor, and after unsuccessful remonstrances against the persecutions being carried on, he gave up his command. Soon his arrest followed, and when he refused, after numerous tortures, to renounce his faith, he was martyred on April 23rd, 303. Since then his name has been famous and among some nations it is held in deep reverence.

To men of English birth and descent to-day St. George is the personification of all that is good and holy. To them he is representative of the highest type of manhood, physically, morally, and mentally, ready to die for his cause, and always taking the part of the oppressed.

Having thus far established the identity and vindicated the character of England's patron-saint—the slayer of the Libyan monster, the legend as to which is commemorated on the English coinage, which, like St. George himself, is above suspicion, we come to the reign of the first Richard, that chivalrous and lion-hearted Crusader, who proclaimed anew to his English subjects the virtues of their patron, whose image let us not forget, was borne upon the victorious banners of Prince Arthur. Nor must we forget the high esteem in which he was held in Saxon times. But it was not until the reign of King Edward III., of glorious memory—king of the seas—(who instituted the Order of the Garter)—the blue ribbon of chivalry—in the year 1347, dedicating it to St. George and directing that the annual festival should be held at Windsor every St. George's Day), that St. George became the recognized "Patron of the Realm of England," although at the Council of Oxford, in the year 1222, it was decided that his feast should be observed as a national holiday. King Edward III. also ordered a blood red cross on a white ground to be worn on the armor of every English soldier to commemorate his deeds of chivalry.

Englishmen are not, however, much concerned about St. George beyond the fact of his being the Patron Saint of England—the national figurehead and to establish him in the affectionate regard of all their countrymen, and to revive his festival only so far as it may stimulate the patriotism of Englishmen, not only at home, but of those beyond the seven seas, "whose limbs were made in England," and cause them ever to remember the glorious past and the responsibilities devolving upon them as the fortunate citizens of the best of all countries, and the greatest of all empires, celebrating the grand fact of their nationality as in times gone by, upon each recurring 23rd of April. Let Englishmen and English women, too, be proud on St. George's Day to wear the rose—roses red and white—the lovely queen of flowers, the beautiful emblem of England, which for centuries has been so inextricably interwoven with the history of their country

It was under the banner of St. George—the old flag of England—that the glorious victories of Cressy, Poictiers and Agincourt were won, and the immortal Shakespeare represents Henry V. as saying; "Cry God for Harry, England and St. George!"

Who can read of the stirring deeds of Drake, of the incomparable Raleigh, and of those other heroes of the west country without a thrill of emotion and national pride? It was that flag emblazoned with the cross of St George which these dauntless pioneers unfurled on the shores of the new world, that flag which encircled the globe and was carried to the Indies, thus laying the lasting foundations of our glorious empire, and although upon the accession of James I., the cross of St. Andrew was blended with that of St. George, yet, again, under the Commonwealth was it restored to mighty deeds, making England both strong at home and respected abroad, by land and sea as she never was before. It was Blake, who, upon defeating the Dutch, compelled the maritime powers of Europe to again acknowledge England as mistress of the seas, in token of which, to this day, the whip lash pennant with St. George's cross at the head, is borne by all His Majesty's ships in commission, and the banner of St. George remains the admiral's flag.

TWO MEN UPSET IN RIVER.

One Drowned, the Other Rescued by a Young Lad.

Brockville, April 22.—William Mack, 22 years of age, was drowned while crossing from Morristown to Brockville Saturday night, and his companion and brother-in-law, Joseph Mars, narrowly escaped the same fate. The men accompanied two others to the American side early in the evening, and when they started for home in a row boat are said to have been under the influence of liquor.

Mack was rowing, and in some way upset the boat. Neither could swim. Mars managed to cling to the boat, and his cries were heard by a boy named Peter Frazer, rowing from Morristown to Brockville, to whose plucky efforts Mars owes his life. Mars proved too heavy for Frazer to handle, so he towed the belated craft and the man to one of the sister islands.

After landing he was forced to wade out some distance to reach Mars, who by this time was lying on the top of the upturned boat unconscious. He pulled him off, but on reaching shore had not sufficient strength to take his body entirely out of the water. Leaving Mars partly submerged Frazer hurried back to Morristown and got aid. Doctors worked over Mars for two hours before he showed signs of life.

Mack leaves a wife and a young child.

Poisoned by Medicine.

London, April 22.—Mrs. James Bone has been dangerously ill at her home for several days past, but is now on the road to recovery.

The cause of Mrs. Bone's illness is supposed to have been a sample package of a patent medicine. The package was left at the door and Mrs. Bone took a dose of it, according to the directions on the wrapper.

Strikers Want Speedy Trial.

Ottawa, April 22.—The strikers charged with manslaughter at the fatal Buckingham riots applied on Saturday, for a speedy trial before Judge Talbot at Hull Saturday.

The application was deferred until the 29th, when the judge's decision in the matter will be given.

Three Children Cremated.

Port Huron, Mich., April 22.—Ethel Hicks, aged 7, her brother Paul, aged 6, and their 10-months-old baby sister were burned to death in their home yesterday by the explosion of a gasoline stove which the two elder children had attempted to light in the absence of their parents.

Premier Laurier Criticized; What British Press Has to Say

Attitude of Canadian Premier Subject of Comment.

Conference Is Now "Imperial"—New Department Created At Colonial Office—To Be Advisory Only—Military Defence Outlined—General Staff For the Empire—Earl Elgin Clinches Matters.

London, April 22.—At Saturday's session of the colonial conference it was unanimously agreed to change the title to "imperial conference."

The conferences will be held every four years to discuss the common interests of the empire.

The Premier of the United Kingdom will be ex-officio president of the imperial conference and the Premiers of the Colonies and Colonial Secretary will be ex-officio members.

The various Governments will appoint other members, but with the exception of the special confirmation of the conference not more than two representatives of each Government shall participate in the conferences. Each Government will have two votes.

A department of the Colonial Office is created with a permanent secretarial staff, which shall be charged with the duty of obtaining information for the use of the conference and dealing tentatively with such matters of general imperial interest as arise in the intervals between the conferences.

Imperial Defence.

The Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies, referring to the matter of military defence, outlined the general principles of an imperial military organization, and the Premiers concurred in his views. The Premiers then explained the defence organizations of their respective colonies, and the extent to which the general organization could be put into practice.

The draft of a resolution creating a general staff for the empire was tabled.

Laurier and Botha.

The only striking feature communicated was the objection of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada, and General Botha, Premier of the Transvaal, to designating the conference "imperial conference."

All agreed that the conference should be consultative and advisory only, and the Earl of Elgin clinched matters by declaring that the establishment of a body with an independent status of authority would not be acceptable to His Majesty's Government.

Press Comments.

The press describe Saturday's decision on the question of imperial conference as a momentous one recognising in it the germs of imperial federation.

The Morning Post, however, has a bitter article, and says the bureaucracy, the bane of every empire, has recovered much lost ground and succeeded in chaining the conference more firmly than hitherto to the colonial department in Downing street. It describes Lord Elgin's statements regarding the effect of the Deakin suggestions as sheer misrepresentation, inspired by Laurier's confusion of mind and misapprehension. As a result of the deliberations the status of the Dominion is less national and more colonial than before, and it will be easy to imagine that such a development must be galling to Canadians, who are able to realize their position.

Laurier's Attitude.

The Standard says the resolution is thoroughly British in a spirit of compromise. The caution of Laurier's preference for the Colonial Office is not easy understood without fuller knowledge of his speeches.

The Telegraph in an inspired article says Laurier knows the Colonial Office is looking to him as the main support for a "sit down and think" policy. If the Colonial Office can manage to make the conference do this, Sir Wilfrid will not be displeased, but he takes no risks in giving too much help. Evidently he was not prepared to see the Colonial Office give up the fight without further effort on Saturday, for he was visibly out of temper for the rest of the sitting.

ANOTHER COSTLY FIRE.

Montreal Grocery Firm Suffers Serious Loss.

Montreal, April 22.—A hundred-thousand-dollar fire visited Montreal at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, burning the wholesale grocery establishment of N. Quintal Fils, Limited, at 274 St. Paul street. It took the firemen over two hours to get it under control. The building next door, formerly occupied by Daoust Lalode, who had a fire about a month ago, was not damaged at all. The losses will be about $100,000, fully covered by insurance. Luckily for the firm this is the time that their stock is lowest, as a large consignment of goods was expected in a couple of weeks.

Sultan Defies Powers.

Tangier, April 22.—The Sultan of Morocco, according to a courier who arrived here yesterday from Fez, is not willing to carry out the terms of the Algeciras convention. He is said to be delaying facilities for the formation of the international police, and also pays no notice to the French claims relative to redress for the murder of Dr. Mauchamp.

French Bombard Native Town.

Konakry, French Guiana, April 22.—A detachment of French troops recently bombarded Bousedou, in Upper Guiana, which was occupied by natives of Liberia, who had pillaged in French territory

SPRING THOUGHTS

By Sir Rennell Rodd, G.C.V.O., K.C.M.G., C.B.

My England, island England, such leagues and leagues away;
It's years since I was with thee, when April wanes to May.
Years since I saw the primrose, and watched the brown hillside
Put on white crowns of blossoms and blush like April's bride;
Years since I heard the skylark, and caught the throbbing note
Which all the soul of springtide sends through the blackbird's throat.
O, England, island Englnd, if it has been my lot
To live long years in alien lands, with men who love thee not,
I do but love thee better who know each wind that blows,
The wind that slay the blosom, the wind that buds the rose,
The wind that shakes the taper mast and keeps the topsail furled,
The wind that braces nerve and arm to battle with the world;
I love thy moss-deep grasses, thy great untortured trees,
The cliffs that wall thy havens, the weed scents of thy seas.
The dreamy river reaches, the quiet English homes,
The milky path of sorrel down which the springtide comes.
Oh land so loved through length of years, so tended and caressed,
The land that never stranger wronged nor foeman dared to waste,
Remember those thou speedest forth round all the world to be
Thy witness to the nations, thy warders on the sea!
And keep for those who leave thee and find no better place,
The olden smile of welcome, the unchanged mother-face!

HYMAN AGAIN RESIGNS.

$2,000 Voted for Deportation of Undesirable Immigrants.

Ottawa, April 22.—Hon. Charles S. Hyman has made a third and powerful effort to resign. Mr. Speaker, at the opening of the House on Saturday morning, read his resignation. It is adorned with two witnesses and a red seal and is probably regular. The letter is as follows:

"April 11, 1907.—Hon. R. F. Sutherland: I beg herewith to tender my resignation as member of the House of Commons for the elective division of London. (Signed) Charles S. Hyman; witnesses, Clarke and Finnan."

The House got into supply at noon and took up estimates of the Interior Department. Two thousand dollars was appropriated towards deporting undesirable immigrants. Last year 137 undesirables were deported.

In discussing Indian affairs, there was a general complaint that Indian lands and islands were being sold for nominal sums to political friends of the Government. Mr. Boyce spoke for Algoma, and Mr. Bennett (E. Simcoe) for the islands in the Georgian Bay.

In reply to a question Mr. Oliver stated that F. T. Congdon, legal counsel to the Yukon council, has resigned.

Mr. Fowler revived the Moncton land scandal. Last session the high price paid to Matthew Lodge as middleman was justified by Mr. Emmerson and Mr. Fielding by producing departmental records showing the amount paid a few years before by the Conservative Government for half an acre of land at Moncton. It now transpires that it was 6 1-2, but in some way the "6" disappeared from the record and the House was deceived thereby.

Mr. Fielding said that he relied upon Mr. Emmerson. The latter was absent.

Mr. Clement (W. Kent) appealed for more protection to the tobacco growers of Canada. Mr. Fielding thought that the farmers already had enough protection.

WORK OF THE SESSION

The session of the Legislature which came to an end Saturday, was not so picturesque as that of last year; nor is the volume of law produced by it so great. But the work has been very varied in its character, and the results are important to the public. The determination of the Whitney Government to conduct affairs with a single eye to the general welfare has been maintained, and all the laws point in the right direction. A notable feature of the legislation, says the Mail and Empire, is the new Company Act, which protects, as they never were protected before the people in corporations. Companies cannot now be of the wild-cat type, and shareholders are reasonably free from loss.

While private rights in companies have been conserved, public interests in such corporations as have been formed for the operating of the public domain have been dealt with. A mining tax on output, gives the province a share of its own wealth when exhumed. But this money is not lost to the mining industry, for provision is made for the encouragement by bonus of refining enterprises. The Whitney Government wants to have our own ores refined in our own country. Dealing with the affairs of New Ontario, the administration has taken preliminary authority for the extension of the Government railway from Cobalt to Sudbury. This may mean the opening up of new mineral districts for the north country is understood to be full of wealth. For the same part of the province, an advance has been made in the important matter of road-making. A grant of from one-third to two-thirds of the cost of colonization roads will be made by the Government. Thus there will be a greater development of public highways that can be the case under present conditions. At the same time there will be a forward movement in the more settled parts of the province. Towards the making of roads by counties a million dollars has been granted, and any county taking advantage of the new law can get from the Public Treasury one-third of the cost of any roadwork it undertakes. The roads of the country are the arteries of commerce, the very veins through which life runs, and the devotion of public money towards their construction is a wise move. Education has received further attention from the Government. The policy of securing larger salaries for teachers is retained, and the Government now induces the local authorities to pay more generously. On teachers' salaries above $300, the Government pays 40 per cent. of the excess up to $600. This is an encouragement that cannot fail to be helpful to the cause of education. The school-book problem has not been solved, but a step of an important character has been taken. In the past competition in the production of readers has been prevented, owing to the fact that the present publishers hold certain copyrights. In the future the copyrights will not be allowed to stand in the way. The new legislation authorizes the publication of the books on authority of the Government, despite the copyrights. A very excellent move for the cultivation of the spirit of patriotism has been taken through the decision to purchase flags for all rural schools. The province supplies the flags, and the school trustees arrange for their use. Labor receives additional consideration by the appointment of three new factory inspectors, and once again, by the decision of the Government to deal with the Central Prison labor question. The proposition is to do away with contract prison labor altogether, and to employ the prisoners on some outside work, such as the cultivation of a prison farm. All the questions appertaining to public institutions are receiving careful attention and it is announced that plans are being considered for the better treatment of the insane.

The legislation has been progressive and it is gratifying to know that the management of the finances has been excellent. Last year's surplus was $429,000, and there was in addition a very important reduction in the railway bonus obligations. The province will be glad to observe the thoroughness with which the Governments has upheld provincial rights. The attempt by the Dominion to take over the control of public service corporations is met by the law which renders void the agreement of such companies and forfeits their subsidies. The forcible seizure of 55,000 acres of Ontario land at Petawawa by the Federal Government is made the subject of a vigorous protest. Altogether the Whitney Government has had a splendid session, and, while it is to be congratulated, so also are the people who enjoy the results of its labors.

Ashes for sale—no sir. Most citizens know their value only too well.

Longboat is the name of a sprinter, not a barque, and "Bob Hall" is the name of a tug.

The man who faithfully carried all the ashes out of his cellar, and dumped them in the back yard or lane is now very sorry that he was so industrious. He will know better in the future.

SHOW YOUR GOOD SENSE.

Some Advice to the Young Woman Who Is Not Engaged.

Don't be aggressive about it and insist that you never yet met a man you would dream of marrying. Even if this is true, your vigorous assertions will leave the opposite impression on the minds of your hearers.

Don't belittle your present male acquaintances by building day dreams with a personification of all the virtues as hero.

Don't drop vague hints about a secret engagement which time alone will divulge.

Don't pretend you don't believe in love. No one will believe this either.

Don't try to give the impression that you are wavering betwixt a number of brilliant offers and can't decide which to accept.

And don't, above all things, make transparent remarks about a girl's losing her freedom if she marries under twenty-five. Such an excuse is for girls in their teens.

Better decide to say nothing about it at all. If some one comes at you with the unpardonably blunt question, "Have you ever met a man you could care for?" don't cast down your eyes and give a sentimental sigh. Look your outrageous questioner straight in the face and answer cheerfully, "Hundreds of times!" and the chances are you and your affairs will be left in peace by that person at all events.

Endeavor to show people that you really enjoy life as you are—not by talking about it, but by a cheerful, sunny demeanor and a busy life with lots of friends and a reasonable amount of amusement.—Pittsburg Press.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

You Cannot Acquire This Science From Books Alone.

Did you ever ask yourself the meaning of the term domestic economy? Most likely you never did. Notwithstanding the growing popularity of this branch of this study, there is no subject the name and nature of which are so generally misunderstood.

Some young women think it means "cookery and laundry lessons," others think "scraping and saving" would more fitly define it, while dim ideas of so called menial duties and domestic drudgery float through the brains of others.

But these are "small nibblings at the outer bark" of the truth, which is that domestic economy is a saving knowledge, a knowledge which relates to the intelligent and cultivated knowledge of everything connected with the home.

It is the science of the home and pre-eminently a woman's science. It is the woman's work to make the house into a home. Every woman ought to know how to do all things necessary to make a home happy, says Woman's Life.

The husband earns the money, but the principal part of it has to be spent by the wife; hence it is very important that all girls should learn domestic economy. But please remember that domestic economy is one of those things that cannot be learned from books alone.

Miner Horribly Mangled.

Haileybury, April 20.—Harry Boyne of Welsh, England, was killed by an explosion of twenty sticks of dynamite, which he was thawing out. He was horribly mangled and lived only an hour. Mrs. Prenties, his housekeeper, was rendered unconscious.

The woodworking factory at Arcola, Sask., was destroyed by fire. The loss is $5,000.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

Athletic Pastimes That Prove Injurious to Women.

An eminent physician the other day expressed very decided views concerning the inadvisability of girls' teams of basket ball and hockey, saying that girls and women are in great danger of overdoing these sports and are likely to sustain permanent injury.

Let woman rather confine herself to the lighter and more graceful forms of gymnastics and athletics, he says, and make herself supreme along these lines, as she has already done in aesthetic dancing.

Among the athletic sports and games likely to prove injurious to most women if played in the form in which they are played by men Dr. Sargent mentioned football, ice hockey, basket ball, pole vaulting and heavy gymnastics.

These games prove injurious to women, he adds, because of the limitations imposed by their physical configuration, the tendency to become masculine in form and character if they try to excel in masculine pursuits and their inability to bear prolonged mental and physical strain. Nevertheless such sports could be so modified as to meet the peculiar requirements of the sex, with the result that they could be played by women with reasonable hope of physical, mental and moral development.—Boston Traveler.

HOME MANAGEMENT.

The Great Secret of Success Is Tact and Good Temper.

A managing woman is quite a term of reproach, but it ought not to be so, for every wife and mother should try to be this. The fact is that women feel this pretty generally, but a good many have not the tact and wisdom they need to help them in their work.

Management when recognized is always rather resented both by children and grownup people as an indignity, but a tactful woman never lets it be seen, and peace and happiness are assured under her reign. She studies the dispositions of her husband, children and dependents and wins rather than drives. She is gentle and courteous and requests and suggests far more than she commands.

The great secret of successful management at home is to keep your own temper and to take care not to upset any one else's. In the control of her servants the good mistress gives praise where it is deserved and gives credit for good intentions even where the performance has not been wholly satisfactory. If sometimes it is necessary to administer a reproof she chooses a time when she can do so pleasantly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A lotion of equal parts of alcohol and rosewater for bathing the nose after the bath will lessen the oily condition.

Camphor should never be used in tooth powder. It makes the teeth white for the time, but it renders the enamel brittle, so that the teeth decay more readily.

To darken the hair boil one-fourth pound of walnut bark in one quart of water. Add one-half teaspoonful powdered alum to set the color. This will make the hair a dark brown shade.

If soap has a coarsening effect upon the skin it would be well to use it but once a week, using a good cold cream to remove the dust and dirt from the face. Follow the massage with a bath in tepid water and then apply cold water to tone the skin.

The answer to "What are blackheads?" is simply an aggregation of dirt, grime and foreign matter. Get your face perfectly clean by constant care with brush, soap and water, and above all keep it clean, for that is the secret of the elimination of blackheads.

Servants In Italy.

Because Italian women have the knack of making their servants practically members of their families, yet keeping them "in their place," Italy is almost the Utopia of housekeepers, says the New York Press. When a girl is employed by an Italian woman she takes up the work with the expectation of continuing it for years. The mistress by keeping a keen eye on the servant's welfare does her utmost to make the girl feel she is one of the family. She lives, travels, prospers and often suffers with the family. She blacks boots, waits on table and looks after the children, and great is the devotion her mistress commands. Higher wages seldom will induce her to leave one position for another.

Ribbons.

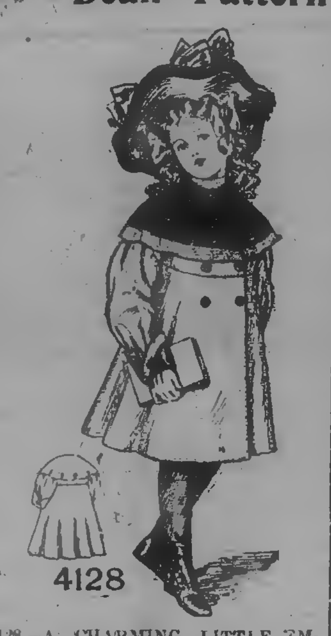
Ribbons will become creased in spite of the best care, and a hot flatiron removes but few of these marks of use. A better plan is: Take a smooth quart bottle and fill with boiling hot water. Then wrap a single paper smoothly around the bottle, wrap the ribbon around the paper perfectly smooth and tight and then wrap another paper around this and pin in place. Set it aside a day and night, and the ribbon will be beautifully smooth and new to appearance. Soiled ribbons may be soaked and squeezed in a weak suds and when rinsed and dried ironed in this way. It is a very satisfactory method.

Grease Spots.

Here is a new way to remove a grease spot, which answers excellently: First place a double thickness of blotting paper on an ironing board. Lay the material on this and sponge well with benzine. Now put two more thicknesses of blotting paper on top and iron with a moderately hot iron. Remember that benzine is inflammable, so don't do this near a fire or light and see that your flatiron isn't at scorching heat.

Robt Peebles, father of Alderman Peebles, Hamilton, died recently in the city.

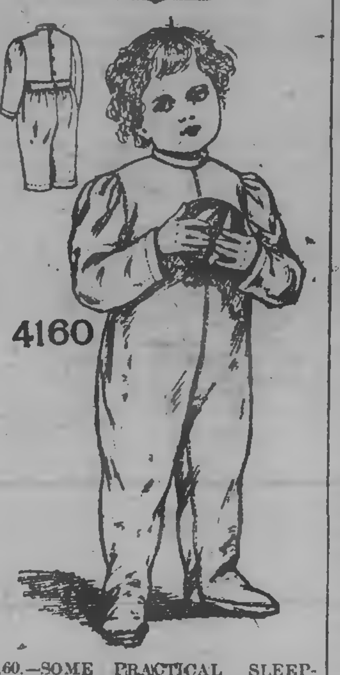
The Latest Dean Pattern



4128.—A CHARMING LITTLE EMPIRE COAT.

The modes for grown-ups are often most quaint and fetching when adapted to the apparel of the little people and a very attractive example is shown in the small Empire coat. The skirt portion is circular fitting the waist exactly and rippling prettily at the hem. The deep collar is a very becoming feature giving the long-shouldered effect and offering an opportunity for trimming. The model is of broadcloth with collar, cuffs and buttons of velvet, but a serge, cheviot or pongee might serve. The sleeves may be full length or shorter and are exceedingly well shaped. The front of the coat is double-breasted and the shield may be worn only when desired. The design is a bit different from the ready-to-wear styles and therefore will appeal to the particular women. The medium size requires 2 yards of 54 inch material.

4128.—Sizes 3 to 10 yards.

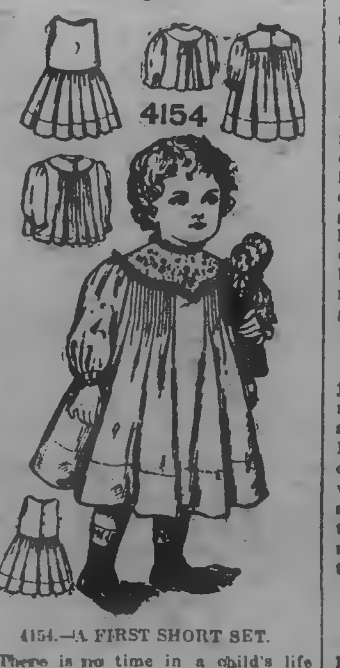


4160.—SOME PRACTICAL SLEEPING DRAWERS.

Every mother appreciates the practicability of sleeping garments which cover the small wearer from head to foot with not the slightest chance for cold to get in. No amount of tumbling and tossing can expose the small person to the night air and this alone relieves the mother of no end of worry and care. These shown are to be made with or without feet and with the closing in back. They may be worn by a boy or girl and should be made of such material as washable flannel, canton flannel or longcloth. The medium size calls for 2 3-8 yards of 36 inch material.

4160.—Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 years.

The price of this pattern is 10c.



4154.—A FIRST SHORT SET.

There is no time in a child's life when he is so altogether lovable as when long baby clothes are shed and he appears in short dresses which mother has provided. Here is a charming little set consisting of a dress with fanciful yoke, a petticoat and sack. The dress while very simple is unique in its yoke, which may be of the plain material, a simple embroidery or tucking.

OLD VIOLINS.

The Best Method of Finding Out Their True Value.

Very often somebody thinks that he or she has a small fortune locked up in a fiddle case. The somebody does not know much about violins, but has heard or read that an old violin is a very valuable thing, and because grandfather happened to leave a violin, to assume duties upon the harp, somebody immediately believes that grandfather's violin is a treasure. As a matter of fact, ninety-nine times out of a hundred grandpa invested in a ten dollar fiddle and played "Suwanee River" and "Annie Laurie." When he bought it the violin was worth $10, but since then it has been depreciating in value at the rate of about 10 cents a year. From the mere fact that most of the varnish is scratched off and there are several cracks in the instrument it does not follow that it is an "old one."

If a violin is good to start with it will improve with age and good care, but, on the other hand, a poor fiddle is not benefited to any extent if it survives a century or two.

Don't judge a violin by the label inside of it. Anybody can copy an old name and date and paste it in. If all the violins bearing a Stradivarius label were his, poor old Antonius would be working yet. More than half of the cheap, worthless violins bear copies of his or some other master's label, and even some real old and good instruments have been passed off as the work of Amati, Guarneri, Magini and other famous makers.

Any one having a violin with the label of a comparatively unknown maker is likely to be the owner of a more valuable instrument than the person whose fiddle is marked "Antonius Stradivarius."

There is only one way to find out whether or not a violin is living up to its name, and that is to get the judgment of a good dealer. If he tells you that your violin is no good, but still offers to buy it, you may be quite certain that you have a good fiddle. But don't sell it. Take it to some other authority and see what he says, but don't make a bargain. You will hear from him if your violin is genuine, for the supply of valuable ones is small and great rivalry exists among dealers to secure masterpieces.

A great many people have the idea that all the very good instruments are the output of a half dozen old geniuses when the truth is that there are scores of old as well as quite modern makers whose works bring very high prices.

A FEW WORDS.

Don't say abolishment, for abolition is the perfect word.

Don't say wonderment when wonder will express your meaning.

Don't say "My politics are." Politics is singular in spite of the final s.

Don't say people when you mean persons. People is a collective noun, in the singular number.

Don't say flapdoodle words, for even when properly employed your meaning will not be so clear to the reader as when you use simple words.

Don't say receipt when you mean recipe. The collector to whom you pay money gives you a receipt. A formula for the preparation of food is a recipe.

Don't say surprised when you mean astonished. You may be astonished to find Johnny stealing jam, but he is surprised by you.

A Cause For Thanks.

Charles O'Conor once began an after dinner speech in Philadelphia in this way:

"I must confess that I dread to make after dinner speeches. At the most sumptuous dinners, even at such a dinner as this one, if I know that at the end I must make a speech I am nervous, I have no appetite, I find little to admire in the best efforts of the chef. In truth, gentlemen, I can readily imagine Daniel, if he was at all of my mind, heaving a sigh of relief as the lions drew near to devour him—heaving a sigh of relief and murmuring:

"'Well, if there's any after dinner speaking to be done on this occasion, at least it won't be done by me.'"

Gentle Door Taps.

A story of extraordinary deafness was unfolded at a recent meeting of a medical society in Philadelphia. An elderly woman, exceedingly hard of hearing, lived near the river. One afternoon a warship fired a salute of ten guns. The woman, alone in her little house, waited until the booming ceased. Then she smoothed her dress, brushed her hair back in a quaint manner and said sweetly, "Come in."—Argonaut.

The Letter I.

The name of "I" is in Hebrew jod or jot, a hand, and the earliest characters representative of the sound closely resemble a hand with but three fingers. Little by little one finger after another dropped off until only the little finger was left, and the letter became the smallest in the alphabet, a jot or tittle, that is, the "I" and its dot being synonymous of the most insignificant things that could be described.

Where Snow Falls.

If you are not a lover of snow, go to Malta, which is the nearest spot where you are certain of complete immunity. If you are fond of it, the suburbs of St. Petersburg will furnish all you need to ask, for there you may be sure of it for 170 days in the year. The happy medium is supplied by Copenhagen, with thirty days, while Palermo, Rome and Venice, with one, two and five days respectively, may be recommended to those who merely care for snow as a casual and fleeting guest.—London Chronicle.

WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION

The possibility that a defunct cat should have nine ghosts probably never occurred to any writer until Ellis Parker Butler contributed his very funny short story "The Chromatic ghosts of Thomas" to the May Woman's Home Companion. The story will certainly march down the aisles of fame, arm in arm with "Pigs is Pigs" by the same author. Grace Margaret Gould describes the latest fads in gowns and frocks; Evelyn Parsons contributes new ideas for summer needle work, and Fannie Merritt Farmer describes emergency dishes in her monthly cooking lesson. In the pages for children Dan Beard tells the "Sons of Daniel Boone" how to build play forts, and Aunt Janet sends a message to the members of her "Club of Clubs." The May number of this popular magazine is illustrated in colors—an important departure for magazines of its size.

Wm Martineau, one of the victims of the Montreal laundry fire, lost his life in saving others.

A case of smallpox was discovered in the gaol at St. Thomas, and that institution has been placed under quarantine.

Change in Contractors for North Ward School Addition

Mr. W. J. Johnston Has Assigned the Work to Baptie Bros. of Lakefield—McGregor & Reid Get Collegiate Institute Wiring.

The Board of Education held a special meeting on Saturday night, at which the contract for the wiring of the new Collegiate Institute was awarded and some other business transacted.

Those present were: Messrs. Fair, chairman; Dumble, Pringle, Morrison, Robinson, Hayes and Hill.

Dr. Morrison reported for the Collegiate Institute special committee, that they had awarded the contract for the electric wiring of the Collegiate Institute to McGregor & Reid, the price being $471. The other contractors and their figures were as follows:—F. W. J. MacPherson, $385; Alexander & Miller, $448.50. The report also recommended that the contract for the heating of the new building be left until a later date.

On motion the report was adopted without discussion.

It is expected that tenders for the heating of the new Collegiate will be called for at an early date.

It was moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Robinson, that W. J. Johnston be permitted to assign his contract for the addition to the North Ward School to Baptie Bros. of Lakefield, they giving to the Board satisfactory bonds for the performance of the contract.

The above action resulted from a request from Mr. Johnston that he might assign his contract to the Lakefield men, as he found that he would not have the necessary time to supervise the work on the north ward school addition as he would like to do. He has several other large contracts on hand, which will keep him busy all season. Baptie Bros. are spoken of highly, and no doubt they will perform the the work in a manner satisfactory to all concerned. Mr. Johnston will have no further connection with the contract, the Board dealing directly with Baptie Bros.

Mr Dumble reported for the joint building committees, to the effect that Mr. John Kincaid be inspector for the construction of the North Ward school and Collegiate Institute, at $3.00 per day.

The report was adopted without discussion and the Board then adjourned.

Retail Merchants Association Arranging for Grand Banquet

Arrangements have been completed for holding the annual meeting of the Retail Grocers Association on Thursday evening next. Not only will the officers be elected and reports from committees be received, but it has practically been decided to hold a grand banquet for all the retail merchants in the city. This idea was announced in the Review last week, and it has taken hold and will be carried through. The meeting on Thursday night will be in the Y.M.C.A. parlors, and it is of the utmost importance. Every merchant in the city should turn out, and pack the parlors to their utmost capacity. At the banquet will be speakers from the head of the Retail Merchants Association and they will be men who are thoroughly posted on matters of interest to merchants of all lines.

Frank Cameron Just Finished Term of Ten Years in Kingston

Where He Was Confined for Assaulting a Man and His Daughter in Toronto--Weapon Used Then Was an Axe—Name is Fred Chambers.

The Sunday World announced, to the surprise of nearly everyone, the past career of Frank Cameron, who was supposed to come here from from North Bay. He is the man who created so much disturbance in the Royal Hotel last Wednesday, for which he was lodged in the gaol. The World says:—

The detective department placed him as Fred Chambers, who has recently been released from Kingston Penitentiary, where he was serving a ten-year sentence for one of the most daring and brutal assaults ever committed in Toronto.

Chambers, with one George Stack, entered the grocery store of Henry Aspdon, at 216 Victoria street, during the afternoon of February 28, 1899.

They struck down Aspdon, an old man and felled his daughter with an axe. They escaped but were brought back from Buffalo, where they had fled.

Chambers was given ten, and Stack twelve years in the penitentiary. The latter is still in that institution.

"He is one of the most dangerous criminals with whom we have to deal," said Inspector of Detectives Duncan. "We have been wondering where he has been for some weeks, and this clears it up."

The maximum penalty for the Peterborough offence is nine years.

Many More Dogs Fall Victims; Poisoner Still Gets in His Work

The cowardly dog poisoner must certainly be overjoyed at the fact that his dastardly work is meeting with great success. Many valuable canines are falling a prey to the deadly trap which he prepares for them. In Saturday's issue of this paper a number of dogs were reported having been poisoned. Since then a great many more have become victims. Someone is evidently trying to destroy all the canines in the city and if something is not soon done to put a stop to it his purpose will be accomplished. The man's intention is evidently to get after them all, and to do this, he strews the poison on the street. Every spring the poisoner gets busy and does a lot of the most treacherous and cowardly acts that a man could do. It would be well for the police to investigate the wholesale poisoning that is going on and try and find the miscreant. Mr. John McWilliams, of Rogers street, east city, lost his little brown spaniel on Saturday evening by poisoning. It was a great pet with the family and they had it for many years.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin's dog "Jerry," also was a victim. It passed away on Saturday evening. He was a decided favorite with all, especially the news boys.

Miss C. Graham, Hunter street, found "Kitchener," her brown spaniel, dead in the shed yesterday morning. She was greatly surprised and as she has had him for a great many years she misses him terribly.

Dr. Johnston was called to Gibb's livery this morning to attend Mr. Harold Gibbs bull dog. Nothing could be done for the animal which died a short time after. The doctor's own spotted coach dog also ate of the deadly stuff, but was noticed in time and will likely recover.

Mr. H. LeBrun's valuable bull dog has also succumbed to poisoning.

Mr Bruce Douse reports the loss of his little brown fox terrier. It was poisoned on Friday last.

Several others have also been poisoned, in fact they are dropping dead on the streets. If the poisoning continues the city will receive very little from dog taxes this year.

A vigilance committee has been organized and is on the lookout for the offender.

"THE ROYAL CHEF"

TO-NIGHT

The Management of the Opera House would ask patrons to come as early as possible so as not to disturb the performance, which starts at 8.15 sharp. Doors open at 7.30.

FIRST LOCKAGE OF THE SEASON

Mr. Herb Feint Went to Keene in Gasoline Launch

Mr. Herb. Faint of East City, has the honor of being the first to go through the locks just below the Little Lake Cemetery. Mr. Faint went down the river to Keene today in his gasoline launch, "Floradora," and Lockmaster Collins was on hand to let him through the locks. The launch travelled at a lively clip owing to the swift current.

CARETAKER FOR THE ARMOURY

Sergt. Richard Boyle in Charge at East City

Sergt. Richard Boyle of the 24th Field Battery, has been appointed caretaker of the East City Armories and will be in charge from now on. Sergt. Boyle is a good man for the position, and there is no doubt, but that the armories will be well looked after.

CHIMNEY FIRE ON BROCK ST.

About half past ten this morning an alarm was sent in to the fire station from Brock street. The hose reel lost no time in responding. In fact the horses were on the street, almost as soon as the bell began to ring and they travelled at a great slip. The fire was in the back chimney of Mr. Valentine Best's residence 209 Brock street, but the firemen prevented it being dangerous.

Late Comers, Take Special Notice

Be on Hand Early at Opera House This Evening

The management of the Opera House, request that all those who are attending the production of "The Royal Chef," tonight be in their seats before 8.15 o'clock. There is going to be a crowded house and much discomfort will be avoided if patrons of the Opera House make a special effort to be in their seats before the curtain goes up. It is not fair for those who go early to have their pleasure marred by late comers who scramble to their places when the show is in progress and everybody enjoying it. The theatre doors open at 7.30 p.m., and it would be well if everybody made a special effort to be in good time.

NO SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It was too transparent for the fruit dealers to put their truck in the same class with the flowers in the flower store bewteen trying to get exemption from the by-law against obstructing the streets. Why, the flowers are a thing of beauty, and a joy forever, and should receive some consideration, while semi-decayed fruit with its vile smell and detriment to health, should not be given any privilege, but put under strict surveilance. Their excuse that by using the street they can sell fruit to those who otherwise would not purchase and presumably do not need the stuff, is one of the best reasons why they should not be granted the privilege.

To grant a special privilege to the few who have illuminated signs and that too without any restrictions as to size of sign or location is clearly an ultra vires act of the Council, and should be withdrawn before costs are incurred for legal proceedings. The only ones entitled to the privilege are those occupying upper flats, because of the necessity, and it should be granted to all alike in that class. Surely the Council are not blind to such a reasonable view.

Yours, etc.,
REASON.

Nineteen Union Harness Makers Are Now on Strike

Walked Out of B. F. Ackerman and Son's Establishment at Three O'clock This Afternoon—Are Demanding Higher Wages.

Nineteen members of the United Brotherhood of Leather Workers on Horse Goods, employees of B. F. Ackerman, & Son, harness manufacturers, are on strike. They walked out of the shop, sharp at three o'clock this afternoon, after having notified the management of the steps they intended taking, if their demands were not acceded to.

The men are asking for higher wages and the management of the establishment refuses to meet the demand made, although willing to make an advance over the wages being paid at present.

The establishment in question, is an open shop, union and non-union men, both being employed. The union men only, are affected by the strike. The men have been working ten hours per day, or sixty hours per week, and the average wage paid to the nineteen men who are now on strike has been $9.60 per week, per man, or 16c per hour. The union asked for an increase of $1.18 per week for a 59 hour week, work to be stopped on Saturday at five o'clock. The men have been getting off on Saturday at five o'clock for some time past, but they only took fifty minutes for the interval at dinner, instead of the usual hour.

The management agreed to raise the salaries of certain men in the union, some as high as $1.00; others 50c per week, while others were to receive no advance. The average increase for the nineteen men belonging to he union would be 68c per man per week. The management were willing to grant the nine hour day on Saturday, or 59 hours per week.

The offer was submitted to the men and they refused to accept it, holding out for the $1.18 per week increase for all the union harness makers. The men also objected to a clause in the proposition, made to the effect that if all foremen of gangs must, if ordered, take one apprentice, and instruct him. This is contrary to he constitution of the Leather Workers Union, which states that there must be only one apprentice to every ten journeymen. There are only thirty journeymen harness makers at Ackerman's and according to the constitution, the shop would be entitled to only three apprentices, whereas under the arrangement proposed by the management, there could be six apprentices in the shop as there are six foremen of gangs.

The strike does not affect the non-union harness makers. The strikers are members of local union, No. 107.

Both sides are said to be firm in the stand taken, and the outcome will be awaited with interest. A mass meeting of the harness makers will be held in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, tomorrow night at eight o'clock to discuss the situation. The strikers will also meet every morning, until something is done regarding a settlement.

Signalling Class Honored Their Sergeant Instructor

Sergeant Crowley Presented With Military Wrist Watch on Friday Evening—Other Notes of Interest.

Sergeant Instructor Crowley, who has been in charge of the signalling class in connection with the 57th regiment since it was formed about six weeks ago, left for Kingston on Saturday, being called away by other business. On Friday night the members of the class took advantage of the regular drill to show their esteem for Sergeant Crowley and presented him with a handsome military wrist watch. The presentation was made by Sergt.-Major Brittain, who in a few appropriate words, refered to the pleasant relations that had existed between the members of the class and Sergt. Crowley since the latter had come to Peterborough several weeks ago. The members of the class had found the sergeant instructor a splendid fellow and regretted that he had to leave. Sergt. Crowley made a neat reply in which he expressed hearty thanks for their handsome and useful gift. Coming from military men he would appreciate it more highly and it would serve as a reminder of the time he had spent in Peterborugh.

Sergeant Crowley was called to Kingston by duties in connection with the headquarters of the signalling service there. He is secretary to Major Bruce Carruthers, head of the Canadian Signalling service, and duties in this connection necessitated his return.

Sergeant Instructor McGowan of Kingston, arrived to-day to take charge of the class until the examinations take place on Wednesday.

Lieut. Stroud, of Kingston, who has been here in connection with the signalling class, is leaving for Toronto where he will take a course at Stanley barracks. He was also very popular among the members of the class and they will be sorry to see him leaving the city.

It is likely that Major Carruthers will be here on Wednesday to conduct the examinations.

Mayor McWilliams Explains Cause of Dust Nuisance in City

City Cannot Get Water From Standpipes Until Water Works Men Get Ready to Turn Them on--Street Commissioner Evans Was Out Early.

Street Commissioner Harry Evans was out this morning before seven o'clock, trying to find a man connected with the waterworks, so as to get the stand pipes turned on. He was unsuccessful for some time, but finally located a man, and the water was turned on in the business section.

His Worship, the mayor, stated at noon that he and the Chairman of the Board of Works and Street Commissioner, had done all they could to get the carts going early. The blame says the mayor, is with the Water Commissioners and Jack Frost. The Commissioners will allow no one to turn on the stand pipes except one of their own men. That, of course, means a big delay. Then the water will not be turned on, if it is at all frosty, as the Commissioners fear the stand pipes will freeze. the mayor claims that Mr. Evans is not at all to blame. Had he been able he would have had the carts out a couple of hours earlier.

The contractors on the outside sections, the mayor said, are also starting today. The man in the south end was on his cart at a stand pipe, waiting for the water to be turned on early this morning.

On Saturday night, Superintendent Henderson of the waterworks, stated that none of the stand pipes were frozen. Not one had been frozen this year. There was frost, however, which caused some inconvenience with the valve on top of the pipe, but it was not frozen.

From all appearances the Council and the Commissioners are trying to put the blame on each other, with the result that the people have to pay for it, in health, loss of goods and cold cash, to say nothing of inconvenience. The same thing occurs every spring and fall, and it is high time a new arrangement between the Commissioners and the Council was made. The people will not stand for such nonsense any longer. If the stand pipes are liable to freeze, the hydrants are not, and the people pay enough money for the water, and are entitled to it. The time for squabbling over technicalities has passed. There is an actual need and it must be filled.

Remember the sale of Mr. R. E. Woods' household furniture on Thursday, April 25th at his residence, Gilmour Street. 3d

A TRUE BENEFACTOR

A sensible woman has at last appeared at Seattle. She is rich and announces that she will build a rooming house in which will only be admitted as guests couples who have children. The larger the family, the warmer will be the glad hand which will welcome them to this model and modern hostelry. At other rooming houses in the western metropolis married people who apply for accommodation are asked: "Have you any children?" If they reply in the affirmative they are almost invariably told, "We never board children." We are glad that a hotel-keeper has at last been found who does not regard children as a nuisance, and their fathers and mothers as disgraced

Rev. J. R. Webb Gave Instructive Address

A musical and literary evening was spent last night at the Park street Baptist church under the auspices of the B.P.P.U. Two instrumentals on violin and organ were given by Miss and Mr. W. Leader; a solo by Mr. Chas. Barrie and a duett by Mrs. H. Jewett and Jas. Tranter. The pastor introduced Rev. J. R. Webb, of the Murray street church, as a very warm friend of Park street Baptist church, who gave a most thoughtful address on "Wise ways to read wise Books," dealing with History, biograpy and poetry. He outlined several books worthy of diligent study and also emphasized how to read profitably. Mr. Webb was very heartily received and his return will be anxiously looked for. A vote of thanks was accorded him.

PROF. ELLIS VIEWS

Of course there are many doubters, and one of the strongest of them is Prof. Ellis, professor of Applied Chemistry at the School of Applied Science, Toronto. Prof. Ellis says: "The whole thing is an absurdity from a scientific standpoint. There is one thing however, which is an absoluitely fixed equation and that is that ashes, by which I suppose is meant the residum left after complete combustion, have no heating power left whatever, and no possible treatment can make them produce heat whether in conjunction with fresh coal or otherwise. Their constituent elements are shortly stated silica, alumina, lime, and oxide of iron in varing quantities, with some other elements in trifling proportions, which, however, do not count. Under no conditions could these give out heat, and the suggestion that by any special treatment heat results can be obtained, is simply an absurdity."

Mr. Fowler M. P. Will be Here

One of the Speakers at the Conservative Mass Meeting on Friday Night

Mr. G. W. Fowler, M. P., is coming—the man who is said to have driven Mr. Emmerson from public life.

Mr. Geo. W. Fowler, M.P., of King's and Albert, N. B., is one of the forces of Canadian politics. Few men would have dared to rise up in the Council of the Nation and condemn the methods in vogue in certain quarters of Canadian politics. The present Government will go down to history as having been more scathingly denounced than any of its predecessors. To Mr. Fowler belongs the credit of having bearded the lion in his den. That he is in the limelight of Canadian politics at the present time goes without saying. He is described by the newspapers of Montreal as a forcible speaker, who lets nothing escape him. He will speak at the big Conservative demonstration in the Opera House on Friday evenin gnext, to which the public is cordially invited.

FOUNDATION IS COMPLETED

The Cayuga Murder Trial; More About the Pill Box

Witness Swears None Was in Drawer When He Searched.

Mrs. Perkins Victim of Insomnia—Has to Be Dosed With Sleeping Draughts—Medical Evidence For Defence—Doctor Says Deceased Died From Bright's Disease—Jury Will Likely Disagree.

Cayuga, April 23.—The trial of Mrs. Mattie Perkins resumed at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the defence submitted some strong testimony concerning the mysterious pill box.

George McArthur, whose wife is a cousin of the prisoner, testified that a week before the arrest he had carefully searched the Perkins' house in an endeavor to find strychnine tablets, and swore that the drawers of the kitchen cabinet did not contain the box which has been produced in court, and in which Dr. Ellis found strychnine crystals.

"What did you expect to find?" asked Mr. Arnoldi, on cross-examination, "an elephant or a pink pill?"

"Well, if I was looking for an elephant and saw one, I wouldn't need a memorandum to remind me," retorted the witness.

Robert Currie, brother of the accused, swore to making an indefinite search for medicine bottle and drugs. He also swore to searching the bureau where later Detective Greer found the strychnine, and said he took away with him several boxes of that type, and was positive that none remained.

Doctor Says Bright's Disease.

Justice Mabee asked several questions upon this point.

Mrs. Heaslip, a sister of the prisoner, explained the writing of the word "ptomaine" in a book by telling of a conversation she and Mrs. Perkins had. They had read of a case of ptomaine poisoning from eating canned food, and Mrs. Perkins said she would make a note of it, as she thought perhaps that was what made Henry sick upon their trip to Detroit.

Mrs. MacDonald was severely cross-examined by Mr. Arnoldi upon the contents of the statements she made and signed to Detective Greer and Crown Attorney Murphy, the contents of which she in part repudiates.

Mr. Johnston sought unsuccessfully to prevent the signed statement from going in as evidence.

The evening session was almost entirely taken up with medical evidence and the defence is nearly closed.

Dr. Graham Chambers of Toronto became a tower of strength to the defence. He was most emphatic in his assertion that the deceased had died from an acute form of Bright's disease.

Counsel Exasperated.

His unequivocating evidence seemed to exasperate Mr. Arnoldi and the lengthy cross-examination produced many passages between them.

It is possible that a verdict may be given within 24 hours, or that the jury will have announced a disagreement.

A. K. Goodman, a practicing barrister of Cayuga, said he had known the Perkins intimately since their marriage. They seemed very devoted to each other and took communion at church together three months before Perkins died. In June, 1904, witness and firm arranged the conveyance of the house which Perkins bought. They paid $400 down, of which Mrs. Perkins supplied $250. She would not have the house in her name. When Perkins gave up the farm, he told witness that he was broken down by farming, and was sick with indigestion.

He himself had sometimes used strychnine to kill rats in his own garden.

Mrs. MacDonald's Evidence.

Mrs. John MacDonald testified that she had been a neighbor of the Perkins for several years. In the fall of 1906 she often visited Mrs. Perkins, and on several occasions stayed all night with her. Her son Tom went there to put up a gas stove and it took him till after midnight. This was three or four weeks before Christmas. Perkins and his wife were a very happy couple, but Perkins complained about his health.

That Statement.

She remembered the statement she had made. She signed it. She had not her spectacles, so did not read it. It was read over to her and she objected to several parts, but did not know if they were altered. Detective Greer had pressed her to make the statement Crown Attorney Murphy did most of the talking. She did not know what was in it, and if there was anything in its contrary to her evidence "the statement would be wrong."

Witness had never seen anything wrong between Tom and Mrs. Perkins. She admitted she had spoken to Mrs. Johnston about the letter, but denied that she had laid hands upon her. "She was a mischief maker," said Mrs. MacDonald.

Mr. Arnoldi produced the statement and asked her if she had ever seen it before.

"I suppose that's it," said witness.

The statement said that witness had never of her own knowledge known Perkins to "take sick." That Mrs. Perkins "frequently said that Henry might die at any time"; that Tom should not go with Miss Moodie"; that "she said she had consulted Mr. Murphy of Cayuga about her rights if Henry should die without making a will."

The judge asked Mrs. MacDonald what time it was that Mrs. Perkins gave her the tablets.

"During the middle of December, while Mrs. Johnston was there."

George Baker, who witnessed the hammock incident, said they merely covered themselves with an ulster to keep the rain off. He denied cautioning Tom MacDonald.

George E. McArthur, a relative of Mrs. Perkins by marirage, said Mrs. Heaslip asked him to search the house on Feb. 16. Mrs. Perkins was with him part of the time. It was before two o'clock, and the blinds were up. He saw the kitchen cabinet and took each article out. He was looking for tablets because it was rumored that Henry got tablets containing strychnine. He was positive that there was no such box in it as the one produced in court. Mrs. Perkins was not in that room during or after the search.

DEAD PILOT BLAMED.

Was Responsible For Larchmont Disaster Say Inspectors.

New London, Conn., April 23.—United States Steamboat Inspectors Withey and Stewart yesterday made public their finding in the steamer Larchmont marine disaster, on the night of Feb. 11, when more than 100 lives were lost in the sinking of the steamer after collision with the schooner Harry Knowlton in Block Island Sound.

The responsibility for the collision is laid upon Pilot John L. Anson of the Larchmont, who was drowned.

"While it is true that the Larchmont was equipped with boats and rafts in excess of lawful requirements," say commissioners, "only a sufficient proportion of her boats to cover the boatage prescribed for passenger steamers of her tonnage was efficiently davited. This, in our opinion, accounts for the fact that only five of the Larchmont's eight boats reached Block Island."

SIXTY CASES OF SMALLPOX.

Serious Outbreak In Two Townships In Huron County.

Toronto, April 23.—In two townships in Huron County sixty cases of smallpox of a malignant type have been discovered.

As a result of rumors, Dr. Bell, inspector for the Provincial Board of Health, was sent to investigate conditions in Hay and Stephen townships. He found a serious state of affairs. One death had occurred and a number of patients had had no medical attendance and were in a serious condition. Energetic steps were at once taken to check the epidemic.

COST OF LEGISLATURE.

Members Get $101,908 — Indemnities Roll Up Tidy Sum.

Toronto, April 23.—The total amount of sessional indemnity and railway mileage paid to the members of the Legislature was $101,908.

Of this amount, $2,908 was for mileage, the members being entitled to 10 cents a mile once during the session.

Full indemnity was paid all the members, according to custom.

The Ministers' salaries are separately provided for.

With 4 Children, But Penniless.

Belleville, April 23.—A female immigrant, with four small children, arrived in this city on Sunday and had to change for Peterboro. She did not have a cent. Immigration Agent Carr took charge of the family.

Village Fire Swept.

Ballston, N.Y., April 23.—Fire yesterday destroyed the business section of Middlegrove, a village twelve miles from here. The village is without fire protection. The loss will aggregate $30,000.

Second Trial In New York.

New York, April 23.—District Attorney Wm. T. Jerome said last night that he had no intention of either asking for or consenting to a change of venue for the next trial of Harry K. Thaw.

Winnipeg's Assessment.

Winnipeg, April 23.—The civic assessment roll is made up, and shows a total of ninety-five millions, an increase of fifteen millions over last year.

WHERE CANADA LACKS.

Should Be More Attention Paid to the Juvenile Offender.

Ottawa, April 23.—In the Senate yesterday afternoon, Senator Lougheed, resuming the debate on the juvenile delinquents bill, said it was a criminal law, and therefore within the jurisdiction of the Federal Parliament. The law was needed. He was therefore surprised that the Government should have taken the responsibility of offering the measure to Parliament, and, finding it was needed, say it should not go through and become law.

There were experts attached to most of the departments of the Canadian Government to study improvements, but there was no expert attached to the Department of Justice for working out the great sociological problem which had to do with criminals and crime. Canada was spending millions on immigration. One of the subsidiary consequences was an increase in crime. Statistics showed that crime was growing at a greater ratio than population. From 1885 to 1904 there were 31,147 persons under 21 years convicted in Canada of indictable offences. Two-thirds of the inmates of Canadian penitentiaries were under 30 years of age.

Too Dark a View.

Senator Sullivan thought that Senator Lougheed had taken a little too dark a view of crime increase. Crime was encouraged by alcohol, poor food and improper nourishment. Heredity had much to do with crime. There was not in Canada such a terrible state of crime as had been suggested.

England had established industrial schools in 1840. John Pound, shoemaker, of Portsmouth, had organized an agitation for the improvement of poor classes, and the ragged schools had been the result. Since 1854 industrial schools had been doing good work in England among the juvenile offenders. In 1900 there were 4,300 boys in these schools, which took boys at 14 and kept them to 16. From 16 to 17 offenders were put in reform schools. There were also truant schools and days schools as a part of the British system, which was one of the best that could be devised. First offenders only could be sent to the industrial schools. Others were sent to reformatories. Children were looked after for three years after leaving these institutions.

Britain's Peace Envoys.

London, April 23.—The British delegates to the peace conference at The Hague are:

Sir Edward Fry, ex-Lord Justice of Appeal, and a member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague; Sir Ernest Shaw, ex-British Minister at Tokio and Pekin, and a member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague; Lord Reay, president of the Royal Asiatic Society and University College, London, and a member of the Privy Council, and Sir Henry Howard, the British Minister at The Hague.

Japs Peace Proposals.

Tokio, April 23.—According to The Japan Mail, the Japanese delegates at The Hague peace conference will present a series of independent propositions, among them being the conclusion of conventions for the conduct of battle on land and at sea, the use of mines in commercial routes, the use of wireless telegraphy between besieged fortresses and points in neutral territory, the use of neutral ports for belligerent purposes, methods for declaring the opening of hostilities, and the limitation of armaments.

Peace Not Yet.

Washington, April 23.—Advices received here yesterday from Central America are to the effect that the peace negotiations, which have been in progress for the past few days at Aaapala, have come to a deadlock, and it is feared that a renewal of hostilities is impending.

The difficulty appears to lie in the Nicaraguan demand that Salvador shall be held responsible for what has occurred.

Black Handers On Trial.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 23.—More than a score of foreigners, charged with being members of the "Black Hand" Society, and responsible for many crimes in this vicinity, were placed on trial here yesterday. Thirteen cases of shooting with attempt to kill, 13 of conspiracy, six of dynamiting, and two of robbery by threats and menaces are charged.

Engineer Electrocuted.

Rochester, N.Y., April 23.—John Yerger, one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the Erie Railroad, was electrocuted while standing on the roof of his cab yesterday.

Yerger climbed to the roof of his cab to fix the whistle, which was out of order. The back of his shoulder near the neck came into contact with the trolley wire.

Shut Out Lord Aberdeen.

London, April 23.—Lord Aberdeen and party were refused admission to the Canadian Pavilion at Dublin Exhibition by the man on duty, who said his orders were imperative, though the officials explained who the visitor was. Aberdeen got the name of the man, and said he deserved to be commended.

Gimbel Is Dead.

New York, April 23.—Benedict Gimbel, the wealthy Philadelphia merchant, who cut his throat and wrist with broken glass in a hotel in Hoboken soon after he had been arrested on serious charges in this city, died in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken, yesterday morning.

G. T. R. Shopmen Win.

Port Huron, April 23.—Workmen at the Grand Trunk "block I." shops, who went on strike Thursday for an increase of wages, have won. Carpenters will receive $2.20 per day instead of $1.90 and the woodworkers and laborers were given an increase.

Fire At Sundridge.

Sundridge, April 23.—The general store and dwelling of J. C. Faulkner was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Loss, about 1,200; insurance $700.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy denies that the C.P.R. are confiscating coal on their western lines.

WAS AGAINST COUNCIL

Sir Wilfrid Afraid Trouble Might Be Caused in Canada.

Says There Are "Firebrands" Here—Laurier Wanted Imperial Council—Confederation In South Africa—Long Chapter of Dissatisfaction—Ministers Have Kick—Not Allowed to Talk.

London, April 23.—(C. A. P.)—Premier Laurier, interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press, said. "It is well known my views were against the imperial council. I was against it, as I did not wish that resolutions might be passed over here that might cause trouble in Canada, for, you know," said Sir Wilfrid with a smile, "we have some firebrands in Canada, Bourassa and others.

Wanted Imperial Council.

"I wanted an imperial council committee, to be under the supervision of the Colonial Office, so that in any dispute which might arise we would have a responsible Minister to deal with. I pointed to the difficulty we had in Canada when the war with South Africa broke out, when there were some misgivings on the part of the French-Canadians, but they were finally brought around.

"In New Zealand and Australia where they have all one nationality, such matters are made easier."

To the suggestion that the result of the present conference will only be that the representatives of the different parts of the empire will become better acquainted, Sir Wilfrid replied that the fact that Botha and Jameson, two men who fought against each other, were members of the conference, would tend greatly towards the confederation of South Africa.

Position Unsatisfactory.

A Sydney cable says Premier Deakin's attempt to get rid of a colonial official intervention is exciting keen interest, now it is understood the history of the relations of the Colonial Office and the Australian Colonies being one long chapter of dissatisfaction.

The position of the Ministers accompanying the Premiers continues unsatisfactory. On the opening day Sir William Lyne threatened Lord Elgin he would leave the country within 24 hours if not allowed to participate in the conference. It now transpires that one of the Ministers who sits behind the Premiers "felt so like a child sitting with its finger in its mouth keeping good," that he lost patience and broke the silence, wanting to know who he was, what he was and why he was not sitting alongside his own Prime Minister.

The Canadian Associated Press understands Lord Elgin looked hard and Winston Churchill glared disapproval, without, however, overawing the delinquent.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 22.—(Special.)—Cables from Liverpool and London on Canadian cattle were weaker and prices show a decline of ½c to 1c per lb. compared with a week ago, and sales were made at 11½c to 12c per lb. Owing to the near approach of the opening of navigation, there has been a little more life in local export live stock circles, and some business has been done in ocean freight space. The Liverpool space from Portland for May has been let at 27s 6d to Americans for 500 each boat.

At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 20 were 4697 cattle, 28 sheep and lambs, 2260 hogs and 1611 calves, and the offerings for local consumers today were 1000 cattle, 647 hogs and 55 calves. A feature of the trade to-day was the stronger undertone to the market for cattle. This was due to the fact that higher figures have had to be paid by dealers for cattle throout the country, owing to the fact that the competition between buyers for home consumption, and those for export account, has been keener of late for supplies. There was little or no demand for exporters this morning, which to some extent was due to the weak cables from Liverpool on Saturday, noting a decline in prices for both American and Canadian cattle of ¾c to 1c per lb., as compared with those realized a week ago. Owing to this, coupled with higher prices demanded here, exporters showed no disposition to operate. Another feature of the market was the demand from several leading butchers of Quebec, who bought three or four carloads of cows and bulls. In addition there was a large attendance of local butchers, but trade during the early part of the morning was rather slow, as buyers did not feel disposed to pay the above advance noted; but, as supplies were somewhat smaller than a week ago, sellers were firm in their views, and later in the day trade became more active and a clearance was made. Choice beeves sold at 5½c to 5¾c; good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and lower grades at 3¼c to 4¼c per lb.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for hogs, prices today being steady at the decline noted last Wednesday. Supplies were smaller than they have been during the past three weeks on Mondays, and this no doubt tended to check the recent downward tendency of values. The demand from local dealers was fairly good, but packers were not in the market for supplies, as they bought freely in the west last week; however, a steady trade was done with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. There was no improvement in cable advices on Saturday on Canadian bacon; in fact, those from Liverpool and Bristol were easier than a week ago. Supplies of calves were smaller, and trade in this line was not so large, but the demand was good for all offerings, and sales of good to choice stock were made at $8 to $10, and lower grades at $2 to $6 each. The scarcity of sheep and lambs continues as bad as ever and prices rule firm. Sheep are quoted at 5½c to 6c, and lambs at 6½c to 7c per lb., with spring lambs selling at $4 to $8 each.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

In the balloon were A. R. Hawley, a New York broker, and Arthur T. Atherholl of Philadelphia.

The balloon reached an altitude of 12,000 feet. The fear that the strong wind might carry it out to sea caused the determination to land.

The Marathon Mystery

A Story of Manhattan

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Holladay Case"

Copyright, 1904, by Henry Holt and Company

"I'll look for you this evening," I added, hugely enjoying his stupefaction.

He nodded mechanically and turned away, walking like a man in a dream.

* * * * * * *

"Well," began Godfrey as he settled back in his chair and looked around the room, "this is about the last place on earth I'd have expected to find you."

"And yet it's not so wonderful," I pointed out. "I had to change my lodgings and found that these would suit."

"It's in your blood," he went on, smiling. "It has been ever since that affair of Miss Holladay. You'll never get it out. But I'm glad you're here. I've an idea that we're just on the threshold of a very remarkable mystery, and you can help a lot."

"Then the murder wasn't the end?"

"No; I fancy it was only the beginning. Now tell me how you happened to be with Mrs. Tremaine last night."

"Tremaine had an important business engagement," I said, "which he couldn't break. He'd promised to take her to the theater and had secured seats. Rather than disappoint her he asked me to take his place."

"And she didn't object?"

"She made the best of it, I guess."

"She seemed to be getting a good deal of fun out of it."

"She was. She's the most unconventional creature I ever met. She'd interest you, Godfrey."

"I don't doubt it in the least. But Tremaine interests me too. You don't happen to know what this business engagement was?" and he looked at me with a queer smile.

"No. I suppose that it had something to do with his railroad."

"His railroad?"

I related briefly the project in which Tremaine was engaged.

"Well, perhaps it was connected with that," Godfrey said when I had finished, "but indirectly—very indirectly. He spent the evening in Dickie Delroy's box at the opera."

It was my turn to stare.

"Godfrey," I said suddenly, "there are two points I'd like to submit to you—both rather important ones, I fancy. But first I want you to tell me the story of the crime, just as it occurred. I suspect there were some details that didn't get into the Record. Start a cigar first."

He took a cigar and struck a match.

"There were," he assented, with a smile, "a number of details that didn't get before the public. Most of them have an unfortunate tendency to implicate Miss Croydon."

He got up and walked across the room and placed his finger over a little hole in the woodwork of the bedroom door.

"There's where the bullet from her revolver struck," he said. "There's no doubt about that. It was taken out and found to fit. I'd give a good deal to know who it was she fired at and why she fired. I tell you, Lester, the more one thinks about that affair the more incomprehensible it becomes, there are so many questions which seem unanswerable. Who was Thompson? How did he get in condition to receive her? Was the murderer a friend of Thompson's? If not, how did he get into the rooms? Above all, why, after he had knocked Thompson down, should he stand over him and shoot him through the heart? That savors more of a wild beast than of a human being."

He paused a moment in a sort of helpless perplexity, then sat down abruptly and turned to me.

"What were your points?" he asked.

"The first," I said, looking at him, "will, I fear, help to tip the scale against Miss Croydon. She came here the morning after the inquest and tried to rent this apartment."

He stared at me, astounded, his cigar in the air, while I repeated the story Higgins had told me. When I had finished, he sat gazing into vacancy, his lips compressed.

"I see it puzzles you," I said at last, enjoying his perplexity. "I confess I couldn't make anything out of it."

"Puzzles me!" he repeated, getting up again and walking nervously about the room. "Why, it's the most astounding thing I ever heard. It's the most inexplainable feature of this whole unexplainable case. I should think she'd never want to enter these rooms again. But perhaps Higgins was mistaken," he added, stopping short.

"That might be," I admitted, "though he swears he wasn't."

"Well, let's pass over it for a moment. What's the second point? Is it another staggerer?"

"Not a staggerer, but another twist to the puzzle, I imagine. Did Thompson have any jewelry on him?"

"Jewelry? Not a bit. He was practically in rags."

"Where was his body lying?"

"Right here," and he indicated the spot with his foot.

"And right there," I said, "two days later I found this, pressed into the carpet," and I took a little paper packet from my pocketbook.

He opened it carefully and looked at what lay inside. Then he whistled softly.

"A diamond, by all that's wonderful!"

"Tell me what it came out of," I said.

"One of a group, I should say; or perhaps a border around a larger central stone."

"Precisely," I nodded. "And last night I happened to notice that Mrs. Tremaine wore a pin with just such an arrangement of stones. One of the small diamonds in the border was missing."

Godfrey wrapped up the tiny bit of crystal and handed it back to me with an exceedingly thoughtful face.

"That's a mighty pretty bit of evidence," he said at last, "though, of course, it may be only a coincidence. Taken by itself it isn't worth a cent; in connection with other evidence it would be worth a great deal."

"And there isn't any other?"

"Just one little bit. You say Tremaine comes from Martinique. Well, among Thompson's clothes I found a peculiar nut, called a snake nut, which grows only in the West Indies. When you add to this that Thompson's clothing was all such as is worn in the tropics, the presumption is pretty strong that he lived for awhile somewhere in Tremaine's neighborhood."

I nodded; then my face fell.

"After all," I pointed out, "all that amounts to nothing. Both Tremaine and his wife can prove an alibi. They weren't in the building when the crime was committed. You yourself saw them coming back."

"Well, we'll puzzle it out in time. If I only had a chance to study Tremaine, to hear him talk, to watch him without being seen. That would be worth more to me than all this theorizing. Then I'd have my feet on solid ground; I could—sh!—who's that?"

A door opened and a step crossed the hall. There came a tap at my door.

Godfrey shot me one electric glance, then, lightly as a panther, he seized coat and hat and disappeared into the bedroom, leaving the door slightly ajar.

CHAPTER IX.

"I HAVE come to thank you for your kindness of last night," said Tremaine as he entered. "It was indeed a great favor."

"It was nothing," I protested, waving him to a chair. "I was glad to do it. I had a very pleasant time myself."

As he sat down he laid a handful of cigarettes on the table beside him.

"You see, I've come for a chat," he said, with his inimitable smile. "I hope you will help yourself."

"Thank you," and I suited the action to the word. Tremaine's cigarettes would have tempted any one.

"I have been curious to see," he said, "how Cecily would affect New Yorkers. She is certainly well stared at."

"And no wonder!" I said. "She would make St. Anthony turn his head."

"Ah, you think so?" and he shot me a quick glance. "You admire her, then?"

"Admiration is hardly the word," I said slowly. "It is too weak, too thin"—

Evidently he misunderstood me, for he did not wait for me to finish, to explain myself.

"That makes it easier for me," he interrupted. "You have perhaps suspected that the union between us is not a—ah—a legal one?"

"Yes," I said, "I had suspected that."

"Such unions are the rule in Martinique," he continued calmly, "and have been from time immemorial. They are a part of the life there. They are a matter of course, and frequently they are as permanent and happy as any regular one could be. Cecily is what is known as a fille de couleur—physically, I believe, the most beautiful women in the world."

"Then she is not an exception?"

"Oh, no—she's a type—physically, at least. Mentally, I believe she does differ somewhat from the typical capresse. For instance, I never knew another attempt to tame a fer-de-lance."

"It seemed to me," I observed, "that she had as many possibilities as the snake."

He laughed lightly.

"For evil, you mean? That's merely the effect of the first view. Really, the capresse girls have an excellent reputation for docility and all the rest. Not that it would matter much in Martinique—the people there are used to living over a volcano and don't mind. Of course," he added in another tone, "I shall before long have to break it off. Society here is differently organized—different climates, different morals, you know; I feel that I must conform to it. Indeed, I even wish to do so. It is time that I settled down, ranged myself, became a man of family. I have been a wanderer long enough. Cecily can't endure this climate anyway. I'll send her back to St. Pierre."

"What will she say to that?" I asked, with a vivid memory of the adoring way her eyes always dwelt upon him.

"You think it sounds a little brutal?" and he smiled gayly. "It isn't, in the least. You've put Cecily on too high a pedestal. They have an axiom down there, 'Nee de l'amour, la fille de couleur nit d'amour, de rires, et d'oublis'—her life is a thing of love, laughter and forgettings. I think it's essentially true. At the same time," he added more seriously, "I don't wish to be needlessly cruel. That's the reason I'm telling you all this. It's a sort of introduction."

"Ah," I said, and looked at him.

"I'll blurt it out in a word. I'll be out of town next week—all week—my business demands it—and it's absurd for me to think of taking Cecily with me—it's absolutely impossible—it would ruin the whole affair. What I want to ask you is this—look in on her occasionally, cheer her up, take her to the theater, if you'll be so good. She knows no one here, and she has a ridiculous need of companionship, of chattering to some one, of having some one to admire her. It's born in the blood, I suppose; it's an inheritance from two centuries of ancestors. Left to herself, she'll soon mope herself sick. Will you do this for me, my friend?"

There was a compelling wizardry in his eyes as he looked at me, yet I had self control enough to pause and reflect. Still, I saw no reason why I should refuse, even had my own inclination not greatly urged me forward. Here would be an opportunity to unveil such secrets of his as Cecily might know—especially as to where they had been on the evening of the murder. Perhaps she even knew the victim; could give me a clew to the connection between him and Tremaine, if such a connection existed. There were unlimited possibilities. And yet a feeling of shame held me back. To take advantage in this way of a man who trusted me, against whom there was nothing but the merest, most intangible suspicion—

I looked up and met his intent gaze.

"You were reflecting?" he said.

"Merely that it is a delicate trust. I'm not at all unwilling to undertake it, only"—

Again he misunderstood; again he did not wait for me to finish. It was the only weakness I ever detected in him—he made a false step that could never be retraced.

"Only you are flesh and blood, you would say?" and he shot me a smile which illumined as a lightning flash the depths of his character. "On that score, do not worry, I beg of you. I am not of a jealous disposition. I shall not"—

A knock at the door interrupted him or I might have answered in a way that would have wrecked Godfrey's plan forever. I flung the door open and saw Higgins standing there.

"A call at th' telephone fer you, Mr. Lester," he said.

"Excuse me, please," I called over my shoulder to Tremaine, and strode down the hall after the janitor.

It was Mr. Royce who wanted me; he had been called suddenly out of town and wished to give me some instructions for the next day. Our conversation lasted perhaps five minutes; then I hung up the receiver and mounted to my rooms. With a hand not wholly steady, I opened the door. Tremaine was sitting in the chair where I had left him and was just lighting another cigarette.

He arose with a smile as I came in.

"I must be going," he said. "And you will keep an eye on Cecily?"

"Yes, I'll be glad to. Good night," I answered, and closed the door.

As I turned Godfrey walked calmly out of the bedroom.

"What do you think of him?" I asked.

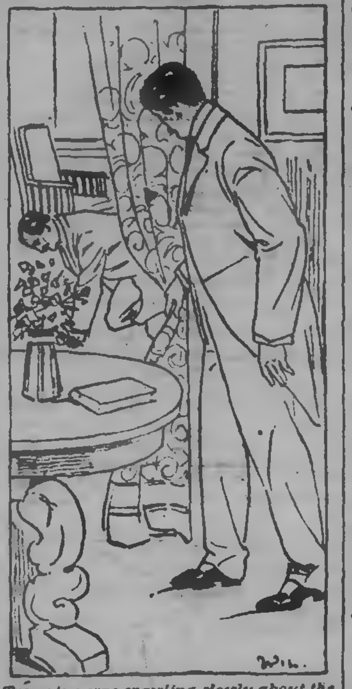
"I think," said Godfrey slowly, "that he's one of the most consummate scoundrels I ever had to deal with. However, we'll unmask him. He's letting us into his citadel."

"Did he sit still while I was away?"

"Not for an instant. I was sure he wouldn't. Therefore as soon as I caught Higgins' errand I dived behind your raincoat. Luckily, it's a long one."

"Yes. And then?"

"And then he took a quick look through the bedroom. I heard him open the closet door and drop on one knee to glance under the bed. Then he went on into the bathroom and finally came back again to the sitting room."



Tremaine was crawling slowly about the room.

"Well?" I asked, for I saw that there was something yet untold.

"Well," continued Godfrey, "after a minute or two I thought it safe to venture out from under the raincoat, more especially as certain peculiar sounds from the other room awakened my curiosity. The sounds were a sort of slow, regular scraping."

He paused a moment to look at me. I could only stare at him.

"I crept to the door and peeped through. Guess what I saw! You never could guess, though. Tremaine was crawling slowly about the room, running his hands carefully over the carpet. He was searching for the diamond."

CHAPTER X.

"WELL," I said at last, "it seems to me we're weaving a pretty strong chain about our friend Tremaine. But why should he have waited this long to look for the diamond?"

"Perhaps he's just discovered its loss," suggested Godfrey.

"Or perhaps this is the first opportunity he's had. I've never before left him alone here, and I keep the snap on so that the door locks itself whenever it's closed."

Godfrey sat for a full minute motionless, his eyes fixed on the door.

"Of course," he said at last, "it may not have been the diamond he was looking for, though I can't imagine what else it could be. But I've a theory I want to test. Suppose we take a look at your bedroom."

I followed him in and turned up the light. He glanced around keenly and went finally to the closet, which was almost opposite the door leading into the sitting room. He entered the closet and closed the door behind him. After a moment I heard a scraping noise and perceived a knife blade working back and forth in a crack of the door. Finally the blade was withdrawn, the door opened and Godfrey came out. He examined the lock, tried it once or twice with the key, which was in it, then he turned to me.

"What time do you leave in the morning?" he asked.

"About 7:30."

"Seven-thirty. Very well. Now I must be going. Look for me in the morning."

"Wait," I said, for I, too, had a sudden idea. "You have a photograph of Thompson, I suppose? Bring it up in the morning with you. I should like to look at it."

"All right," he said, and after I had made sure that the coast was clear he stole away upon tiptoe.

* * * * * * *

Scarcely was I out of bed next morning when there came a light tap on my door and Godfrey slipped in the instant I opened it.

"I had a few properties to arrange," he explained, smiling, "and so thought I'd best come early."

He went on into the bedroom and opened the closet door. Then he took from his pocket a stout bolt, with screws and a screw driver, and proceeded to affix it to the inside of the door.

"Now, my dear Lester," he said, rising when the task was finished, "I'll have to ask you to run up this noon and let me out."

"Let you out of where?"

"Out of the closet. You see, unfortunately, this lock works only from the outside, so you'll have to lock me in before you go. I've put on the bolt as an extra precaution."

"You mean you're going to spend the whole morning in that closet?"

"That's precisely what I mean."

"But you'll suffocate."

"No—you see I've cut a hole through. That will let in the air; besides, through it one can get an admirable view of the outer room."

"Ah!" I said, beginning to understand. "It's a trap!"

"Yes, a trap. Maybe we'll catch something and maybe we won't. What time do you usually go to lunch?"

"About 1 o'clock."

"That ought to bring you here by 1:30. Very well; lock me in and take the key with you."

I did as he bade me, though not without some reluctance, and I confess that I thought of little else during the morning.

* * * * * * *

One o'clock came at last and I hurried out and took the elevated uptown as the quickest way of getting there. It was just 1:20 when I opened my door. With a little shiver of apprehension I inserted the key in the lock of the closet and threw back the bolt. Godfrey walked out on the instant. He was smiling, but pale with fatigue.

"If you've got such a thing as a nip of brandy anywhere about, Lester," he said, sinking into the nearest chair, "I'd be infinitely obliged for it. I feel rather shaky in the knees."

I brimmed a glass for him, and he set it down empty, with a sigh of satisfaction.

"That's better. Do you know, I thought for a time toward the last that I was going to collapse. One little crack is scarcely ventilation enough for an active pair of lungs. However, I was repaid."

"You were?"

"Yes," and he smiled at my impatience. "I'll tell you the story and see what you make of it. First came the chambermaid, who performed her duties with neatness and dispatch. Then a dreary half hour passed. I had about come to the conclusion that I might have spared my pains when I caught the sound of a key in the lock of the outer door. I heard the door open and close, and an instant later our friend Tremaine appeared within my range of vision."

"Tremaine!" I exclaimed. "Then he had Thompson's key!"

"Yes," agreed Godfrey. "But my story's only begun. Tremaine took a look through the rooms to assure himself that there was no one here. He tried the closet door, but didn't seem surprised or suspicious when he found it locked. Then he went back to the outer room, dropped on his hands and knees and began to search."

"For the diamond?"

To be continued.

THE ENGLISH SYSTEM.

Not a Hundred Persons Affected by a Change of Administration.

"All told, the government of England consists of only forty-six persons, and the transfer of political control from one party to another directly affects only these forty-six persons and a few great functionaries of state whose duties are purely ornamental," says A. Maurice Low in Appleton's. "In all not 100 persons are concerned by a change of administration. Postmasters, government employees of every class, from messengers to ambassadors and colonial administrators, are not disturbed by the transfer of power. Clearly no political party in England can count upon patronage as a political asset.

"The principle on which the parliamentary system of England is founded is the rule of the majority, and the majority elects to surrender its power to one man—the premier. The power of the majority is so strictly recognized that the rules of the house of commons deprive the minority of all power to initiate or shape legislation. When a majority of the electorate of the kingdom has sanctioned a policy represented by a political party that party is given free hand to put its policy into operation. In all legislatures the power of the majority is the control which it exercises to tax the people and spend their money. See, then, how absolute is the power of the prime minister in his command of the treasury."

France in China.

More than eight years have elapsed since China granted to France a concession to build a railway from the Tonquin frontier to Yunnanfu, the capital of the southwestern province, a distance of about 280 miles. Labor and climatic difficulties as well as a change in 1904 of the original trace of the line have had much to do with the delay, but work is now proceeding all along the new route, and it is expected that the railway will be open as far as Mengtsu in 1907 and be completed to Yunnanfu, the terminus, in 1908.—London Engineer.

New Postage Plan Hits Papers Hard

An Advance in Price of Papers Sent Across the Boarder

The regulations governing the new postal agreement on newspapers passing between Canada and the United States, have been received by Postmaster Rogers. They require that postage to the amount of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof be paid on all newspapers going into the United States. This will mean that all subscribers of Canadian papers living on the American side will have to pay an additional postage on papers, amounting to about one cent per copy. Peterborough people who are sending the Review to friends in the United States should call at this office and make arrangements for the continuation of the paper. The new arrangements take effect on May 8th next.

These new regulations are the result of the postal convention between the United States and Canada. Under the postal convention, which has hitherto been in force, the Dominion it is alleged, had been at a decided disadvantage in regard to the transmission of newspapers and periodicals passing between the two countries. There is about a ton of matter coming from the United States to Canada, to every hundred pounds going to the United States, and much of the former consists of publications of a very cheap order. The convention stipulated that all this matter should be carried at the rates prescribed by the country of origin, and according to the United States regulations cheap publications were carried at newspaper rates, which could not be so carried to Canada. Thus the Dominion was in the position of giving privileges to American publishers, which were denied to Canadians. This has now been changed. Hereafter newspapers and periodicals mailed in one country and addressed to the other, will be subject to a uniform rate of one cent for each four ounces prepaid by stamps affixed to each package.

This new arrangement is expected to keep out the trashier periodicals, though it is doubtful. The express companies, whose rates are lower than the postal rates, will be used more generally, and periodicals will be sold on the news stands.

There is no doubt but that the immediate effect of this regulation will be the advance in the rates for papers sent to subscribers in the United States. Almost every paper in Canada has on its lists, names of patrons in the States, to whom the paper is sent. Many copies are sent by relatives and friends, to those who have, and wish to retain, personal interest in the locality in which the paper is printed. The postal rate, coming into effect on May 8th, will practically add 52 cents to the subscription rate, the postage having to be prepaid by the publishers. Hence all subscribers, who are receiving, and all who are sending the papers across the line will be required to pay the additional charge. The new rule will have one effect, possibly not contemplated by the framers of the regulation. The publisher, who now often continues the paper to the subscriber after the year has expired, assuming that the subscriber so wishes the paper continued, and will presently pay for it, will not feel inclined to shell out his good money for postage and lose it in addition to the subscription price. Hence a general levelling up will at once ensue, and the probable result will be the falling off in the number of papers sent to the United States.

Monster Rally in Opera House Will be Held on Friday Night Next

The Speakers Will be Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, Mr. Bergeron, M. P. of Beauharnois, Que. and Mr. Boyce, M. P. of West Algoma and Mr. Geo. W. Fowler, of King's and Albert, N. B.—Strong Array of Debating Talent—Everyone is Cordially Invited.

All arrangements are now completed for the big mass meeting to be held in the Grand Opera House on Friday evening next, April 26th, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough.

The speakers will be Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary; Mr. J. H. G. Bergeron, of Beauharnois, Que. Mr. A. C. Boyce, M.P., of West Algoma, and Mr. George W. Fowler, M.P., of King's and Albert, N.B.

Both Dominion and Provincial issues will be discussed, and the Association is to be congratulated on securing an excellent array of talented speakers.

Mr Bergeron is an able, fluent and impressive speaker, and has been the hero of many a political battle in Quebec. Mr. Boyce is also a clever debater and has a fine grasp of the important issues of the day. As a platform orator he is among the first in Canada.

Of Hon. W. J. Hanna, the popular and aggressive Provincial Secretary, much has been heard. He is a strong and effective debater and has administered his department with zeal and efficiency. He is one of the most widely known men in Canadian public life and a tower of strength to the Conservative party.

Mr George W. Fowler, of King's and Albert, N.B., who is one of the most picturesque figures on the Conservative side of the House, and a man who has shown that he is capable of defending himself in any attack, and at the same time make the foremost of his opponents feel decidedly uncomfortable. He is now in the limelight of Canadian public life, and hundreds will no doubt be anxious to hear this fearless and outspoken speaker on Friday night.

The great gathering on Friday night is open to the public. Ladies are particularly requested to attend. Seats will be reserved for them and their escorts. It is expected that the opera house will be crowded to the doors to hear an earnest, fair and instructive discussion of the leading questions of the day.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association will be held on Friday evening at seven o'clock, in the Young Conservative Club rooms, for the election of officers and the receiving of reports. Every member should be on hand.

Commissioners Have Granted The Hotel and Shop Licenses

No Change in Peterborough Except in Case of Royal Hotel, the Proprietor of Which Was Refused a License—Application for License at Hall's Glen Also Turned Down.

The meeting of the Board of License Commissioners for the district of West Peterborough last night, resulted in all the applications from hotel proprietors in this city being granted, except one, and that was Jas Kelly, of the Royal Hotel, who was given three months to sell out. After Mr. Kelly has sold out the commissioners may, if they think fit, grant a license to a new tenant. The only new application for a license in the district was from Nathaniel Pearson, of Hall's Glen, in the township of Harvey, and it was not granted. Mr. Pearson's premises are situated just across the river from the Buckhorn hotel, conducted by Mr. Thos. Eastwood. In view of the fact that Mr. Eastwood's hotel is situated in a local option township and is debarred from the possibility of receiving a license, it was felt that it would not be advisable to grant the privilege to sell liquor just across the river. Mr. Pearson's petition was signed by about eighty ratepayers in the district, some of them as far away as nine miles from the location of the proposed hotel. On the other hand a counter petition was received from a large number of prominent residents residing in the immediate neighborhood of Mr. Pearson's premises asking that the application be not granted. Several letters were also received to the same effect. After careful deliberation the commissioners decided not to grant the application for a license.

Mr. Jos. Stewart

License Inspector for West Peterborough.

CITY HOTEL LICENSES.

The following are the hotel proprietors to whom licenses were granted for the license year commencing May 1st:—

W. Snowden, Snowden House.
Jas Dolan, City Hotel.
M C Tooley, Queen's Hotel.
Geo Lipsett, Maple Leaf Hotel.
T. Cavanagh, Cavanagh House.
Jas Head, Peterborough House.
A T Johnston, Windsor Hotel.
C R Nixon, Southern Hotel.
Gus White, White House.
Mary Bowman, New Oxford Hotel.
Margaret O'Shea, Commercial Hotel.
J B LaRoque, Montreal House.
J. A. Lawless, National Hotel.
D. Flynn, American House.
R J Munro, Munro House.
P. Hogan, Albion Hotel.
F A Clarke, Crown Hotel.
Geo Graham, Oriental Hotel.

In the case of the Crown Hotel, it might be mentioned that, as the present proprietor, Mr. Jackson, is about to transfer his business and license to Mr. F. A. Clarke, the commissioners, under the circumstances, were not able to transfer the license until the deal was consummated. That it will be done, however, there is no doubt.

SHOP LICENSES.

The applications of Messrs. A. Rountree, Alex. Elliott, F. J. R. Mitchell and John Sullivan for shop licenses were all favorably considered and granted.

The licenses for bartenders will be granted by Inspector Stewart.

The result of the commissioner's deliberations leaves the city with eighteen hotels and four shop licenses for 1907. The Royal Hotel will, however, likely be granted a license when a new tenant takes charge.

The meeting last night was held in Inspector Stewart's office, in the old opera house block. Those present were Messrs. Kendry, Morrison, LeBrun and Inspector Stewart. Everything passed off most harmoniously although every application was given careful consideration.

Watering Carts Were Out Early; Merchants Are Making no Kick

Council Should Make a New Agreement With Water Commissioners—Should Have Use of the Hydrants —Street Commissioner Talks.

To the satisfaction of everyone the street watering was started early this morning. Two carts are doing duty on the central section of the city and the result is that no complaints are being made. The first team started out at a quarter past seven, which is earlier than usual, and all the carts in the city are in use. Of course this has been an entirely different style of a day. There was no wind to disturb the dust, and not so many many rigs as usual, as the farmers are all taking advantage of the the change in the weather, and will not come to the city, unless it is necessary.

Nevertheless it is a great relief to the merchants, business men and citizens generally, to be free of the dust nuisance. It is no more than they are entitled to, and the people will see that they get what is coming to them.

This morning the Street Commissioner told his side of the story, which will justify him in the eyes of the public, although no one blamed him for a minute. The Commissioner said that as soon as he got up in the morning he noticed a change in the weather, and before seven o'clock started out for the water works people to turn on the stand pipes. As soon as he found them he started them off in a horse and rig to turn on every stand pipe in the city. This operation is not a small one. Most of the pipes had not been touched since last fall and in some cases a half an hour or more was required to get at the valve. It was therefore, half past twelve, noon, before the job was completed. As fast as the pipes were opened, the Street Commissioner had his water waggon men on the job.

This is all right and everyone will accept it, but from the merchants point of view it is no good. The Council should take steps now, at the next meeting to make a new agreement with the Water Commissioners, which will do away with this trouble every spring and fall. The City should have the use of the hydrants when the weather is frosty, and the stand pipes are in danger of freezing. If a move is not made now while the thing is fresh in everyone's mind, it will be forgotten until the fall, when it will be too late, and the same old trouble will be experienced.

ABLE ADDRESS ON READING

Given by Mr. D. Walker Before Baptist Young People

A largely attended meeting of the Young People's Society of the Murray Street Baptist Church was held last evening. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the good programme given. The Literary Committee had charge of the meeting and they deserve credit for the splendid evening.

Mr. Lillie occupied the chair, and in a few appropriate remarks opened the meeting. Mr. F. W. Miller and Miss Stephens then gave a vocal duet in their usual excellent manner.

The treat of the evening was a most interesting and instructive address given by Mr. Duncan Walker, on the subject of "A wise way to read wise books."

Mr. Walker kept his audience interested throughout. In the course of his remarks, he quoted Bacon, the noted author, who said some books were to be chewed and digested, while others were to be actually swallowed. The speaker said "We should not be in a hurry to read the latest books out. He condemned the perusal of the latest books, simply for the purpose of being able to take part in polite conversation. Providing a person had the ability, Mr. Walker said such a one could skip parts in reading a book. Pick out the important parts and thoroughly understand them.

At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks, on motion of the President, Mr. Hooker, and seconded by Mr. Jas. Ellis, was tendered the speaker for his kindness in addressing the young people of Murray street church. They appreciated his remarks very much and would look forward with pleasure to a time when Mr. Walker would again favor them with an address.

A most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

TOO MANY DOGS

Progress Thinks That Peterborough is a Canine Cursed City.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In Saturday's issue of a local paper is an article, entitled, "Diabolical Work of the Dog Poisoner." Now what is a diabolical act? Compare the action of the dog owner with that of the dog poisoner, and the onus of reproach, rests upon the owner.

What right have I to keep an animal running at large that trespasses on my neighbor's property, destroys his flowers, shrubs, and garden, viciously attacks his wife and children, bedaubs with mud his verandahs, and even enters his house and carries off his family provisions?

It matters not whether the animal be a horse, cow, or goat, or even a "valuable collie," or "choice setter," or "fine hound," or "family pet." Call it by what name you please, the fact remains, it is a public nuisance. My neighbor has just as much right to ask protection that his cow may graze on my lawn, as I should expect protection for my dog, that tears up his flowers, and indeed the cow is the least harmful animal.

We are all agreed that the dog is a noble, intelligent animal — in the country he is an absolute necessity, but in town he is a public nuisance. And if ever there is a dog cursed town, it is Peterborough. I have never poisoned a dog, nor do I know anyone who has, but I am surely tempted to join the unknown ranks of those, who, finding there is no redress for such imposition, are forced in sheer self-defence to adopt this means of lessening the evil. If three hundred Peterborough dogs were consigned to the Lethal Chamber, it would be a very great blessing to the community.

If some of our aldermen would rid us of some of those underfoot nuisances—dogs, garbage, etc., we would willingly take chances on overhead signs falling on us. We have to take chances anyway, with the dangerous ones, fitted with live wires, glass etc. Some of our worthies have had a "brainstorm."

Why not hold the dog owner liable for damage to property by his "household pet" and in addition have him pay a substantial sum for the privilege of maintaining a nuisance.

One of our civic luminaries proposes to tax a useful, serviceable laborer $10.00. He would confer a much greater boon to the community if he would place that tax on dogs.

We have private rights, it is true, but we also live in relation to the community. We have no moral right to maintain a public nuisance. Under present, unbearable conditions, dog poisoning is the only source of self-defence left to the peace and order-loving citizen.

Yours, etc.,
PROGRESS.

Chemong Bridge Was Not Broken

When the Ice Broke up one Section Was Let Loose

The Chemong bridge was not broken yesterday as reported in an evening contemporary, except a piece of the railing. The ice in the lake broke up early in the morning and started down. It was blocked at the floating bridge, the same as every year, and as usual a section of the bridge was let loose allowing the ice free passage. This morning the section was back in place and the stage driver from Ennismore was able to walk across. He expects to be able to drive over on the return trip. Very little damage was done to the bridge although the flow of ice was very heavy.

The Chemong bridge when constructed was provided with three sections which could be released at a moments notice, and these have been used every year at this time of the year. The portion of the bridge which is allowed to float away is attached to a chain and the chain is fastened to a buoy, so that it cannot get far away and the work of bringing it back does not amount to much.

Mr. R. N. Scott, who represents Smith township in the County Council, was among the first on the scene yesterday and he informed the Review today that the bridge will be in good shape by this evening.

William Goodh and Harry Springer, union miners, engaged in a pistol duel in Sturgis, Ky., and both were shot to death.

Will Deport a Lazy Immigrant

Man With Wife and Three Children Will Not Work

The Central Charity Board through its agent, has arranged with the Government and Emigration Department for the deportation of a family which has been here since the latter part of July. The family consist of a man and his wife, and three children. The man is of no use to his wife or to the country. He will not work, and depends on his wife's earnings and charity for a livelihood He has only done two days work since last November, although his wife worked hard. There may be some trouble in getting them away, as they refuse to go, but in a few days the city will be rid of them, and it will not be long before they are safe and sound on the old sod again.

New System is Being Installed

In Swift & Co's Ice-House, Havelock—Many Changes

Havelock, April 22

Work has once more been commenced at Swift & Co's. ice house here, of which Mr. J. W. Bryans, of town, is manager and the number of cars iced are increasing daily. It is expected that there will be a larger number of cars iced this year than ever before, as the company are now shipping more dressed beef and not so much live stock.

There will be many improvements made to the ice house this year. The old galleries for carrying the ice up to the rooms to be stored, which extend along the side and back, will be replaced by new ones built by a better method, which will make storage of ice more easy. Instead of hoisting ice up to the galleries by means of horses, a steam engine will be used and a contrivance will also be made for spotting cars by means of the steam engine.

A gasoline engine will be installed in one of the rooms for hoisting ice to the platform in the summer, which work has always been done by means of a horse. A machine for crushing the ice into the size required will be installed in one of the rooms to which all the ice from the other rooms will be taken to be crushed. This crusher, which will be run by the gasoline engine, will be a great convenience, as at present all the ice has to be broke up by hand, which, besides being hard work, took a long time to do and thus the congealed moisture had to be got out a long time before the trains arrived, with the result that a lot of it melted. Chutes will also be constructed for carrying the blocks from the platform direct to the tanks of the cars where before the ice was loosely shovelled from the platform to the car, causing a great loss, as quite a large quantity fell between and over the cars. Salt, which is stored on the ground floor, will also be hoisted up to the level of the cars by means of the gasoline engine.

Strongly Favor Open Meetings

Result of the Review Referendum is Announced

The ballots which have appeared in the Review for the past week in reference to open committee meetings of the Board of Education have been counted.

In all 423 ballots were either handed or sent into this office during the past few days. A careful examination of these shows that the people strongly favor that the meetings of the committees of the Board of Education should be open to the press and public. 296 ballots were marked in the affirmative and 127 in the negative, leaving a clear majority of 169 in favor of open sessions. This demonstrates that the ratepayers are decidedly in favor of no star chamber proceedings, believing that all committees of the Board should be open the same as are the committees of the City Council.

Fully three-quarters of the ballots sent in were signed and every precaution was taken to guard against any person voting twice.

AMUSEMENTS

THOS. E. SHEA COMPANY.

Mr. J. D. Elms, advance agent, for the Thomas E. Shea Company, is in the city. This company which come highly recommended by the press and public, will appear at the Grand Opera House here on Monday and Tuesday nights of next week, April 29th and 30th. On Monday evening they will produce the late Sir Henry Irving's famous production, "The Bells," and on Tuesday evening the offering will be Channing Pollock's celebrated play "Napoleon, the Great." This is a beautiful, spectacular military production. Mr. Shea's Company have been eighteen years on the road, and yielding to special request, have finally consented to play one and two night stands. They will spend two weeks in Canada.

"PAINTING THE TOWN."

There is no question about the complete success of "Painting the Town," which was seen here earlier in the season, for not in a long time has a similar entertainment afforded so much genuine enjoyment and the fact of its being booked for a return engagement at the Grand opera house April 25th, is indeed welcome news for our theatre patrons. As in all productions presented by the Charles H. Yale Amusement Company, nothing is lacking that artistic skill can desire or money procure. The same excellent cast headed by those two clever comedians, Halliday and Leonard, will be seen, and a crowded house will surely be the rule when the curtain again goes up on their return.

HOW WISE MEN MAKE MONEY VERY FAST

By buying Land in the way of a growing city, you convert your dollar into hundreds and your hundreds into thousands. The more you buy the more money you must make. A friend of mine bought land at $100 per acre 10 miles outside the limits of Chicago and less than 20 years after sold it for $5000 per acre, making $1,900 profit per acre. I offer you Land on "Western Ave." ½ mile outside Peterborough limits and in the way of its most rapid growth, in blocks of 8 lots 33x140 ft. for $75 per lot and only ask you to pay $10 cash and $5 per month. This is your opportunity to convert a few dollars into hundreds. Within a few years those lots will sell for from $300 to $400 each and perhaps for double my estimate. Build a house or I will build one for you, plant your garden and you are on the high road to a rich and happy man. I await your call and will guide you right.

Headaches Mean Your Blood Is Poisoned

If your bowels, kidneys or skin are not ridding the system of waste-matter, the blood is laden with impurities, which inflame the nerves. It is these irritated nerves that make the head ache.

Powders and pills won't cure, they merely drug the nerves into unconciousness and relieve for a short time.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Headaches, Neuralgia and Nerve Pains because they purify the blood. They act directly on the three great eliminating organs—Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—and restore them to healthy action, thus ridding the system of all poisons.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices—chemically changed, by the process of combining them, into a far more effective medicinal compound than the natural juices. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all dealers' or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Improvements to Village Park

Are Badly Needed — Business Changes Hands—Splendid Concert

Havelock, April 22nd.—Mr. J. Campney of town, has sold out his blacksmith shop and trade, to Mr. Ed. McMullen of Oshawa, formerly of town. Mr. McMullen took possession on Monday morning. Mr. Campney who has conducted the shop for several years will remain in town.

The Havelock Park Board, need to get busy and see to the matter of fixing up the park. At present the grounds are unfit for sports of any kind. Where the creek crosses the park, there are several cave-ins, one of which is about twenty feet wide, and five feet deep, right in the middle of the race track. The grounds are very uneven and need to be levelled off. On one side of the park, the fence has fallen down, and needs to be fixed up. If the Park Board would make a start, there are several in town who would try to help them along. The clubs in town are also waiting for the grounds to be fixed up before organizing.

Mr. J. W. Bryans has had his shop furnished with a pair of new blinds, with his name inscribed with gold trimmings on them. The blinds were made by J. J. Turner & Sons of Peterborough.

Mr. Wm. Jones, who is working on the Sudbury division of the C. P. R. is spending a few days at his home.

Mr. Jas. Penny of Peterborough, spent Sunday a this home here.

Mr. W. A. Deremo of Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

Mrs. A. C. Deremo, who has been visiting at Cordova Mines, returned to her home in Consecon on Saturday.

Mr. Wellington Wilde has recovered from his recent illness.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Wm. Vance, who has been very sick with pneumonia, is a little better.

Mr. Jas. Thompson has men engaged erecting a residence for Mr Wm. Watson, on the lot, east of Mr. John Watson's residence, Ottawa street.

The concert given by the Royal Scots Concert Company, in the town hall on Friday night last, was largely attended and was indeed the best in their line that ever appeared in Havelock. The company consisted of Mr. George Neil, Scotland's greatest tenor; Miss Flora Donaldson, the queen of Scottish song; Mr. Fred Howard, king of Scottish humorists; and ventriloquists; and Mr. Archie Boswick, solo pianist and accompanist.

Mr. Watson of Toronto, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Alex. Rose.

Mr. Wm. Andrews has been engaged to drive the stage between Havelock and Blairton.

After the concert on Friday night last a dance was held in the town hall by the young men of the town. At twelve o'clock a dainty luncheon was served, after which the dancers dispersed.

Mr. Barrie of Peterborough, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. James E. Fowler.

The Park debentures have been sold to a party in Bowmanville, for a little above par. The money will be paid to Mr. Mathison and Mr. Pacy from whom the park was bought.

The Francis Greene Co. will appear in the town hall for three successive nights, commencing April 22nd. The first night they will present "The Black Flag," the second night "The Two Orphans," and the third night, "The House of Mystery."

ADDRESS TO THE SUN

To those who are engaged in studying the sun, the following beautiful lines from Ossian's poems may be of interest:—

O thou that rollest above round as the shield of my fathers!
Whence are thy beams, O Sun! thy everlasting light!
Thou lookest forth in thy awful beauty,
The Stars hide themselves in the sky; the moon cold and pale,
Sinks in the Western wave. But thou thyself movest alone;
Who can be a companion of thy course!

The oaks of the mountains fall; the mountains themselves decay with years;
The ocean shrinks and grows again; the moon herself is lost in Heaven;
But thou are forever the same—rejoicing in the brightness of thy course.
When the world is dark with tempests, when thunder roils, and lightning flies;
Thou lookest from thy beauty in the clouds, and laughest at the storm.
But to Ossian thou lookest in vain; for he beholds thy beams no more,
Whither thy yellow hair flow on the eastern clouds, or thou tremblest at the gates of the West.
But thou are perhaps like me—for a season; they years shall have an end;
Thou shalt sleep in the clouds, careless of the voice of the morning.
Exult thou, O Sun, in the strength of thy youth! Age is dark and unlovely;
It is like the glimmering light of the moon when she shines through broken clouds;
The mist is on the hills; the blast of the North is on the plains;
The traveller shrinks in the midst of his journey.

New Church Will be Erected at Once

Bethel Congregation Decides to Built New House of Worship

It was unanimously decided last evening at a largely attended meeting of the congregation of Bethel Methodist church, to build a new church in the vicinity of Stewart's hall, Otonabee. Rev. J. G. Lewis, the pastor, was present and occupied the chair. Messrs. R. Hanbidge and R. Deyell were appointed a building committee. They will at once select a suitable site and the erection of the edifice will be proceeded with. It is estimated that the new church will cost between four and five thousand dollars. It will be a brick structure and will be a credit to the enterprising people of Otonabee. As to the seating capacity of the new building and the exact size is not known, that is left in the hands of the committee appointed last evening.

The present church at Bethel has served its purpose and upon the completion of the new edifice it will be sold.

Prairie Still is Covered With Snow

No Mail Received at Rosthern for Eleven Days

Mr. Joseph Suree, formerly of this city, who left here some weeks ago to take up his residence in Rosthern, Sask., has written an interesting letter to the Review, describing the conditions of that place. The letter is dated April 10th, and among other things he says, "We have not had a mail for eleven days, although we should have a daily mail. The main line of the C.N.R. is blocked with snowdrifts, east of us. Ours cars with horses and effects, which left Peterborough three weeks ago, are still in the snow drifts, one hundred miles from here. This time last year, seeding was nearly through, but the prairie is still covered with quite a depth of snow and the Prince Albert branch of the C. N. R. has been blocked for over a week between Saskatoon and Regina.

A Sensational Incident

Well-known Resident had Eczema 25 Years

Obliged to wear Gloves Day and Night

Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure When 4 Doctors Failed.

ZAM-BUK, the great herbal balm, has just worked such a sensational cure in Montreal that it has set the whole city talking. Mr. T. M. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Avenue, is the grateful subject of this cure. He says:

"For 25 years I had Eczema in my hands. It started in red blotches, which itched and burned so that I felt that I could almost scratch the parts away. Then after the itching came the pain and the soreness. Great open wounds formed, and set up terrible agony. I went to a doctor when first the trouble started. He did me no good, and I tried another. He also failed, and I tried a third, then a fourth. My case baffled them all, and I paid my money for no good. Then I tried embrocations and salves, and liniments and creams and preparations recommended by druggists and by friends alike. It was no good. The Eczema continued, and I never believed I could be cured. For the past two years the pain and irritation were so bad that I was obliged to wear gloves day and night!

"Zam-Buk was brought to my attention. I tried a little and it did me good. I bought another box and it did me still more good. I tried another, and, to my intense delight, this herbal balm did what I had been hoping for for twenty-five years—it cured me. My hands are now healed, and I have put away the gloves, which for two years had been indispensable day and night. I have been well known in Montreal and Eastern Ontario for over 30 years, and my case is one which hundreds of people know of."

Zam-Buk heals all skin diseases—eczema, scalp sores, ulcers, ringworms, poisoned wounds, barber's rash, pustules, face blemishes due to blood poison. It heals cuts and lacerations, stops bleeding, cures piles, eases fistula, reduces large veins. It cures burns and scalds, and it is an excellent "first aid" remedy. It is highly antiseptic. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for same price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

PRESENTATION TO WORTHY LADY

Mrs. Wm. Cooper Given Purse of Gold Before Leaving for the West

Havelock, April 23.

Mrs Wm. Cooper who for the past fifteen years has been a resident of Havelock, and is leaving for Saskatoon, to join her two sons, who are running a farm there, was honored by her many friends on Saturday night at Mrs Jas. Beatty's residence, when a purse containing $15 in gold and the following address was presented to her:—

To Mrs. Wm. Cooper:—

Dear Friend,—It is with great regret that we learned that you were to sever your connection with your friends in Havelock in the near future. We assure you that we can always think with pleasure of the days of your residence among us, of deep regret and sorrow of your departure. We could not let you go without expressing in some way our kindly feeling towards you. Therefore, we ask you to accept this purse as a token of our regard for you.

We wish you a safe and pleasant journey to the land of gold and grain, and unite in wishing you a large measure of happiness and success in your new home and surroundings.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

ISAAC BARLOW,
F. HAIG,
JOHN BARLOW.

Mrs Cooper replied that it was with great sorrow she left Havelock, and assured those present that she would return to visit them in a couple of years.

After this a dainty supper was served in the dining room, and when ample justice had been done to the good things provided the guests dispersed to the parlor where the remainder of the evening was spent in divers amusements.

The Radial Bill Must Wait; Matter Discussed at Ottawa

Warm Debate in House of Commons Yesterday.

Archie Campbell Champions Poor Women Who Are Dumped Off Cars—Not For General Advantage of Canada—Calls it Distinct Injustice—Mr. Borden's Criticism—Hamilton Bill Sandbagged.

Ottawa, April 23.—The bill to declare the Hamilton Radial Electric Co. a work for the general advantage of Canada, and to give that company right of extending its system to Windsor, to the Niagara frontier, and to the city of Toronto, was called in the Commons yesterday, and was the occasion of an exceedingly warm debate on this matter, similar to those which followed before the Railway Committee.

The leader of the Opposition objected at the outset to coupling the term "for the general advantage of Canada" with local undertakings like the present. The fact that this had been done in the past was no reason why it should be continued hereafter. What reason, he asked, could be advanced for terming this "for the general advantage of Canada?"

Archie Campbell replied that the Hamilton Radial Co.'s lines were to extend both to Niagara and to Detroit, and that it had necessarily therefore to come under Dominion control. To his mind, the action of the Railway Committee in refusing this company right to enter the city of Toronto was a distinct injustice to the residents of the neighboring municipalities, and an injustice also to the people of Toronto themselves, who wanted all the railway facilities that they could get.

A Crying Shame.

"The district around Toronto had contributed largely toward the upbuilding of the metropolis, and it was a crying shame that women and children on their way to market instead of being able to continue their journey down to the centre of the city, should be dumped at the sacred civic line, without even shelter, till the street railway carried them the rest of the way to their journey's end. The people of Toronto want these obstructions removed, and accommodation given to those who wanted to get in and out of the city.

Mr. Borden considered that Mr. Campbell's remarks were no answer at all to his inquiry.

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) expressed his surprise that after its campaign in 1896 that the Liberal party should be lined up last night against provincial rights.

One-Sided Debate.

W. H. Bennett (East Simcoe) commented upon the jug-handled character of the debate. Evidently the Government supporters were ashamed of their position and found it impossible to be defended. This Federal Parliament should disabuse the province of the idea of that it was possible for a company to come here and by inserting certain words implying an extension, obtain federal powers overriding its provincial charter. In a few months Parliament would meet again when the company could come before the House and show that it was really extending towards the boundary, and not merely resorting to a subterfuge to avoid provincial responsibility, then the company's case would receive consideration on its tested merits.

Mr. Fielding then moved that the committee rise and report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Thus have provincial rights gained a great victory.

The Hamilton Radial is doomed beyond resurrection.

The Coal Strike.

Ottawa, April 23.—At the opening of the House yesterday morning Mr. Borden asked Mr. Lemieux what was the news from the western labor trouble.

Mr. Lemieux stated that Mr. Sherman, president of District Union No. 18, had sent him a telegram, dated April 20, in the course of which Mr. Sherman said that he was trying to persuade the men to accept a temporary arrangement, and return to the mines pending an investigation, but that he so far had failed.

The companies would do nothing pending the return of G. G. S. Lindsey, who was expected to reach Fernie yesterday.

WARRING AGAINST WHITE PLAGUE

Story of the Fight Being Made by a Powerful Aggregation of Workingmen

Victims of tuberculosis outnumber the casualty list in modern warfare. Means for the limitation of the spread of the dread disease and the best methods for its cure are occupying the attention of the medical profession and filling pages in magazines, newspapers and periodicals. All the people are interested for the reason that all the people are liable to infection. Tuberculosis sanitariums, "farms" and "camps" are numerous and increasing in number. Any intelligent effort at the prevention of tuberculosis is certain to meet with general approval.

Among the wage-earners, tuberculosis is prevalent, especially with tradesmen or clerks in sedentary occupations. No mechanic is more liable to this disease than is the printer. For years tuberculosis has been common in this trade, and the printers have always been alert to ascertain and adopt scientific methods for the warding off and curing of the disease. Union printers conduct a Home at Colorado Springs, and there is attached to this Home a tuberculosis hospital. At present there are nearly fifty patients in this hospital. The superintendent of the Union Printers' Home in all of his reports dwells upon the number of cures that result through the scientific treatment and modern methods for the treatment of tuberculosis in use at the Union Printers' Home. Hundreds of young men afflicted with the dread disease have gone to Colorado Springs, taken the course of treatment prescribed, and are now at work at the printers' trade, sound in body, and fulfilling their mission as useful citizens. A few years ago the Board of Trustees of the Union Printers' Home, decided to establish a tent colony, and this experiment has proved a great success. The Union Printers' Home is supported by members of the International Typographical Union, each member contributing fifteen cents a month to the fund. The International Typographical Union has promoted measures for the benefit and welfare of its membership, but none more praiseworthy or productive of more substantial results than the Union Printers' Home and its hospital annex.

The Union Printers' Home is managed by a Board of Trustees, consisting of seven members. At present two members of the Board are located on the Pacific Coast; one in Michigan, one in New York State, one in Colorado, and two—James M. Lynch, the president, and J. W. Bramwood, the secretary—at the headquarters of the International Typographical Union at Indianapolis. These gentlemen also are president and secretary of the international body.
